On Friday the white tents stood out in bold relief on the broad Barrifield common; Saturday the field is worn and bare. The camp of 1902 is over and gone. Yesterday the bustle and activity of a cavaly camp; to-day the desolate aspect of a forsaken spot. On Friday the squadrons galloped and wheeled across the plain in stern yet beautiful array; next day the ground that sent back the thundering echo from the hurrying hoofs is a grazing place for the gentle, soft-eyed kine. Yesterday the sun flashed bright on sabre and rifle barrel; to-day it kissed the white clover blossoms that sprinkle the fields. Yesterday, the pomp and circumstance of troops being trained for the defence of their beloved country; to-day silence broods over the deserted camp ground. And what a change it is! Though the weather had used them ill, the cavalrymen were loathe to turn their backs upon the spot where, for twelve days they had worked hard on parade and afterwards enjoyed themselves as only soldiers can. There is plenty of fun in a camp if one looks for it. The practical jokes, the songs and concerts in the evening, the sports outside the lines—these all help to make the time pass pleasantly.

But these are over now, and the troopers have returned home to resume their peaceful occupations. Early this afternoon they marched out of camp, and the squadrons entrained for their respective headquarters.

"For its size," said Col. Montizambert, as he stood in front of the brigadier's tent and gazed down the long line, "this has been the finest camp I have seen. It was the best laid out, and the best worked. All the officers deserve great praise for the splendid work they have done."

The Hussars call their friends in the other corps the Racoons, while the Dragoons retort by dubbing their rivals the Cigars.

At every kind of game played the Hussars have been victorious. On Thursday evening running and jumping exercises were held.

Contrary to established custom, there was no route march through the city this summer. Saturday forenoon was lost on account of the rain, and the usual half holiday on the last day of camp was missing. Instead, the brigadier kept the men working hard right up to the last minute.

Trooper John Lynus, of "B" squadron, 3rd Dragoons, is ill of scarlet fever. A medical board was called yesterday to enquire into the case. Lynus was removed to the hospital.

The issue of forage and rations has been highly satisfactory. The hay this year was of excellent quality.

The regular annual muster took place yesterday morning before Maj. Strange, paymaster. The officers received cheques for their men, and the latter were paid this morning. A regular trooper receives, for twelve days' drill, $18 for himself and horse.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mr. James Eagleson of Cavan Township.

The funeral took place on Sunday of the late Jas. Eagleson, of the 1st concession of Cavan.

The deceased had been a great sufferer from cancer for the last two years, and his death occurred on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. He leaves a widow and four children to mourn his death. The latter are George, of Cavan; Harry, of Vancouver; Miss Julia, who resides at home; and Mrs. Thos. Woods, of Hope township.

Mr. Eagleson was a practical farmer in the full sense of the word, and his farm was always regarded as a model one. His high sense of honour and kindly disposition made him respected and beloved throughout the whole section of the country where he was so widely known. His death will be a distinct loss to the entire community.

PEOPLE WHO FLY.

The Ten Peerless Potters are unquestionably the greatest troupe of serialists ever seen anywhere in the world. Six men and four ladies have been brought together from the best of the world's circuses to present the wonderful performances which are one of the star features of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Enormous Shows United. So swift and far their flights through the dome of the vast canvas, so graceful their every movement and so daring their every feat, that they seem to be really superhuman and more like feathered birds than men and women. If there were nothing else on the programme of this vast congregation of wonders brought about by the consolidation of America's two greatest shows it would be well worth the while of any amount of travel and expense to see it. They will be here on Tuesday, July 8th.

MRS. GREENWOOD WRITES

And Tells of Private Murphy's Wounds.

An Interesting Letter From a Former Peterborough Resident.

Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards, Commanding Officer of the 57th Regiment, has received a very kind letter from Mrs. Greenwood, wife of Lieut.-Col. H. S. Greenwood, formerly of town and now of South Africa. The letter is written from Johannesburg and treats with the condition of the Canadians in that far-away land. A portion of Mrs. Greenwood's letter is as appended, and will be read with much interest by Peterborough people:

Johannesburg, May 24, 1902.

My dear Colonel Edwards,—I thought you would be interested to hear about one of your men, called Murphy, who was wounded in Colonel Cookson's fight, you will remember it. Our men did so well, and Mr. Carruthers distinguished himself by his bravery. I have been going out to the hospitals ever since I have been here and the men seem so pleased to see one of their own people. Poor Murphy was very bad at first, part of a shell furrowed the top of his head and they did not think that he would pull through, but after a very anxious few weeks he began to get better and now he is walking about and looking well and strong. Our men were riddled with bullets holes, but owing to their splendid constitution they made wonderful recoveries and the saying is, "nothing kills a Canadian." They are so cheerful and contented and enjoy anything one brings them out, such as fruit or cigarettes. Young Kirkpatrick and Capt. Leckie have had enteric slightly, but are now getting on nicely. I am happy to say that to-day we hope to hear of "peace." The rumours are strongly for it, but no official news has yet come out.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Of the Sunday School Association of Otonabee—The Officers.

The Otonabee Sunday school Association held its annual convention on Monday, June 23rd at Salem. There was a good attendance at the sessions of the convention. Almost every school had its delegate present, and ten out of the twelve schools in the township reported through their delegate. All reports were of a very encouraging nature. Reports were also received from the President, Sec.-Treasurer, Supt. of Normal Work, and Supt. of the Home Class Department. Excellent addresses were given by Rev. J. C. Tibb, M.A., Toronto, and Rev. W. L. Armitage. A Normal lesson on the life of the Apostle Paul was taught by Dr. Harrison, and Mr. Armstrong conducted a very helpful conference on the reports of the schools.

The Association decided to contribute $45 to the County Sunday School Council for Provincial work.

Good music was provided by the Salem choir. The delegates were all hospitably entertained between the sessions to lunch provided by the members of the Sunday school at Salem.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are;

Pres.—Mr. J. Lanchashire.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. George.
Sec.-Treas.—Miss Laura Bennett.
Supt. of Normal Work — Mrs. W. D. Sargeant.
Supt. of Home Class — Miss E. Armstrong.
Supt. of Primary — Miss Nettie Stewart.
Rep. on County Sunday School Council — Miss Ida M. Howson.

The officers, together with the Superintendents of all Sunday schools in the township, form the Executive.

MAY SETTLE IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Just before leaving South Africa Lord Kitchener cabled to the Dominion Government that many members of the Canadian contingent in South Africa wanted their discharge, and he asked for instructions. A reply was sent that there was no objection to their getting discharges. The presumption is that those Canadians want to settle in South Africa. The General in command at Cape Town has also cabled not to allot pay for the 2nd Mounted Rifles after June, which means that the regiment will shortly start for home. The wives and families of men to whom pay has been alloted will therefore cease to receive any after the close of the present month. The 2nd Mounted Rifles have been absent from Canada since January last.

NOW OUT OF DANGER

Bonfires to be Lighted To-Night in Great Britain.

CORONATION IN SEPTEMBER.

The Date Practically Set—Intercessory Services in the Churches Throughout England on Sunday—The King Astonishes His Physicians by His Splendid Recuperative Power—The Announcements.

London, June 29.—King Edward's physicians announced at twenty minutes of ten to-night that the Royal patient's progress was entirely satisfactory. No further bulletins will be issued to-night.

The King Feels Stronger.

London, June 29.—(9.06 a. m.)—The following bulletin regarding the condition of King Edward was issued at Buckingham Palace at 9 o'clock this morning: "The King feels stronger, in spite of some discomfort from the wound. Nothing has occurred to disturb the satisfactory progress the King is making. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Local Discomfort Decreased.

London, June 29.—The bulletin posted at Buckingham Palace at four o'clock this afternoon said the King's progress was in every way satisfactory, and that the local discomfort had decreased.

Saturday's Bulletins

London, June 28.—The following bulletins on the King's condition were issued at the hours named from Buckingham Palace to-day:

10.45 a.m.—"The King had a good night and his improved condition is maintained. We are happy that we are able to state that we consider His Majesty to be now out of immediate danger and the general condition is satisfactory. The operation wound, however, still needs constant attention and such concern as attaches to His Majesty's condition is connected with the wound. Under the most favorable conditions His Majesty's recovery must of necessity be protracted. (Signed) Lister, Treves, Barlow, Smith, Laking."

6 p.m.—"The King passed a very comfortable day and his progress continues to be quite satisfactory. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

11 p.m.—"The King passed a comfortable day and his strength has been well maintained. The wound occasionally causes discomfort. (Signed.) Treves, Barlow, Laking."

Removed to a Couch.

London, June 28, 4.50 p.m.— The King was removed from his bed to a couch this afternoon, earlier than expected, and was placed in a sitting posture. He was feeling decidedly better.

A REMARKABLE RALLY.

King Shows the Recuperate Powers of Men Not Half His Age.

London, June 30.—There is no reason to doubt that the King has astonished his physicians by his remarkable rally from the grave operation performed only six days ago. He has shown wonderful elasticity of constitution and a high recuperative power, such as are usually found in a man of half his years.

The rapidity of his progress thus far tends to discredit entirely the idea generally held that his manner of life had drained his store of vitality below that of most men of his age. It is unreasonable, of course, to jump at the conclusion of the British public that his complete recovery is already assured. Such confidence will be unjustifiable for a considerable time yet, and we have not been told officially whether a second operation is imperative after his strength has been fully restored.

Saturday night passed with less incident, and there were fewer watchers outside Buckingham Palace than any other night since the operation, the public apparently having accepted the official announcement that King Edward has passed the point of immediate danger.

The bulletin issued yesterday morning at 9 o'clock was not expected until 10 o'clock, consequently the few persons who were passing the palace were the only ones attracted to the announcement. When the footmen had posted the notice, however, the crowds soon increased, early churchgoers stopping to read the latest news and passing with expressions of thankfulness.

Sunday has again been a day of intercessional services for the recovery of King Edward throughout the Kingdom. In the morning a vast crowd of the general public gathered at St. Paul's Cathedral. Besides these, there were present, a representative gathering of Government and colonial officials and uniformed colonial officers. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and their children, and Lord and Lady Landsdowne, sat under the dome. An impressive service was conducted by the Bishop of Stepeny, the Right Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, and at its conclusion, the whole audience sang "God Save the King."

Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales, and almost all the other members of the royal family now in London attended a similar morning service in Marlborough House Chapel, while there was a large gathering of peers and peeresses at a service held at noon in the Chapel Royal at St. James' Palace.

Sir Francis Knollys, the King's Private Secretary; the Right Hon. Sir Dighton MacNaughton Probyn, Keeper of the Privy Purse and Extra Equerry to the King, and almost the entire royal household, attended the services in Marlborough House Chapel, and the Queen, who had not ingham Palace since the King was perviously left the precincts of Buckstricken, received a most sympathetic greeting. The public was delighted with such evidence of the King's continued improvement.

Throughout the United Kingdom all religious denominations made similar intercessions for the Sovereign's recovery. Merry Del Val, the Papal Envoy to the coronation of King Edward, conducted a service in Brompton Oratory yesterday afternoon, his congregation including Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier and other Canadians.

Buckingham Palace wore a gayer appearance yesterday than for a week past, and the constant coming and going of royalty and streams of carriages bore testimony to the feeling of increased confidence that the King would recover. In the afternoon a party of princesses drove to Sheen House, Richmond, and the Prince and Princess of Wales paid a long visit to Buckingham Palace. Last evening the Queen and the Royal ladies dined within sight of the public through the windows in front of the palace, thousands of people being gathered in the space in front of the building.

The King yesterday was again successfully transferred from his bed to a couch.

Several postponed functions are being arranged. Lord and Lady Landsdowne announce that their reception will be held July 1. The King has commanded that the Prince and Princess of Wales shall represent Their Majesties at the India Office reception to be held July 4.

Lord Cranborne authorizes the following statement:

The King is rapidly getting better, and the moment, therefore, seems most appropriate for public rejoicing. As chairman of the bonfires committee, I suggest that bonfires throughout the country be lighted Monday night.

THE CORONATION.

An Invitation From Queen Alexandra Indicates Event in September.

London, June 30.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Copenhagen says that Queen Alexandra has invited the deputation of Danish Hussars to return to London the end of September for the coronation of the King.

Tribute From France.

Paris, June 30.—Gen. de Gillifat, the ex-Minister of War, has written to The Journal Des Debats an extremely sympathetic letter on King Edward, which concludes:

"We cannot forget what he did during the Franco-Prussian war in helping our sick and wounded. To him, as to his august mother, we should remain grateful. Moreover, whenever it was a question of good and noble action he, as Prince of Wales, was always powerfully seconded by the most charming and charitable of women. In this domain she reigned long before she became Queen Alexandra, the pearl of England."

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

Fell 900 Feet to Death.

Halifax, June 30.—Robert McLennan, an Intercolonial shunter, was killed here on Saturday while boarding a moving train.

Richard Parrs, a miner employed by the Dominion Coal Company, was on Saturday thrown down 900 feet at No. 2 pier, Glace Bay, C.B., and met a terrible death.

Lost From Training Ship.

Queenstown, June 30.—The United States training ship Monongahela arrived here to-day. She experienced terrific weather. On June 17, a boy of the name of Stephens was washed overboard and drowned. Boats were lowered and attempts made to save him, but they were unsuccessful.

Dr. Potts Will Get It.

Denver, Col., June 30.—Rev. Dr. Potts, of Toronto, will probably be re-elected chairman of the International S.S. Lesson Committee.

Society's Right to Confiscate.

What shall become of a man's property after he is dead is a matter for society to determine. If it seems inexpedient to allow a rich man to leave a child reared in luxury without means of support or to leave a quarrel on the hands of his heirs, it is entirely within society's right to restrict his license in that particular. The whims of testators are a good deal of a nuisance and are too much respected by law, though not by courts.—Life.

RESCUE OF SANFORD.

Man Imprisoned in the Well Released on Saturday.

ABOUT 100 HOURS ENTOMBED.

Brave Rescuers Never Faltered in Their Self-Imposed Task of Delivering a Sorely-Threatened Fellowman From the Bosom of Mother Earth—Five Who Risked Their Lives—Sanford's Story.

Paris, June 30.— Joshua Sanford's life is no longer menaced by the old well in which he spent 100 hours. He was taken out Saturday afternoon at the conclusion of one of the most persistent battles with nature ever encountered. To-day he lies in the Skelly home, a few yards away from the scene of his remarkable adventure. With the exception of a severe cold, aching limbs, and a sore head, the young well-digger is none the worse for the peril of the past week. In fact, he declared Saturday, after being taken from the well, that he wanted to sit up and talk with his friends. This the doctors refused to permit. The physicians state, however, that he will probably be as well as usual within a week or so.

After being taken from the well and placed in a bed the young fellow sank into a sleep from which he did not awaken until Sunday morning. From the moment he was placed in bed he was carefully attended by two trained nurses. The doctors had provided all these details the day before. While his sleep was peaceful, he moaned a great deal, and several words were uttered during his slumber that indicated that his mind was still in the cavern from which he had been so miraculously rescued. He was much refreshed, however, and Sunday, partook of a light repast of eggs and toast. Then his sisters were admitted to his bedroom, and they were with him for an hour. He talked little to them, but kept his hand constantly on their faces while they sat near. The doctor had forbidden him to talk. He chafes under this restraint and insists that he is perfectly well and should be permitted to talk and eat as he wishes.

In spite of the extraordinary vitality he has exhibited through the terrible ordeal, Sanford is in a very weak condition. The doctors are a unit in the opinion that he was fast succumbing to the foul air and exhaustion incident to the mental and physicial strain. He could not have stood the torture another day.

The story of the entombed man and the incidents surrounding his rescue, form one of the most amazing recitals in the history of peculiar adventures. If there is a parallel, the newspapers of the country never heard of it. Tuesday afternoon he was working around the old well, the scene of the accident. At 10 minutes to 2 he was in the hole, when the walls caved in. Work was commenced hurriedly, and kept up with the hope of rescue, until Thursday afternoon. Then another sinking took place in the old well's surface, the tapping on the pipe from below ceased, and the people supposed the life was crushed out of Sanford They quit work and the crowds departed.

Late in the day a farmer wandered over the spot contemplating with some interest the pile where lay buried alive a man he had known. He went close to the well and thought he heard a faint tapping from below. Listening, he was convinced that the man still lived, and he rushed to town for aid. The man had evidently fainted after the second cave in, and, therefore, did not reply to the signals from above. When he revived he began to signal again, and it was this noise that again brought the rescuers to work. The work was pushed with vigor, 200 or more men working in relief gangs.

A day later, Friday, about 11 o'clock, the diggers discovered the man. Late in the afternoon they uncovered him, but his foot was held fast. It was this member that caused the most anxiety.

For 24 hours many men worked to release Sanford's foot. Saturday afternoon, when in the most imminent danger, the foot was suddenly released and the man hauled to the top of the well. He was safe after a hundred hours of the most agonizing torture ever endured by a human being — a torture made more refined by renewed hope, succeeded by the blackness of despair, as the well would cave in further and send the struggling man further down into the depths of the 86-foot well. The doctors even thought of administering morphine to the man and cutting off his foot, or attaching his body to the steam hoisting machinery and either pulling him from the well's grasp or pulling the foot from his body.

Joshua Sanford's release came very suddenly. A moment before, the workmen were not sure that the man's foot could be released without entombing him and those who were attempting his rescue. This was explained to the man, as he lay on his back, groaning with pain, which had come as a result of the new operations incident to running the second tunnel beneath him. The great mass above seemed to be slowly but surely pressing the life out of the man. At noon, Carnie had gone to the surface after working all night and part of the morning in the hole, and explained to John Penman, the Paris millionaire, who has been spending his money and time freely to save the man whom he had been hiring at $2 a day to dig the well in which he was entombed, that the struggle was approaching the end, and that they could never take the man from the hole alive with the plans as previously laid out. He was joined in this assertion by Messrs. Hamilton and Allen, who has been working so hard with him.

Then the work was begun, heavy timbers first being passed into the prisoner, with which he reinforced the arch of brick over his cells. This was a precaution in the event of a cave-in when the foot was reached. It was the work of but an hour to dig into the chamber by the new route, but it required twice as long to handle the delicate work of tearing away brick by brick, the debris around the immediate place of confinement. Slowly the men worked while the sand rushed in on them and nearly smothered the prisoner and his rescuers.

Then they came to the key brick that supported the arch—to release this would tell the story whether it would be life or death for all. The men sent up word to have the cot ready, and the crowd was then formed so that a lane would lead down to the house a few yards away. John Carnie in person drew out the last brick. He reached in, and, with a slow motion, pulled out the key to the arch. He felt the whole structure tremble, and some loose bricks and much sand fell, but that was all. The moment the brick was withdrawn Sanford pulled his foot clear, and leaned far back into the upper tunnel. He was free at last, but he still lay quietly while his rescuers backed from their perilous position under his chamber and made ready the bucket. Then he partially drew himself out and stepped into the bucket, not without assistance, however.

AFTER SECOND CAVE-IN.

Sanford Tells the Story of His Underground Experience.

"The second cave-in left me in mighty bad shape," resumed Sanford, in telling his story, after a pause of some duration. "I was wedged in very tight to one side. My head was thrown partially over to one side and back to a painful position, and my arms were fastened on my back and breast, and I was almost suffocated. I could hear the people signalling above, but I could not reach around to the pipe to tap on it. That's what made them think I was dead. I finally got hold of a piece of brick with one hand, but I was afraid to even tap on the brick lining of the wall. Every move caused the bed of sand around me to move, and I was constantly spitting it up from my throat, into which it ran through my nostrils. I used the brick to scratch on the walls with. The scratching can be distinctly heard, and does not cause vibration that a tapping does. I heard the men resume work. I kind of thought I would be saved. I don't think I suffered for food or water while I was in the hole. I may have been delirious, but I don't recall the circumstance. I slept a great deal. I would not let the men come into the chamber where I lay, though I could have probably gotten out a good deal sooner if I had. I feared that they would be killed, for I knew another cave-in was liable to occur any moment. I did not think I could be so fortunate as to escape death in that event.

"I heard the workmen the moment they broke through from the new well to the old one. I was afraid they would start another slide when I found them working above me, and, therefore, called to them not to do that. I wanted them to go lower and come in lower down. They finally did this. I tried to help myself, but could do mighty little. I felt cold at times, and I guess my circulation was bad. The first thing I asked the men to do when they reached me was to put something over my head to keep the sand from trickling down my nose and choking me. They put a hat over me, but that was not enough, and later they got the towel. Finally I got loose, one of the men reaching in and getting the brick from behind my back and then off from my chest. I helped myself a little after that, but finally we got down to my feet.

"It seemed as if I could never get one foot loose. I was perfectly free except that. I was in a fairly comfortable position, kinder reclining and sitting down. My leg from the knee down was caught between several brick and kind of doubled under me. They covered my foot in such a way that while I could move it a good deal it was impossible to get it out without a tunnel being run under my feet. I knew this was dangerous for the sand, which was near, and was liable to cause a slide. We tried a whole day to get that leg out. Finally they started the shaft under me. Ropes were tied around me and run into the new well so that if the old well caved in more I would at least not be carried down any further. Then the men started the new tunnel. They had to dig but a few feet of earth and they reached my foot in two or three hours. They had it loose in a few minutes and then I was lifted out slowly.

"I washed my face before I got into the bucket to go to the top. I did not want to appear before all those people with a dirty face. The men had told me about the crowd waiting to see me. The doctors wanted to send me down a chair to go up with my leg through a rope. I finally went up in the bucket they use for hoisting dirt. One of the men went up with me to be sure I didn't faint. I feel all right, but my lungs are sore. I am all right."

Brave Men to the Rescue.

All Paris and the Country surrounding for 25 miles congregated around the scene of the affair and remained there practically night and day. All business was suspended and everyone sought to do something to contribute to the man's rescue.

While hundreds of people worked unceasingly and probably half as many were at different times in danger of death in the new well, five names stand out prominently in the work of rescue as indicating that where the greatest praise should be bestowed. They are: John Carnie, Richard Doyle, George Blanchard, Robert Hamilton, George Wentworth.

A WHITE DEER

Which Taxidermist Bloome has Just Mounted.

Mr. E. Bloome has on exhibition at his studio a white deer, which was shot last fall at Bannockburn, and which he has just mounted. Besides being a freak as regards colour, there are other oddities noticeable in connection with it. In size it is on the small side, and so peculiarly proportioned that while only 31 inches in height in the forequarters it stands 7 inches higher in the rear. Mr. Bloome will only keep the animal a few days longer before shipping it away, and, therefore, those who wish to see it should call at his studio at once.

A "Silent Seller"

A "Silent Seller" in Mr. LeBrun's window is attracting a good deal of attention these days. Mr. LeBrun states that he found it necessary to employ the silent seller to help him out with his clearing sale now in progress. The "Silent Seller" is a man who stands in the window fitting suspenders on a customer who patiently waits. The salesman has his back to the street but he bends too and fro unceasingly. He is kept going by means of a small motor. The scheme is very original on the part of the Dominion Suspender Company, whose advertisement it really is.

George Street S. S. Excursion.

BROKE HIS LEG.

It Was so Badly Smashed That Amputation May Yet be Necessary.

Mr. David Sergineau, of Perry street, had his right leg badly crushed at the Cordage Works on Friday by a heavy piece of machinery which fell upon it. A great effort is being made to save the leg and avoid amputation. Drs. Greer, McCullough, McGrath and Asher are interested in the case. The splinters of bone have been removed and the main bone drawn together with fine wire.

A CHINA WEDDING.

Which Was Celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Blois on Friday Last.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Blois, of No. 249 Stewart street, celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding on Friday last, when about sixty guests assembled at their residence to tender hearty congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Blois moved to Peterborough from Port Hope some years ago and a great many of their friends from the latter town came up for the event. There were also guests present from Toronto, Orillia, Bradford and from Peterborough. The gifts which were received were all of China and many exquisite designs were included in the beautiful array. The floral decorations consisted of ferns, palms, carnations and roses. After an evening spent in pleasant social enjoyment a most delectable supper was served.

BE HAPPY FOR A DAY.

And go With the Sons of England Excursion to Jubilee To-morrow.

"Larger, Greater, Grander than ever," in the language of the circus bills, might fairly describe the attractions announced for the Sons of England excursion to Jubilee Point to-morrow, (Dominion Day.) Besides the lovely sail down the river—the crowds of jolly Englishmen and Englishwomen—their many friends who are sure to go along whenever "Dad's" in the bunch—the extensive programme of sports to be competed for in the afternoon, is alone calculated to make you spend one of the pleasantest days that can be spent anywhere. There are nearly twenty attractive events on the list, with good prizes offered for each. Then again Hodgson's 'appy orchestra will go along and furnish dancing music and Archie Moore will be there to "call off." The steamer City of Peterborough leaves her wharf at 8 o'clock in the morning, calling at Ashburnham. After dinner the City will sail across to Idyl Wyld for the benefit of those who wish to enjoy a breezy trip over Rice Lake. Leave Jubilee for home at 5 o'clock. Committee will take charge of baskets, etc. All for the small sum of half a dollar, children 25c. So if you are feeling blue or out of sorts, this trip will be sure to cure you. ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

"Softly now the Light of Day," was the title of a very pleasing anthem which was sung in All Saints' church last evening. Miss Daisy Sawers took the solo in exceptionally good voice. It is understood that this was Miss Sawers' first effort in solo work, and the congregation was greatly pleased with her interpretation. Her voice gives great promise of rare quality.

Rev. W. L. Armitage has been requested to repeat the sermon on "Paradise" which he gave last winter, and in accordance with the request he will repeat the sermon next Sunday

The trustees of the Collingwood Public Library find themselves in the same position as the Lindsay Public Library Board with respect to the Carnegie grant of $10,000 for a new building. THE NEW MISSION CHURCH

To be Erected at Corner of Wolfe and Reid Streets.

The Plans Have Been Prepared by Architect Blackwell—The Contract.

It is the intention of the Board of Management of St. Paul's Church to let the contract at once for the construction of the new Mission School in the south end of the town at the corner of Wolfe and Reid streets.

The advisability of erecting a Presbyterian Mission in the south part of the town has been a subject of deep thought on the part of the Presbyterians for some years, and it looks as if the hopes of those who have taken an interest in the matter, would be realized. A substantial sum has been already raised, and sufficient subscriptions are outstanding to warrant the letting of the contract. The contract for the construction of the new edifice will be let immediately. The plans have been prepared by Architect Blackwell, and they provide for the erection of a handsome little building to suit the present requirements. The structure that will be erected will be what for some time will be used exclusively as a Sunday school. It will be so situated that the church may be subjoined whenever it is deemed advisable by the Presbyterians of the future.

The Mission will be 46 by 68 feet, with a 21 foot ceiling. It will seat at least 300 people, and provision will be made for the erection of a gallery at the back at such time as it may be deemed advisable. The basement will be used exclusively as a store room and as a kitchen. On the first floor besides the large Sunday school room, there will be a private apartment for the superintendent, and a library. When the gallery is added it will be divided off into rooms for classes, the fronts of which will be open and face to the superintendent's platform. Underneath the gallery little class rooms of the same kind will be arranged, there being twenty of these rooms in all. The structure will be of red brick and constructed in a pretty and substantial manner.

The Presbyterians of the South End await with much interest the erection of the new building.

A FLOWER SERVICE

Which was Held at the Church of St. Luke, the Evangelist, Last Evening.

Extra seats had to be put in St. Lukes last night to accommodate the large congregation that had gathered to take part in the Children's Flower Service.

After the voluntary had ceased the children marched in procession through the church carrying bouquets of flowers and singing the following hymn:

Oh, gather the flowers together,
And place them near the shrine,
In the midst of the wondrous glory,
And the radiance all divine.
There are saintly lilies and roses
Of fragrant red and white,
That tell of the Rose of Sharon,
And the Lily's Holy Light.

The flowers were deposited at the chancel steps were the rector stood to receive them.

While the flowers were placed upon the altar by the rector, the following hymn was sung:

Here, Lord, we offer Thee all that is fairest,
Bloom from the garden and flowers from the field,
Gifts for the stricken ones, knowing Thou carest
More for the love, than the wealth that we yield.

The service was entirely a childrens service, hymns, lessons and the sermon all appropriate for the young. The text of the sermon was, John vi., 10., "There was much grass in the place." Mr. Langfeldt drew many good lessons from the green pastures adapting them to the pastures of the church, such as prayer, Bible reading and means of grace. He also drew lessons from many flowers.

The flowers were sent to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto; St. Joseph's Hospital and Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

The Rector announced yesterday the anniversary services to be held on July 9th, commemorating the 26th anniversary of St. Luke's. He asked his congregation to make on that day a thanksgiving offering to Almighty God of $400. Rev. Professor Cody, M. A., Rector of St. Paul's Church, Toronto, will be the special preacher. Revs. J. C. Davidson, W. L. Armitage, of Peterborough, Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Port Hope, Rev. Rural Dean Warren, of Lakefield, and Rev. J. H. Teney, of Omemee will take part.

Rev. Dr. Symonds will preach at St. Luke's (D.V.,) on Sunday, July 13 and 20, at both services.

Remember the congregational and Sunday school excursion to Jubilee Point, on Friday, July 11th, per Str. City of Peterborough.

WAS FLOWER SUNDAY

At George Street Methodist Church Yesterday.

Yesterday was Flower Sunday at the George street Methodist church. It was Sunday school day, so to speak, as the members of the Sunday school in large numbers attended the morning service, each one carrying a bouquet or a basket of flowers.

The Sunday school scholars marched into the church to the music of the orchestra. The flowers that were carried by the scholars were placed on a star design near the pulpit, whilst others were banked around the platform.

Rev. Mr. Wilson gave an interesting talk on the subject of flowers. Mr. Mulligan, choir leader, sang the solo in the chorus which was rendered and Miss Bertha Parnell and Miss Edna Hill rendered a duet.

In the evening the Ancient Order of Foresters attended Divine Worship at the George street church. Rev. Mr. Wilson gave an impressive address, taking as his subject, "The Brotherhood of Man." The anthem was entitled, "See, Now, the Alter."

Arrangements have been made to have a big time on the green tomorrow.

Cornelius Wilson, the official bard of the Galt Bowling Club, has composed the following sonnet, dedicating it to the chief musician, Prof. Sinclair:

There's a pastime fit for princes,
Or Royal King or Queen,
You ask me what you call it,
'Tis bowling on the green.

Chorus—

Oh! the bowling, bowling, bowling,
The bowling on the green,
'Tis food for brain and knack
In aiming for the jack,
The bowling on the green.

To play the proper "bias,"
You make your "bowl" careen
Along the rink they aim at,
While bowling on the green.

Chorus—Oh! the bowling, etc.

We hear the "skip" cry, "Guard it
And inwards let it lean;
Well played, my man, it's coming,
You're bowling on the green."

Chorus—Oh! the bowling, etc.

The rink resounds with laughter,
Their joy is easily seen,
And chaffing jokes are passing,
While bowling on the green.

Chorus—Oh! the bowling, etc.

We bowl with boyish ardour,
And youth looks back, I ween;
We're boys again—while bowling,
Yes, bowling on the green.

Chorus—Oh! the bowling, etc.

In the first of the ninth the score stood 6—6 against Port Hope, with one man out and two on bases, but the next two pounded the wind and so were unable to score.

What Is a Gentleman?

What is a gentleman? It is a delicate matter to attempt a definition of this difficult word. There is the general and exceedingly vague use of the word, whose meaning varies according to the views of the user, and which may signify urbanity of manner, amiability, the possession of wealth, respectability of demeanor, connection by blood with people of a certain social status, or a hundred other things. There is the use of the word as a definition of a man's place in the community—and when in this country we see "John Doe, gentleman," we may usually assume that John earns his living in a manner which he does not care to specify. There is the technical sense of the term, as an indication of a man's exact social status, in relation to his antecedents as well as to his present condition. And the third sense of the term is perhaps as difficult to define as the first.

In this technical sense it is generally held that the word carries a suggestion of good birth—whatever that vague phrase may mean—and so high an authority as The New English Dictionary on Historical Principles gives as the primary meaning: "A man of gentle birth, or having the same heraldic status as those of gentle birth; properly, one who is entitled to bear arms." Both against this view, supported as it is by so august an authority as that just quoted, Sir George R. Sitwell has run an audacious tilt. Sir George Sitwell is a baronet, a landowner, has at various times represented the very close constituency of Scarborough in the House of Commons, and numbers historical research among his activities. His views are published in The Ancestor, an admirably printed and illustrated genealogical quarterly, which has just entered the field.

Sir George first contravenes the theory, which finds wide acceptance, that in the Middle Ages there existed an order of "gentry" intermediate between the noblemen and the yeomen. "Let us assume for the sake of argument," he says, after remarking that the structure of mediaeval society is still a mystery, "that in the 12th, 13th and 14th centuries there were, broadly speaking, but two classes, the nobiles or tenants in chivalry, comprising earls, barons, knights, esquires and franklins, and the ignobiles, consisting of villeins, citizens and burgesses; that a great order of franklins or free-tenants was forming in the latter half of the 13th century, owing to the pressure of military service upon the lords of manors and the desire of the latter to surround themselves with tenants who could be depended upon to fight under their banners and to do suit at their courts; that this order or subdivision of the nobiles bound together without distinction of rank or birth poor freeholders and persons whom we should now describe as wealthy and distinguished country gentlemen, and that it long held the balance of political power, supporting the barons against the usurpations of the Crown and the Crown against the ambition of the greater feudatories. Let us assume that the yeomanry, or order of tenant-farmers, sprang into existence after the great pestilence of 1349, which, by increasing the price of labor, compelled the abandonment of landlord cultivation and led to the practice of letting lands on lease; that the 'order of gentlemen as a separate class was forming as something new', and, as Freeman imagined, in the 12th century, but in the 15th; that, deserted by the wealthier families, the franklin class fell into decay, lost its political importance and sank into the yeomanry; that its members, as not being of 'gentill berthe,' were excluded by law from Parliament and by prejudice from the shrievalty, and that the poorer free-tenants as 'persons of small substance and no value' were deprived of the franchise and rendered incapable of serving upon juries. Let us assume that as time went on and the heralds preached their evil gospel of gentility, the gulf widened between rich and poor; that the gentry ceased to intermarry with the yeomanry, to visit them at their houses, to attend their weddings and to stand as sponsors at the christening of their children; that a bitter and jealous feeling grew up which made itself felt at last in the wars of the Cavaliers and the Roundheads."

And what, after all this history, is the definition of the word "gentleman," in the technical sense? Sir George, after a further excursus into social history concludes his essay with the following:—

"A gentleman, then, is not, as the New English Dictionary lays down, 'a person of 'heraldic status' who is 'entitled to bear arms,' but a freeman whose ancestors have always been free. In blood he represents the unconquered tribesman of Germany or Britain, and in name the ancient liberty of Rome. To my mind this is not only true, but also a comfortable doctrine, for even the most earnest Radical will hardly repress some feeling of respect for the families which clung to freedom, or fought for it, when most of the world was enslaved, nor ever 'bowed their heads for meat in the evil days.' It is a doctrine which will, of course, involve us in some difficulties. In the 14th century villein tenure had not yet developed into copyhold, and no one whose forefathers at that period held 'in bondage' can possibly come under the terms of our definition. We are thus driven to the painful but irresistible conclusion that quite twenty-five per cent. of our peers are not gentlemen. On the other hand, many persons whom we have not been accustomed to regard in that light may have a good claim to the title; it may be urged that for four centuries, a period as long as most patrician stemmata could show, our English ancestors have been a free nation; and perhaps, after all, we shall do better to drop the use of 'gentleman' as a description of rank or status, and to conclude with Chaucer's elf-queen that it is not 'renomee of auncestres,' but 'gentil dedes' which make the 'gentil man.'"

"It is queer," says Dr. Lorimer of New York City, "what a liking young students have for long words and Latin quotations, and what a dread possesses them of appearing conventional. I once knew a promising candidate who was given charge of a funeral in the absence of the pastor of the church. He knew it was customary for the minister to announce after the sermon that those who wished should step up to view the remains, but he thought this was too hackneyed a phrase, and he said instead, 'The congregation will now pass around the bier.'"

Fatal Fire at Kamloops.

Kamloops, B.C., June 30.—About 12 o'clock last night fire broke out in the old J. A. Mara store. The following buildings are a total loss: Cosmopolitan Hotel, insured in the Guardian and Scottish Union for $1,500 each. This property was owned by J. T. Edwards, and was one of the old landmarks of Kamloops. Next came Mara's late store, upon which there appears to be no insurance. A dwelling owned by H. C. M. Ridley, next to this store, was an old building, which was in former days used as a provincial government office and jail. Estimated loss is about $8,000. A guest of the Cosmopolitan Hotel, named William Bastow, a young Englishman, lost his life in the fire.

A BARGAIN IN HATS.

The Reason One Woman Rejoices While Another One Mourns.

A Philadelphia woman moving in good society has been cured of a mania for attending rummage sales, but it took a heroic treatment to effect the cure. The other day she went to a sale of the description named in aid of a worthy charity in which she is interested and came away minus a twenty-five dollar hat. It happened this way:

A feature of the sale was a counter filled with untrimmed hats, advertised "Your choice for 50 cents." Now, the North Thirty-third street woman didn't want an untrimmed hat at 50 cents, but there was one that caught her fancy by reason of its odd shape, and she simply couldn't resist the temptation to try it on. So she took off the handsome hat she was wearing, placed it on the counter and picked up the untrimmed one. Then she looked around for a mirror. There was only one, and that was away at the other end of the long room.

She pushed her way through the crowd, and in the meantime a fat colored woman's eyes were glued to the hat she had left behind on the pile marked, "Your choice for 50 cents." It was a golden opportunity not to be missed. Counting out 50 cents in dimes, nickels and pennies, she shoved them at the innocent young attendant and made good her escape with the fashionable woman's hat.

Superstitions About Bees.

The superstitions which connect bees with the death or sickness of the members of the particular family in which they are kept are interesting. In Scotland and Ireland the entrance of a bee into a cottage, more particularly if it be a bumblebee, is looked upon as a certain sign of the death of some one then residing there. In other localities if bees in swarming settle upon dead wood it is regarded as equally ominous.

SHE GAINED ELEVEN POUNDS

And was Brought Back From Nervous Prostration to Health and Strength by Using

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

There is no faith cure about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You do not need to imagine it is doing good. You can prove it by keeping a record of your weight. This food cure acts in a perfect natural way. In fact, it is nature's own cure, and is composed of the most powerful restoratives and invigorators that science has yet discovered.

Take the case of Mrs. West, as described in her letter quoted below. She was pale, weak, and run down in health. Her blood was thin and watery and her nerves so starved and exhausted that she was prostrated. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured her, and added new, firm flesh to her body to the extent of eleven pounds. You will find her letter interesting.

Mrs. S. W. West, Drayton, Wellington County, Ont., writes: — "About two years ago I got terribly run down, and finally became a victim of nervous prostration. I had no appetite, seemed to lose interest and ambition, and could scarcely drag myself about. Hearing of good results from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I used three boxes with great benefit. In a short time I gained eleven pounds, and as I was very thin when I began to use the remedy I was very proud of the increase of weight.

"Then the following spring I became rather poorly, and they again built me up, and gave me such a good appetite that I wanted to eat nearly half the time. I was so pleased with the cure the Nerve Food brought about that I recommended it to others, and they have told me of the benefits they had obtained from this preparation. You may use this testimonial in order that others may learn of the good there is in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

If you have been affected as Mrs. West has, if you are not feeling real strong and well, you will be surprised at the good that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do you. It puts colour in the cheeks, rounds out angular and wasted forms, and brings new hopes, new confidence and new life to take the place of despondency, weakness, and disease. 50 cents a box; 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 1

SHE GOT A SEAT.

But Not Through the Entreaties—Entry She Had Overheard.

Humor does not abound in the viperous atmosphere of the London two-penny tube between 7 and 8 p. m.; therefore the passengers jammed up near the fat, irate woman one evening last week greatly enjoyed the following:

"Thomas (this very loudly while jogging a mild little husband as they both swayed, clutching the leather loops overhead), get a seat for me, I tell yer."

Conciliatory whispers came from the mild man, who glanced timidly at the passengers his wife was pushing against.

Then: "Nonsense! Yer could, and me a seat easy enough if yer wanted to."

More agonized whispers from the husband and more loud demands from the wife. There was great local excitement when an irreproachably dressed young man politely gave up his seat. As the woman dropped heavily into it she beamed on him with "Any one can see you're not my 'usband, sir."

The "Cry" of Silk.

One of the most peculiar features about manufactured silk is the rustling sound familiar to every woman. In the silk trade they call it the "cry" or sometimes the "scroop." Of all textiles silk is the only material which possesses it.

As everybody knows, the sound is heard especially when silk is subjected to friction. What is not so generally known is that the quality is found in silk yarn before it is woven. A skein of silk, unless it has been so treated as to kill this property in it, will when opened up emit the noise slightly. When the skein is squeezed in the hand, the sound becomes quite audible.

The "cry" is considered a very desirable quality in silk. Dyers try to develop it as much as possible.

A View of Ireland's Ills

A correspondent sends some views on the ills of Ireland, prefaced by an explanation that in the optimism of his youth he hopefully accepted the view that home rule would be a sure cure. "A little more knowledge," he writes, "has amended my views. I have been particularly struck by the book 'Anglo-Saxon Superiority,' which to me is a remarkable production for a Frenchman. Shortly, the theory of the author, who is a most eminent social scientist, is that the success of the Anglo-Saxon race is due to its 'particularistic formation,' which he explains to mean that the individual relies for his livelihood, not on the community or group, or public social organization, but on himself. M. Demolins seeks to show that it is due to this individualism or sense of responsibility for one's self that the Anglo-Saxon race has been able to spread over and control so much of the newly-opened portions of the earth. The author has not taken the next step, however, and has not explained that this individualistic formation not only involves the idea of responsibility for self, but also duty to one's neighbor, to allow him to work out his own salvation, with which latter idea seems to be involved Mr. Benjamin Kidd's idea of "toleration," and that broader liberty which he finds the dominant idea at the present time.

M. Demolins contrasts with this individualistic formation the communistic formation. The latter he defines as characterized by a tendency to rely not on self, but on the community or the group, family, tribe, clan, public powers, etc. He particularizes the populations of the East as the most striking representatives of this type, but the object of his work is to teach his own countrymen that they, too, are of this class, and are falling behind for this reason. He states that the whole aim of education in France is to fit youths to hold public offices, to rely on the community for their maintenance, so that once they have entered the public service they are able to forecast every important step in their lives except the date of death. M. Demolins also refers to the family control which is exercised over children, and even grown men, giving as one example the French custom requiring parents to furnish dowries on the marriage either of a son or daughter.

M. Demolins finds that this communistic idea governs all Celtic races, a survival of their tribal or clan organization. "Owing to their traditional clan organization they show more taste for public than for private life, for political than for agricultural, industrial or commercial struggles. In the Anglo-Saxon world the Celtic populations mostly fill the liberal and political professions.

"We have evidence of this characteristic of the Irish race in our own Province. When a public office becomes vacant there is frequently a demand that it should be filled by an Irishman, and the reason given is that it is the 'turn' of an Irishman to get an office. Here surely is the communistic idea that the individual has a certain claim on the State for his maintenance, and that the Irishmen are not getting their share."

M. Demolins writes:—"The constant tendency of the Anglo-Saxon is to confine the powers that be to the maintenance of public peace, without which no business is possible. The tendency in communistic societies is, on the contrary, to disturb as much as possible the public peace, in order to insure for one's self or children, by the triumph of one's party, some cosy administrative sinecure, since the idea of all shrewd people is understood to be to live on the budget. There was no other reason for our several (French) revolutions; there is no other reason for the revolutions which are of daily occurrence in Southern America."

"See what has become of Southern America under Spanish and Portuguese rule, and behold the transformation of Northern America in the hands of the Anglo-Saxon. It is like night and day."

When we look at South America, as suggested by the author, we must feel convinced that home rule is at least not a sure cure for unrest among Celtic races. We may admire the courage, fighting ability and energy shown in the perpetual motion of their revolutions, but it does seem that these upheavals are chiefly due to a desire for office, in conformity with the communistic idea. The constitutions of Venezuela, Colombia and Hayti, for instance, each provides for one President only, but unfortunately more than one man wishes to fill these posts, even after the popular voice has chosen. The minority refuses to "tolerate" even the will of the majority. Would it not be so in Ireland? The very fact that many of the individual leaders of the Irish Parliamentary party are mainly supported by contributions is evidence of their devotion to the communistic idea to gain a livelihood from the group, rather than by their individual industry. The contributions to this fund seem to come almost entirely from outside of Ireland, the returns for one week being reported at $5,000 from the United States, and $500 from Canada, an equal amount from Cape Colony, and less than $200 from Ireland. This fact would indicate that the Irish leaders are ultra-communistic, not even confining their ideas of a supporting community by geographical lines.

Why Lynch Fought.

The case of Col. Lynch, M.P. for Galway, is attracting new attention, because it has been suggested that time may free him from prosecution for his treason. It is pointed out that the act of William III. provides that prosecutions for treason must take place within three years after the commission of the offence, but it is not clear what statutory enactment applies to this case. That some action is shortly to be taken by the British Government is suspected from the arrival in England of Mr. Lewis Handley, a Natal farmer, who experienced some of the war methods of Col. Lynch's Irish brigade. "Colonel" Lynch told Handley that he was a British subject, and when asked by Handley why he, a British subject, was fighting with the enemy, Lynch replied that he was fighting with the Boers "for fun." The Irish brigade (according to Mr. Handley), while on the farm, smashed the mill property and destroyed a winnowing machine. It was on March 7 that the "Colonel" took possession of the iron and timber, and it is said that this is to form a charge of stealing against him.

THE QUEEN BEE.

She possesses the power of choosing which of her offspring shall be drones and which workers. Some have thought that this was automatic and that the narrower worker cell touched the button, so to speak, that brought forth a fertilized egg. But the queen will lay worker eggs in drone cells if she thinks fit, so that settles that.

If the drone is male and the queen female, what is the worker? The new woman of Beedom. She has given up her motherhood for a business career. Sometimes, though, she lays eggs, but they always hatch out drones, of which it is strictly true to say they have a mother, but no father. If the queen's wings are crippled so that she cannot make her marriage flight, her children are all drones. An Italian queen in a hive of black bees will beget workers of mixed blood, but her sons are pure Italians. Drones are useful as fathers of workers, but they cannot collect the honey they eat. Their tongues are too short.

Claddagh Rings.

The old "posey rings" are a much sweeter souvenir than more modern ones. A friend has one which had belonged to her great-grandmother, such a narrow gold circlet. The motto, engraved inside in old lettering, was as follows: "God above increase our love." The "Claddagh" rings of Ireland are now very difficult to procure—that is, the genuine specimens, of course. There are many imitations. These rings were heirlooms with the people of the Claddagh, a distinct gypsylike race of fishermen, and were handed down from mother to daughter as a wedding ring, a marriage being scarcely considered legal if an ordinary ring were substituted. They were made of massive gold, decorated with a heart, bearing a crown supported by two clasped hands, signifying loyalty, love, friendship.

The Unattained.

The quickest way to make any man weary of his life is to give him all his heart's desire. The struggle for the unattained is the secret of joy. Here is a man who has been giving his years to a reckless round of pleasure. Now you see him waking up to find that the deepest needs of his soul are still untouched. Or there is another man who has given twenty-five years to the accumulation of knowledge, and at last we see him, like Dr. Casaubon in "Middlemarch," dying with the stores of knowledge all around him, which he does not know how to use.

Didn't Care to Try.

A woman in a railroad station the other day had a great deal of trouble with one of her children, a boy of seven or eight, and a man who sat near her stood it as long as possible and then observed:

"Madam, that boy of yours needs the strong hand of a father."

"Yes, I know it," she replied, "but he can't help it. His father died when he was six years of age, and I've done my best to get another and failed. He can't have what I can't get. Would you care to try yourself?"

The listener had fled.

A Family Combine.

Deacon Jones—I know of three brothers in a neighboring town that would afford excellent material for a sermon on the theme of brotherly love.

Deacon Brown—I'll make a note of it. Tell me more about them, deacon.

Deacon Jones—Well, John, the eldest is a physician; Thomas, the second brother, is an undertaker, and William, the youngest, is a marble cutter.

The Agonizing Pains of Rheumatism.

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism. Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

THE BOETHICK INDIANS.

The Boethick Indians of Newfoundland, at one time the aboriginal inhabitants of the island, can now only be counted by one or two skeletons and a few skulls, so completely have they been swept away. The French employed the Mic Mac Indians of Nova Scotia to fight against and exterminate them. The Boethicks were a peaceable and quiet race, given to hunting and fishing. They used canoes made of birch rind and of skins of deer, like the Eskimo chyak. They had no pottery and used utensils of birch rind sewed together, but they employed soapstone dishes as lamps, their form being similar to those among the Eskimos at the present day.

They carved deer and walrus horns and the bones of the seal into ornaments, which they wore on their dresses, and ornamented their heads with combs. The carvings are in triangular patterns, and out of the large collections in the museum at St. John there are no two ornaments having the same pattern. Their stone implements were more rudely constructed than those of the western Indians.

Pat and the Jockey.

Pat went to a race course the other day and fell in with a number of sporting friends who were betting on the races. He was urged to bet, but steadfastly refused until he saw two of his friends win a large sum on one of the races. Finally, after much urging, he put half a crown on a horse, from which moment he became deeply interested.

As the horses came past the judge's box Pat's fingers clutched the back of the seat and his eyes were wide with excitement. The horse on which he had bet finished sixth. Without a word, but with a look of deep disgust, he got up and hurried down to the paddock where the jockeys were. Calling the youngster who had ridden that particular horse aside, Pat inquired in deeply injured tones:

"In hivin's name, young man, phwat detained you?"—London Chronicle.

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

Awkward.

Mrs. Norton came home from a call one day in such a disturbed condition that it was evident tears were not far in the background. She lost no time in beginning her explanation.

"John," she said to her husband, "I am so mortified I don't know what to do."

"What is the matter, my dear?" asked Mr. Norton.

"I have just been calling on Mrs. Peverill. You know her husband, Major Peverill?"

"Yes."

"Well, I have just learned today, to my horror, that 'major' isn't his title at all. 'Major' is his first name."

"Why, certainly. I've always known that. What is there so mortifying about it?"

"Nothing," said Mrs. Norton, with a groan, "only that I've been calling him 'major' every time I've met him for the last six months!"—London Answers.

THE PRESBYTERY.

Rev. Mr. Macdonald Inducted at Keene on Friday.

The induction of Rev. D. D. Macdonald, formerly of the Hamilton Conference into the pastoral charge of the Keene and Westwood churches took place Friday afternoon at Keene. There was a large congregation present and the following ministers were in attendance: Rev. Dr. Torrance, Revs. Messrs. Potter, Bennett, Thompson, Hastings; Hunter, Baltimore, Campbell, Lakefield; Atkinson, Warsaw, with several representative elders.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson preached the induction sermon, Rev. Mr. Potter put the usual questions to Mr. Macdonald, all of which were satisfactorily answered, and, after prayer, declared him duly inducted into the pastoral charge of Keene and Westwood.

Mr. Macdonald received the right hand of fellowship from members of Presbytery present. Rev. Dr. Torrance then addressed the minister and Rev. Mr. Thompson the congregation, in very suitable terms. The congregation joined in singing the National Anthem. Sweet music was discoursed during the meeting by the choir.

At the close of the service, Rev. Mr. Macdonald received the congratulations of the people as they withdrew from the church. There was an informal reception in the evening, at the request of Mr. Macdonald, owing to the sympathy felt on account of the King's illness.

PAMPHLETS FOR TOURISTS.

Grand Trunk Issues New Summer Resort Publications.

Two new publications have just been issued by the publicity department of the Grand Trunk Railway System. One of them is descriptive of the charming summer resorts on the east coast of Lake Huron, including Southampton, Port Elgin, Kincardine, Goderich and Sarnia, Ontario and the beaches that are reached through Port Huron, Mich. The publication is enhanced by direct reproductions in half-tone from photographs and is printed in Luxotype process. In addition to a description of that part of the country, there is information for the lover of rod and gun, list of hotels, with accommodation and rates, and a great deal of other data that is of interest to those who are looking for a summer play-ground.

The other new publication is a description written in a story-like form most interesting, and dealing with that vast wilderness embracing the region around the French River. The descriptive matter takes the tourist over the northern division of the Grand Trunk to North Bay and from there across Lake Nipissing to Chaudiere Falls on the French River, which is as far as navigation by steamer can be enjoyed. The rest of the journey is made by canoes, several portages being necessary; but the scenery is so grand and so magnificent that anyone is well repaid for a visit to this charming locality.

The hunting and fishing in this comparatively virgin district is unexcelled—black bass, maskinonge and pickerel being the most numerous of the finny tribe found here, and big fellows of the maskinonge species running from 20 to 30 pounds are a frequent catch. The charms of this wonderful country beyond Lake Nipissing are not all confined to the summer season—it is beautiful in August and September, and it is gorgeous in October and November.

During the first two weeks of November the deer-hunting is good, and in duck-hunting season a full bag is obtainable at any time. The waters of the streams tributary to the French River are literally alive with gamey fish of all varieties and sizes. This interesting booklet just issued by the Grand Trunk includes all information as to how to reach the locality, and other particulars looked for by the sportsman or tourist. Copies sent free on application to G. T. Bell, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Montreal.

STOCK MARKETS.

New York, June 28th.—The time is now drawing near when abatement of war taxes goes into force, and when an enormous sum of money will be released in interest and dividend payments. A great quantity of this dividend cash will almost immediately seek re-investment, some of it already doing so, anticipatory of its receipt. The better class of stocks are splendid purchases at the present time. With the news of the illness of the King, passage of the C.P.I. and A.C.H. dividends the market actually advanced. St. Paul, as the readers of our letters know, has been our current favourite for the week. It has done nobly and will do yet better. Its advance has been made upon an unusually small amount of transactions, which is indicative of the extreme manner in which the floating stock has been absorbed.

There has never been a time when the investor has been a more greedy absorber of the higher priced dividend payers. The floating supply is actually getting scarce in many issues. We venture the prediction that American rails and industrials will shortly be the highest priced securities in the world. Circumstances are rapidly bringing about such a state of affairs. The waning earning power of money is a factor aiding in so doing. We call attention in these letters within the past six months that savings banks even would be compelled to reduce their rate of interest owing to the smaller dividend and interest returns upon investments. Several of the New York Savings Banks reduce their interest rate from 4 per cent. to 3 1-2 per cent. on July 1st. Only two banks on Manhattan Island now pay 4 per cent.

It is also expected that these two banks will reduce their rate at their next meeting. It will be but a very short time when all will be forced to reduce to 3 per cent. The lower interest rates fall, the higher securities will sell. Even the rate of mortgages is declining. It is a period when it is better to hold securities and investments than to have money in the bank. We trust our friends will realize the situation. If they do they will not fail to make purchases. The market is unaffected to any appreciable extent by bad news. Each day sees some group of stocks continuing to be absorbed by long-headed people. Become wise yourself.—Haight & Freese Co.

A HEROIC LIFE.

With an Eye Single to the Good of Her Fellow-men She Toiled.

The Story of Miss H. Varney, of Bloomfield, Ont.—Spent Many Years in a Service of Saintly Sacrifice to the Poor and Needy—Ministered to Their Physical as Well as Spiritual Wants.

Bloomfield, Ont, June 29th. (Special.) — Our community boasts of having within it one of the most devoted Christian women that ever toiled in the world's vineyard.

Owned and blessed by God, this self-sacrificing heroine and her husband, since deceased, spent many years of faithful ppastoral work in different parts of the continent.

Elisabeth H. Varney, relict of the late Levi Varney, is now 73 years of age and is living in quiet retirement here. She is a member of the Society of the Old Orthodox Friends, and this simple, peace-loving Society never had a more humble or more worthy member.

It is of her work among the Doukhobors in our own Canadian Northwest that she loves most to speak and many and vivid are her recollections of this peculiar people.

One of the greatest difficulties this devoted woman has had to contend with was disease among her poor people. But she armed herself with a remedy that was as unfailing as her own charity—Dodd's Kidney Pills were the weapons she used to drive out sickness.

Some years ago she had tried and proven the value of this great medicine in her own case when threatened with dropsy and suffering from rheumatism. They had completely restored her and when she found that the prevailing trouble among the Doukhobor people was kidney disease and dropsy she knew that Dodd's Kidney Pills would be her most valuable aid in her good work.

She tells of one poor young woman among this people who was suffering so severely with dropsy that she was terribly bloated all over and confined to her bed. The Lady Missionary left a few of Dodd's Kidney Pills and immediately sent for three more boxes.

She was rewarded for her efforts by the complete recovery of the young woman.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have received this wonderful woman's most emphatic endorsation.

THE QUEEN REVIEWED

Colonial Troops Parade, but Canadian Contingent Was Largest.

CANADA GIVES KING A "TIGER."

Hearty Reception to the Queen—Cheers for the King—A Brilliant Gathering of Soldiers of the Empire and Statesmen From the Various Colonies—The Canadians Were Photographed.

London, July 2.—The reappearance yesterday of Queen Alexandra as a participant in a public ceremony practically marks the end of the period of anxiety caused by King Edward's condition. Her presence at the review of the colonial troops by the Prince of Wales greatly increased public enthusiasm over what in itself was a picturesque and interesting event. Upwards of 2,500 colonials were brought in from the various encampments and marched through great crowds down Constitution Hill, which was lined with troops past Buckingham Palace, which for a week has been the centre of such supreme interest, and along the Mall to the Horse Guards Parade.

The contingent present represented all parts of the British Empire, with the exception of India, whose troops will be separately reviewed to-day. The Canadian detachment numbered 600 men, and was far the largest body on parade. The smallest detachment consisted of three natives of the Island of St. Lucia, Borneo, Ceylon, Fiji, the West Indies generally, Cyprus, the Gold Coast, Nigeria, Uganda and other colonies were represented by native troops, in clothing of striking variety, while straight from the fighting line in South Africa were details from the Canadian Scouts, Kitchener's Horse and contingents from a number of local levies, raised during the war.

The Queen's appearance while on her way from the Palace to the Horse Guards was greeted with salvoes of applause, which increased in strength as the spectators noticed that the ordeal of the past week had but little affected Her Majesty's health and noted the absence of any signs of anxiety as she cheerily acknowledged the congratulations of the public at the uninterrupted progress of the King.

The Queen was seated in an open carriage. Beside her was the Princess of Wales, and opposite Her Majesty was the Princess Victoria and Princess Charles of Denmark. Several carriages, containing the Duke of Cambridge, the Duchess of Connaught and others followed.

The Prince of Wales was accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, Prince Frederick, Prince Charles, of Denmark, and their suites and by the foreign attaches.

The Duke of Connaught and Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief surrounded by brilliant staffs, rode behind the Prince of Wales' party. The long line of troops completely filled the Horse Guards Parade, and their variegated uniforms stood out in vivid contrast with the trees of the park. Thousands of spectators filled the stands or stood behind the police.

Among the interested onlookers was Prince "Eddy" and the other children of the Prince and Princess of Wales. All the colonial premiers, Indian princes and other guests of the nation were present, to say nothing of peers and members of the House of Commons without end.

The troops quickly marched past the Queen's carriage, the Prince of Wales receiving the salute. The Queen then drove slowly in and out of the lines, and the Prince of Wales closely inspected the troops and dismounted and conferred medals and crosses on those who had merited the honor, shaking hands with the recipients of the Victoria Cross.

Then followed the most picturesque feature of the day. The Duke of Connaught, at the head of the troops and facing the Prince of Wales, gave the command: "The parade will give three cheers for the King." He himself started the "Hip, hip," In a moment the refrain was taken up, and there rose cheers such as London seldom hears, the sound of which must have reached almost to the royal sick room, half a mile away. Helmets, caps and campaign hats, rose in waving confusion at the bayonet's point, and the assembled crowds joined in with equal vigor.

A man in the Canadian ranks shouted "And a tiger," at which the troops and crowd once more bellowed themselves hoarse. It was the first occasion since the announcement of the King's illness that the general public had an opportunity to give free vent to their feelings, and the people took advantage of it. After this the Life Guards rode up to the Queen's carriage to the accompaniment of "God Save the King," amid cheers, not unmingled with tears of the women, many of whom were deeply affected. The Queen drove slowly past the troops, bowing smiling acknowledgments of the people's greetings. The Prince of Wales and the other members of the Royal family followed, the colonials reformed in columns, and amidst hearty cheers from the crowds returned to their encampment.

Subsequently the Canadian troops signalized Dominion Day by gathering at the Canadian Arch and Whitehall, where they went through a series of evolutions and were afterwards photographed. The arch was illuminated last night.

Double Cross for Col. Pellatt.

London, June 30.—(Telegram Cable.)—Everyone understood that Col. Pellatt came to London as commander of the contingent, but he was slighted in the plans of the War Office for the procession. Had the event taken place it was the intention to give the command to Col. Turner of Quebec.

Joshua Sanford Recovering.

Paris, July 2.—Joshua Sanford is recovering so rapidly from his four days in the well that a conference was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of bringing him to town. Dr. Dunton says he is out of danger, but ought to get well within the next two weeks.

MARRED BY DROWNING.

Fatal Accident in the Lake Off Kew Beach, Toronto, on Dominion Day — A Drowning at Galt.

Toronto, July 2.— Dominion Day in Toronto was marred by a sad drowning accident which occurred in the lake off Kew Beach. The victime was Lizzie Edwards, a 17-year-old girl, who camped with her mother and three brothers in Kew Gardens, at 40 Lee-avenue. Miss Edwards met her death while boating in company with J. H. Warrick, a plumber living at 288 Wellesley street, and Ina Rae, an 18-year-old girl living at 142 Spruce street. Miss Rae and Mr. Warrick were rescued, but not before they had become nearly exhausted. The death of Miss Edwards is the first drowning fatality that has occurred at Kew Beach.

Yesterday morning Miss Edwards accompanied her Sunday School class to Mount Pleasant Cemetery to decorate the grave of their teacher, who died suddenly a few weeks ago. One of the party was Miss Rae, who was invited to spend the afternoon at the Edwards camp. After lunch, the Misses Rae and Edwards decided to go boating with Mr. Warrick, who was also a visitor at the camp. The party went out in a row boat, from Hick's boathouse at Munro Park, Miss Edwards sitting in the stern, and Miss Rae in the bow. Mr. Warrick handled the oars, and when about 300 yards southeast of the Kew Beach Clubhouse, the girls expressed a desire to row. While they were changing seats the boat upset, and all three were thrown into the water. They clung to the upturned craft, at the same time calling loudly for help. But a few minutes elapsed before Miss Edwards became exhausted, and, sinking, did not come to the surface again.

DROWNING AT GALT.

James R. Buck Upset From a Canoe and Sinks.

Galt, July 2.—A fatal canoe accident happened on the Grand River here about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, resulting in the drowning of James R. Buck, a young man aged about 18 years, employed as a tinsmith by A. McBean & Co. Young Buck and a relative, named Gamble of Palmerston, of about his own age, who has been visiting him, hired a canoe for a fishing trip up the river yesterday afternoon. They informed the boathouse keeper that they understood rowboats, but never handled a canoe, but as the latter was the only thing of the kind available at the time, they took it, but apparently came to grief shortly afterwards. When about 100 yards north of the C.P.R. bridge, an alarm was given to George Rosenberg, by three young fellows in a rowboat, that the men in the canoe were drowning. Rosenberg, who is a corporation employe, and an expert swimmer and diver, hastened to their rescue and managed, single-handed to land Gamble, who was clinging to the capsized, canoe. Buck was in sight at the time in water 10 feet deep, trying to make the shore. Rosenberg returned to the scene after landing Gamble, but could not locate Buck, who had sunk for the last time.

Two Street Cars Collide.

Toronto, July 2.—At 12.03 this morning a big smash-up took place at Walton avenue between eastbound street car No. 653 and westbound car No. 615. No. 615 was backing up to go on the Y, but Motorman Kearns, on No. 653, thought it was continuing on the line, and went ahead. A collision resulted. There were 35 passengers on No. 653 and 9 on No. 615. All were badly shaken up and frightened. Motorman E. Kearns, 75½ Shuter street, was badly injured internally, and had to be taken home in a cab. Conductor P. O'Connor of No. 615 had his arm severely injured.

Accident at Brockville.

Brockville, July 2.—The A.O.U.W. held a picnic, etc., at St. Lawrence Park, a few miles up the river from here yesterday. The crowd congregated on the wharf to take the boat for home after the celebration, and the old wharf collapsed under their weight, precipitating nearly everybody into the river. Fortunately the water was not very deep, and everyone was rescued, not much the worse for their ducking, except two ladies, who were injured by falling timbers, but not seriously.

Baby Run Over by a Train.

Orillia, July 2 — A two-year-old infant was thrown under the wheels of the Midland train yesterday afternoon by the upsetting of its carriage, left close to the edge of the station platform. The train was just pulling out, but was immediately stopped, not before, however, the wheels had passed over the child's arm, severing it below the elbow.

Probably Fatal Accident.

Regina, N.W.T., July 2.—An accident occurred here Monday which will probably be fatal. William Craft, a well-known horseman, was riding along the street about 8 o'clock and fell from his horse. The horse either stepped on or kicked his head in such a manner that the brain matter was exposed.

Little Child Burned to Death.

Halifax, July 2.— Beatrice Snow, aged three years, was burned to death last evening, while playing with matches at her home on South street.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1902.

A SERIOUS DANGER WHICH THREATENS EUROPE.

The German Empire, that extremely complex product of historical development, is face to face with a problem to-day which will not only severely tax the resources of her own statesmen to solve, if a solution can be found without war within her own borders, but threatens to bring serious trouble to Austria and Russia. In the policy which Germany is adopting towards the Poles, thoughtful observers see fresh indications of the great struggle between the Teuton and the Slav, which is regarded as inevitable. The Germanization of the German Empire, which includes a very considerable part of ancient Poland, is strongly resented by the Poles, and is distasteful alike to Austria and to Russia. Germany has of late been playing so great a part as a world power, has made her points of contract with Great Britain and the United States so many and so strong, that her pan-Germanism becomes of international interest, especially as her predominance, political and commercial, in regions upon which both Austria-Hungary and Russia have a claim is creating deep distrust in Vienna and St. Petersburg.

The usually closely-muzzled Russian press is at the present time allowed remarkable latitude in dealing with the German-Polish problem—a latitude which is highly significant in view of the fact that it is a very real issue to Russia, who, like Prussia and Austria, became the owner of a large part of the old Polish kingdom. Here are some comments by a leading organ of continental opinion, the Syiet, upon the declarations of policy contained in two recent speeches of the German Emperor and Count Von Bulow, the German Imperial Chancellor and Prussian Premier:—"The two speeches are of the same tendency, both as regards their essential significance and the persistence with which they testify to the design of a forcible Germanization of the Slav peoples throughout the Empire, and more particularly in Prussia. The Emperor William and Count Von Bulow cherish an ardent desire for the complete annihilation of the Slav elements, and announce that the time has come when all the nationalities inhabiting the German Empire must be fused into one race, or, in other words must subject themselves to the ruling Teuton. The same violent means are used for promoting their civilization in Austria, where the basis for the struggle against Slavdom is discovered in the adoption by the Pan-German party of the doctrines of the Emperer William and his Chancellor. But neither the iron gauntlet of the Knights of the Teutonic Order, nor the more bony hand of the Austrian Germans, nor yet the yataghan of the Turk, has up to the present been able to check the vigourous progress of the Slavs, which spreads to all Slav countries, carrying civilization and self-confidence to every member of the race who loves his fatherland." The St. Petersburg organ, the Viedomosti, declares that the German Emperor's recent speech at Marienburg was a proof that the old crusading spirit of the Teutonic knights had survived down to the twentieth century, and was at the same time a confession of the Germans' inability to maintain their steadfast predominance over the Poles.

From other European sources one learns that there is a strong movement towards organization and solidarity among the Poles. Twenty and even fifteen years ago the Poles were divided into two bitterly hostile camps—Conservatives and Progressives — the Conservatives devoted to aristocratic principles and idealizing the old Kingdom of Poland, and the Progressives advocating the democratization of old Polish society; but now both sections are reconciled and find a common bon dof unity under the mantle of Christian Socialism spread over them by Pope Leo XIII. The historical novels of Sienckiewicz have also thrown a glamour over the land, and have awakened the old spirit of chivalry which had been all but crushed out. The crusade undertaken by the Prussian Government against the Poles has greatly strengthened the pan-Slav agitation in south-eastern Europe and is already offering an effective counterpoise to the pan-German Chauvinism which is rapidly becoming a serious menace to the peace of the world.

It seems a strange irony of fate that just as Germany is on the threshold of economic and industrial greatness, she should thus be threatened with another of those grim struggles which has persistently thrown her back, when she might have aspired to leadership among the nations. It was so when she aspired to the crown of the Holy Roman Empire; it was so during the fierce religious struggles during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries; and it was so in the periods of deep humiliation between the days of Luther, Hutten and Durer, and those of Goethe, Schiller and Kant. In a peculiarly literal sense she has experienced the force of that famous saying of Goethe's, which may be rendered in English as "What you have inherited from your ancestors must be earned anew if you would possess it." To-day she has not only the grave political problem of the Poles menacing her confederacy but she has the canker of Socialism eating away the foundations of her industrial and commercial systems, while she is strenuously pushing her way into a leading place in the markets of the world.—Montreal Herald.

Although the medicine business should, above all, be carried on with the utmost conscientiousness and sense of responsibility, the unfortunate fact is that in no other is there so much humbug and deception. The anxieties of the sick and their relatives are traded upon in the most shameful manner; impossible cures are promised; many preparations are absolutely worthless, and some are positively dangerous to health.

As a consequence, all proprietary remedies are regarded with suspicion by many people, and the good suffer for the bad.

A HEROIC LIFE.

With an Eye Single to the Good of Her Fellow-men She Toiled.

The Story of Miss E. Varney, of Bloomfield, Ont.—Spent Many Years in a Service of Saintly Sacrifice to the Poor and Needy—Ministered to Their Physical as Well as Spiritual Wants.

Bloomfield, Ont, June 29th. (Special.) — Our community boasts of having within it one of the most devoted Christian women that ever toiled in the world's vineyard.

Owned and blessed by God, this self-sacrificing heroine and her husband, since deceased, spent many years of faithful ppastoral work in different parts of the continent.

Elisabeth H. Varney, relict of the late Levi Varney, is now 73 years of age and is living in quiet retirement here. She is a member of the Society of the Old Orthodox Friends, and this simple, peace-loving Society never had a more humble or more worthy member.

It is of her work among the Doukhobors in our own Canadian Nortwest that she loves most to speak and many and vivid are her recollections of this peculiar people.

One of the greatest difficulties this devoted woman has had to contend with was disease among her poor people. But she armed herself with a remedy that was as unfailing as her own charity—Dodd's Kidney Pills were the weapons she used to drive out sickness.

Some years ago she had tried and proven the value of this great medicine in her own case when threatened with dropsy and suffering from rheumatism. They had completely restored her and when she found that the prevailing trouble among the Doukohobor people was kidney disease and dropsy she knew that Dodd's Kidney Pills would be her most valuable aid in her good work.

She tells of one poor young woman among this people who was suffering so severely with dropsy that she was terribly bloated all over and confined to her bed. The Lady Missionary left a few of Dodd's Kidney Pills and immediately sent for three more boxes.

She was rewarded for her efforts by the complete recovery of the young woman.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have received this wonderful woman's most emphatic endorsation.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Foresters' picnic which was held on the 28th of June in the woods adjoining the village of Mount Pleasant, was a decided success. The games were such as drew a large crowd and the weather was favourable for outdoor sports, which were enjoyed by the large number pre-

The extreme cold weather that we have had lately does not prevent the crops growing, although some complain that it keeps the strawberry crop from ripening.

Road work is just about finished in this section. The change made in the statute labour has not, it is said, given satisfaction to all parties conterned. Placing the gravel on hill tops is not where it should be placed, but the low swampy places require it.

Rev. Mr. Mounteer last Sunday took for his text the words "Much food is in the tillage of the poor." The sermon will no doubt have a beneficial effect on those who heard it. The organist at the conclusion of the service played "God Save the King."

The sad news of the illness of King Edward VII caused general sorrow in our village, and many expressions of hope for his speedy recovery were heard.

The Barnardo Homes expect to receive a number of boys and girls from England about the end of July. Application may be made to J. The girls who have already been placed in good foster homes, are doing well, and will in due time be able to fill positions with credit to themselves and to their employers.

Toronto, July 2.—The cost of calling out the militia on the occasion of the recent street car strike will be borne by the city. It is estimated by Mayor Howland that $5,000 will pay for everything, including transportation from Niagara Camp to Toronto of the troops.

DEATH ON PACIFIC COAST.

South African Veteran Killed—Man Choked on Piece of Meat.

Vancouver, B.C., July 2.—Sunday morning Robert McCalmont, a brakeman on the C.P.R., was run over and killed at Ruby Creek. McCalmont was a veteran of the South African war, and was married last week.

The same day Charles Duffey, an old resident of this city, died at his own dinner table, through a piece of meat sticking in his throat and choking him.

On Monday evening two Indian boys at Ranchorie, near New Westminster, found a loaded rifle, and while playing with it, it accidentally went off, the bullet entering an Indian tent, killing two other boys instantly and wounding a little girl of eight.

The Nisham Murder.

London, July 2.—Monday night the coroner, after hearing certain of the evidence in connection of the murder of the Oneida Indian, Gustus Ninham, remanded John McArthur, the prisoner, for a week. The Indians' side of the story has been given, and they claim that McArthur kicked their fellow Indian to death. McArthur denies this, and says that at the time of the murder he was at home, a mile distant.

STRIKE SYMPATHETIC.

Canadian Northern Strike to Help Men Already Out.

1,000 MEN OUT IN THE WEST.

Strike Extends From Port Arthur Westward—What the Fight Is About Succinctly Stated—The Great Variety of Classes of Workers Affected—Management Claim Many Will Return to Work.

Winnipeg July 1. — About 1,000 men employed by the Canadian Northern Railway, and members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employes, went out on strike last evening, owing to the refusal of the company to receive a committee of the brotherhood and to recognize schedules for revision of wages presented.

The machinists of the company have been out nearly six weeks, and to-day's walkout is the result of non-settlement of their strike.

The classes of workers affected are: Freight clerks, freight handlers, trackmen, switchmen, stationary engineers, pattern-makers, carmen (including every department), washout men, engine watchmen, coalheavers, wipers, washout helpers, bridge and building department men.

The strike extends over the whole system of the Canadian Northern road, from Port Arthur westward.

For Recognition of Union.

Winnipeg, July 2.—There were no very startling developments yesterday in the C.N.R. strike. Everything is practically tied up, and promises to remain so, as the various organizations seem to have been preparing for the worst for some time past.

Will Return to Work.

There was no important development yesterday in the Canadian Northern Railway strike owing to the holiday. The management claim that a large number of the men out will return to work to-morrow. Passenger trains were run yesterday, but no attempt was made to move freight.

12,000 Miners Quit.

Birmingham, Ala., July 2.—Over 12,000 miners quit work Monday, and a strike, which means serious discomfort to the Birmingham district, has begun. At a recent meeting of the operators and miners, the latter demanded an eight-hour day, a two-weeks' pay-day and 60 cents per ton as the maximum price for mining coal, an increase of 5 cents. The operators refused to grant these concessions.

Italian Shot by Police.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 2.—At the William A. colliery, at Duryea, yesterday, Antonio Guisuepe, an Italian was shot dead by one of the Coal and Iron policemen, from behind the stockade of the colliery. Reports differ about the matter. The dead man's friends say he was walking on the road near the stockade, when fired upon, being on his way from Scranton to Duryea.

Another report is that he tried to get over the fence, would not heed the policeman's warning to go away, and insisted on making his way into the stockade.

There is much indignation over the shooting.

House Adjourned.

Washington, July 2.—Amid a scene of enthusiasm that has not been paralleled since the exciting and stirring days of the Spanish war, Speaker Henderson at 5.30 yesterday afternoon declared the House of Representatives adjourned sine die.

St. Petersburg, July 2.—Col. Baskahoff of the Nicholas Military Academy, has made a notable ride, covering 1,000 verts (666 miles) in less than nine days.

All Hands Were Saved.

San Francisco, Cal. July 2.— The Kosmos liner, Abydos, which arrived yesterday from Hamburg, carried into Valparaiso the crew of the wrecked Kosmos liner Sakkarah. The Sakkarah ran into an island on May 3, about 800 miles southwest of Valparaiso, and jammed hard and fast on the rocks. All hands were saved, but the ship is a total loss.

MAPLE LEAF DINNER.

35th Dominion Day Duly Celebrated in London:

SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S SPEECH

Speeches by Lord Minto and Sir Charles Tupper—Landmarks in Canadian History Very Strongly Marked Says the Governor-General—Duke of Argyle and Lord Aberdeen Also Present.

London, July 2.—Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the Canadian High Commissioner in London last night presided at the Canadian Dominion Day dinner. Among the 600 guests present were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier; Sir John Gordon Sprigg, the Premier of Cape Colony; the Rt. Hon. E. Barton, the Premier of the Commonwealth of Australia; all the Canadian statesmen now in London; the Earl of Minto, Governor-General of Canada; the Duke of Argyle, former Governor-General of Canada; the Earl of Aberdeen, late Governor-General of Canada; and all the agents-general in London.

Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal read a letter from Queen Alexandra in which Her Majesty explained how deeply touched King Edward had been at the outburst of sympathy for him throughout the Empire, and in which she added her thanks to those who had joined her in prayers for the King's recovery.

Sir Charles Tupper, formerly High Commissioner for Canada in England, who was also present, proposed the health of the Royal family, and said he hoped the conference of colonial premiers now being held in London would result in the same system of preferential trade throughout the Empire.

The Earl of Minto, referring to the South African war, said the greatest landmark in Canadian history of the past four years was the sailing of the first Canadian contingent for South Africa.

The Duke of Argyle proposed a toast to the Dominion, and, responding to this toast, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said it was Canada's pride to be first in devotion to the Motherland. The colonies came to her assistance, said the Canadian Premier, not because Great Britain needed help to fight her own battles, but in order to prove, henceforth, the unity of the Empire. In conclusion, Sir Wilfrid said that already he foresaw a new South African confederation, with equal rights for all races.

The 35th Dominion Day.

Toronto, July 2.—With the exception of the fatal accidents chronicled on Dominion Day, the 35th anniversary of the birthday of the Dominion was a thorough success. A great and increasing number of places celebrated, and it is noteworthy that the celebrations almost invariably took the form of athletic sports.

COLONIAL CONFERENCE.

Only the Heads of Governments Were Admitted at First Session.

London, July 2.— The Colonial Conference opened at the Colonial Office to-day. Mr. Chamberlain cordially welcomed Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the other Premiers, and expressed the earnest hope that the gathering would form a landmark along the Imperial road.

The Conference opened in the Secretary of State's room in the Colonial Office. The Premiers of all the self-governing colonies were present, and the Colonial Secretary Joseph Chamberlain, presided at the sitting, which was of a purely preliminary character.

The sitting was mostly occupied with Mr. Chamberlain's statement enunciating his views on commercial and politic relations and Imperial defence. No definite program has yet been arranged.

The proceedings were private. After a two hours' session the conference adjourned to July 4.

In the Queen's Memory.

London, July 2.— General James H. Wilson, who was to have represented the United States army at the coronation of King Edward, accompanied by Colonels Biddle and Borup, and attended by Sir John Innes Ker, went to Windsor this afternoon and placed a wreath on Queen Victoria's tomb, on behalf of the United States' army.

AT STURGEON POINT.

A Number of the Golf Colts Played an Out-of-Town Game Yesterday.

The Peterborough Golf Colts went down to their first defeat yesterday at the hands of the Sturgeon Point players, but defeat was meted out in such a friendly spirit, intermixed with such bountiful hospitality, that it was almost a pleasure to lose to such congenial spirits as composed the Sturgeon Point team.

When the local team arrived at Lindsay they were met at the train by Mr. Flavelle and a few other enthusiastic golfers, and escorted to the wharf, where a steam yacht conveyed the entire party to beautiful Sturgeon Point. A most bountiful and delectable luncheon was served by the ladies of the Point, and after ample justice had been done the repast by appetites sharpened by the morning trip on the lake, a few toasts were honoured. Mr. Flavelle, who occupied the chair, proposed the toast of the King, and the National Anthem was sung. Mr. Flavelle then asked the Sturgeon Point golfers to drink to the health of the Peterborough Colts. The toast was responded to by Mr. C. B. McAllister, the Captain, and Mr. John Crane, President of the Peterborough Club. The toast of the Ladies was then duly honoured, after which Mr. E. C. Complin, Captain of last season's team, proposed the health of the Sturgeon Point Club. The toast was responded to by Mr. J. H. Hopkins and Mr. J. G. Edwards.

Luncheon concluded, the Golfers adjourned to the links, which were found to be most delightfully situated along the lake shore. The Sturgeon Point men have had great difficulties to grapple with, and although their grounds are quite stony, yet they deserve no little amount of credit for what they have accomplished. The score was as follows:

0	J. C. Grace,	C. B. McAllister	0
8	J. H. Hopkins,	W. D. Parker	0
0	J. D. Flavelle,	J. Crane	5
0	J. G. Edwards,	Dr. Neill	2
6	Geo. Little,	E. C. Complin	0

1	F. Taylor,	R. J. Frost	0
6	Mr. Paddon,	Robert Fair	0
10	Mr. Anderson,	F. Miller	11

At the conclusion of the game a light luncheon was served, and at about six o'clock the Peterborough players boarded the yacht, and left the Point, after having spent the most pleasant day yet recorded in the annals of the Colts. At Lindsay the Colts were the guests of the Sturgeon Pointers at dinner, Mr. Squire looking after their comfort, and finally seeing them off on the train for home.

The Sturgeon Pointers will visit the Colts for the return game in the course of a week or so.

S. O. E. EXCURSION.

A Most Enjoyable Time Down the River on Dominion Day.

Phenomenal weather, made it possible for the 250 excursionists who took in the Sons of England excursion to Jubilee, on Dominion Day, to enjoy one of the best day's outing the Society has ever had. When old Sol began to shine out in the morning the spirits of the committee and their friends became inspired with genuine merry-making. The commodious steamer, "City of Peterborough," which had been charted for the occasion, left the wharf shortly after 8 o'clock, and the trip down the river was a most enjoyable one. Captain Lane and his crew are credited with having scored a better record of time than the "City" has ever made since her enlargement. When Jubilee Point was sighted watches were pulled out, and when it was seen that it was only a few minutes past 11, the engineer received a hearty volley, "What's the matter with our engineer? He's all right!" "He's the daddy of them all!" etc.

As soon as the party and their baskets were landed the picnic tables and grounds were converted into a big refreshment table. It was refreshing to notice the splendid big English appetites, and the relish with which the meal was enjoyed. No time, however, was wasted. Just as soon as dinner was over, the committee rang the bell for the programme of sports to begin on the grounds. At the same time the fine large dance hall quickly filled with dancing partners. Hodgson's orchestra furnished the music for the votaries of the "light fantastic," with catchy airs, the melody of which unconsciously grew on the spectators, as well as the dancers, until one could hear the humming of—

"Waltz me, Sallie, down the alley,
Gliding in the air;
Don't you dally 'round my Sallie,
Grace like her's is rare."

Archie Moore, as floor manager, sang out the calls in tuneful unison for the many figures, and everybody was as "happy as a big sunflower that nods and bends in the breeze."

The following is a complete list of the sports with the names of the successful competitors;

Young ladies' race — 1st, Mary Hanson, parasol, presented by A. G. Dickson; 2nd, Agnes Horfield, bottle perfume, presented by D. Davidson.

Married women's race — 1st, Mrs. Taylor, hammock presented by J. J. Turner & Son; 2nd, Mrs. Metheral, pair boots presented by R. Neill.

Committee race — 1st F. Turner, Daily Examiner one year, presented by J. R. Stratton; 2nd, J. A. Brown, box cigars presented by M. C. Tooley.

Men's race — 1st, G. Taylor, pipe presented by Talbot Bros; 2nd Wm. Taylor, straw hat presented by Thos. Barrie.

Women's race — 1st, Laura Kingscote, pound tea presented by F. J. R. Mitchell; 2nd, Jean Burdett, 1-2 pound tea, presented by F. J. R. Mitchell.

Newest married couple — Mr. and Mrs. W. Welsh, chair, presented by E. B. Clegg.

Prettiest couple on the grounds — Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hawes, half dozen photos, presented by R. M. Roy.

Messrs. R. H. Jackson, W. Overend, J. H. O'Shea and L. J. Munroe each presented Committee with $3.00 boxes of cigars.

S. A. Oke presented Committee with bunch of bananas for distribution on boat.

Jubilee had a great day! Besides the "City of Peterborough," three other boats had landed merry excursion parties at the dock. The "North Star" came down with a party of about 75, most of whom registered at Jubilee summer resort. The "Water Lily" brought in a large excursion from Hastings and Campbellford, including the Sons of Scotland, headed by Piper Robertson in full Highland costume. Mr. Harry Buck's newly launched steam yacht, "Mads Vale," came up on her first trip, and had a pleasant party of about forty, comprising Mr. Buck's employees in his three stores. So that Dan Foley didn't look like a summer resort manager who had any reason to look worried, or kick about business. Jubilee summer resort has been running in great luck this season so far. The register for the past two weeks shows a large number of arrivals and the outlook is for a lively season. Dan must have served dinners to nearly 200 excursionists yesterday, and about half as many suppers. The following is a sample of the bill of fare;

Jubilee House Bill of Fare, July 1st.
Roast Beef, Roast veal, Fried fish
Lettuce salad, Radish, Onions
Green peas and potatoes.
Pickles. Olives. Catsup.
Tea, Coffee, Milk.
Dessert.
Rhubarb pie Custard pie.
Fruit pudding.
Mixed cakes. Cheese, Biscuits.

How is that for a twenty-five cent dinner? You should have heard the way the guests praised Dan and his cook.

At five o'clock, after every one had enjoyed themselves to their fill, the steamers started on their return trips, the "City" and "Star" arriving in town at 8 and 8.30 respectively.

The General Committee to whom special credit is due for much of the success, was composed of Messrs. Richard Waram, chairman; Alf. Kingscote, Secretary; T. J. Stenton, W. Taylor, Frank Turner and H. C. Beale.

T.A.S. ATHLETIC TOURNAMENT.

Successful Field Day of Sports Yesterday.

COBOURG LOSES IN LACROSSE

A Fine Afternoon's Sport on Murray Street School Grounds—The Different Events Keenly Contested.

The athletic tournament held on Murray street Separate school grounds yesterday under the auspices of the Athletic Section of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society attracted a gathering of about six hundred persons, who were very liberal in their manifestation of praise for the manner in which the programme was carried out and for the enjoyment afforded. This was the first athletic tournament held in town since the days of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association and the occasion brought out all who possessed any aspirations as athletes. The Athletic Section of the T.A.S. as well as the private members of the society who participated in making the undertaking a success, are entitled to every credit.

The day was an ideal one. Old Sol made his appearance early in the morning, and his warm smile was in evidence all day. The grounds, too, were in good condition after the previous days rain, and with a little more grading and filling in the boys will have an ideal athletic grounds.

ATHLETIC EVENTS.

About 1.30 o'clock President John O'Brien, who acted in the capacity of "field marshal" for the day, cleared the field for the athletic events, which were run off under the supervision of the following officials:

Judges—Messrs. Jos. Begley and W. E. Lech.

Starter—Mr. Ed. Hickey.

Clerk of Course—Mr. T. J. Begley.

The first event pulled off was the running hop, step and jump, with the following entries: Messrs. W. Crowley, E. McNichol and W. Grady. Crowley captured the medal in a running hop, step and jump of 38 feet, with McNichol second at 36 feet.

Vaulting with a pole came next and this proved a very exciting event. The entries were W. Crowley, W. Grady, J. McDonough and W. Perdue. The vaulting was between Crowley and Perdue, and resulted in a tie, both clearing the 8 feet 5 1-2 inch mark.

The running broad jump brought out Messrs. E. McNichol, W. Crowley, G. Gauthier and Geo. Lynch. McNichol captured this in a jump of 16 ft. 5 1-2 in., Geo. Lynch coming second with a 16 ft. jump.

The one hundred yards race created a great deal of interest. The entries for this event were Messrs. Geo. Gauthier, F. McGrath, J. McDonough, E. McNichol, F. McCoy and W. Crowley. Fred McGrath made a beautiful finish in 11 seconds. Crowley winning second place.

The 220 yards race was also a very fine race. Messrs. Fred McGrath, E. McNichol and G. Gauthier toed the scratch, and Fred McGrath secured the medal, doing the dash in 25 seconds, with E. McNichol second contestant.

The standing high jump brought out Messrs. E. McNichol, H. Wood, W. Crowley and W. Perdue. McNichol and Perdue tied on a jump of 4 ft. 3 1-2 inches.

The 100 yards race for junior T.A.S. was won by J. Callaghan, with C. Sullivan second. A small army of Juveniles entered this event.

The 220 yards race for junior T.A.S. was also carried off by J. Callaghan, with Tom Kelly second.

There was three entries in the high jump, Messrs. W. Crowley, H. Wood and G. Lynch. Crowley won in a five foot jump, with H. Wood in second place.

The hurdle race was an event that proved exciting and at the same time interesting. Messrs. E. McNichol, F. McGrath, W. Crowley and J. McDonough were the contestants. Crowley captured this event with Fred McGrath a close second.

Putting the 16 pound shot was a trial of strength and muscle. Those entering were Messrs. R. G. Sturgeon, J. McDonough, J. Murphy, E. McNichol, W. Crowley and D. Kennedy. Jack McDonough collared the medal in putting the shot 31 ft. 10 in., and received the plaudits of the multitude.

Throwing the hammer brought out Messrs. P. Molloy, J. McDonough, D. Kennedy, R. G. Sturgeon, Heffernan and Crowley. Jack McDonough also captured this by putting the hammer 69 ft. 1 in., with R. G. Sturgeon second, 67 ft. 7 in. In an exhibition throw, McDonough threw the hammer 71 ft. 8 in.

THE LACROSSE MATCH.

The lacrosse match, of course, was the event of the afternoon, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the crowd. Referee Joe Begley called the teams together and the line-up was as follows:

Peterborough.		Cobourg.
	goal.
O'Brien	point.	McCallum
Durocher	cover point.	Pringle
McDonough	1st defence	Hitchons
Meagher	2nd defence.	Byam
Crowley	3rd defence.	McCullough
Mahoney	centre.
McGrath	1st home.	Jewell
Lynch	2nd home.	Dobbin
Gorham	3rd home.	Payne
McNichol	outside home.	Sullivan
McCoy	inside home.	Stott
McCoy	field captain.	Wilson
Joe Picard		H. R. Kirkpatrick

The game started with the ball working down on the T.A.S. flags resulting in a shot on goal, which was stopped by O'Brien. Durocher got his eagle eye on the rubber and up the field it went on the Cobourg flags where some very pretty work was done by Eugene McNichol and Frank and Lou McCoy. The ball traversed to centre where Fred McGrath, Crowley and Lynch figured in some very fine lacrosse. Gorham took a hand in and tried to score as did Lynch, but McCallum in the Cobourg flags would not stand for it. Down the field it came, but Will Meagher was in waiting as well as Ed. Mahoney, and both had an opportunity to show their ability as stick handlers, which they did to good advantage. Finally the ball worked itself up on the home and after some really clever work by McCoy brothers, and a vigourous resistance by the Cobourg defence, Lynch "put the expression" on a neat shot and the ball landed in the net.

The play from now on was at times brilliant as well as ragged. The bulk of the work fell on the Cobourg defence and their cool-headed goal keeper, who were kept busy repelling attacks on their flags. The ball was almost continually on the Cobourg citadel and Jimmy O'Brien, the T.A.S. goal keeper was only called upon to stop one shot. At one time the ball came down on the T.A.S. defence, and Jack McDonough manifested a desire to tally a game by making a run on the Cobourg goal. Durocher also made several dashes up the field from his position and planted the sphere on the Cobourg goal. The play continued with several brilliant rushes by McGrath, Crowley and Lynch and pretty combination work by the home, but the ball did not seem inclined to take kindly to the net. However, Lou McCoy was laying for an opening which soon arrived and a swift shot from his stick notched another goal for the T.A.S. which was the last game scored before time was called.

The Cobourg team is composed of a first-class lot of young fellows who are thorough gentlemen both on and off the field. They play first-class lacrosse, and the team gives promise of achieving a name for itself. The visitors were taken in hand by the T.A.S. boys after the game.

The T.A.S. team showed the effects of lack of practice yesterday. The weather has prevented the boys turning out of late, and as a result the team was a little off colour yesterday.

NOTES.

The athletic events were all carried off by members of the T.A.S.

It is proposed to hold a smoker in a weeks time, when the medals will be presented, and the two ties decided in the athletic events.

It has not been decided as yet who is the winner of the gold medal, given as a special prize to the T.A.S. winner making the most points during the day.

The following clergymen were noticed on the grounds during the afternoon: Rev. Father McColl, Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father John O'Brien, of the cathedral; Rev. Father Sweeney of St. Joseph's Hospital; Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan, Lindsay; Rev. Father J. Kennedy, C.S.B., Toronto; and Rev. Father Nolan, of the State of Pensylvania. Messrs. P. J. Kelly V. McFadden and T. J. Crowley, of the Grand Seminary, Montreal, were also interested spectators.

EVENING WITH FLOWERS

Spent by the Members of the George St. League.

A very interesting "Evening with Flowers" was spent by the members of the George street Epworth League on Monday evening last. The meeting was in the hands of the Flower Committee, and the decorations, music, etc., were all in keeping with the subject of the evening. The platform was nicely arranged with flowers and plants, banked up with ferns and palms. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Wilson, acted as chairman. Miss Wilhelmine Gumpricht and her friend, Miss Bullock, of Brighton, both of the Ontario Ladies' College, were present, and delighted the audience with a well executed piano duet. Miss Gumpricht was also heard in a piano solo, displaying nice interpretation and excellent technique. After a nicely sung duet by the Misses Chasty, Mr. Jas. Fife, of the Collegiate Institute, gave a most interesting talk on flowers, dealing with plant life in general, and making special reference to the parts and properties of the flowers. Mr. Fife was listened to with a great deal of pleasure, adding new interest to the always interesting subject of flowers. At the close of the address refreshments were served by the committee, who are certainly to be credited with having provided a very interesting evening.

A COLONIAL REVIEW.

Canadian Troops to Parade on Tuesday and Wednesday.

COLONIAL PREMIERS ARRANGE IT

Mr. Chamberlain Has Given His Hearty Support, and the Fair, White, Yellow, Black and Brown Soldiery of Every Clime of the Empire Will Pass in Review Before Her Majesty the Queen.

London, June 30.—No body of men were more keenly disappointed over the postponement of the coronation than the Indian and colonial troops who have come from all ends of the world to take part in an historic event. The colonial Premiers, with the hearty support of Mr. Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, have now arranged, to the great delight of these troops, that an Indian and colonial review shall be held at the Horse Guards Parade on Tuesday and Wednesday next.

Representatives of every Indian regiment are now here, including the Sikhs, Ghurkas and Pagans. With them will be the Canadians, Australians, New Zealand Maoris, the Hong Kong pig-tailed sappers, the bare-footed Fijians and the fair, white, yellow, black and brown soldiery of every clime.

Queen Alexandra, as at Aldershot, will take the salute. The Duke of Connaught, the Prince of Wales, the Indian native rulers, the colonial premiers and other distinguished visitors will be present. The men even hope they may march up the Mall, past Buckingham Palace to be seen by the King, but herein they are fore-doomed to disappointment.

The holding of the review, of course, depends entirely on the state of the King's health.

Stick of Dynamite Thrown Over Stockade of Coal Mine.

There was an explosion which shook the town. No guards were near by and no one was hurt, and none of the buildings was damaged. Stveral shots were heard after the explosion. Legs so Swelled He Couldn't Walk.

Kidney and Urinary Troubles Were Followed by Dropsy —A Perfect Cure by

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

This case of Mr. James Treneman, the well-known butcher, of 536 Adelaide street, London, Ont., is another proof that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are effective in the most severe and complicated diseases of the kidneys.

The double action which this famous prescription has on both the kidneys and liver is in a large measure responsible for its wonderful curative effects. When there are backache, frequent, difficult or painful urination, dropsical swellings, biliousness, constipation or stomach derangements, you may depend upon it that the kidneys are clogged and the liver sluggish.

It is at such times that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prove themselves prompt to give relief and certain to effect a cure. The evidence to prove this fact is simply overwhelming.

Mr. James Treneman states: "Two years ago I was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. Besides the pain and inconvenience caused by these troubles I became dropsical, and my legs would swell up so that I could scarcely go around at all. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I procured a box and continued the use of this valuable medicine until now I can say for a certainty that I am entirely cured. I never took any medicine that did me so much good, and am firmly convinced that if it had not been for this medicine I would not be working to-day.

As a family medicine of tested and known worth, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have never been approached. They act directly on the kidneys and liver, regulate the bowels and ensure the perfect action of the digestive and filtering systems. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. A COLONIAL REVIEW.

Canadian Troops to Parade on Tuesday and Wednesday.

COLONIAL PREMIERS ARRANGE IT

Mr. Chamberlain Has Given His Hearty Support, and the Fair, White, Yellow, Black and Brown Soldiery of Every Clime of the Empire Will Pass in Review Before Her Majesty the Queen.

London, June 30.—No body of men were more keenly disappointed over the postponement of the coronation than the Indian and colonial troops who have come from all ends of the world to take part in an historic event. The colonial Premiers, with the hearty support of Mr. Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, have now arranged, to the great delight of these troops, that an Indian and colonial review shall be held at the Horse Guards Parade on Tuesday and Wednesday next.

Representatives of every Indian regiment are now here, including the Sikhs, Ghurkas and Pagans. With them will be the Canadians, Australians, New Zealand Maoris, the Hong Kong pig-tailed sappers, the barefooted Fijians and the fair, white, yellow, black and brown soldiery of every clime.

Queen Alexandra, as at Aldershot, will take the salute. The Duke of Connaught, the Prince of Wales, the Indian native rulers, the colonial premiers and other distinguished visitors will be present. The men even hope they may march up the Mall, past Buckingham Palace to be seen by the King, but herein they are fore-doomed to disappointment.

The holding of the review, of course, depends entirely on the state of the King's health.

There was an explosion which shook the town. No guards were near by and no one was hurt, and none of the buildings was damaged. Several shots were heard after the explosion. Legs so Swelled He Couldn't Walk.

Kidney and Urinary Troubles Were Followed by Dropsy —A Perfect Cure by

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

This case of Mr. James Treneman, the well-known butcher, of 536 Adelaide street, London, Ont., is another proof that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are effective in the most severe and complicated diseases of the kidneys.

The double action which this famous prescription has on both the kidneys and liver is in a large measure responsible for its wonderful curative effects. When there are backache, frequent, difficult or painful urination, dropsical swellings, biliousness, constipation or stomach derangements, you may depend upon it that the kidneys are clogged and the liver sluggish.

It is at such times that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prove themselves prompt to give relief and certain to effect a cure. The evidence to prove this fact is simply overwhelming.

Mr. James Treneman states: "Two years ago I was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. Besides the pain and inconvenience caused by these troubles I became dropsical, and my legs would swell up so that I could scarcely go around at all. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I procured a box and continued the use of this valuable medicine until now I can say for a certainty that I am entirely cured. I never took any medicine that did me so much good, and am firmly convinced that if it had not been for this medicine I would not be working to-day.

As a family medicine of tested and known worth, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have never been approached. They act directly on the kidneys and liver, regulate the bowels and ensure the perfect action of the digestive and filtering systems. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 2

WEAK ON SPELLING.

The Bewildering Word That Opened Commodore Vanderbilt's Mail.

According to all the traditions, Commodore Vanderbilt, who laid the foundation of the family wealth that has become proverbial, was a man without education, knowing little of the "three R's" and lamentably weak on spelling. He kept to himself the word on which the combination of the office safe was based until sudden sickness prevented his appearing one morning and it became necessary to transfer the secret in order that the day's work might be done without let or hindrance.

The bookkeeper sent to the commodore's house for the word key and received reply that "dog" was the necessary word. But every effort to release the bolts on the "d-o-g" combination failed, and it was necessary to send again to the Vanderbilt home in fear that the old financier might have made a thoughtless mistake. But the messenger was speedily convinced that the mistake was somebody else's when the irascible commodore roared at him: "'Dog,' you dog! 'Dog!' Confound you all for a lot of manies! Go back—go back to the office and open that safe on 'dog'—'d-o-r-g-e,' 'dog!'"

Queen Victoria's Way.

The queen's interest in and oversight of public affairs did not cease with the prince's death, although in the first years of overwhelming sorrow it must have been difficult to carry out her conception of duty. All important resolutions were taken by her; the personal notes in The Court Circular were written by her own hand and were seen by no one else. When Sir Henry Ponsonby became the queen's private secretary, she said to him: "Remember this, no advice! I am older than you are and have had more experience." In after years historians will have much to say upon the queen's personal share in the government of her dominions. All her papers have been most carefully preserved and arranged and some day, perhaps, will be accessible to the inquirer. On the other hand there is not a single paper belonging to George III. which is known to be in existence.—Professor Oscar Browning in Century.

A Remedy For Teething Troubles.

For teething, a Surrey "mother of twelve" has an excellent recipe which in her experience has never failed. At the first symptoms the child must be taken out airly in the morning and placed upon the back of a donkey to be borrowed for the occasion. Care is required here, for the little patient must sit exactly upon the cross on the donkey's back and have his face to the tail. The mother will then lead the animal slowly forward while she recites the Lord's prayer, at the close of which she should take the baby in her arms, kiss him and say, "God bless him," and his teething troubles will be over.

Oh, why did not our mother know all this? What we might have been spared!—London Tit-Bits.

The Real Inventor of Telegraphy.

Weber was the first who established a permanent workable telegraph line and thereby demonstrated the practical value of the electric telegraph. Weber's house was connected with the astronomical and magnetic observatories by a line over two miles in length. The signals were made by the deviations of the needle of a galvanometer to the right and left and were interpreted according to a conventional alphabet. The use of interrupted or reversed currents did not permit the transmission of more than one or two words a minute, but the speed was increased to seven or eight words by the use of inducted currents.

Too Strenuous For Him.

Mr. Petronius de Hamme, the eminent tragedian, was compelled by the exigencies of the play to carry the heroine up a rocky defile night after night.

Mr. de Hamme was not so sturdy as he used to be, and when the management cast Miss Vera Hevvelgh, who tipped the scales at 210 pounds, for the heroine his spirit rose within him.

That night he made one mighty effort to carry her up the rocky defile and then advanced to the footlights. In an apologetic tone he inquired, "Is there a piano mover in the audience?"—W. D. Nesbit in Woman's Home Companion.

Died In Place of a Younger Man.

A charge was made at a wall lined with French infantry. Sergeant McQuade of an English regiment saw two Frenchmen level their muskets on rests against a gap in a bank, awaiting the appearance of an enemy.

Sir George Brown, then a lad of sixteen, started to ascend at the fatal point. "You are too young, sir, to be killed," said McQuade, pulling him back and stepping into his place. He fell dead, pierced with both bullets.

Innocent Girl.

Sarcastic Father—Julia, that young man Smilly has been here three nights in succession, and it has been nearly midnight when he left. Hadn't you better invite him to bring his trunk and make his home with us?

Innocent Daughter—Oh, papa! May I? It was just what he wanted, but he was too bashful to ask you. He'll be delighted when I tell him this evening.

Leading Him On.

He—Would your mother let you go to the theater without a chaperon?

She—Not unless I was engaged.

Snake Bite and Whisky.

There is not on record an authenticated case of snake bite cured by whisky. Plenty of individuals bitten while under the influence of liquor have died, and large amounts of alcohol have failed to save life in many cases. Only about one in six of those bitten by venomous snakes dies. The remaining five are cured by anything they happen to have taken. Stimulation is excellent, but the giving of whisky to drunkenness by lowering the resistive vitality has undoubtedly been a causative factor in many deaths supposedly from snake bite that would otherwise not have occurred.—American Medicine.

Fatherly Finesse.

Father—I forbid you to allow that sapheaded Squilldiggs to enter the house again!

Daughter—But I love him!

Father—I shall disinherit you! I shall shoot him! I shall—

Daughter—Boo-hoo-oo!

(Later.)

Father—Say, wife, be sure you double Gwendolin's allowance today and give it to her early. I think she is going to elope with young Squilldiggs tonight.—San Francisco Bulletin.

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

NOT A LOVE KNOT.

Embarrassing Experience of a Woman In a Street Car.

A handsomely dressed lady riding recently in a crowded Amsterdam avenue car was fortunate enough to have a seat, but when nearing her destination she noticed that the lacing of her shoe was unfastened. It was the work of a moment, but a very trying moment, to stoop down and knot it securely. When this was accomplished, her hat veil readjusted and her gloves once more carefully put on, it was time to signal the conductor. This she did and after two vain attempts to rise looked around indignantly to find the cause of her retarded movements. She came face to face with a very irate gentleman who had been sitting next to her.

"Madam, madam, where are you trying to take me?" he demanded.

"I—you!" she stammered.

"Yes. Look there!" He pointed to the floor, and in an instant she had grasped the situation. By mistake in groping she had found the lacing of his shoe, which she had taken for the other end of her own, and had fastened them so carefully together that it took the gentleman quite five minutes to effect a release, under the amused glances of the other occupants of the car, which had traveled twice that number of blocks before the lady was ready to give another signal.

A Chinese Proverb.

An attache of one of the legations in Peking at the time when two continents were in a high state of tension was a guest at the Army and Navy club in New York a few evenings since, says Leslie's Weekly. "I had occasion," he said, "to meet Li Hung Chang, who, despite the heavy suspense overhanging his country, seemed to be, to us, painfully cheerful. One of the party present, a man in authority, referred to Li's merriment.

"The interpreter mentioned it to his master, who requested him to make the most beautiful reply I ever heard. 'Tell him,' said the interpreter, quoting his master, 'that the Chinese have a proverb which I commend to all in all conditions: You cannot prevent birds of sorrow flying over your head, but you can keep them from stopping and building nests in your hair.'

"I immediately wrote it down, so I know the quotation is correct."

American "Prudishness."

In the face of foreign criticism and in the face of one's own dismay at existing conditions with regard to divorce, we still sympathize with the retort administered to an alien critic of our people who had declared in private conversation that America seemed to be afflicted with the disease of prudishness. The answer was somewhat in these words (the incident occurred several years ago): "Yes, probably it is true that Americans are prudish; but, considering the revelations that have recently taken place concerning certain circles in London and considering the condition of a good part of the Parisian stage and of French literature, I, for one, am willing that we should pay that price for the knowledge that, on the whole, Americans are the decentest people in regard to the relations of the sexes on the face of the globe."

The Sun as a Timepiece.

In a Georgia justice court a colored witness was asked to name the time a difficulty occurred.

"It wuz in fodder pullin' time, suh," he replied.

"You don't understand me," said the judge. "I mean what time was it by the clock?"

"Dey warn't no clock dar, suh," said the witness.

"Well, by the sun, then?"

"Now," exclaimed the witness triumphantly, "sence you hes come right down ter business I'll tell you plain. Ef de sun had been a-shinin' hit would er been 'bout two hours en a half by sun, but ez de sun didn't show his face 'tall dat day I couldn't say fer sartin des what time hit wuz!"

THE HERMIT CRAB.

Gently crack the shell of the whelk, for you will find it almost impossible to extract the occupant alive otherwise, and you will see what you may be pardoned for supposing a miniature lobster, but which in reality belongs to another distinct species—namely, the hermit crab, Pagurus bernhardus. Whether he has obtained occupancy by force of arms or merely through decease of the original tenant is a moot point, but the first supposition is highly probable, as he is a most belligerent little customer.

An amusing scene may be witnessed by placing several hermit crabs deprived of their shells in an ordinary soup plate, with a little sea water and some empty shells—fewer shells than crabs. The fighting and struggling to secure houses is ludicrous in the extreme. One may be seen almost successful in mooring himself within a shell, which, by the way, is effected by means of the shelly plates at the extremity of his soft and twisted tail, when another seizes him by the nape of the neck, as it were, and he is dragged reluctantly forth. The evicter still holds him struggling at claws' length, and not until he himself is safely ensconced does he relinquish his grasp.

The Belief In a Devil.

A maidservant belonging to one of the women's colleges had been out with her lover without leave from her mistress and was returning late along my road, at the top of which lived the lamented Professor Nettleship. Now, the latter had a large yellow dog that took the usual canine delight in seeing cats scatter and flee, and, the better to pounce on them when they were stealthily crossing the street, he would perch himself on the top of the professor's garden wall, surrounded and half hidden in the foliage. As the truant maidservant passed beneath him he caught sight of a cat in the middle of the road and, making a spring at it, collided with her and knocked her down. She picked herself up and ran screaming home, almost mad with terror, because, as she said, the devil had jumped on her back and thrown her down.

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

Salad Plants.

Salad plants comprise a group which may be arranged under the head of acetarious plants. Some have long been known as common vegetables and cooked and served as such, while others have been regarded simply as weeds by most native Americans.

Sakhalin Forests.

The island of Sakhalin, the great penal colony of Russia, has splendid forests of fir and pine.

Paraffin.

Paraffin is a pure hydrocarbon, containing nothing else than carbon and hydrogen, being precisely the same ingredients as in ordinary coal gas, though in another form.

Slate Mining.

Slate is got out of the ground by means of blasting, holes being bored into it with steam drills. With derricks and hoisting chains the rough slabs are lifted to the edge of the quarry, and then they are rolled upon trucks to the shanty of the "splitter."

IN LATEST SPORTING CIRCLES

Athletics Defeated the Belleville Twelve.

The Bowmanville Ball Team Beat the Auburn Aggregation on the Oval.

BASEBALL.

The Bowmanville baseball team visited Peterborough yesterday and defeated the locals in a Midland League game by a score of 12 to 6. The Peterborough team was made up of the Auburns, who have taken over the Coal Heaver's franchise. The Auburns played remarkably good ball for beginners and should give a good account of themselves before the season closes. The only players of the old Peterborough team who played were McCabe and Sheridan. The locals made a grand garrison finish and had their opponents going in good style towards the close of the game. Umpire Duncan of Cobourg officiated.

The Peterborough team was as follows: BelleghemC, McCorry and McCabe p, Wareham 1b, Davidson 2b, Sheridan ss, Flaherty 3b, Peaton rf, Carson cf, Shaw lf. The Bowmanville battery was Osborne and Wilson.

TENNIS.

A meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Tennis Club will be held in the rooms on Thursday evening next, at 7.30. A full attendance is requested.

GOLF.

The Captain's Handicap Tournament is nearing its close and the games are becoming close and exciting. Last year's champion, Mr. S. Ray, is still in the running, as is Mr. R. M. Hamilton, and should the two scratch men meet in the finals there will be an interesting match. The draw in the next round must be played on or before Wednesday, July 9th and has been announced as follows;

Ray vs. Stratton.

Hamilton vs. winner of Davidson vs. Patterson.

Dr. Neill a bye.

A great many members took advantage of the holiday yesterday to play golf. The ladies were present on the links at Auburn in large numbers and were greatly interested in the finals in the match for the prize given by the president of the Ladies' Club.

LACROSSE.

Belleville, Ont., July 1.—The best best game of lacrosse seen in this city in many a long year was played here this afternoon between the Athletics of Peterborough and Belleville's newly-organized team. The game was very fast. Though Peterborough won they had to fight every inch of the way. The score was 5 to 4 in favour of the visitors, though the winning goal was disputed. However, the score goes down in history as 5 to 4. Both sides played a swift, accurate game, though if Belleville had played with the same snap in the first part of the match as they did in the last quarter there would surely have been a different tale to tell.

The catching and passing on both sides was superb, and the local team shows great improvements over their form in the first match.

The teams were as follows:

Peterborough—Galley, goal; Dillon, point; Morgan, cover point; Glover, Mein and Dunford, defence field; Parnell, centre; Graham, Dusty and Foreman, home field; Dobbin, outside home; Robertson, inside home; E. Wasson, field captain.

Belleville—Halton, goal; Hutchon, point; Patterson, cover point; Cook, Wallace and Ford, defence field; Allan, centre; Burke Burrell and Bogart, home field; Browley, outside home; Maguire, inside home; Ed. Farrel, field captain.

Goal umpires—M. D. Shea and P. M. Foris.

Referee—Dr. R. Snell, Toronto.

The Montreal Witness says: London stops at nothing in its quest and is scouring the country for lacrosse players. Players sometimes refuse to wallow in the filthy lucre and very often when changing their address take into consideration the place and its surroundings. Can one blame those Shamrock men who refused an offer of $300 and a position when the fact of having to spend the time after dark is considered? For this reason, London's magnificent inducements can only attract a few of the lesser stars from the back woods.

PETERBOROUGH CHEESE BOARD.

Regular Semi-Monthly Sale This Morning.

9 3-8 THE FAVOURITE PRICE.

The Board Will Meet Again Next Week —Factories That Were Boarded.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held in the town council chamber this morning. The following buyers were in attendance—Messrs. Rollins, Bailey, Whitten, Wrighton, Cook, Fitzgerald and Kerr.

Before the bidding opened the President, Mr. Drummond, invited discussion on the advisability of changing the new rule of selling every week during July and August, to the old system of selling twice a month. The buyers generally were in favour of selling under the old system of once every two weeks. To sell every week would place them at a great disadvantage, and the system, they concluded, would have a tendency to disorganize the Board. Some factories could not stand the expense of attending every week. The system of selling every week was, of course, inaugurated to overcome the hot weather.

The salesman were pretty much divided on the matter of selling every week. It was decided, upon a vote, to sell what was on the board, adjourn for one week, and then sell the balance of the June cheese. After that there will be fortnightly sales until further notice.

Mr. Wrighton offered 9 3-8c on the second bid. He carried off Warminster, Warsaw, Fraserville, Peterborough, East Emily, Myrtle and Central Smith.

At 9 3-8c, which appeared to be the favourite price, Mr. Rollins called North Smith, Maple Leaf, Oakdale, Daisy D., Pine Grove, Young's Point, North Dummer, Cederdale, Stony Lake and South Burleigh.

Mr. Whitton bid 9 7-16c, and took Ormonde. Mr. Fitzgerald at 9 5-16c called Lakefield, Cavanville, Mt. Pleasant, Fleetwood, Buckhorn, all of which refused but Otonabee Union and Treewarn.

Mr. Cook, at 9 3-8c, called Oak Leaf, Brickley, Shamrock and Dartford. They warn accepted.

Mr. Bailey bid 9 5-16c, and tried to get Indian River and Fleetwood, but they refused. Norwood sold to Mr. Bailey at 9 3-8c, and Indian River sold likewise.

Buckhorn was added to Mr. Fitzgerald's selections at 9 5-16c. Missing Link sold to Mr. Wrighton at 9 5-16c. Apsley (40 boxes) sold to Mr. Rollins at 9 3-8c, Montreal inspection. Fleetwood sold to Mr. Fitzgerald at 9 5-16c. Cavanville sold to Mr. Wrighton at 9 5-16c. The Board then adjourned.

HAMILTON'S TELEPHONES.

Mr. Robert Neill, of Peterborough, has a Proposition to Make.

(Hamilton Times.)

Oscar Wentworth Rogers is not going to have a monopoly in the rival telephone business or exclusive privileges before the Finance Committee. There are other representatives of unorganised companies who can talk just as well as the New York lawyer, and one of them is in town. Mr. Robert Neill, a Peterborough man, accompanied by another promoter, came to town this morning and lost no time in hunting up Ald. Dunn, Chairman of the Finance Committee. They had a long talk on the telephone question, and Mr. Neill promised that he would have a proposition to lay before the Finance Committee at its meeting this afternoon. Ald. Dunn, by the way, has accumulated a good deal of information about the telephone business during the past few months, and he asked Mr. Neill some pretty pointed questions. One was as to whether his company had a charter, and he got the reply that it has not, but he assured the Finance Chairman that there would be no difficulty about getting backing. Asked why the "company" had not bought the Montreal rights that sold at less than a song, Mr. Neill said that could all be explained. What interested the Finance Chairman most was the assurance that "Rogers has nothing to offer the City of Hamilton."

Mr. Neill assured him that the independent companies in the United States are doing well, whereupon Ald. Dunn pulled out a Buffalo paper of yesterday containing a report from Cleveland that the Cuyahoga Company of that city was making an application to be allowed to increase its rates, finding it impossible to do business at the existing rates of $48 and $36. If in a big city like Cleveland an independent company can't make money at $48 and $36 it will puzzle Hamilton people to know how Mr. Rogers' company can do business and pay dividends at $15 and $10 in a city the size of Hamilton.

SERVICES APPRECIATED.

What the Globe Says of Mr. A. White, Formerly of Town.

The Toronto Globe of yesterday contains the following editorial reference to Mr. A. White, Divisional Freight Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, and formerly of the local G.T.R. station.

"Mr. A. White, Division Freight Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway at Toronto, has been granted leave of absence for a vacation, which he has thoroughly earned. In recommending a holiday, General Manager Hays said he recognized the value of almost forty years of faithful service to the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. White's many friends will be glad to congratulate him when he returns thoroughly recuperated for the trying duties of his office. During his absence his place will be filled by Mr. C. E. Dewey, now Divisional Freight Agent at Stratford. Mr. Dewey's training began as office boy under Mr. White, and he successfully filled every position up to that of chief clerk, whence he was promoted to his present position at Stratford. Mr. White's long service with the Grand Trunk has brought him into close contact with the business men of Toronto, and no one could more fully enjoy their good will and esteem. It is such men as make the business machinery of a great corporation like the Grand Trunk Railway run smoothly, and while his good qualities are recognized by the business community, as well as by a wide circle of personal friends, his services are also fully recognized by the corporation through its official chief. It is well that such corporations appreciate the value of the men who have mastered the minutiae of their various departments by years of faithful service."

Latest Fashion Notes.

A Pretty Blouse of Liberty Satin.

There is greater latitude in the cut of sleeves than that of any other portion of the feminine costume. They range in style from the perfectly plain coat sleeve made somewhat larger than formerly and usually furnished with a cuff, to the immense flowing sleeve, comparatively small at the shoulders, and increasing in size as it descends, nearly or quite covering the hand. The latter type is found more frequently upon the more elaborate of the long silk coats. A medium among these various types of sleeve is seen here. In this the fullness is arranged in tucks which are allowed to escape at the elbow, forming a puff which is gathered into a small close cuff. The blouse is made of Liberty satin, laid in tucks and stitched with Corticelli silk in such a way as to produce the effect of puffs. These are mounted upon a yoke of plain material which is defined by straps, embroidered in Corticelli filo silk to imitate the gay Bulgarian embroidery now so fashionable.

CHINA IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

This Time It Is Over Payment of July Indemnity.

Pekin, July 1. —The Taotai of Shanghai has notified the Banker Commission that China refuses to pay the July instalment of the indemnity except at the rate of exchange prevailing April 1, 1901.

The foreign ministers consider that the Taotai's declarations is the result of the announcement of the United States Minister, Mr. Conger, to the Chinese Government, that the United States sustains China's contention, and is willing to accept payment on the basis mentioned. But the Ministers are confident that China will accept the decision of the majority of the Ministers when she is convinced that the United States is her only supporter.

Some of the Ministers insist that the United States policy is unreasonable and in direct opposition to the terms of her protocol.

A Wrong Burial Certificate.

When a physician issues a burial certificate to one who has died from consumption or throat trouble, he should say, Cause of death, neglect to take Four T's when the cough first started. Four T's cures a cough in 24 hours and the worst cold in two days, and you get a large bottle for 25c at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

STOCK MARKETS.

Again Speaking of Ill. Cent.

New York, June 30. — We have persistently bulled Ill Cent stock in these letters, fairly urging purchases between 130 and 134. We now again take up the subject, urging purchases at current quotations. Ill Cen at present carrying most valuable rights when it sells ex rights as it will do very shortly, it will look astoundingly cheap, and so it will be inasmuch as it is earning at present writing fully 12 per cent on its capitalization, including its new issue of stock. It now looks as if the Chicago and Eastern Ill is about to fall into the hands of the Ill Cent. With the L & N deal a completed fact the railway dominion of that particular section of the country will become an accomplished fact and all roads interested will be most wondrously benefitted. Ill C should shortly sell at 150, ex rights, which is equivalent to 170 as the stock is quoted now. No road in the country has a more careful, conservative and capable management, no road is in better physical condition; no road has a more marvellous exhibition of earning powers paying the same dividend it is paying to-day when over 30 per cent of the railway mileage of the United States was bankrupt and in the hands of the receivers, including many of to-day's favourites, that are now not only paying good dividends but capable of increasing them and likely to do so. Ill Cent should sell as high as St Paul stock. It is worth fully as much and much more than is Rock Island. We recommend it to both investor and speculator. While on the subject of a standard security do not overlook St Paul, Mop, L N, U P and So Pac. All of these issues are bound in the regular course of events to do better; they have been advancing, and they will advance still more. To those who have followed our advice by purchasing these shares at in many instances much lower prices we say not only to hold them, but to take on more at present range of quotations, and if they do we feel confident that they will have no cause to regret it.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Sabbath School has been organized under most favourable circumstances and through the leadership of Rev. Mr. Yale should do a great amount of good.

Miss Etta Clark, teacher at Cooper, Ont., is home for her vacation.

Mr. Lewis Smith left on Thursday for a few days to visit friends in Rochester, N.Y.

Mrs. John Grandy, of St. Thomas, North Dakota, is visiting friends here.

Mr. J. D. Clark is visiting friends in Lorneville Junction for a few days.

Mr. D. V. Trew has filled in the flowing well in front of his door and intends making a trough for the public to use for watering horses.

WESLEY.

Last Sunday our pastor, Rev. R. A. Delve, conducted his last service here. A very large congregation was present. He preached from John 14, 2, the subject being "Heaven." All enjoyed the service. Mr. Delve has been here a year, and his popularity is attested by the fact that during the service the congregation tendered him an illuminated address, and with a purse containing over seventy dollars, as a mark of their high appreciation of him and Mrs. Delve. Mr. A. E. Kennedy read the address, and the presentation was made by Mr. A. B. Northey. Our people all feel very sorry to see Mr. Delve leave as he has proved himself a warm personal friend, and a most conscientious and faithful pastor.

The annual Sunday school excursion of the North Smith and Lakehurst churches is being arranged this week. All are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to its enjoyment.

Mr. Silas Graham lost a horse last week. He can ill afford it, so the neighbours generously combined and gave him a liberal contribution towards the purchase of another.

Our new pastor, Rev. Mr. Metzler, is expected to preach here next Sunday.

THE WHITE FATHER

Will Give Audience to 200 Representative Russians of All Ranks, Including Convicts, and With Free Speech.

London, July 3.—In a despatch from St. Petersburg, the correspondent there of The Daily Express asserts that, in defiance of the advice of his Ministers, the Czar has decided to give private audience to over 200 representative Russians of all ranks, including university professors, publicists, editors, political prisoners, and even convicts, with a view of thoroughly probing problems and discovering the motives for the assassinations of Ministers and officials. They will be invited to tell the Czar frankly how the threatened revolution may be averted, and by what peaceful means the distress and dissatisfaction of the lower classes may be met.

He says certain newspapers made the story out of whole cloth.

NO BALLOT-STUFFING.

Mr. A. G. McKay, Liberal, Holds North Grey Seat.

LENNOX GOES CONSERVATIVE.

Appeal From Recount Gives the Seat to Carscallen—In North Grey Case Judge Says There Is Hardly Room Even For Suspicion That the Ballots Were Tampered With—Government Majority One.

Toronto, July 3.—By a judgment given by Mr. Justice Maclennan yesterday in the appeal against the recount in Lennox, giving the seat to Mr. Carscallen, the Conservative candidate, the majority of Hon. Mr. Ross is reduced from three to one, with the constituency of North Renfrew open.

The judgment was delivered on the appeal taken by Mr. Carscallen, but there is a counter-appeal taken by Mr. Madole which has yet to be heard.

The appeal against the recount in North Grey was also disposed of by Mr. Justice Maclennan in a judgment yesterday morning. Mr. McKay, the Liberal member-elect, holds his seat, but by the reduced majority of two.

North Grey was the constituency in which sensational charges were made by the Conservatives that four ballots in polling subdivision No. 9, St. Vincent, had been tampered with after the recount. These charges are completely exploded by the judgment, Mr. Justice Maclennan saying that there is hardly room for even a suspicion that the marks complained of were made after the counting of the votes.

The Lennox Judgment.

In the judgment in the Lennox appeal regarding a Conservative objection, his Lordship found that the County Judge is not confined on the recount to an examination of the ballots to which objection was made before the deputy returning officer, and the objection is therefore overruled.

His Lordship allowed ballot 405 for Carscallen. It was marked with a cross above the upper line. The court held that a ballot without the line would be good, and the voter meant to vote for Carscallen.

No. 4,032 ballot, marked in the proper place for Madole, was disallowed, as the mark was a circle, not a cross or any apparent attempt to make a cross.

Ballot No. 4,004 was allowed for Carscallen. Besides having the good mark opposite Carscallen's name, it had an irregular, shapeless pencil mark in Madole's division. His Lordship held that the voter could not be identified by the mark.

Carscallen Gets the Seat.

The court found that No. 5,288 had been rightly disallowed by the County Judge. Besides the mark for Carscallen, the initials "P.A" appeared on the ballot. Mr. Justice Osler was conferred with on this point, and both Judges agreed that any written word or name upon a ballot presumably written by the voter, ought to vitiate the vote as being a means by which he could be identified.

The court held that No. 2,470 marked by a somewhat irregular cross for Madole, was rightly allowed, and that Nos. 4,064 and 5,256, having a cross or crosses in the divisions of both candidates, should be rejected.

The result so far is that Nos. 405 and 4,004 should be added to Mr. Carscallen's poll, and No. 4,032 should be struck off the poll of Mr. Madole, which gives Mr. Carscallen a majority of three.

The North Grey Judgment.

In his judgment of the North Grey appeal Mr Justice Maclennan points out that the County Judge said that his mode of proceeding upon the recount was that after opening the packet he separated the ballots for Mr. Boyd from those of Mr. McKay, and then handed the Boyd ballots to Mr. McKay's agents for examination, to see whether they had any objection to them, and in like manner he handed to Mr. Boyd's agents the McKay ballots for the same purpose. He handed the four in question to McKay's agent as Boyd ballots without observing the double cross, and Mr. Watson, after examination only, discovered two of them. It was only after they were handed to Boyd's agents for further examination that the other two were discovered.

This makes it plain that at the close of the poll they might well have been counted for Boyd without anyone noticing the added crosses for McKay. The Boyd crosses were on the right hand side of his name and were distinct and conspicuous. The McKay cross upon three of them is quite obscure and indistinct, and while that on the fourth is more distinct, it is yet much less conspicuous than the Boyd cross.

Ballots Not Tampered With.

"I am unable," continued Mr. Justice Maclennan, "with great respect, to agree with the learned Judge that there is any evidence that the McKay crosses were made after the count at the close of the poll. I think they were simply not observed in the hurry of counting while the crosses for Boyd being conspicuous, cause them to be at once counted for him. The same thing exactly seems to have occured on the recount, when the Judge, without observing the two crosses, handed all four ballots as Boyd ballots to McKay's agent for examination, when two of them escaped the notice of the agent also, and were not discovered until after a second examination by the agent of Mr. Boyd.

"Under these circumstances it appears to me that there is hardly room even for a suspicion that the marks complained of were made after the counting of the votes."

M. McPherson argued that the condition in which the ballots were found was very suspicious.

"There appears to have been two packets furnished to the deputy returning officer, who printed blank endorsements thereon," said His Lordship. "He put the ballots in one and sealed it, but he filled up the blanks on the other with all the proper requirements instead of upon the first. This seems to me to have been a mere mistake, nor can I see what connection it could have with the alleged falsification of four ballots. I am of opinion that the Judge rightly disallowed these four ballots."

McKay's Majority Reduced.

Ballot No. 719, marked for McKay, but having the word McKay written on the back, was disallowed.

Ballot No. 6,764 was allowed for Boyd. The mark consisted of two lines very close to each other in Boyd's division. The Judge found that these lines were evidence of an intention to make a cross.

Ballot, 4,861, marked for McKay with a very distinct cross and having a very faint cross in Boyd's division, was allowed for McKay by the Judge. Mr. Justice Maclennan disallows it.

The result is that two of the votes counted for McKay should have been disallowed, and one which was disallowed to Boyd should be counted for him, and Mr. McKay's majority is thereby reduced to two.

ADVICE TO TENANTS, "PAY UP."

Pending Evictions on Lord De Freyne's Estate Defended by Wyndham.

London, July 3.—A long and heated debate on the Irish land question was precipitated in the House of Commons last night. Thomas W. Russell (Liberal) moved the adjournment of the House to discuss the pending evictions from the estate of Lord De Freyne, in Roscommon County, in connection with which Lord De Freyne recently had writs issued against a large number of the Irish parliamentary party, whom he charged with conspiracy in the matter.

Mr. Russell declared that unless the Government intervened to prevent these evictions an era of trouble and turmoil would be inaugurated in the West of Ireland. He believed one word from Mr. Wyndham, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, would settle the whole trouble.

Mr. Wyndham replied to Mr. Russell, with some asperity, that he was surprised to find the latter siding against law and order. The rents from the De Freyne estate, he said, had been reduced 37 per cent. in the past 20 years, and he knew some of the organizers were making money out of the agitation. His advice to the tenants was to pay up. This statement was greeted with groans from the House.

Hundreds had done so, said Mr. Wyndham, and this remark was received with Conservative cheers, and many more would like to, but were intimidated.

FRASERVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On the closing day of school the pupils of Cairo School, Fraserville, presented Miss Louie, Masters Arthur and George Steel with an address and presents.

The address was read by Miss Janet Waterman and Miss Mamie Whitfield presented Miss Louie Steel with a handsome vase and a silk handkerchief.

Masters Ernest Armstrong and Charlie Hogg made the presentation to Masters Arthur and George Steel. Their gifts were handkerchief and collar boxes, and each a silk handkerchief.

The following is the address:

To Miss Louie, Masters Arthur and George Steel, Fraserville:

Dear schoolmates,—Your teacher and schoolmates at Cairo School, Fraserville, deeply regret that you are so soon to leave us as we have learned to respect and love you. The time of parting is now drawing so near we seem to appreciate your friendship as never before, and as a slight token of our sincere regard for you, we ask you to accept these small gifts from us to remind you of the days spent at our school.

We all join in wishing you much success and happiness in the future, and if we may not meet again on earth we hope to meet where partings are unknown.

Signed on behalf of the school,
PEARL SCOBELL,
HARRY BOTHWELL.
OTTIE RUE,
WILBERT MONCRIEF,
BRUCE FISHER,
MAMIE WHITFIELD,
JANET WATERMAN.

Several ladies of the section were present, also Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Steel, being asked to call as it was the last day of school before the vacation.

Mr. Steel made an appropriate and excellent reply on behalf of the children, thanking the pupils kindly for their pretty gifts. He gave wise advice to the boys and girls and regretted that his children had to leave Fraserville school.

Their teacher, Miss Fair, also regrets they have to leave the school, as careful Christian training was reflected in their characters, and had a great influence for good.

Rev. Mr. Steel and family left for Hastings last Wednesday morning, and their departure is regretted by the whole community.

NORTH SMITH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

At the close of the service in Wesley church last Sunday afternoon, seven gentlemen representing the congregation went forward and presented Rev. R. A. Delve with the following address, etc., which speaks for itself.

The reverend gentleman, who is popular in the community, though taken entirely by surprise, made a feeling and suitable reply. The address was as follows;

To the Rev. R. A. Delve,—

Dear Sir, — On the eve of this, your departure to another field of Christian service, we, your friends in Wesley, desire in some way to express our gratitude to God for the blessings of the past year, and our very high appreciation of your most devoted ministry among us. It has indeed been a short period, but within the limits of a year we have all learned to love and admire you, and to esteem you very highly for your work's sake. We have all been profited by your most faithful preaching of the word. You have evidently kept before you the divine injunction, "Study to show thyself approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

Under the influence of the Holy Spirit you have been the means of grace to many of our young people, as well as to those older in years; while your sympathy, counsel and encouragement, and clear exposition of the Word of God has inspired warmth, comfort and vigor to all. We are not unmindful of the difficulties you have experienced while us, and we desire you to convey to Mrs. Delve our very deepest sympathy and love, and our prayers for her speedy recovery to perfect health and strength.

We ask you to accept this purse of $70, and we desire that you will value it, not for its intrinsic worth, though in this regard also we trust it will be both helpful and useful to you, but as a slight token of the high esteem in which we hold you, not only as a minister of the Gospel but also in your social capacity as a friend, and we ask that God may abundantly bless you and prosper you both in your future pastorate.

Signed on behalf of the congregation, S. A. Northey, Walter Nugent, W. J. Northey, S. Harrison, A. B. Northey, W. Pearson, A. E. Kennedy.

CANADIAN PORTS GAIN.

Drawing Grain Shipments From the Erie Canal More and More.

New York, July 3.—The Canal Committee of the Produce Exchange, which is working to have the question of the rebuilding of the Erie Canal referred to the people at some date soon, has prepared a table, showing the movement of the principal grain shipments for the week ending June 26, and comparing the amount passing through Canadian ports and American. The committee observes that Canadian routes are drawing more and more American traffic away from American routes.

It is shown by the table, for the week ending June 28, that the grain shipments from Montreal amounted to 710,822 bushels, while the total for New York was 385,122. The total shipments of all grains by way of Canadian ports for the week were 1,002,265, against 742,806 by American Atlantic ports.

CANADIANS FOR HOME

Coronation Contingent will Leave Camp In London To-Day.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN INDEFINITE.

Speech of Colonial Secretary at Colonial Conference Disappointing—Described as "Varied and Comprehensive, But Indefinite"—An Impression That His Hands as Well as His Tongue Are Tied.

London, July 3. — The Canadian contingent has been invited to remain two weeks longer awaiting Lord Kitchener's return. The officers are willing to stay, but the men have had enough of Alexandra Palace for a lifetime, and they have decided to sail on Thursday.

Sir Frederick Borden said they would give the answer at six o'clock yesterday as to whether the troops would stay or sail as prearranged.

Sir Frederick Borden has gone to the camp and will stay with the men until they sail for home.

At six o'clock yesterday afternoon Sir Frederick Borden stated that the contingent would leave in the morning. The War Office, he said, had invited the troops to prolong their stay a week, but that would really mean a fortnight, for a suitable vessel for transportation home could not be procured in less time, so that if nothing unforseen occurs, the Canadians will sail from Liverpool on the good ship Tunisian at 2 o'clock on Thursday.

The Canadian Provincial Premiers, Messrs. Ross, Murray, Tweedie, Roblin, Peters, Dunsmuir, and Haultain, also Treasurer Duffy of Quebec, again conferred yesterday at the Grosvenor Hotel, and discussed the maintenance of the Lieutenant-Governors. It was decided to confer with Mr. Chamberlain with a view to easing the burden of the Provinces, and also to ask for an authoritative statement on precedence and the official status. The Provincial Ministers intend to seek Sir Wilfrid Laurier's co-operation.

TIED HAND AND TONGUE.

Speech in Opening Colonial Premier's Conference Was Indefinite.

London, July 3.—The speech made by Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, at the conference of colonial premiers, on Monday, is said to have been a great disappointment. It is described as "varied and comprehensive, but indefinite." While Mr. Chamberlain covered a large field of subjects in his speech, he committed himself to no decided opinion on any one of them, and he advanced no definite opinion or proposal of any kind on behalf of the Government, his only suggestion in the direction of Imperial federation being that of the periodic repetition of the conference of the colonial premiers in London.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech has left the impression that, regarding the zollverein and all other important points, including Imperial defence, not only his hands, but his tongue, also, is tied.

Canadians a Paring Attraction.

London, July 3.—The authorities at Alexandra Palace have been making a circus attraction of the Canadian troops. They are charging a shilling one day for entrance and sixpence the next. Lady Laurier and her friends were stopped at the gate Monday, admittance being demanded and collected before they were allowed to enter. This charging of admittance has caused great indignation among the colonials, which will not help to heal the friction arising from the general mismanagement of the War Office.

NO PEERAGE OFFERED

Groundless Inventions Concerning the Premier and Ministers—R.C. Renews Fisheries Modus Vivendi.

Ottawa, July 3. — The story that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was offered a Peerage but declined the honor, may safely be dismissed as a piece of fiction. The British authorities are probably so well aware of the Premier's repugnance to anything of the sort that they would scarcely go the length of proffering a Peerage, even if they had ever contemplated the idea. The report has doubtless originated from a statement made some time ago by a Montreal newspaper, that Sir Wilfrid would be made a Peer and retire from public life. Some people fabricate statements and repeat them so assiduously as to convince themselves finally that they must be true. This has evidently happened in the present instance. The statement that Mr. Tarte was offered and refused a title, seemingly comes within the same category. In the case of Mr. Fielding, it is well known in official circles that he could have had a Knighthood had he wanted it. The Finance Minister was so closely identified with the British preference as to invite Imperial recognition, but Mr. Fielding evidently deems a prefix to his name unnecessary.

The Fisheries Agreement.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has received a telegram from Attorney-General Eberts of British Columbia, agreeing, on behalf of his Government, to a renewal of the modus vivendi entered into last year between the Dominion and the Province with respect to the fisheries, pending the result of the adjourned conference on fisheries administration. Last year the British Columbia Legislature passed an act to enable the Province to exercise all the powers which it believed devolved upon it under the judgment of the Privy Council. This included the right to issue licenses and collect revenue in regard to the fisheries in certain territorial waters in British Columbia. At the request of the Minister of Marine, the Provincial Government last summer agreed to hold the provisions of the act in abeyance pending a settlement of points in dispute, and to allow the Dominion to issue licenses and collect the revenue on the understanding that the portion of the receipts to which British Columbia might be entitled, should ultimately be refunded. It is this arrangement which has now been renewed. The conference on the fisheries will probably reassemble in September.

DICTATES LETTER TO TROOPS

Review of East India Troops Was a Picturesque Spectacle—1,200 Dark-Skinned Troops in Vari-Colored Uniforms March to "Rule Across the Seas"—The British Fleet Dispersed.

London, July 3.—At Buckingham Palace the following bulletin was issued at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in regard to King Edward:

"King Edward had another excellent night and is making steady progress in all respects. The wound is much less troublesome and is beginning to heal. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

There is some talk in official circles of a public thanksgiving service at St. Paul's Cathedral when the King is sufficiently recovered to attend, but nothing has been definitely settled.

His Majesty takes light nourishment with keen enjoyment. He is allowed a light cigar a day. He evinced the greatest interest in the arrangements for yesterday's review of the colonial troops.

The following bulletin was issued from Buckingham Palace at 7 p.m.: "The King maintains his strength. The local pain being less, the days are passed with greater comfort. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

ANOTHER GOOD DAY.

King Enlivened by Music and Cheers of the Indian Troops.

London, July 3. — King Edward passed another good day yesterday. The quiet and routine of the royal sickroom was varied by the excitement of listening to the music and cheers of the Indian troops, as they marched past the Palace and greeted Queen Alexandra on the balcony. King Edward demanded a full account of the review, and the formal report made by the Prince of Wales was supplemented by the personal narrative of the Queen.

His Majesty dictated a letter to the Duke of Connaught, commanding him to compliment the colonial and Indian troops upon their excellent appearance, and to thank them for their expressions of loyalty and sympathy, which he had heard with pleasure in his sickroom.

At a late hour last night the King's improvement continued.

A unique and impressive scene was witnessed in St. Paul's Cathedral last evening, when some 2,000 doctors assembled beneath the dome of the building and offered prayers for the King's recovery. Many of the doctors wore their academic robes. A litany was sung in procession, the doctors joinging in the singing. At the conclusion of the service, the congregation sent a message to Queen Alexandra, expressing its fervent wishes for His Majesty's speedy recovery.

A PICTURESQUE SPECTACLE.

Review of the East Indian Troops by Prince of Wales.

London, July 3.—The review of the East Indian troops yesterday was largely a repetition of Monday's function, but the varied coloring of the uniforms of representative corps from all parts of Hindustan formed an altogether more picturesque spectacle. Queen Alexandra was again the central figure of the proceedings, and the public welcomed the opportunity to testify once more its sympathy with her on account of her recent anxiety and its congratulations at good news regarding King Edward's condition.

The review procedure of Monday was followed. About one thousand three hundred dark-skinned troops, headed by a detachment of the bodyguard of the Viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, reached the Horse Guards parade to the strains of "Hands Across the Sea." The members of the royal family who reviewed the colonials Monday traversed the lines of the soldiers of the Indian Empire. The Prince of Wales, representing the King, standing by the side of his mother's carriage, took the salute and the proceedings ended with cheers for the King led by the Duke of Connaught, the Indians drawing their swords and waving them wildly as they joined in the cheering.

On returning to the palace the Queen appeared at an upper window and took several snapshots of the Indian troops as they marched past on the return to camp. The Indians recognized the Queen-Empress, and each detachment cheered as it passed.

The British fleet, which assembled off Spithead for the proposed coronation review, dispersed yesterday morning.

London, July 3.—When questioned in the House of Commons yesterday on the subject of the collection of Likin and other dues by the Russian administration at New Chwang, Manchuria, the Parliamentary Secretary of the Foreign Office, Lord Cranborne, said Great Britain had not protested against the action taken because His Majesty's Government had been notified that negotiations were proceeding for the evacuation of Manchuria by Russia, and it was expected that Manchuria would shortly be restored to Chinese control.

A SANITARY BYLAW.

Magistrate Dumble Thinks the Council Should Take Certain Matters in Hand.

At the Police Court this morning a certain citizen who was summoned for a breach of the Health Act, showed that he had paid a scavenger to do the work necessary on his premises. The work had not been done in a proper manner; blame therefore could not rest on the shoulders of the citizen, but on the man who had been paid to look after the work.

The magistrate remarked that the Town Council should protect the people from impositions by a class of men, who require the restraint of the law. As there is no scale of charges fixed by bylaw consequently the people are frequently imposed upon, paying exhorbitant fees and again they are imposed on by the work being only half done. The scavengers are not licensed or in anyway under police supervision. This is a public matter effecting the health of the community, and regulations of the Board of Health are useless unless there is some control over the men, who are called upon to do the work. In many places these matters are regulated by bylaw and charges at so much per barrell for removing garbage, etc., are fixed, so that people who are getting their work done at reasonable rates are more particular about keeping their premises clean. The Council, the Magistrate concluded, should take this matter up immediately.

GETTING INTO TROUBLE.

Boys Who Persist in Bathing in Goose Pond.

A number of boys were up in the Police Court this morning charged with bathing in a public place. The boys have been in the habit of swimming in Goose Pond without the use of bathing suits. Many complaints have reached the police from the residents in that neighbourhood and a determined effort is being made to put a stop to the practice. The boys this morning were allowed to go under promise not to repeat the offence.

There are also complaints from residents in the vicinity of Smith street who allege that young men spend considerable time bathing near the bridge without using bathing suits of any kind. Several summons will be issued.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE.

Joint Committee Decide That Repairs Are Necessary—Re-Planking and Re-Joisting.

It was resolved at the meeting of the last session of the County Council to refer the report of the County Engineer, Mr. Belcher, on the condition of the Otonabee bridge, to the consideration of the Joint Committee of the Town and County Councils. With this view Mr. Peck and the County Engineer, Mr. J. E. Belcher met Mr. Morrison and Mr. T. A. S. Hay, Town Engineer, on behalf of the town, on the bridge at 9 a.m. this morning, when the matter was discussed, and it was decided to have the bridge refloored and rejoisted, and iron work, where required, re-adjusted.

WAS A SUCCESS.

The Choir Boys' Concert in St. John's School Room Last Night.

The choir boys' concert which was given in St. John's school house last night was a most enjoyable affair, and was well attended. For some time the boys have been practicing for the event, and they truly acquitted themselves admirably in their entertainment last night. The school room in which the concert was held, was elaborately decorated and looked attractive indeed. The stage presented a picturesque appearance with it Union Jacks and other decorative designs, and with its two little soldier boys who occupied prominent places throughout the rendering of the programme. The arrangements in this regard were supervised by Mr Walter Wesley, who received great praise for the same.

The programme was made up of vocal and instrumental solos, recitations, etc., by the boys, who displayed great ability in their respective lines. It would not be well to particularize as the work of the various juvenile artists was such as to draw forth many complimentary references.

The programme was as follows;

PART I.

The chair was occupied by Mr. A. P. Poussette, K.C., who opened the proceedings with a few appropriate remarks.

Altogether the concert was a great success and many expressed the hope that it would be repeated at an early date.

A JUNE WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Margaret Little to Mr. W. J. Berry, in Port Hope.

A very pleasing event took place, on Wednesday, June 25th at 5 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Robert Little, Port Hope, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter Margaret J., to William J. Berry. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edwin Daniel, rector of St. John's church. The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The bride was attired in white organdy, over white silk, and wore orange blossoms in her hair. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Effie Boyd, of Peterborough, who was daintily attired in white organdy over pink and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Frank Berry. After the ceremony, the guests adjourned to the dining room, where a sumptuous repast was laid. The presents were numerous and costly. The young couple repaired to their future home at Canton, amid showers of rice, taking with them the good wishes of all present.

THE 57TH REGIMENT.

Preparations for the Annual Inspection —The Orders.

The weekly parade of the 57th Regt., Peterborough Rangers, took place last night, instead of on Tuesday night. There was a fair turn out, and company and regimental drill was in order. The men are urged to turn out for the annual inspection, which takes place on Thursday night of next week. The company inspection will take place on Wednesday night. The annual regimental inspection promises to be an event of more than ordinary importance this year. It will be held in the evening and will be watched, no doubt, by many townspeople.

The following orders were issued last evening;

Headquarters, Peterborough.
July2,1902.

Orders by Lieut.-Colonel E. B. Edwards, Commandant 57th Regiment, P.R.

No. 1. Detail of duty for week ending July 10, 1902—Captain for the week, Capt. Mills; next for duty, Capt. Cluxton; Subaltern for the week, 2nd Lt. Hamilton; next for duty, 2nd Lieut. McLean.

No. 2. By Militia Order No. 145, leave of absence is granted to Capt. D. Walker from the 10th of July to the 10th of September.

No. 3. Leave of absence from parade is hereby granted to Capt. Hayes, Lts. McPherson and Cameron, and 2nd Lt. McLean.

No. 4. The regimental company inspection will take place on Wednesday evening, July 9th, and for this purpose all the companies will parade in drill order at the armouries on that date sharp at 7.30 p.m.

No. 5. The annual inspection of the Regiment will take place on Thursday, July 10th. The regiment will parade with both bands at the drill shed at 8.30 p.m. The dress will be review order, serges to be worn instead of tunics; leggins will be worn for both company and regimental inspections.

No. 6. Regimental order No. 3, of June 17th, 1902, is hereby cancelled.

No. 7. By Militia Order No. 140, dated Friday, June 20, 1902, the 57th Regt. is increased to eight companies of the uniform establishment.

No. 8. The regular Tuesday evening parades will hereafter until further notice be discontinued.

By order,
D. WALKER, Captain,
Adjutant.

The inspecting officer this year will be Lt.-Col. Montizambert.

Lieut. Langford made his first appearance on parade last night, and was formally welcomed by his fellow officers.

VICTORIA MUSEUM.

Some of the Recent Gifts Which Have Been Donated.

Tuesday being a holiday a large number of visitors entered their names on the register of the museum, many of whom were strangers in town, and all expressed their surprise and pleasure at the extent of the collections. A member of the society was on duty all the afternoon to receive visitors.

The following donations have recently been received by the Museum Board:

From Mr. J. W. Flavelle, Toronto, the sum of $50.00 for fittings and cases.

From Mr. Adam Hall, six very rare and valuable maps of European countries, published in 1659, and a large copper urn of the 18th century.

From Mr. A. E. Dunlop, set of engravings of Gilray's Cartoons, published 1729; set of pictures on Lough Neagh, Ireland, published 1751; large engraving of "Shakespeare and Friends."

From Mr. Richard Hall, silver trowel, used by Mrs. Nicholls in laying foundation stone of St. Andrew's church.

From Mrs. Edward Green, photograph of market square taken 24th May, 1857, showing parade of Fire Brigade, and large concourse of people.

From Mr. J. Best, large portrait of Mrs. Traill, Hon. President of the Society from 1896 to 1899.

From Mr. Frank Perry, two very perfect stone axes found in Otonabee.

From Mr. R. M. Roy, large photo of Nassau Mills, taken before work on canal was commenced. Mr. Roy is also preparing an enlarged group of of the delegates to the recent convention of the Ontario Historical Society; also a group containing portraits of all the men who enlisted in the various contingents at Peterborough for the South African campaign.

The collections are constantly being added to, the Society having recently distributed a circular drawing the attention of the public to the requirements of the museum.

Mr. Flavelle's generous donation will enable the Museum Board to add furniture and cases to the Archaeological Room, necessary to properly display the exhibits constantly arriving. Mr. Flavelle's kindness is very much appreciated by the Historical Society.

CHANGE IN THE HOUR

At Which Dealers in Produce may Purchase on the Market.

The bylaw came into force yesterday which changes the hour from 11 to 10, at which dealers in produce can make purchases on the market, and therefore private citizens who have been accustomed to waiting until after ten o'clock to do their buying will have to get down a little earlier hereafter if they expect to get the first pick of the market.

It is calculated that the change in the hour will have the effect of allowing the farmers to get rid of their produce before noon and thus give them an opportunity of making some of their purchases in the morning, thus relieving the merchants from the congested rush of business which ensues at the time the market formerly closed.

The market in Peterborough differs materially from any other in the province. In other town barter is in full swing at eight o'clock, at the latest, whilst in Peterborough a stranger would be unable to tell that we possessed a market at that hour, so few would be the vehicles on the market square. The changing of the hour, however, at which the dealers are allowed to come on the market to purchase, may cause the farmers to come in earlier and give the private citizens more time in which to make their selections.

As yesterday's market was not a very large one and few of the farmers knew of the change, it was impossible to judge what would be the effect of the new bylaw.

BASEBALL.

On the Murray street Separate school grounds on Tuesday morning, the Shamrocks of town, defeated the Elms of Ashburnham, in a splendid game by the score of 18-4. The game was watched by a large number. Mr. Fred Derocher umpired the game. The batteries were Shamrocks, Quinlan and Watson; Elms, Swanston and Gillespie.

Those wonderful little players, the "Victors," batted out another victory yesterday when they defeated the "Crescents" by 24 runs to 8. The teams were composed as follows;—

Victors — Frank Hawkins, Reg Heaslip, B. Hawkins, F. Hall, K. Crane, R. McQuay, C. Lech and V. Morphet.

Crescents — J. Seymour, H. Harrison, Little, Craig, C. Ray, H. Maguire, E. Jobe and P. O'Donnell.

The Roseneath team is coming up on Saturday to play the Auburns on the Nicholls oval at 2 p.m. At Jubilee Point these two teams had a great battle recently, the Auburns winning by 3 to 2 in a game which it only took an hour and forty minutes to play.

LACROSSE.

The Belleville Intelligencer gives the following account of the game which the Peterborough Athletics played in that city on July 1st:—

We ventured the assertion some time ago that it would be a "corker" of an intermediate team which could come here and beat the Bellevilles on their own grounds. Well, the locals were beaten yesterday, but the team that beat them was a "corker" for fair. At the same time it may be remarked that if they were in any way superior to the Bellevilles it was not visible to the naked eye. The local stick handlers not only faced a swift, tricky and well-conditioned team, but they suffered from hard luck. With the luck evenly divided Belleville would have won, for there were at least eight shots on the Peterborough goal which only went a few inches wide—one of them struck the goal post, and, taking the match all through, it was a defence game for the visitors three-fifths of the time. However, the lads from the north played a hard, fast, dashing game, and there are not many tricks with which they are not familiar. Truth to tell, they might play a trifle fairer as regards tripping. They are past-masters at that accomplishment, and the referee, had he wished to, might have ruled a few of them off. The visitors were right on their men all the time, and stuck to their checks closer than brothers. The local team, in some respects, have improved greatly since they played before, Ford, in particular, showing much better stick-handling. The colts of the team, Allen, Cook, Wallace, Burke and Ford, played excellently. The local defence had their work mapped out when they undertook to hold down the visitors' home, but they did it, and broke up many nice combinations. Patterson and Hitchon are two fine defence players. The local home hardly seemed to do themselves justice in the early part of the match. They seemed slow, and rather underrated their opponents in the matter of close checking. There was very little chance for fancy work on the home. The Peterborough defence did not play a lady like game by any means, and evidently had not acquired their knowledge at the ping pong table. However, it was hard luck more than the Peterborough defence which prevented the local home from scoring. They were swift and sure, but did seem on one or two occasions to indulge in unnecessary passing, thus giving the Peterborough men a chance to rally round the goal. However the four B's, Burke, Bogart, Browley and Burrill, played a great game, while Maguire quite held up his end with the Peterborough point. Four quarters of 20 minutes each were played, with ten minutes rest between. Peterborough scored first in 18 minutes, though most of the play had been in favour of Belleville. The second quarter had hardly started before, the local team evened up, the time being 30 seconds. Four minutes later the visitors scored again, and when the playing time was half up the score stood 2—1 in favour of Peterborough. The third quarter opened with a rush, and Peterborough scored in one minute, and when they repeated the trick 15 minutes later things began to look blue for the home team. However, Belleville scored another in two minutes and the third quarter ended with the score 4—2, the locals having the short end. The Bellevilles were out to do or die in the last quarter. They fairly played all around the visitors and scored in two minutes. There was no let up to the pace and eight minutes later the home team scored again. The score was tied, and excitement ran high. Peterborough got the ball at the next face off; there was some swift passing and then a shot on goal. The ball went behind the net, but the umpire put up his hand, claiming the ball had gone under the net. Time, 10 seconds. The spectators said the ball did not go in the net at all, but it counted just the same. No more scoring was done and the match ended 5—4 in favour of Peterborough.

McCaughney, the stalwart defence player on the Cobourg twelve, tips the scale at 210 pounds.

CRICKET.

The Lindsay Post says:—The Peterborough Cricket Colts failed to play the L.C.I. team here yesterday. The date—July 1st—for a match with Peterborough had been settled for two months, yet Peterborough neither came nor sent any word that they were not coming. All arrangements for lunch and for the presentation of the bat and ball so kindly donated by Mr. J. C. Grace had been made, and the action of the Peterborough Colts is very unsportsmanlike. A game could easily have been arranged with a Toronto club to play here on the first had word been sent. Lindsay has suited Peterborough in regard to dates for games all year, and yet after all has been done Peterborough has has acted in this very queer manner.

In the appended list of new books which have just been purchased for the Public Library, it will be noticed that the works are a trifle heavier than usual, fiction being to a great extent excluded from the selection last made. "BUSINESS" NOW EVERYTHING.

"The Sage of the Grange" on One Phase of Education.

We must be prepared to meet and confute the allegation that the office-boy at fourteen is worth more at fourteen than the university-bred man at twenty-four. It seems to be receiving a practical confutation from the frequent return of men bred in the scientific department of universities to the conduct of great business concerns. We shall, of course, at the same time point out that "business" is not the whole of life, and that the office-boy of fourteen, if he develops solely along that line, will in his later years not be a very noble creature or a partaker of the highest pleasures.

One thing is certain. Universities will forfeit general confidence if they cannot put a check on the monstrous development of athletics. English universities, frequented by an idle class, are the original sources of this tendency. It has now come to such a pitch that exceptional muscle is bribed to migrate from one university to another. Listening to the speeches at a university dinner you would suppose you were attending the annual meeting of a rowing club. Mens sana in corpore sano is all right; but sanus means healthy, not muscular, and muscular development by no means implies health or strength of mind. Sport is better than mere exercise, because it works the brain. But mental and bodily exertion draw on the same fund of nervous energy, and if one draws to excess the other must suffer. A false standard is set up; manners, it is said, are not improved; unwise expense is often incurred. The university betrays its trust; it receives the boy from his father to be prepared for life, not for success as an athlete. To control a mania which, partly through the moral weakness of university authorities, has reached such a height is no doubt difficult, but in the end, by whatever means, the thing will have to be done.—Goldwin Smith.

A Clergyman's View.

What is education? Rightly understood, it is the strengthening and enlargement of life. How broad should be the scope of education? As broad as life. On what should most stress be placed in education? On those things which are most central in life. Should all education be book education? Yes, if we are to live all our lives in a world made up exclusively of books. No, if we are to live in a world of men and things. Should all education be of the intellect? Yes, if man is nothing but an intellect. No, if the intellect represents only a single continent of his great nature. If education is to be as broad as life it must include all that promotes life. It must include physical culture, to the end that his body may be strong, and thus an adequate foundation on which to build the edifice of the spiritual. It must include intellect-culture, to the end that he may know, and thus gather into his hands the keys of power. It must include conscience-culture, to the end that he may always do the thing that is right. It must include heart-culture, to the end that he may relate himself sympathetically with his fellows, and in loving obedience to his Creator. An education which leaves undeveloped any important part of one's nature, but especially the highest, is partial and poor.—Rev. T. J. Sunderland, in Toronto Sunday World.

When the Snow Lies Deep.

The average individual probably regards the woods as delightful enough in summer, but indescribably dreary in winter, yet I have spent many a pleasant afternoon in the wildwoods when the snow lay deep. True, most of the birds go south in the fall, but you can generally hear a crow or two cawing or a blue jay

A CRUEL TREATMENT.

Some Unfortunates Diet Themselves Almost to the Point of Starvation.

Food Distresses Them, Therefore They do not Eat—The Body Craves Nutrition yet the Stomach Refuses to Digest.

What is a Dyspeptic to do, when everything he eats gives him pain and distress.

Many answer this question by advising the unfortunate to abstain from food.

But he is ravenously hungry. His body craves the food necessary to sustain the strength for his daily labour, and not to eat means a constantly diminishing strength.

Physical weakness invites disease, and hampers and hinders in the race of life.

It is not necessary to live on a starvation diet in order to get rid of Stomach trouble.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets make it possible for the Dyspeptic to eat heartily, without any painful after effects.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a specific for diseases of the Stomach only.

They give instant relief, and if a full treatment is taken according to directions, they completely and permanently cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Bloating, Headache or other Stomach trouble.

You may feast without fear, if you are careful to take one or two of these dainty digestive Tablets immediately after each meal.

You may eat what you like for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest the food, every particle of it, without any assistance from the Stomach, and this complete digestion means an entire absence of all unpleasant symptoms.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have changed many a miserable sufferer to a healthy, happy man, or woman, capable of enjoying all the good things of life.

They are sold wherever medicine is sold, and thousands of living men and women to-day testify that they have cured their Stomach trouble, after everything else had failed.

A remedy which has an unbroken record of victory over all diseases of the Stomach, is surely worth the thoughtful consideration, and a fair trial by any one afflicted.

HIS PEOPLE'S WELFARE.

Steady Progress of King Edward Has Been Fully Maintained—2,000 Rejoicing Bonfires Lit.

London, July 2.—The steady progress of King Edward is fully maintained, and His Majesty takes light nourishment with keen enjoyment. He is allowed a light cigar a day. He evinced the greatest interest in the arrangements for to-day's review of the colonial troops, and he was eager that his people should be in some way compensated for their disappointment, because of the postponement of the coronation.

Monday's Bulletins.

London, June 30.—The following bulletins were issued to-day from Buckingham Palace:

10.10 a.m.—His Majesty has slept well. The dressing of the wound gives much distress, but there are no bad symptoms of any kind. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

7 p.m.—The King has had a fairly comfortable day, and the discomfort in the wound has been less. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

2,000 BONFIRES.

Britain Ablaze From the Lizard to the Orkneys.

London, July 1.—The general feeling of relief, as a result of the favorable reports of the condition of the King vented itself last night by touching off the 3,000 bonfires throughout the United Kingdom, which were originally prepared to celebrate coronation night.

The signal to light the fires was given at 9.05; a rocket was sent up from the top of a gigantic wheel in Earls' Court, and burst in a cloud of stars 1,000 feet overhead. In response to this signal bonfires rose from every elevation

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognising the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

Chinaman Arrested For Murder.

Buffalo, July 2.—Charley Wo, a Chinese laundryman, was arrested yesterday afternoon and held on an open charge in connection with the murder of Mary Murphy, the 6-year-old girl, who mysteriously disappeared on June 17, and whose body, bound with ropes and wrapped in newspapers and coarse cotton cloth, was found in a small pond in Forest Lawn Cemetery. The autopsy showed that the little girl had been outraged and strangled. Public feeling runs high and every Chinese laundry in the city has been closed and policemen stationed in front of them.

Alexander McMillan Dead.

Toronto, July 2.—Alexander McMillan, who was clerk and treasurer of the municipality of Parkdale for eight or nine years prior to its incorporation with the city in 1889, and since then a civic employe in the office of City Treasurer Cody, died yesterday afternoon, after an illness of about a month. He was a man of scholarly attainments, and previous to coming to Parkdale conducted the Rockwood Academy, Rockwood, an educational institution of high standing. He leaves a widow to mourn him.

The Curious Pair.

Mrs. Rubba—I wonder why that woman keeps watching me so?

Mr. Rubba—Perhaps she's trying to find out why you are staring at her.

Not Tumultuously Eager.

Employer—Are you willing to work for small wages?

Boy—Not very willing, sir.

The Chinese la-pa in shape is almost identical with the ancient Roman tuba. It gives four notes—C, G, D and E.

Dampness Causes Piles.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

Teamsters, drivers, farmers and all persons who are much exposed to dampness and sudden changes in temperature, are especially liable to suffer from piles, than which there is scarcely a disease which brings with it more acute misery.

Mr. John Tuttle, expressman, 107 Stewart street, Kingston, Ont, states; "Like most men who do much driving, sitting a great deal, and often exposed to dampness, I have been a great sufferer from piles. As a matter of fact I had piles for a number of years and tried nearly everything I could hear of in a vain effort to get cured, but only succeeded when I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. The first application of this grand preparation brought me relief from the dreadful itching, burning sensations, and less than two boxes made a perfect and permanent cure. I am grateful for the freedom from suffering, and desire others to benefit by my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment."

You hear of all sorts of treatments being tried in vain as a cure for piles, but never heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment failing. So certain is this preparation to bring prompt relief and lasting cure that it has come to be considered the only positive and actual cure for this dreadful ailment. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto. 3

Hemp.

Hemp is by far the most valuable production of the Philippine archipelago, the province of Albay being the greatest producer of it, with an output valued at nearly $5,000,000 a year.

Influence.

The word influence at first had an astrological meaning. It referred to the subtle energy supposed to emanate from the sun, moon and stars and to exert some mystic power over the human race.

For a Shampoo Mixture.

Make a froth of good toilet soap, and when lukewarm add to it the beaten yolk of an egg and a dessertspoonful of spirits of rosemary.

A Cingalese Superstition.

The Cingalese believe that the moon and sun are working at cross purposes; that part of the time the sun is dragging the moon across the sky and that afterward the moon takes her turn at pulling the sun about as she pleases.

Damascus.

According to Moslem tradition, the foundations of the city of Damascus were laid soon after the creation of the earth.

No Swear Words in Japanese.

You cannot swear at or abuse anybody in the Japanese language. The worst you can say of anybody is that he is a "fellow," and if you want to express your very, very pointed indignation you shout, "There, there!"

How Savages Came to Use Knives.

The first men, armed with the simplest weapons or with none at all, pursued in the chase the animals that served them as food and, being generally in a state of starvation, tore them to pieces with their fingers and devoured on the spot the flesh, raw and bloody. In time they domesticated animals that assisted them in hunting and invented the bow and spear that enabled them to kill their prey at a greater distance.

The knife was invented as an instrument of attack or defense or for rough cutting and carving and, being commonly worn on the person, was found convenient in eating and became in time an accessory of the table for reasons so obvious that they require no explanation.

All Souls' College, Oxford.

Perhaps the most expensive education in the world is enjoyed by the undergraduates of All Souls' college, Oxford. There are usually but four of them in residence, all of them on the foundation, with just enough to keep them comfortably in their rooms aloft over the college kitchens. The college revenues approach £15,000 a year, which should give an excellent education to four young men. But All Souls' devotes its money mainly to the support of fellows and the cult of good living, and the undergraduates get their education by arrangement from other colleges.—London Chronicle.

Perfect Bliss.

HER CARRIAGE LUXURY.

It Doesn't Last Long, but It Fills Her With Exquisite Joy.

"Of course," said the New York young woman who earns her own living though a "natural born lady," "I can't afford to ride in carriages, and ordinarily I get around in the street cars, but there is a moment or two in my life when I rise superior to common things and take to wings.

"I have some friends who are able to live at the Waldorf, and I go there to see them once or twice a month. But do I go in the cars? Never. I come down from home in the cars, but at Thirty-third street and Broadway I get out and interview a cabby at the stand there. I always pick out the nicest looking turnout, and I offer the driver 50 cents to drive me to the Waldorf. He looks at me as if I were daffy, but I tell him I know what I am about, and if he wants to earn 50 cents in about two minutes he has the opportunity.

"He smiles and tells me to get in, and I order him to drive up to the Thirty-third street entrance with a whirl and a dash. There are always two or three flunkies there, and it does make me feel too good for anything just to swing into the curb and have the crowd of them simply fall over themselves to wait on me and bow me in.

"It is all over in a very few seconds, but such exquisite pleasure as I get out of it couldn't, in the nature of mortal things, be of long continuance. The human system couldn't stand it."

How Wine Judges Keep Sober.

If you have ever gone into a wine merchant's office and sampled different vintages, says the Philadelphia Ledger, you will have observed that the dealer never swallows the wine he puts into his mouth, but holds it there for a time while he lightly breathes through his nose. His palate tells him whether the wine is rough or smooth, but his sense of smell detects its aroma and is largely depended on to determine its quality. Of course it is the brain to which the smell is communicated that is really instrumental in fixing values, and as the effect on the brain is only momentary a great deal of wine may be sampled in this way without ill effects, but when the wine is permitted to pass into the stomach the fumes which arise from it continue to assail the brain so long as the liquor remains there in its orignal state and if taken in large quantities results in muddling the brain.

The Legion of Honor.

The red ribbon which superseded the titular distinction of pre-Napoleonic days has rarely been given to women, but it has a feminine side for all that. Napoleon, after Austerlitz, founded three splendid educational establishments for the daughters of the decorated. Most of the women who have been admitted to the order have been superintendents of these establishments. Marie Laurent was honored not as an actress, but as president of one of these institutions. An exception was made in the case of the late Rosa Bonheur, upon whom the cross of the Legion was conferred in 1865. Mme. de Staël's witticisms at the expense of messieurs les honores contributed to the causes of her enforced exile.

Leominster's Old Ducking Stool.

In the old Priory church of Leominster is a very interesting specimen of the old cucking or ducking stool, a universal mode of punishment of scolds, scandal mongers and women with too long a tongue. It was also inflicted on brewers and bakers, etc., transgressing the law, who in such a stool were immersed over head and ears in stercore (stinking water). This mode of punishment dates back to Saxon times, and the Leominster specimen was the last used in England of which we have any record in 1809. Several other specimens still exist about the country, as at Montgomery, Warwick, Fordwich and Lecke.

Hedgehogs.

Hedgehogs are very strong in the water, swimming with ease against a rapid stream, and with their muscular claws they turn up the nests of trout or salmon and make a goodly haul therefrom. They will breast a very rapid stream, and cold water, as near the freezing point as may be, seems to have no terror for them. The eggs of the salmonidæ are a welcome prey to nearly every animal that will face water. Aquatic birds, rats (both house and water), hedgehogs, beetles and their larvæ, the so called fresh water shrimp, are deadly foes.—London Opinion.

A Shattered Poem.

"Beautiful, beautiful silken hair!" Philip murmured fondly, toying lovingly with one of her nut brown tresses. "Soft as the plumage of an angel's wing, light as the thistledown that dances on the summer air, the shimmer of sunset, one glitter of yellow gold, the rich red brown of autumnal forests blending in entrancing beauty in its"—

And just then it came off in his hands, and he forgot what to say next.

Power of Gems on Bad Eyes.

The ruby was considered good for derangement of the liver as well as for bad eyes. The sapphire and emerald were also credited with properties which rendered them capable of influencing ophthalmic disorders, and there is a superstitious belief that serpents are blinded by looking at the latter stone.

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

A Feature of His Business.

"I thought she was a woman of unbreakable will," said the man with the bobtailed coat.

"And so she was," said the man with the incandescent whiskers.

"Yet you tell me that she is completely subservient to her husband," went on the first man.

"Well, you see, she married a lawyer, and he broke the will."

Royal Repartee.

It is related that once, when the Earl of Lauderdale was at dinner with King Charles, he remarked to the king. "There is a good saying that fools make feasts and wise men eat them."

"There is another as good," replied the Earl of Shaftesbury; "wits make jests and fools repeat them." And the king advised Lauderdale to make sure of his man in future.

Irish in the Bahamas.

The Irish language is spoken in the Bahamas among the mixed descendants of the Hibernian patriots banished long ago by Cromwell to the West Indies. One can occasionally hear negro sailors in the east end of London who cannot speak a word of English talking Irish to the old Irish apple women who gather around the docks.—London Chronicle.

AGES OF BIRDS.

Among birds the swan lives to be the oldest, in extreme cases reaching 200 years. The falcon has been known to live 162 years. An eagle died in 1819 which had been caught 104 years before and was then quite old. A white headed vulture, which was caught in 1706, died in the aviary at Schonbrun, near Vienna, in 1824. Parrots live more than a century. Water birds have a long life, exceeding that of several generations of men. Ravens also live over a hundred years.

In captivity magpies live from twenty to twenty-five years, and still longer in freedom. The common hen attains the age of from fifteen to twenty years. Doves live ten years and the little singing birds from eight to seventeen years. The nightingale's life is the shortest, ten years being the longest, and next comes the blackbird, which never lives longer than fifteen years.

A Tough Steak.

"On the other side of the Rio Grande," said a traveler, "meat is cheap, but the best cuts of Mexican beef are tougher than rhinoceros hide. When I first went to Mexico, I ordered a tenderloin at a hotel in Durango, but I couldn't cut it to save my neck. I told the waiter it wouldn't do, and he removed it.

"Presently, however, he returned, accompanied by the proprietor of the hotel, and laid the platter on the table. 'What's the matter with the steak?' asked the hotel man in Spanish. 'Tough,' said I. 'Why, I can hardly stick a fork into it—much less a knife.'

"Mine host flapped it over with the flat of the knife and eyed it dubiously. 'I'm sorry,' he said, 'but it's the best in the house. At any rate, I can't take it back. It's beat.'"

Strong Enough for Cancers.

Cancers are caused by poisonous humours in the blood. The only non-surgical treatment known is Merrill's system Tonic. This is a powerful blood purifier and at the same time blood builder. It cures Scrofula, Eczema and Salt Rheum in thirty days and boils and pimples in a week. 50 doses, price 50c. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Her Very Clear Thoughts.

"Well, aunty, what are your thochts aboot marryin'?" asked a young woman in Scotland the other day of her aunt, a decent body who had reached the shady side of life without having committed matrimony.

"'Deed, lassie," frankly replied the old lady, "I've had but three thochts aboot it a' my days, an' the last is like to be the langest. First, then, when I was young, like yoursel', I thocht, 'Wha'll I tak'?' Then, as time began to wear by, I thocht, 'Wha'll I get?' An' after I got my leg broken wi' that whumel oot o' Saunders McDrunthie's cart my thochts syne have bin, 'Wha'll tak' me?'"

Wanted All Good People Nice.

Those who have complained that virtue is uninteresting have usually been branded as cynics or, worse, as people trying to be clever. To all such this true story of a little girl may come as consolation, for "out of the mouths," etc.

Little Alice had been put to bed and told to say her prayers. "O God," she prayed, "make all the bad people good and make all the good people—all the good people—all the good people—nice!"

Cruel Blow.

"Are you aware of the fact," remarked Miss Cutting, "that I am a mind reader?"

"Nevah suspected it, weally," answered young Softleigh. "Would you—aw—object to weading my mind, doncher know?"

"Certainly not," she replied. "Bring it with you the next time you call."

He Needed the Money.

"Will you please raise my salary?"

"Why, I gave you a raise only last week because you told me that you had your mother to support."

"I know, but my mother got married, and now I have two to support."

His Straddle.

He—I see Oldboy is pretty gay yet, if he is aging.

She—Oh, yes; he's got one foot in the grave and the other in society.

A FORCED SALE.

Frith's Purchase of His Own Portrait Painted by Himself.

Here is the astonishing history of one of Frith's own portraits painted by himself. The celebrated R. A. had entirely forgotten its existence until a friend entered his studio one morning and asserted that a capital picture of himself was on view in a small shop in Great Portland street. "It's not a bit like what you are now," observed the friend, "but it may have resembled you some years ago. Go and look at it."

Mr. Frith went and found his own image after an estrangement of forty-five years. He determined to buy it, though he had not the faintest recollection of having painted it. "Ah, a portrait!" said Frith to the woman in charge of the shop after he had pretended to examine several other works. "Whose likeness is that?" "That," said the lady, "is a portrait of the celebrated artist, Frith, painted by himself." "Why, he must be an elderly man," put in the artist. The woman remarked that he was young once. "Humph!" quoth the genial W. P. F. "Not much of a picture."

To this the woman demurred and asked £20 for the canvas. It was Frith's turn to appear surprised. "Well," replied the shopkeeper without moving a muscle, "it cost us nearly as much. We shall make a very small profit. You see, it is very valuable because the artist is deceased!" "Deceased!" exclaimed the astonished painter. "Dead, do you mean?" "Yes, sir; died of drink. My husband attended the funeral."

Frith bought the picture, but did not revive for some time.

The Agonising Pains of Rheumatism.

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

His Greatest Objection.

"You object to Mormonism and other forms of polygamy on moral grounds, I suppose?"

"Well, partly, partly, but not entirely."

"What else should make it offensive to you?"

"What else! Why, great mackerel, think of coming home late from the club and having to make explanations to ten or fifteen wives!"

Purely Agricultural.

Caller—For goodness' sake, what's that noise?

Housekeep—Girl next door is having her voice cultivated.

Caller—Huh! What are they doing—plowing it?

Housekeep—I don't know but the sound of it is harrowing.

Might Have Prevented It.

Little Walter was eating lunch when he gave his arm a sudden shove, and splash! down went the glass of milk.

"I knew you were going to spill that," said mamma angrily.

"Well, if you knew," queried Walter, "why didn't you tell me?"

THE C. G. E. ANGLERS.

They Had a Most Enjoyable Time at White Lake.

The Examiner has received the following report of the 2nd outing of the Canadian General Electric Angling Club:—

The C. G. E. Angling Club held their second annual outing to White Lake. The party drove up from Fitzgerald's to Lakefield after which they boarded the staunch craft The Mayflower. After a pleasant sail to the head of Stony Lake the party portaged over the rocks and embarked in small boats down the rapids into the entrance of White Lake. The camp was reached about 8 o'clock p.m., and every one ready to eat a monkey. Cook Trombley served up a delicious snack in the way of potatoes and sausage and full justice was done to the meal. The three Johns were not satisfied, but eat up the skins of the "murphys" as well. Having satisfied our hunger everyone looked for a corner to make his bed. Sweet dreams were indulged in. Some dreaming of the big fish that would be caught. All hands were up bright and early next morning, and took to the boats to see who would have the honour of catching the biggest whale. After about four hours fishing all hands began to feel peckish so pulled into camp for breakfast. After landing on shore and exhibiting the fish, it was found that "Jaw Byshe" had the biggest whale. The monster made an excellent dinner for the 17 members. Every one had his bellyful and each one had a piece to take home with him. Cook Trombley can do up the viands in the very best style, every dish was pronounced A1. The three Jacks decided to explore the outlet of White Lake, viz.: shooting the rapids into the Indian River. The trip down was very much enjoyed for about three miles. Thinking of the good dinner they were to have when camp was reached again, it was decided to return without delay. Here is where the fun commenced. The boat refused to answer her propeller; hard words were used and the three Jacks came to the conclusion that stripping off and wading up the stream would be the best thing to do. After a mile had been covered in this manner the three Johns took a breathing spell. Having regained their breathing propensities they made another start. Here is where the tug of war came, one of the rapids a little stronger than the rest was reached, and big cuss words were used. When about half way up, during the jangling the boat was forgotten and down she went again. The three Jacks then made a desperate attempt to regain the boat, and after much puffing and spluttering the craft was caught. In trying to board her little Jack's foot slipped on a treacherous rock and he took a header for luck. More cuss words were used. After much laborious work the camp was reached and the three Jacks were wet as water and hungry enough to eat grass. Of course the trip down the rapids was discussed and such a vivid description was given as to the beauties of the scenery that the rest of the party decided to take it in, which they did to their sorrow. Commodore Patterson, Deckhand Munro, Skinny Bookhout were very wet when they arrived in camp. To make things worse Fatty Gilbert asked Skinny Bookhout if he had a dry match on his clothes. After a good feed and a drink of spring water the experience was laughed at. By the way, Prof. Moulden was classed as the biggest eater in the camp. Fatty Gilbert, the crack shot, was very successful in supplying the camp with ground hogs, squirrels, snakes and fish bones. After dinner on Tuesday afternoon we embarked for home. After a pleasant sail up White Lake the rapids were reached, and the portage made into Stony Lake, where we boarded the Mayflower again. The trip to Young's Point was made very successfully, with the exception of one accident, viz., Springwater Wilson was elected to give a sand dance on a saw log. The dance was enjoyed very much and ended with a header in the water for an encore. Lakefield was reached in due time, and the train taken for Peterborough. The club feel under deep obligation to the genial captain of the Mayflower, and three rousing cheers were given for him; also to Cook Trombley for so well looking after the wants of the club. It is the intention of the Angling Club to run an excursion at a later date to Jubilee Point, by request of a large number of people in the town, notice of which will be given later on.—Com.

A Wrong Burial Certificate.

When a physician issues a burial certificate to one who has died from consumption or throat trouble, he should say, Cause of death, neglect to take Four T's when the cough first started. Four T's cures a cough in 24 hours and the worst cold in two days, and you get a large bottle for 25c at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

THE AUGUST DESIGNER.

The front page cover and the numerous colour plates presented in The Designer for August are of remarkable beauty and should be seen to be appreciated. The fashion and millinery features are daintily appropriate for summer. Worthy of special mention are the articles on "Ribbon Decorations," "How to Make a Picturesque Summer Hat" and "Bathing Suits." "Open-Air Life for Women" is contributed by the well-known writer, Waldon Fawcett, and is handsomely illustrated, and M. Busselle supplies what is sorely needed at this season, viz.: "Entertainments for Summer Evenings." "Interesting Hall Furnishing," by Mary Kilsyth, "The Latest in Embroidery" and "What Women Are Doing" are of unusual interest. The two short stories of the number are "An Aunt in the Way," by Edwin L. Sabin, and "Little Stefano," by Annie Cosulich, both will hold the reader's attention to the end. "The Girl and the Miner," by L. O. Lennart, is a short and snappy drama for production by amateurs, and "Selections for the Recitationist" supplies choice verse culled from the best poets. "The Apology of Ayliffe," a love story of marked merit by Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirk, is now running in The Designer, and the chapters presented in this issue are brimful of vitality. "Toilet Table Chat" discourses on "Keeping Cool," "Sensitive Feet," "The Price of Beauty," "Acquiring Plumpness," and "The Teeth versus Dyspepsia." The best in current literature is discussed in "Book Notes," and "Etiquette Hints," "All Around the House," "In Motherland" and "The Kitchen Kingdom" cater to the fancies of all members of the family.

JUNE WEATHER NOTES.

The month of June will go down in the books of the weather men as a peculiar one in some respects. With the exception of the first week, there was rain almost every day during the month. Though the rain came in frequent showers, no great quantity fell at any one time, and the total for the month did not reach a large figure, being 2 inches and 67-100. There were three thunder storms doing the month, none of them being severe.

As regards the temperature, the first half of the month was much warmer than the latter half, while the month as a whole was below the average to the extent of about 8 degrees daily. The warmest day was the 14th, 82 degrees; the lowest temperature was on the 11th, 35 degrees. Low temperatures at night were frequent all through the month.

FLIRTING WITH DEATH.

Diavolo's Great Act of Looping the Loop on a Bicycle.

An enumeration of the chances that man take with death in order to entertain the great amusement loving public, would be very incomplete without the addition of that latest and greatest sensation, the looping of a loop on a bicycle, said Mr. H. A. Daniels, one of the agents of the Forepaugh-Sells circus, which is scheduled to show here in a few days. Mr. Daniels gave some very interesting statistics concerning this great act, which he declares is "the greatest sensation ever presented anywhere at any time." In the course of conversation, he said, "It is difficult to conceive how a man of sound mind can be tempted by money to so ardently flirt with death. The cost of the act is $1,000.00 per week, and it consumes just six seconds on our entertainment programme. The act is presented twice daily, and, therefore, Diavolo works just 72 seconds per week. But his work is such that we have as yet been unable to find another living man who can perform it. Four men have made the attempt to date, and all four have failed at the first trial and are now cripples. The basis of the act is the overcoming of gravitation by velocity. It has been mathematically proven that a freely moving body weighing 225 pounds can descend a 110 foot runway at an angle of 45 degrees, and gain sufficient velocity to raise almost perpendicularly 23 1-2 feet. In other words, Diavolo weighs 160 pounds and, his bicycle 65 pounds; the runway is 110 feet long, placed at an angle of 45 degrees, and the "loop" proper is just 23 1-2 feet in diameter. The speed attained is terrific and the slightest swerve from the narrow 3-foot runway means instant death. It is absolutely without qualification the greatest hair-raising demonstration of dare-deviltry ever witnessed — but it only last six seconds."

STOCK MARKETS.

Time for This Stock to Move.

New York, July 2nd.—Southern Pacific shares have been more or less quiet lately, fluctuating within narrow limits. They should do better and that very shortly. Intrincially they are exceedingly cheap and improving probably more rapidly than shares of any other road. The fact that the road runs through one of the richest sections of the United States, which is growing rapidly in population, is the main reason. The showing of population along this line is relatively small and it is expanding in most rapid manner. The vast sums being spent by the company upon its property, all of which is being charged to operating expenses is making it possible for them to transact its business at a much greater margin of profit than heretofore. The operating expenses of Southern Pacific are about 74 per cent. of its revenues at present, owing to the fact that the company is expending some twenty millions of dollars upon its property which it is charging direct to operating expenses. Other roads in the same section are operated for from 51 to 64 per cent., Northern Pacific being operated for the former percentage. Once these vast expenditures are completed the company will not only have that extra amount of property but operate for much less which will correspondingly swell the net earnings, with only the same amount of business. As Southern Pacific is earning at present about six per cent. upon its stock, think of what it will shortly after finishing these extra ordinary expenditures. Southern Pacific is destined to be at least a 7 per cent. dividend payer and that too, very shortly. It will ultimately sell above par. The time is coming when it will command a higher price in the market than does M.O.P. One of the best ways of making money in Wall street, is to tie up to an improving property, when it is in its infancy. St. Paul, Lackawanna, Northwest, Harlem, PN.Y.C., Lake Shore all went through such periods. To-day they command ultra prices, as gilt edged dividend payers. The vast American fortunes were created directly through such processes! Vanderbilts, Goulds, etc., all were after this fashion, made multi-millionaires. The irrestible and certain expansion and increase of population in the American Union, will even bring bankrupt stocks to the dividend list, in so doing creating a new line of securities. You can participate in the dividend by purchasing and holding such shares. The days dealings were more or less erratic and of a pre-holiday nature. The market cards were C.F.I. and L.N., both of which were active and higher. C.F.I. made a 1 1-2 gain, touching 94 1-4, from which figures it reacted 2 points, partially recovering later. L. N. made a gain of 3 per cent., and shows strength indications of working higher the coming week. M.O.P. sold ex-dividend and was largely bought. 108 1-8 and 108 1-2. St. Paul hugged 178 while Rock Island touched 176. Fluctuations were narrow and the market firm. Copper continued to be accumulated as was outlined in last night's letter and buying limits appear to have been raised. Steels were higher on the Company's excellent reputation for the current 3 months. Sugar was stronger reaching a fraction of 131, reacting a trifle towards the close. The market shows stronger indications of going higher. Total sales 291,200.

PUBLIC IS CONFIDENT

That King Edward Will Recover His Lost Ground.

HIS DOCTORS ARE PLEASED

Drainage Tubes Have Been Removed and Gauze Plugs Substituted—The Wound Granulating Satisfactorily—His Majesty's Temperature Normal Since Coronation Day—Strange Spectacle Even in London.

London, July 4.—Everything points to a satisfactory if somewhat prolonged convalescence of the King. It is expected that the bulletins regarding his condition will soon be reduced to one a day. Only small crowds now haunt the bulletin boards at Buckingham Palace, which is an indication that public confidence has been restored. Only one physician now remains at the palace throughout the night, and all of His Majesty's doctors are able to attend to the more pressing portion of their private practices. Sir Frederick Treves absented himself from the palace yesterday to attend the wedding of his only daughter to Major Delme Radcliffe.

A number of coronation guests left London yesterday, including the Crown Prince of Norway and Prince Komatsu of Japan. Both were seen off by gatherings of distinguished persons at the station, where everyone seemed to be in high spirits with regard to the condition of the King.

Crowds of the soldiers now in London make daily pilgrimages to Buckingham Palace to gaze at the window of His Majesty's apartment, while crowds gather to stare at the strange uniforms and stranger faces of the native soldiers from distant quarters of the Empire.

A striking scene was witnessed yesterday. A big brake loaded with Fijian soldiers drew up in front of the palace. The men were bare-legged and bare-headed; their frizzy hair was long and dyed, with their white cotton skirts and quaint tunics they presented a strange spectacle, even in cosmopolitan London. In front of the palace, and to the amazement of the assembled crowd, the Fijians solemnly intoned a hymn of intercession in their native tongue, which had been composed for the occasion by one of their number.

The Bulletins.

London, July 4.—The following bulletin was issued regarding King Edward's condition at 10 o'clock yesterday morning from Buckingham Palace:— "The King has slept well and nothing has occurred to mar the excellent progress His Majesty is now making. (Signed.) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace at 7 p. m., yesterday: "His Majesty had a comfortable day. His general condition is still further improved, and the wound now causes him comparatively little pain. (Sgd.) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Discussing the King's uninterrupted progress, The Lancet says:—"It has been necessary to remove the drainage tubes, as they could not be tolerated. The gauze plugs are now used instead. The wound is granulating satisfactorily, the discharge has diminished and is perfectly inodorous. His Majesty's temperature has been normal since June 26. His constitutional condition is admirable."

The British Medical Journal, in expressing a similarly satisfactory view of the King's condition, says: "At no time has it been necessary since the operation to use sedatives to induce the King to sleep. To medical men who have read the daily bulletins it has been obvious that the statements therein were entirely frank. There was great anxiety at first. Sir Frederick Treves did not go to bed for seven nights. But the load of anxiety is now lightened, if it has not entirely disappeared. The rumors regarding the King's general health are altogether unfounded, and confidence is now felt that, thanks in an unusual degree to his sound constitution, the King will make recovery."

TYPICAL BRITISH LADS.

Leave Sandhurst Rather Than Peach on Comrades.

London, July 4.—Twenty-nine "rusticated" cadets of the Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst, left that institution yesterday, protesting that they had not been connected with the recent incendiary fires at the college.

A time limit of forty-eight hours given by Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief, to the cadets of the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, to deliver up those who have been guilty of starting the many recent fires at the College, in default of which the "rustication" of all the cadets was to be ordered, expired Wednesday night. It was then understood that a number of the cadets would leave immediately, but the War Office was endeavoring to suppress all the information on the subject.

Caught in the Act.

Quebec, July 4.—Napoleon Guestin, a Montreal joiner, is in jail. He agreed with certain law students, to aid in obtaining the examination papers before the day of examination. His plan was to bore a hole in the ceiling of the room right over the examiners' desk. Where they were to sit yesterday to select the examination questions. He was caught in the act.

WIRELESS MESSAGES.

Marconi's System on Glace Bay Has Been Completed.

MESSAGES SENT WEDNESDAY

Reported in Sydney That the Exchange Was Between the Marconi Stations at Tablehead, Glace Bay, and Cornwall, England—Success Which Attended Attempts Is Not Yet Known.

Halifax, July 4.—It was reported in Sydney last night that wireless messages were exchanged yesterday between the Marconi stations at Tablehead, Glace Bay, and Cornwall, England, but no confirmation of the report can be got. Tablehead station is now complete, and it is believed that attempts have been made to transmit wireless signals, but with what success is not known.

PROTEST AGAINST CLARK.

Deposit Has Been Made—Liberals Drop East Toronto.

Toronto, July 4.—Conservative enthusiasm receives a slight check in the certified fact that Hugh Clark must fight for Centre Bruce. The news had gone forth that for the lack of the necessary deposit of $1,000 the protest was off and Hugh Clark was safe. Investigation at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning showed that the $1,000 has been deposited, so the protest is legally entered.

L. V. McBrady has not chosen to assault the mountain a second time. Notice of a protest in East Toronto was given on June 25, but the deposit is still lacking, and as the statutory limit has expired East Toronto is finally and absolutely the property of R. A. Pyne.

Up to date the protests for which deposits have been received are:—North York, Hon. E. J. Davis; Centre Bruce, Hugh Clark; Stormont, W. J. McCart; W. Wellington, Tucker; W. Hamilton, Mayor Hendrie; Glengarry, W. D. McLeod; South Huron, Henry Elber.

These protests have also been entered, and there is still time for the deposits:— South Norfolk, W. A. Charlton; E. Hamilton, Carscallen; South Wentworth, Dickenson; Kingston, Pense; East Wellington, Gibson; South Wellington, Downey.

A protest was filed yesterday against the return of W. A. Kraft, M.P.P., for South Waterloo. The charges include that of personal bribery by the Conservative candidate, whose disqualification is asked for. The petitioners are A. Kaufman, Baden; N. Shantz, Baden; and C. Wilson, Galt.

On behalf of Col. Mutrie, the defeated Liberal candidate, a protest has been lodged against the return of J. P. Downey, the Conservative member-elect for South Wellington.

Action Over the Sale of National Automobile Co.—Writ Issued.

Toronto, July 4.—Another action arising out of the litigation entered into on behalf of some of the shareholders of the Canada Cycle and Motor Company, Limited, was commenced at Osgoode Hall, yesterday, when a writ was issued by Lamport & Ferguson on behalf of George W. Beddell, suing on behalf of himself and all other shareholders of the Canada Cycle and Motor Co., Limited, except the defendants. The defendants are J. W. Flavelle, Hon. George A. Cox, A. E. Ames, W. Y. Soper of Ottawa, and Susie Denton Massey, Chester D. Massey and John H. Housser, the executrix and executors of the will of the late Walter E. H. Massey, and the Canada Cycle and Motor Co., Limited.

The action arises out of the absorption of the National Cycle and Automobile Company, Limited, which concern was acquired by the Canada Cycle and Motor Company. The plaintiffs will endeavor to set aside the sale, and also sue for certain monies that were paid over in connection with the sale. The entire amount at stake is $614,000.

SAILED FROM LIVERPOOL.

Canada's Coronation Contingent Heading This Way on the Tunisian.

Liverpool, July 4.—A portion of the contingent of Canadian troops sent to England to take part in the coronation festivities is returning home on the Allan Line steamer Tunisian, which sailed for Montreal last night at 6 o'clock.

The soldiers were accorded an enthusiastic reception here yesterday afternoon, and were entertained at lunch by the Lord Mayor in the Town Hall.

The Adjutant-General conveyed to the troops the entire satisfaction of Her Majesty the Queen, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the Commander-in-Chief, Lord Roberts, at the neat appearance and soldierly bearing of the men on all occasions.

Eloped With Married Man.

Woodstock, July 4.—The adopted daughter of James Bennett of East Oxford, eloped with a married man last night and took with her $75 belonging to her adopted parents. The couple were arrested after a fierce chase south of Brantford and placed under arrest. Mr. Bennett discovered the flight of the pair shortly after they left and he followed them with a fast horse. The man will be prosecuted at least.

FRASERVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Our village is once more assuming the liveliness in business circles that it was once noted for. We hear once more the sound of the blacksmith's hammer as it is wielded by Mr. Mills, of Lifford. Mr. Mills comes amongst us as a stranger highly recommended as a skilful workman, yet he is not an entire stranger as we had his his brother, T. A. Mills amongst us as a school teacher for a number of years.

Mr. Richardson, our local merchant reports a good trade. William is just the man for our village, ready to oblige under every circumstance.

Mr. Madill shipped from this station this week 129 hogs, and reports say that he has the timber on the ground for a new five ton scale in the village for the accommodation of the hog trade and the general public. He is a hustler.

Mr. Kline, our cheese maker, reports a great improvement in the location of his factory from former years. He says that the patrons will be repaid in one season for the trouble and expenses. Mr. Kline has the making and curing rooms fitted up that they give a neat and clean appearance that a factory should have. Mr. Kline has had a visit from the instructor, and the latter was highly pleased with the condition of the factory and the milk supplied. It is hoped that the patrons will do all in their power to make the cheese factory at Fraserville second to none. Mr. Kline on his part has spared neither time nor expense in order that he could produce a first class cheese, and uphold the name of the Canadian product.

Rev. T. P. Steele removed from amongst us on Wednesday morning after four years of a successful pastorate amongst us. Mr. Steele and family were highly esteemed by his people. This was evidenced on the eve of his departure when Mr. Steele was made the recipient of an address and purse by the Benafort congregation. The Sunday School workers of Fraserville congregation gathered at the parsonage on Monday evening and although the weather was not favourable the house was filled to over-flowing, and presented Mrs. Steele with an upholstered chair and biscuit jar, and the following address:

To Mrs. (Rev.) T. P. Steele, Methodist Parsonage, Fraserville:

Dear Mrs. Steele,—It is with pleasure we meet here this evening, where we look back on the many pleasant memories we have of the past four years in our intercourse with you as a teacher in the Sunday School. We have also feelings of deep regret as we have come to say good-bye to you as a family, for we know Mr. Steele is now called to another field of labour. Our desire is that he may meet with as much success in his work at Hastings and that his ministry among all his people will be as highly valued as it has been here. We cannot let you go without telling you how much we appreciated you personally and as a willing and effective helper in this labour of love as a Sunday School worker.

As a slight token of our sincere friendship we ask you to accept this chair and biscuit bowl to remind you of the days you spent at Fraserville.

To you as a whole family we hope that you may always leave behind you many kind words and deeds to be treasured by the congregation and your friends. For you leave them with us, and they will often bring you near us in spirit though you may be distant many miles.

May God's richest blessing go with you all and may He guide and protect you in all your ways.

Signed on behalf of the Fraserville Sabbath School,

JOSEPH MADILL, Supt.
MISS EDITH BODDY.
MISS ETHEL WATERMAN.

Fraserville, June 30th.

The address was read by Mr. Joseph Madill and the presentation was made by Miss Edith Boddy and Miss Ethel Waterman.

Mrs. Steele made a very suitable reply, after which Rev. Mr. Steele replied on behalf of himself and family.

The ladies in their kind way, had provided a liberal supply of dainties and when all had done justice to them a short programme was entered upon. One of our former Sunday school workers, Miss Howard, was present and contributed largely to the enjoyment of all by songs and recitations. Short speeches were made by several gentlemen present, expressing their good wishes to all. After prayer by Rev. Mr. Steele, the happy couple proceeded to their respective homes.

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The fourth annual pic-nic held by the English church, and by far the most successful, took place on Tuesday, the first instant. By special arrangement the steamer Ogemah brought a considerable number of people from Bobcaygeon and Burleigh, amongst whom were the Rev. W. L. Creighton and the Rev. A. S. Dickinson. A number of Peterborough and Lakefield people were also present. The Rev. Mr. Creswick may be congratulated upon having a very energetic and enthusiastic body of workers, who served up excellent meals and successfully carried out a big programme of sports and amusements. The double canoe race was won by Messrs. Peter and Steve Nicholls, of Buckhorn. The second prize going to Mr. John Jacobs and W. Knott, of Chemong. In the single canoe race Mr. Peter Nicholls came in first and Mr. "Billy" Knott second. The tug-of-war prize went to the Buckhorn team. Mr. Wilson of Apsley, and Mr. T. Dever of Young's Point, were the winners of the old mens' race. The prizes were contributed by Messrs. F. W. Clarke, hatter, R. Munroe, McFarlane Wilson, Grafton & Co., Hon. J. R. Stratton and several other Peterborough people. Also a number of Lakefield tradesmen and the store keepers of Young's Point. Mr. W. F. Trude, of Lakefield, contributed generously to the dinner table, and Mr. Harry Long is also to be thanked for the ice cream which he gave. A sale of useful and fancy articles sent from Toronto added to the profits of the day.

The last of the Dickson Co's drives passed through here this week, Mr. J. Ford being the foreman.

The farmers have no reason to complain of the drought this season, as we have rain almost every day.

Two excursions passed through here on Tuesday, 1st of July. The Methodists of Peterborough and Lakefield having the steamers Empress and Alert.

The following guests are registered at the Lak View: Mr. C. Gutterson, Peterborough; Mr. Chas. H. Chase, Rochester; Mr. G. Perry, Schenectedy, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Chas F. Merty, Rochester; Mr. C. Phillips, Montreal.

EXPORT OF STOCK.

Mr. F. W. Hodgson, Live Stock Commissioner, Writes as Follows on the Subject.

Breeders of pure bred stock, desirous of sending animals to the United States, frequently write me for information in regard to the regulations governing the importation of Canadian stock into that country. For the benefit of such breeders the following summary of these regulations is given:

1. All animals imported into the United States from Canada must be accompanied by an affidavit made by the owner or importer, declaring clearly the purpose for which said animals are imported, viz.: Whether for breeding purposes, for milk production, for work, for grazing feeding or slaughter, or whether they form part of settler's effects, or whether they are horses entered for temporary stay, as provided by the regulations. Said affidavit must be presented to the Collector of Customs at the Port of Entry, who will decide whether the animals are entitled to entry under these regulations, and who will notify the Inspector of the Bureau of Animal Industry in all cases where the regulations require an inspection to be made.

2. Horses for breeding, racing, show and sale purposes, for grazing or for work must be inspected at the port of entry.

3. Cattle for breeding purposes, milk production, grazing or feeding must be inspected, and must be accompanied by a certificate signed by a Canadian official veterinarian, stating that no contagious disease affecting cattle, excepting tuberculosis and actinomycosis, has existed in the district in which the animals have been kept for six months preceding the date of importation. The owner must present an affidavit that said certificate applies to the animals in question.

4. A certificate for cattle over six months old for breeding purposes, and for milch cows must also show that they have been submitted to the tuberculin test and found free from tuberculosis, giving the date of testing, with the chart of reaction and a description of the cattle with age and markings.

5. Any animals may be required to be inspected at the port of entry, and any animal showing symptoms of tuberculosis may be subjected to the tuberculin test, upon instruction from the chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

6. All sheep imported into the United States for breeding, grazing or feeding must be inspected and must be accompanied by a certificate signed by a Canadian official veterinarian, stating that no contagious disease affecting sheep, has existed in the district in which the animals have been kept for six months preceding the date of importation. The owner or importer must present an affidavit that said certificate refer to the animals in question.

7. All swine imported for breeding purposes, grazing or feeding must be accompanied by an official veterinary certificate, stating that no contagious disease affecting swine, has existed in the district in which the swine have been kept, for six months preceding the date of importation, and the owner or importer must present an affidavit that said certificate applies to the animals in question.

8. All cattle, sheep and swine for breeding purposes, grazing or feeding, when not accompanied by the required affidavits and certificates, must be detained in quarantine for one week at the expense of owner or importer, under the supervision of the inspector in charge. Animals found to be free from disease at the end of this time will be released.

9. All cars used in the transportation of animals must be first thoroughly cleansed and then disinfected by whitewashing with a mixture of lime and carbolic acid, before the animals are placed therein. Shippers must see that this is done before the animals are loaded and unless these regulations are complied with the cars will not be admitted to the United States.

The regulations of the Treasury Department of the U. S., direct as follows;

10. No animal for breeding purposes shall be admitted free of duty unless the importer furnishes a certificate of the record and pedigree in the form hereafter given, showing the animal to be pure bred, and that it has been admitted to full registry in the American book of record established for that breed, and that its sire and dam, and grand-sires and grand-dams, were all recorded in a book of record established for the same breed. An affidavit by the owner, agent, or importer that such animal is the identical animal described in the same certificate of record and pedigree, must be presented.

Unless the certificate of record and pedigree is produced the animal shall be considered dutiable. In case such certificate is not at hand at the time of the arrival of the animals, duties shall be estimated thereon and deposited, and the animal delivered to the importer, who may within ten days fyle a written stipulation with the collector to produce the requisite certificate within six months from the date of entry; whereupon final liquidation of the entry will be suspended until the production of the certificate or the expiration of six months. Upon the production of the certificate in due form within six months from the date of entry the amount deposited shall be refunded.

TEMISKAMING.

Government Plans Extensive Road System—Rapid Settlement—New People Swarming In—Prof. Sharp's Move.

Toronto, July 4.—According to Director of Colonization Southworth, there has been more progress in the Temiskaming District in the past year than there has been in the previous five. Mr. Southworth has just returned from a three weeks' trip through that country. He was accompanied by A. W. Campbell, Commissioner of Good Roads, who will remain several days longer in the country.

In previous years Mr. Southworth said there has always been some suspicion held in regard to the mushroom growth of the district, and fears that the settlement would not be permanent. Now, however, there need not be the slightest doubt on that score. During his visit a lot in New Liskeard village was sold at the rate of $20 a foot. This is but an instance of the way things are prospering in that country.

While up north, a public meeting of settlers was held, at which Mr. Southworth called for an expression of opinion, and in response there was but one refrain, and that was more roads. When Mr. Campbell announced that he had a 40-mile system in his mind, great satisfaction was expressed. The question of wages also came up, and it was agreed to increase the pay for road labor from $1.10 and board to $1.50 without board a day to $1.25 and board or $1.75 without board.

Ten new townships have been opened this year in the country, and it is thought that twelve miles of roadway will give them easy access. Twenty-four of these townships have been surveyed, and all but three have been practically filled. A few farms have been held by speculators, but already some of these have been confiscated and resold, as the necessary obligations have not been fulfilled.

At the meeting of settlers, Prof. Sharp, late of Queen's University, who, with his two sons has taken up 320 acres suggested that the Government establish a small experimental farm in the district to see what grains and fruits were best adapted to the country. In the Quebec settlements, fruit is grown and everything very prosperous. The Ontario settlers furnish them with a market, and at the present time potatoes are 80 cents a bushel, oats 60 cents and hay $20 a ton.

The Quebec settlers are anxious to have a railway, and they have a charter for one from the head of the Forty-Mile spur from Mattawa, on the C.P.R., to James Bay, and it is likely that the road will be built soon, as they have been receiving every encouragement.

There has been a lot of wet weather this year, which has hindred clearing and burning, but the crops have not been damaged, and everything points to an exceedingly prosperous year.

JUMPED FROM A TRAIN ON A BRIDGE

Gordon Dalton of St. Thomas Sustained Broken Arm in His Fall.

St. Thomas, July 4.—Gordon Dalton, a young man, jumped from the top of a moving train Wednesday near Alma College and landed on the ground 80 feet away. He was riding on top of a car on the L.E. & D. Road and just as the train was crossing a high bridge, saw a brakeman coming towards him. Not wishing to be arrested he jumped, forgetting that the train was on the bridge. The leap was made in a rainstorm and a companion of the young man went back to his friend's relief. His arm was broken in two places and fears are entertained that he has suffered internal injuries. He is in the hospital. The doctor thinks the soft condition of the earth, as a result of the rain, saved his life.

Do Not Fear American Invasion.

Montreal, July 4.—Mr. James Henry Parks, one of the largest manufacturers of Birmingham, was here yesterday, en route for Sydney. He says that South Wales has plenty of coal, and a supply of the richest iron ore in the world, from Bilboa, Spain, and feel no apprehension of the so-called American invasion. Whenever, he adds, the Yankees get steel goods on the English markets it will be when the British manufacturers are too busy to fill all the orders that reach them.

Canadian Trade With Nova Scotia.

Our neighbors, the Blue-noses, appear anxious to give every advantage to Canada in trading with them. A motion was recently made in the committee of supply of the House of Assembly of Nova Scotia to admit Canadian flour and provisions imported through New Brunswick duty free. These articles are at present admitted through the United States with that privilege—and it was urged that New Brunswick ought to have the same advantage, in order that the eastern ports of Nova Scotia which could be supplied more conveniently from that Province than from the American ports might be placed on an equality with their western neighbors. It was also urged that the railroad would soon make the measure absolutely necessary. After some discussion the resolution was adopted so far as regards flour. A point came up in the course of the discussion worthy of the attention of our Government. Mr. Fraser said that: "Our preferential trade with Canada might be very beneficial, but if he understood the matter correctly, Canada legislated against our trade; for instance, if a cargo of sugar went direct from Cuba to Canada the duty was rated on the price in Cuba; if it changed hands in Nova Scotia, the duty was rated on the larger price in Halifax, so their legislation was against us."—From The Globe of May 18, 1852.

A DESPICABLE CRIME.

Switch Opened on the C.N.R. Near Winnipeg and a Wild [illegible] Track—Four Men Injured.

Winnipeg, July 4.—There is considerable excitement in C.N.R. circles in connection with the strike. Wednesday night three wires connecting Winnipeg with St. Paul were cut at some points, and shortly after midnight the switch at Portage Junction, about three miles south of the city, were maliciously opened in such a way that a train going in either direction would leave the track. The result was the derailing of an engine and six cars. Four men were injured, but none seriously.

General Superintendent Hanna has offered a reward of $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties, in the above case, and a reward of the same amount will be given by him for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person who may in any way interfere or tamper with the property of the C.N.R. He charges that the wreck was caused by strikers.

As a rejoinder to Mr. Hanna's charges, Mr. Galt, Vice-President of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employes, says such work is entirely discountenanced by the Strike Committee, and in behalf of the strikers he offered a reward of $50 for the arrest of the guilty party or parties.

Only a Few Men Out.

Toronto, July 4.—Light was thrown upon the situation on the Canadian Northern Railway Wednesday by a telegram received by Mr. Phillips, the local agent of that railway. The telegram was as follows: "There were not more than 150 men out; of this number at least fifty per cent. have returned to work. Trouble is dissolving, and we expect to be having business under normal conditions within twenty-four hours." The message is signed by the traffic manager in Winnipeg.

Americans Invading Canada.

New York, July 4.—A special to The Times from Tacoma says: The Tacoma Steel Company has had plans prepared and has chosen a site on Tacoma tide flats for the erection of a 250 ton blast furnace. It will be the first modern blast furnace erected on the Pacific coast. Iron ores and limestones will be brought from the company's properties in British Columbia, while it will mine its own coal. Rolling mills and ship-building plant will be constructed by the same company, which has secured control of the largest iron deposits on Vancouver and adjacent islands.

DILKE WAS CAUSTIC.

Sir Charles Reviewed British Foreign Policy.

A CONSERVATIVE SECONDS HIM

The Advanced Radical Wanted to Know All About the French Shore Question While, Mr. Bowles, Tory, Complained of Foreign Office Subserviency to Germany—Lord Cranborne in Reply.

London, July 4.—When the vote for the Foreign Office came up in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, the Government's foreign policy came in for considerable criticism. Sir Charle Dilke (Advanced Radical) said he wanted to know if there had been any real negotiations with France, looking to the settlement of the French shore (Newfoundland) dispute, and he further declared that British recognition of French rights to the Hinterland of Tripoli endangered the traditional friendship of Great Britain and Italy. The new arrangements between France and Italy, he further asserted, had entirely upset the British situation in the Mediterranean and Eastern Europe. They had been made in order to put the screws on Great Britain. The feebleness of the Government's policy in China showed the absence of a presiding mind.

Sir Charles also referred to the hostility to Russia involved in the Japanese alliance and he advocates that a clear definition of the respective interests of Great Britain and Russia could possibly be secured by some sort of an arrangement with the Czar himself.

Continuing, Sir Charles asked if there was any secret understanding with Germany regarding her access to the Persian Gulf, and urged the fostering of friendship with France.

Sir Charles concluded with moving a reduction of the salary of the Foreign Secretary, Lord Lansdowne.

Thomas Gibson Bowles (Conservative), seconded the motion. He said he regretted the subserviency of the Foreign Office towards Germany, declaring that she was the disturbing influence in China, and that Emperor William's telegram to Mr. Kruger was largely responsible for the feeling which produced the Boer war.

During the course of a general reply, the Under Secretary for the Foreign Office, Lord Cranborne, declared that the great questions affecting Newfoundland were not being allowed to sleep. They were perpetually before the Foreign Office of both countries. The Government would be exceedingly glad to settle the Newfoundland question, but it was very difficult because of a complexity of interests over which the British Government had no control.

The question of the relations between Great Britain and Italy was very important, continued Lord Cranborne. Great Britain's international friendships were never aggressive, nor intended to be aggressive. Her friendship with Italy belonged to that class. It was based on something stronger than treaties, namely identity of interests and sympathies.

The agreement with Japan, Lord Cranborne asserted, was founded on mutual interests. Lord Cranborne further remarked that he did not believe China was likely to be misled by the advances of various powers. She knew it was the true policy of Great Britain to maintain the integrity of China, and increase her resources. He was not in the slightest afraid, therefore, of the small advantages which it was thought had been gained by other powers.

Lord Cranborne quoted the denial of German Imperial Chancellor, Count Von Buelow, that Germany had exclusive rights in Shan Tubg, and claimed therefore that the door remained open.

"COMMUNITY OF INTERESTS."

Belfast Ship Building Magnate Prefers to So Call "Morgan Combine."

London, July 4.—The committee of the House of Commons appointed to inquire into the question of subsidies heard William J. Pirrie, chairman of the Harland & Wolff Shipbuilding Company yesterday. This witness, who figured so prominently in the recent J. Pierpont Morgan shipping combine, expressed the opinion that subsidies were given merely as a bounty, and serve to encourage inefficiency, and that, even where they could be legitimately bestowed, the tendency of subsidies would be to foster individual as against general interests. Mr. Pirrie regarded foreign subsidies as a blessing in disguise, as they stimulated British ship owners to keep more abreast of the times.

Replying to a question of the chairman, Mr. Pirrie said the Morgan combine, which he preferred to call a "community of interests," was established purely for commercial purposes and on entirely business principles. He was convinced that a dangerous international situation was rapidly approaching at the time the deal was effected, but by the creation of this community of interests the future of British shipping, as well as of British shipbuilding, was assured. In short, Mr. Pirrie considered the deal to be in every way satisfactory to the British. Giving subsidies would only invite retaliation in the most important markets of the world. The extent of state assistance to German shipping was greatly exaggerated.

Mr. Pirrie also said that the feeling against the combination was due to misapprehension. All they had been doing was to act on the advice of the Prince of Wales, when he said "England must wake up." Mr. Pirrie thought that the best way for the Government to help British shipping was to deepen the approaches to and otherwise improve the chief ports.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN.

All the Delegates to the Convention at St. John, N.B., Have Arrived.

St. John, N.B., July 4.—All the delegates to the National Council of Women of Canada have arrived and to-day the council will be formally opened at the York Theatre for the transaction of business.

Yesterday afternoon the ladies of the St. John Gold Club served tea at the club house, the event being slightly marred by rain. Last evening His Worship Mayor and Mrs. White entertained at a public reception in honor of the visiting delegates. The York Theatre was beautifully decorated in honor of the event and the function was marked by brilliancy, the assemblage of so many representative women representing many callings, philanthropic and educational interests, lending eclat to the affair.

The persons accused have been summoned to appear before the County Police Magistrate at the Town Hall here on Friday afternoon at one o'clock. A HOUSE OF REFUGE.

Magistrate Dumble Writes to the Town Council in Reference to the Matter.

The appended letter has been received by the Town Clerk from Mr. D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate:

Peterborough, July 2, 1902.

S. B. Armstrong, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough:

Dear Sir,—You will remember that some months ago I wrote to the Town drawing their attention to the Criminal Code Amendment Act of 1900, which provides: "That no aged or infirm person shall be convicted as a loose, idle or disorderly person or vagrant in the County of which he has for the two years immediately preceding been a resident." There is now in the jail at Peterborough, one John Evans, whose only crime is that he is infirm, a paralytic. His term of imprisonment will expire in a day or two and under the law in force since January 1st, 1901, I am not permitted to convict this man as a vagrant and send him back to jail. I recently wrote to the Provincial Secretary a letter in these words: "You may remember that some time ago I spoke to you about a man called John Evans, who is in our jail as as a vagrant. This man is a son of Evans the stone cutter. He is paralysed and not a fit subject to be kept in jail. You intimated that there was some more fitting place where he might be kept. This morning I remanded him for ten days and if in the meanwhile you can get him entrance to some home for incurables or House of Providence it would be well. If you will kindly bear this matter in mind, and if possible act on the matter within ten days I will be obliged." To which I received this morning the following answer: "In reply to your favour of the 27th inst., in reference to John Evans, a paralytic, who has been committed to the gaol at Peterborough, under the Vagrancy Act, it is quite true that the gaol is not a suitable place for the care of this invalid. Dr. Chamberlain, Inspector of Prisons, thinks that this man should be sent to one of the Homes for Incurables; otherwise he should be sent to one of the Houses of Providence, or to a County House of Refuge. As the Homes for Incurables are not Government institutions, but are under the management of private individuals, his admission to such would require that some person undertake to pay for his care and maintenance. If he has no means or friends who can afford to pay for him, the municipality should see that he is sent to one of the institutions I have named and pay for his maintenance therein."

Under these circumstances this man Evans will be turned out on the street unless he is provided for as suggested by the Hon., the Provincial Secretary. Humanity demands that this poor fellow should be cared for and as I have no means of providing for him I respectfully suggest to the Mayor and Council that they should take upon themselves the duty of making some provision for him.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
D. W. DUMBLE,
Police Magistrate.

TENNIS.

The first round of the Y.M.C.A. tournament must be played off before to-morrow night.

LACROSSE.

The following players will represent the St. Peter's T.A.S. team in their game with the Y.M.C.A. on Nicholls Oval this evening:

Goal, Jas. O'Brien; point, E. Hickey; cover point, J. McDonough; defence field, Will Meagher, Will Crowley, and F. Darocher; centre, E. McNichol; home field, F. McCoy, E. Mahoney, and Jno. Gorham; outside home, Geo. Lynch; inside home, L. McCoy; spare man, B. Doris; field captain, Joe Picard.

There should be a good attendance at the Nicholls oval to-night to see the game between the T. A. S. and the Y.M.C.A. teams. Both teams are in splendid condition, and should put up a pretty stiff fight.

T. A. S. ATHLETICS.

A meeting of the Athletic Section of St. Peter's T.A.S., was held last evening, when it was decided to present the medals won at the athletic tournament on July 1st, at a concert to be held on Monday evening, July 14th, in the T.A.S. rooms. A first-class musical programme is being arranged.

BASEBALL.

The Auburns will play the following team against the Rosedeath team to-morrow at two o'clock, on the Nicholls oval; McCorry, p; Graham, c; Warham, 1b; Davidson, 2b; Parnell, ss; Sheridan, 3b; Caman, lf; Shaw, cf; Renton, rf.

The Coal Heavers are out of business. The once mighty aggregation that was the pride of Sammie Read, the boast of J. Arthur McClellan, and that has lived on its record for the past season or two, will figure no more in the sporting arena. Living on a record does not last for ever, and this is why the Coal Heavers quit the job. The club has gone into liquidation and Mr. Harry Rush, jr., has been appointed receiver, assignee, etc. The franchise has been sold to the Auburns, who will endeavour to redeem Peterborough's record on the diamond. The sale of the franchise has been brought about after several important meetings, in the Oriental Hotel, behind bolted doors, and at which Manager McClellan, of the Coal Heavers, Manager Parnell, of the Auburns, a representative of the Midland League, and several others, were present. The deal has been pending for some time, and is authoratatively stated that it was closed very reluctantly on the part of the Coal Heavers, who took such a pride in their past. However, there was no alternative. The removal from Peterborough of Sam Read, Lionel King, "Scuddy" Phelan, and several others during the past few years, has had a depressing effect upon the remaining members of the team. The minute book of the club, together with the trophies won during the brief career of the Coal Heavers will be handed over by Assignee Rush to the Victoria Museum. Ex-Manager McClellan feels very keenly the sudden collapse of his pets, and says he will never again enter a baseball field. The people of Peterborough in general will sympathise with Manager McClellan in the present crisis. He has now taken to raising collie dogs.

CRICKET.

The Toronto Cricket Club will visit Peterborough on Monday, July 14th, and a strong team will be selected to give the visitors a game. The Toronto men are on a tour and after playing in Peterborough, they will go on to Montreal and Ottawa. Local players who would like to participate in the match are asked to turn out to practice on the Nicholls oval as much as possible before the date fixed for the game. A committee will be appointed to select the players next week.

The Peterborough Colts feel very badly over disappointing the Lindsay Collegiate Institute on July 1st. The Colts say that they found at the last moment that they were unable to go to the Scugog City, and that they sent a telegram to Lindsay to that effect. The Peterborough boys are very anxious to set themselves right with the Linsayites, and hope to make the trip to Lindsay at an early date.

THE PROVINCIAL POLITICAL SITUATION.

(From the Toronto Globe.)

The decision in the Lennox case, giving the seat to Mr. Carscallen, reduces the Government's majority to the smallest possible proportions. Strange to say, however, the situation does not seem to daunt or depress Liberals anywhere. There is a fine, optimistic spirit throughout the ranks, as if the impression prevailed that whatever the fortune of war may be, Mr. Ross and the Liberal party, after the final move is made, will go on governing the province. The position is that up to date, with everything deducted that is in sight, the Government has a clear majority of one. One constituency, North Renfrew, is vacant, the Liberal member, Mr. Munro, having died, after being elected by a majority of nearly 500. We have no intention of counting chickens before they are hatched, but it certainly is proof of a Mark Tapley strain for the Opposition to be virtually claiming the seat in advance, when their candidate was almost 500 "down" at the recent election. We prefer to wait for the verdict North Renfrew will itself render on the case in due time.

This is the situation of affairs at the moment, and yet Liberals are not found to be seriously concerned about it. Even amongst those who cannot be described as Liberals there is no sort of belief that this precariousness of the Government majority will continue. Why is this? Our explanation of it, which we offer with some confidence, is that people cannot get themselves to believe in the possibility of a Whitney Government. A Ross Government with a majority of one, is a stronger organization than a Whitney Government with a majority of a good many. If a plebiscite were called for on the Ross Cabinet as against a Cabinet composed of Mr. Whitney and his lieutenants, we would have very little fear of the result. Put in that bald way the duration of the Government, the temperance question, and other extraneous issues, which nevertheless obscured the real issues, would be eliminated. Fortunately all elections now to be fought will be somewhat cleared of such questions. If, for example, South Oxford, North Norfolk, South Wellington, or London were again to be contested there can be little question that the Liberal party would stand to gain by it. The question would have to come down to the advisability of entrusting Mr. Ross and his colleagues, or Mr. Whitney and his colleagues, with the reins. Can there be any doubt what reply, South Oxford, for example, would make to a query of that kind? Comparisons are odious, and we do not propose to make any. Geo. W. Ross, however, need not fear any comparisons that even his political foes might fairly draw. He yields to no man in the Dominion in the matter of experience in public life. He has spent thirty years in the public eye, and may honestly ask his countrymen if there is one unworthy act that can be fairly charged up against him. In that thirty years what a mass of labourious public service he has rendered! The same amount of intellectual labour and shining natural gifts would have kept him at the head of a lucrative profession, and to-day he would be able to look forward to the ease of opulent retirement. Is this the case after his thirty years of public life? Perhaps this is a line of observation that he himself would deprecate. No one will ever hear anything suggestive of a whine from him. He is a public man in every inch of his being. To him there is a glory in the strife, in the collision of the political forces, in the efforts to do something for the expanding Province, which he remembers in its small and rude beginnings. A safer, braver, more self-sacrificing public man cannot be found within its four corners, and a majority of the people of Ontario, we are sure, feel and believe this.

It is a notable matter, too, that not one of Mr. Ross' colleagues fell in the fight. At the previous general election two of them, Col. Gibson and Mr. Dryden, found themselves in a minority in their constituencies. Mr. Dryden, it was shown in the election courts, was defeated by wholesale corruption. Col. Gibson ran in a doubtful constituency. Both were elected in the last general election, and it may be said of them that they belong to the highest type of public servant. So successful has Mr. Dryden been in conducting the Department of Agriculture that the farmers of Ontario would consider it little short of a calamity if he were to cease his connection with it. To whom would Mr. Whitney entrust its important duties? If anyone takes the trouble to scan the names of the Oppositionists in the Legislature he will agree that this is a searching question. Mr. Crawford's name is perhaps the best that has been suggested, and yet it will be generally admitted that it would not be a satisfactory solution of the problem of finding a Minister of Agriculture. It would be similarly difficult to find as good an administrator as Mr. Davis for the Department of Crown Lands. He combines the capacity for hard work, scrupulous integrity and Judiciality that are indispensable for an ideal Commissioner. Where could a better head for the Department of Education be found than in the present scholarly and eloquent Minister, Mr. Harcourt? The Department of Public Works is to have the oversight of Government railways, and will consequently bear an increasing importance in the scheme of administration, and already Mr. Latchford has shown that the greater the body of work imposed on him the more favourably will the Province judge of his abilities. The Department of the Provincial Secretary, concerned, as it is, with all the great public institutions, has in Mr. Stratton an energetic, shrewd and businesslike head. The departments of government are, in short well manned, and we feel sure that they will continue to administer our affairs as ably and scrupulously in the next four years as they did in the four that preceded them.

The steamer Beaver came up last night with a scow load of lumber for the local canoe factories.

The annual Sunday school picnic of St. Paul's Sunday school will take place on Wednesday of next week.

When the steamer Rainbow was leaving Harwood for Jubilee with an excursion on Thursday last, one of the excursionists, J. Mooney, fell overboard, and if it had not been for the prompt action of the mate of the boat, Mr. Albert Young, would likely have drowned. Mr. Young deserves a great deal of credit for his timely action, as he launched the life boat, and with only a pike pole reached the drowning man, and then by his presence of mind, regardless of the rough sea, restored him to consciousness by his promptness by putting him through the regular rules of restoration doing so over the seat of the skiff.

MERRY MEN OF PARLIAMENT.

Mr. Pope's Keen Wit Varies the Monotony of Debate.

Rufus Pope, member for Compton, can bear away the palm for ready wit in Parliament if he cares for it. Since Landerkin moved up higher there is none to dispute Pope's right to the office of chief joker of the House of Commons. Some connoisseurs really prefer Pope's humor to Landerkin's. The doctor's quips were more often a matter of mirth, and sheer buoyancy of spirit, than of wit. Pope's humor is not a matter of temperament, but a matter of intellect. A bon mot from the member for Compton has a nip in its tail, a sting in its forehead, and nettles on its wings. It is a thing to handle gingerly, and the man toward whom it is directed generally gets the worst of it. Pope is a wit and wit is merciless. His gibes are the kind men like to chuckle over, for the squirming they cause the other fellow. Pope's jeux d'esprit do not take their rise in ill nature, but in a mind that pierces sophistry at a glance and thrusts at the weak spot with rapier-like quickness. This is the kind of repartee that tells in a House often jaded by a surfeit of oratory. In such cases one searching, searing comment will do more than a volume of argument. In this faculty for reductio ad absurdum Pope stands alone, and the only pity is that he does not scintillate oftener. His associates know that his private conversation is full of infinite jest and cynical observations that would enliven the green chamber. However, Pope lets himself out rarely, being of the opinion, perhaps, that a reputation for chronic humor is enough to blight a public man's career. History can show only one instance of where a persistent humorist climbed to the highest place. That was Abraham Lincoln, and even of him apologists say that more jokes are ascribed to him than he was ever guilty of.

It is related of Pope that one night he was attending a levee at Rideau Hall. The Aberdeens had the fresh-air bug in an aggravated form, and the reception room was about, as comfortable as the cold storage chamber of an Atlantic liner. The member for Compton called a lackey to him and said; "Put down that window," which was done. Presently Lord Aberdeen summoned the same lackey and told him to reopen the window.

Not to be outdone, Pope called the servant back again.

"Shut that window," he said.

"But, sir, His Excellency told me to open it."

"Well, you go to His Excellency and tell him the Pope says it has to be shut."—H.F.G. in Toronto Star.

Wrists and Temperature.

Actors and actresses say that if one of their number faints cold water is poured on the wrists. The result is always immediate recovery. Athletes engaged in feats of endurance understand the importance of keeping the wrists cool in summer and warm in winter, but the general public goes on wearing tight gloves and heavy cuffs during the dog days and then wonders why it is hot. Taking off one's gloves, especially in church, makes quite a surprising difference in one's temperature. Tight sleeves, above all things, make the wearer hot in oppressive weather.

The Curious Crowd.

"They're raising a safe into the tenth story next door."

"Yes?"

"Yes, and there are a lot of people down below who don't seem to realize that the safe side of the street is the side directly opposite to the safe's side."

A CRUEL TREATMENT.

Some Unfortunates Diet Themselves Almost to the Point of Starvation.

Food Distresses Them, Therefore They do not Eat—The Body Craves Nutrition yet the Stomach Refuses to Digest.

What is a Dyspeptic to do, when everything he eats gives him pain and distress.

Many answer this question by advising the unfortunate to abstain from food.

But he is ravenously hungry. His body craves the food necessary to sustain the strength for his daily labour, and not to eat means a constantly diminishing strength.

Physical weakness invites disease, and hampers and hinders in the race of life.

It is not necessary to live on a starvation diet in order to get rid of Stomach trouble.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets make it possible for the Dyspeptic to eat heartily, without any painful after effects.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a specific for diseases of the Stomach only.

They give instant relief, and if a full treatment is taken according to directions, they completely and permanently cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Bloating, Headache or other Stomach trouble.

You may feast without fear, if you are careful to take one or two of these dainty digestive Tablets immediately after each meal.

You may eat what you like for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest the food, every particle of it, without any assistance from the Stomach, and this complete digestion means an entire absence of all unpleasant symptoms.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have changed many a miserable sufferer to a healthy, happy man, or woman, capable of enjoying all the good things of life.

They are sold wherever medicine is sold, and thousands of living men and women to-day testify that they have cured their Stomach trouble, after everything else had failed.

A remedy which has an unbroken record of victory over all diseases of the Stomach, is surely worth the thoughtful consideration, and a fair trial by any one afflicted.

DOOM OF THE BEAVER.

The Emblem of the Dominion Likely to Shuffle off Extinct as the Great Auk or the Dodo

Naturalists are watching with interest the attempt of the Canadian Government to check the slaughter of the beaver. It was hoped that the law forbidding the killing of the animals or the purchase of their pelts would put a stop to the slaughter, but those who are nearest the ground believe that it has resulted in very little good.

To understand how the woods have been stripped of their native animals one must know that the wild regions of Canada are parcelled out among the Indians, each having his trapping grounds which pass from father to son generation after generation. A trapper's holding will cover a river and a chain of lakes with their connecting streams, and over that region he passes back and forth from fall till spring, setting and examining his traps. Cover the whole of the north in this way, and it is easy to see how animal life would soon be diminished.

The beaver has suffered more than most animals. Its pelt is of sufficient value to make it a great prize. It is highly valued by the Indians as an article of food. Its habits are such that it is easy for the trapper well nigh to exterminate a whole colony in a single day.

The Canadian law for the protection of the beaver does not seem able to reach the Indians. The latter remain for so long a time in the woods and are then so far from civilization that no official can keep watch over their movements. So the officials who trouble themselves about the matter at all watch the dealers and attempt to prosecute them for buying the skins.

The effectiveness of law enforcement varies inversely as one goes toward the northern wilderness. The writer once asked a Canadian sheriff if any attempt was made to prosecute the slayers of the beaver.

"We don't mind that sort of thing," said he. "In this country nothing much counts but murder. If a man commits murder he is arrested. Little things don't count for much up here.

"Enforcing game laws here is not what it is in the south. The law says no one shall kill grouse or caribou or beaver at this time of the year. But if you go into the woods you are out of reach of supplies and your food, except what you carry with you, has to come from the forest.

"There is no power under the sun to keep a man from killing what he needs to eat. If you should go to the woods now and kill grouse some one might complain. But if you argued that you shot them to eat because you were hungry, the law would not apply. It was a matter of self-preservation."

This is one of the difficulties of prosecuting the beaver killers. Beavers are good to eat, and if a hungry man kills one he goes free. The Indians of the far north go to the woods every winter with small rations, and if they eat the beaver they kill, it would be hard to get any man who had ever faced starvation in the north to stand for their conviction.

The dealers who buy beaver skins employ all the schemes the game buyers use for getting illegal quail to market. One fur buyer, for instance, has a store where he keeps furs. When an Indian comes in with a bunch of beaver the dealer has these taken to another house whose owner is supposed to be in no way interested in furs.

When there is a fairly large supply the dealer takes a run to Quebec or Montreal and arranges for a sale. The person who takes the furs has a third person in his confidence.

This third person is not a fur buyer. Consequently, when a barrel of beaver skins labelled "Glassware," arrives, sent by a man who does not deal in furs, no one suspects the deception. The skins are sent to American markets, are seen only by American customs inspectors who have no great concern with the enforcement of Canadian laws, and the danger to the dealer is past.

The great hope of the lawmakers was that the vast region to the north of the settlements, where the Hudson Bay Company has control, would become a great reservoir from which the animals would scatter southward, for the company is said to be strictly conscientious in its obedience to the law. But this hope seems likely to prove a delusion.

The Indian considers the beaver the delicacy of delicacies, and has a special fondness for the flesh of the animal when it is cooked after the ancient method of singeing off the fur and roasting it whole in the skin. Even after the pelts became valuable he would resort to this method on special occasions.

When the company would no longer buy the skins the Indian, too far from civilization to deal with any other fur buyer, resorted to the old-time customs, and there was feasting in the land, feasting on beaver roasted in the skin.

This sort of thing could not last long, however, without attracting fur buyers from the outside world. The outside dealers began sending their men into the woods. These found what was undoubtedly a snap, a chance to buy beaver with no competition. There were fortunes in the business and little risk, for the buyers were practically safe from any possible detection.

This sort of thing was bad for the Hudson Bay Company, for when men penetrated its region for the purpose of buying beaver they bought other furs as well, lots of them, and the company found itself often unable to get furs enough from successful trappers to pay for the supplies which it always advances on credit before the winter's hunt.

The Canadian officials have most of them come to the conclusion that the days of the beaver are numbered that no way remains to save them from slaughter.

SLAVES IN LONDON BANKS.

Short Hours Are a Fiction After the Clerk Is Engaged.

A correspondent writes to The London Express: "Having recently returned from India, I am struck with the white slavery that exists to-day in the banks of London. The hours—10 to 4—are used as an inducement to get young men to join certain banks in London, but in reality the hours are nearer 8.30 a.m. till 9 p.m. What does this mean to a young man living with his parents in the suburbs (for the mere pittance derived from this slavery can only keep him in railway fares, clothing and the daily midday meal)? It means that some of them have to leave their homes as early as 7 a.m. in order to reach their post in time. It also means that it is 10 p.m. or after before they reach home, tired, overworked and with a distracting headache. Working, as they do, in a close, badly ventilated and brightly lighted office must be injurious.

"In India, if such a thing were done—but native clerks would not stand it—the dreadful cry of slavery would be heard everywhere, and people of England would spend money and time and make every effort to bring about a remedy. Why is this not done here? We can find banks paying 15 per cent., 18 per cent. and even 20 per cent. per annum dividends at the expense of the poor, underpaid white slave, the unfortunate employes slaving for a wage that would surely shame the stockholder if he thought seriously of it. I asked a bank manager a day or so ago why banks are so undermanned, and his reply was, 'To satisfy the stockholders'."

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

Poets' Differences in Judging Their Art.

Among the late Aubrey de Vere's reminiscences of the poets whom he had known there is one passage so characteristic of the different tastes of great writers that it is worth recalling: "Tennyson was enthusiastic for Burns. 'Read the exquisite songs of Burns', he exclaimed. 'In shape each of them has the perfection of the berry, in light the radiance of the dewdrop. You forget for its sake those stupid things, his serious pieces!' The same day I met Wordsworth and named Burns to him. Wordsworth praised him even more vehemently than Tennyson had done, as the great genius who had brought poetry back to nature, but ended, 'Of course I refer to his serious efforts, such as "The Cotter's Saturday Night." Those foolish little amatory songs of his one has to forget.' I told the tale to Henry Taylor one evening and his answer was, 'Burns' exquisite songs and Burns' serious efforts are to me alike tedious and disagreeable reading.' So much for the infallibility of poets in their own art."

SHE GAINED ELEVEN POUNDS

And was Brought Back From Nervous Prostration to Health and Strength by Using

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

There is no faith cure about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You do not need to imagine it is doing good. You can prove it by keeping a record of your weight. This food cure sets in a perfect natural way. In fact, it is nature's own cure, and is composed of the most powerful restoratives and invigorators that science has yet discovered.

Take the case of Mrs. West, as described in her letter quoted below. She was pale, weak, and run down in health. Her blood was thin and watery and her nerves so starved and exhausted that she was prostrated. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured her, and added new, firm flesh to her body to the extent of eleven pounds. You will find her letter interesting.

Mrs. S .W. West, Drayton, Wellington County, Ont., writes: — "About two years ago I got terribly run down, and finally became a victim of nervous prostration. I had no appetite, seemed to lose interest and ambition, and could scarcely drag myself about. Hearing of good results from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I used three boxes with great benefit. In a short time I gained eleven pounds, and as I was very thin when I began to use the remedy I was very proud of the increase of weight.

"Then the following spring I became rather poorly, and they again built me up, and gave me such a good appetite that I wanted to eat nearly half the time. I was so pleased with the cure the Nerve Food brought about that I recommended it to others, and they have told me of the benefits they had obtained from this preparation. You may use this testimonial in order that others may learn of the good there is in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

If you have been affected as Mrs. West has, if you are not feeling real strong and well, you will be surprised at the good that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do you. It puts colour in the cheeks, rounds out angular and wasted forms, and brings new hopes, new confidence and new life to take the place of despondency, weakness, and disease. 50 cents a box; 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 1

HUMORS OF EMPIRE.

LAUGHABLE INCIDENTS TAKEN FROM MR. BASIL THOMSON'S BOOK.

How the Folk of "Savage Island" Regarded "Vika" the Great Queen, Whose Flag Conferred Strength—A King in Petticoats—Queen Takes Off Her Boots—How the Marine Led the French.

Mr. Basil Thomson, the governor of Dartmoor Prison, in his new book "Savage Island," tells a most diverting story of his visit to one of our newest possessions, which lies 1,000 miles north of New Zealand.

In 1900 he was sent to establish a British protectorate over the island, and more recently it was annexed to New Zealand by Lord Ranfurly. The people had sent to Queen Victoria—"Vika" they called her—and begged her "to send the powerful flag of Britain to unfurl in this island of Niue, in order that this weak island of ours might be strong."

Their conception of Queen "Vika" was very quaint. They imagined her as the "all-powerful chief whose house was built upon the coral strand of Lonitoni (London), opposite the landing place, where her men-o'-war were moored stem and stern in rows before her doors. She read their letters with her own eyes, and had her captains to sit before her on the floor mats while she gave them messages for the brown folks in far islands."

Mr. Thomson arrived at Savage Island on board H.M.S. Porpoise, and sent word to King Tongia. "Early in the morning persons reported that men were erecting awnings on the green before the schoolhouse, that the headmen of villages had all arrived, and that His Majesty was being helped into his uniform. Ten was the hour, and on the stroke of the hour Captain Ravenhill landed with the portrait of the Queen, sent from Windsor as a present to the King." But the King was late. One said he was "arraying himself in the new rifle-green uniform imported for him by the storekeeper; another that he was taking off his royal trousers at the behest of a Samoan teacher, who asserted that trousers were no trappings for an interview with Queen's commissioner."

At last the royal procession came in sight, and Mr. Thomson is not likely to forget it—for a less royal affair could not be imagined. It was "headed by a dozen men in slop clothes and villainous billycock hats set at rakish angle. They all carried spears and paddle-shaped clubs in either hand, and a similar rabble brought up the rear. In the middle of this grotesque bodyguard walked the King and Queen, both in petticoats, as befits the sex to which they belonged, for, if the Queen was a young woman, the King was assuredly an old one. To their united ages of ninety-four, His Majesty contributed seventy-six."

The Queen "wore a wreath of roses; he the soldier's helmet, with the cock's plume, which was all that the officious Samoan teacher would leave him of his military uniform, and from which he refused to be divided, although it assorted ill with his petticoat."

After much talking, the treaty was signed in the schoolhouse, "upon the schoolmaster's standing desk, and three separate messages were despatched to bring ink, pens and blotting paper." At one end of the room a troop of children were noisily playing, and nearby a woman was sitting on the floor placidly suckling her baby."

The next thing was to put up a flagstaff to fly the British flag. This was to be the work of the bluejackets. But "as soon as the people understood their purpose, the crowbars and shovels were snatched from the hands of the bluejackets, and the natives themselves, with shouts of laughter, fell to with a will upon the grave of their independence. The bluejackets, nothing loth to exercise their unaccustomed role as foremen of works, were laughingly directing operations, when some officious elders, scandalized by what they felt to be a breach of manners, fell upon the volunteers with their paddle-clubs and drove them off, though not before the happiest relations had been established between the natives and their visitors."

A little later the King and Queen returned the visit of Queen "Vika's" representative. The captain of H.M.S. Porpoise sent his boat for them. "All went well until she neared the ship, and then the Queen, after a whispered consultation with her consort, began to take off her boots. This operation being still in progress long after the boat was alongside the gangway, faces began to peer curiously over the side, but the bluejacket stationed at the foot of the ladder preserved an admirable composure, and when Her Majesty had paddled up the steps in her stockings he gravely followed the procession carrying the royal boots, as if they were insignia of office, to the suppressed merriment of his fellows who were drawn up to receive the royal party."

It was the chart-room of the ship which impressed the King mostly. "Deceived by the brass chimney of the heating stove, he declared it to be the finest kitchen he had ever seen. It was in vain for the interpreter to explain the real uses of the room. It was the kitchen—anyone could see that for himself—and if the captain chose, for reasons of his own, to lie about its real uses, he, Tongia, was too old in the craft of the world to be taken in!"

When the interpreter had hinted to the King, "that it was time to take leave, the King, producing a dollar from his waistband, signified his intention of tipping the captain for the pleasant entertainment he had provided, and the interpreter had the greatest difficulty in persuading him that such an act would be contrary to the decencies of European custom."

No wonder British bluejackets are popular. Mr. Thomson declares that if he were set the task of winning the confidence of suspicious and hostile natives, he would ask for an escort of the first naval petty officers that came to hand, and consider the work done. Here is a charming story of how they won confidence: "Returning from a walk late in the afternoon, we heard sounds of merry-making in the village square, and found the whole population sitting convulsed with laughter at an entertainment provided by their visitors. It appeared that the shore party, returning to their boat, had discovered a band of urchins playing catch with oranges, and seized upon the opportunity for teaching the new British subjects the British national game. With sticks for wickets and cocoanut butts for bats, they soon had the game going, and when we came up a boy of eight was bowling to a bearded engine-room artificer, who was going through the antics of clown cricket to the huge delight of the onlookers. The little boys positively wept when the boat came to carry away their new-found friends."

The King of the Tongans once told Mr. Thomson that it was because the English joke with the Tongans that they were such good friends, and he told him this lovely story in illustration. A French flagship arrived in one of the island's ports at the moment when H.M.S. Tauranga was there, and the natives wondered which of the two ships would be the first to acknowledge itself to be the inferior of the other. The English captain went first to see the French ship, and so the natives said, "See, the Englishman admits his inferiority." But they did not speak thus on the next day. Eighty French soldiers landed, and also one English marine, who used to carry the letters to the postoffice. The French soldiers marched proudly in lines of four, and the natives thought the English marine would be abashed when he met them. What was their surprise to see the marine actually waiting for the French soldiers, and when they came up to him "he put himself at their head and marched so bravely in his red coat that the Tongans cried out, 'Lo, a king is approaching up with his bodyguard!'

"The face of the French officer was not good to look upon, for when he called upon his men to stamp the ground and let the marine go on, he also stamped the ground, and when they pressed forward to pass him, he quickened his steps and kept with them as if he was indeed their leader. Nor was it better when they passed the guardroom, and saw even the Tongan sentry dissolved in laughter, for the marine behaved as if he was too exalted to know his friends, save for a secret sign that he made to them with one eyelid. So they went on together to the boat. The rumor of this thing was carried throughout Tonga, and the people thought more of this marine than of the French admiral and all his men."

Lamps That Talk.

Electric lamps not only can be made to talk, but also to sing. An ordinary arc light can be made to produce sounds in two ways. One is by placing the arc in the circuit of a telephone instead of the ordinary receiver, and the other is by placing it in the circuit instead of the ordinary transmitter.

In either of these positions it will pronounce words, which can be heard distinctly at a considerable distance. It naturally follows, also, that the electric arc can be utilized as the receiver and also as the transmitter of a telephone.

The French Horn.

The French horn or cor de chasse is regarded by some musicians as the sweetest and mellowest of all the wind instruments. In Beethoven's time it was little else than the old hunting horn, which, for the convenience of the mounted hunter, was arranged in spiral convolutions, to be slipped over the head and carried resting on one shoulder and under the opposite arm. The Germans still call it the waldhorn—that is, "forest horn."

Actors' Superstitions.

To rehearse a play on Sunday is a sure sign that that play will not be a success for the manager ordering the rehearsal and that salaries will be lost by all who so participate on the Lord's day. To twirl a chair at rehearsals is just as good as betting on a sure thing that a fight will disrupt the friendship of at least two members and perhaps cause loss to the management for that week.

WHENCE COMES ELECTRICITY?

At a time when electricity is rapidly transforming the face of the globe, when it has already in great measure annihilated distance and bids fair to abolish darkness for us, it is curious to notice how completely ignorant "the plain man" remains as to the later developments of electrical theory. Some recent correspondence has led me to think that a vague notion that electricity is a fluid which in some mysterious way flows through a telegraph wire like water through a pipe is about as far as he has got, and if we add to this some knowledge of what he calls "electric shocks" we should probably exhaust his ideas on the subject. Yet this is not to be wondered at. Even the most instructed physicists can do nothing but guess as to what electricity is, and the only point on which they agree is as to what it is not. There is, in fact, a perfect consensus of opinion among scientific writers that it is not a fluid—i. e., a continuous stream of ponderable matter, as is a liquid or a gas—and that it is not a form of energy, as is heat. Outside this limit the scientific imagination is at liberty to roam where it listeth, and, although it has used this liberty to a considerable extent, no definite result has followed up to the present time.—Academy.

Licking Her Stamps.

We find the following anecdotes in a Naples paper: "At the postoffice yesterday, amid the large crowd gathered around the window, was a young English lady, handsome, well dressed and accompanied by her maid. The young lady had just purchased some stamps and was about to affix them to a number of letters which she held in her hand. Delicately tearing off a stamp, she said to her maid, 'Pull (sic) out your tongue.' And the maid, with English impassivity, thrust forth her tongue, while the mistress passed over it a postage stamp, which she subsequently stuck on a letter. She went through the entire package of letters, and for each one the obedient waiting maid thrust out her tongue for the mistress to moisten the stamp. Curious manners these English people have."

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

The Canon and the Lawyer.

The point of the following story lies in the important part which the "threepenny bit" plays in church collections in England. Canon Blank was having a friendly game of pool at the squire's, and one of his opponents was Wigsby, the barrister. The canon lost a "life" and took from his pocket a threepenny piece to pay for it, which he placed on the edge of the table.

"Oh," said Wigsby, "I see, canon, you have had your finger in the plate!" The canon drew himself up to his full height, a good six feet, and, looking the man of the law full in the face, said, "I'm surprised that you, Mr. Wigsby, in the presence of this respectable company, have the audacity to recognize your own paltry contribution!"

Her Cooking.

She—You say she won three husbands by her cooking?

He—That's what she did.

"But how did she get rid of the husbands after she won them?"

"Oh, I believe her cooking had something to do with that too."

The Motto That Suited.

"It would be helpful to you," said the prison visitor, "if you could take some motto and try to live up to it."

"That's right," replied the convict. "I'd like to select, for instance, 'We are here today and gone tomorrow.'"

IT LOOKS LIKE BUSINESS.

Campbellford Will be a Manufacturing Centre.

(From the Campbellford Despatch.)

For the past few years the Despatch has been harping continually on the development of the immense water-power to be obtained at Healeyth Falls, Crow Bay and Campbellford, and we are now pleased to know that our articles have not been in vain and that at least one gentleman has "caught on" and as a result has visited the places above mentioned and purchased the greater portion of the properties and opened offices in Campbellford.

The person we refer to is none other than Mr. J. Alex Culverwell, of Peterborough and Toronto, Managing Director of the Central Ontario Power Company; and being an electrical and hydraulic engineer, and well posted with the law regarding water powers, etc., he was not slow to realize the importance of this vast power, which for ages has been wasting its efforts in nothing more than washing the rocks.

For some months past Mr. Culverwell has been viewing these properties, but, knowing that it was not to the best interests of Mr. Culverwell or the public, we refrained from mentioning anything about his visits at different times, as a certain high government canal official was dabbling into this same matter, we believe, much to his discredit and an act most unbecoming to an official of this kind, as he is one who can take advantage of information placed at his finger's end. However, we understand that the way is now clear and in a short period we may expect to see wheels and dynamos humming and industries located all along the banks of the Trent. This will, Mr. Mr. Culverwell states, necessitate the building of a branch line of railway to connect with the C.P.R. from Campbellford, a distance of 16 miles, thereby giving us a competing road. Mr. Culverwell also informs us that he has now in view a large furniture manufacturing firm who are willing to locate here at an early date, providing the town will extend to it the usual reasonable concessions given.

Mr. Culverwell can claim credit for being a pioneer of the electrical business in Canada, having started from its inception in Western Ontario, with the Edison Electric Co. of New York in 1891.

A COLD SUMMER.

Sun Spots Said to be Responsible for the Abnormally Heavy Rainfall.

Mr. Stupart, Director of the Observatory, Toronto, on being interviewed in regard to the weather lately, said: "I am in hopes we'll have a change before long, but I cannot guarantee it. Certain types of weather are apt to be persistent. The weather gets into a rut and it sometimes takes a long time to get out of it. I expected a rainy summer this year, in fact I predicted it last year. There have been no spots on the sun during the last two or three years but this year we are on the upward grade. The spots are beginning to appear, and consequently the rain-fall becomes heavy. We may have rainy summers now for three years.

Mr. Stupart proceeded to dip into his records, and derived comfort from the fact that there have been colder Junes than the recent miserable month. We have not had many cool summers of late years. Last year, with the exception of February and November, the months were all warmer than the average for 63 years. In June of this year the first half was about as warm as June usually is, but the latter half of the month has been rainy and quite below the average. The average temperature in June, 1901, was 65.1; this June it has been 60.3. The coldest summer since the Observatory was established was in 1842. The summers of the two succeeding years were also very cold. In 1857 June was particularly cold, and again in 1859. A very cool summer also afflicted the people of Ontario in 1869. The temperature of cold Junes during the past years reveals the fact that the past month is not nearly so bad as many preceding Junes.

It is the coldest June, however, in thirteen years, the average temperature in 1889 being 59.7. The temperature of other cold Junes are as follows: 1811, 59.6; 1889, 58.4; 1866, 60.2; 1863, 60.1; 1895, 58.9; 1857, 56.9; 1851, 59.8; 1836, 58.9; 1842, 56.4; 1833, 60.3; 1826, 60.3.

Mr. Stupart turned up the records of the weather stations of Massachusetts, which state that the coldest spell of summer weather from which this continent ever suffered was in 1816. From 1811 to 1817 cold summers followed one another monotonously. The year 1816 was called "the year without a summer." Every month in that summer brought frost and snow. The temperature from May to September was 3.6 to 7.2 below the average, a most unprecedented refrigeration. In June and July the temperature was 5 and 5.8 below the average. Indian corn did not ripen, and many of the fruits and grains were reduced or cut off altogether.

STOCK MARKETS.

The Traction Group.

New York, July 3.—The traction shares look as if they were going to do better in the future, especially in the Man. They're not up commensurate with other stocks and the past two days attention has been drawn to them by their increased strength and activity. Buying orders were placed in these stocks and considerable purchases have been already made despite the dullness. Take B.R.T.—these lines are right on the threshold of the best part of their business year the summer months. The fact that during the next few months improvements will be directly chargeable to the recent bond issue, instead of to net earnings, will cause the road to show remarkable increases. The stock should do much better than last winter. It sold above 75, and during its dull period. It should certainly go above that figure this summer, and it is fair to expect the price to reach 80.

We spoke of the improvements in Manh. in a recent letter, calling attention to the lengthened line now running to Bronx Park, and the fact that the open electric cars now running were a strong stimulant to pleasure travel on warm nights. The stock of the Elevated Co. is very closely held, and small in quantity, being only 48 million dollars out, anding. This makes it easily susceptible to bullish manipulation. The last bull speculation in the shares last fall carried the stock above 145. The decadence and fall from power of Tammany is a bullish argument on the stock, as that political organization was usually engaged in sand-bagging tactics against the Manh. The saving by the operation of the road by electricity is estimated to amount to nearly 15 per cent. Their reports show their business to be rapidly increasing, and their last financial statement was an excellent one, making a most satisfactory showing. The Gould party are pronounced bulls upon the market. Features of today's market were Ill. Cent. and L.N., the former advancing about 4 per cent. while L.N. sold up to 143. St. Paul and M.O.P. gained about one point each, and the buying was characterized as good, the coalers being all higher. Atch. was up a point and a half, and is a splendid purchase at the present writing. Good buying was noticeable in B. & O. Sug. opened off a point, and was comparatively heavy on notice of increased capitalization of the Federal Sug. Co. Copper was quiet, but firm. Steels were up, while C.F.I. rested. We should have a higher market the coming week. Money closed at 3 per cent. Sales, 367,800.

GILBERT PARKER'S VIEWS.

The Novelist's Ideas on His Art Are Good Ones.

In his literary letter to The May Era from London, James Walker Smith writes entertainingly about Gilbert Parker:

Since Mr. Parker came to London there has been a tendency in the literary world to rally him for the seriousness with which he takes himself. When he writes critically it is with a labored pen, and when he makes a speech, that speech is usually heavy with purpose.

There may be some basis for the attitude of the outside public towards him, and that he is not genuinely popular is a statement of considerable truth. The man, however, is, I think, a force to be reckoned with, and within the last two or three years his reputation as a thinker has been increasingly acknowledged.

With others, I appreciate him most when he is serious, and a recent lecture which he delivered on the art of fiction before the Sesame Club ought to show to outsiders that it is sometimes a very good thing for novel writers earnestly to espouse their art. It is not possible here to give more than a mere excerpt or two from Mr. Parker's address.

In dealing with the subject of the test of a novel the speaker said: "There is only one test for a novel; that it be first and before all a well constructed story, that it weal sincerely with human life and character; that it be eloquent of feeling; that it have insight and revelation; that it preserve idiosyncrasy, but, before all, that it be wholesome. To produce such a book," he added, "a sane tolerant and impartial temperament and a wide knowledge are necessary. When a man has real character—a real power and genius—his book is himself."

Mr. Parker, in this address, also pointed out the necessity in every book of a dominant note, which, in the very first chapter of the book, should be struck, and should recur throughout the book like the motif in an opera. The conclusion of his address was a distinctly pretty piece of oratory.

"In the thing really great," he said, "there is no eccentricity, nothing morbid. It is all normal, but the normal form and power are infused with life, composed of genius—the supreme and perfect sanity. One must be in earnest. A man must hold his art seriously—himself as nothing—the vehicle, the machine, the loom through which pass the strands of emotion or experience of passion, of human comedy and tragedy woven into a web of life which man, seeing, shall say: 'Behold, this' is the garment of truth; this is the mantle of beauty!'"

If some of the principles enunciated by Mr. Parker were to be observed by the younger writers of the day, and if they were to take themselves at times as earnestly as he, there would be fewer books published, more reputations worthily earned, and more books of a lasting character to be treasured.

Publishers may not care to have such comments written, but it expresses a growing feeling among those who love the best in literature to say that the number of books issued yearly could be cut down at least one-half, and that a lot of dross would then have to be shaken out before these novels, written in due honor of the art of fiction, could be selected.

IMMIGRATION INCREASED.

Returns For the Present Year Show an Advance Over Last Year.

Ottawa, July 4.—The immigration returns for the year have been completed by the department here. They show an increase of 15,490 arrivals of settlers in Canada over the previous year. The increase is as follows:

	1901.	1902.
British.....	11,810	17,000
European countries...	19,352	28,535
United States.....	17,987	24,009
Total.....	49,149	64,634

It is added that the figures from the United States will exceed the above by some hundreds when all the returns are in, so that the total immigration for the year will be fully 65,000.

SIR WILFRID TO GO TO PARIS.

Will Be Requested by the French—Comment of Le Temps.

London, July 4.—After the close of the Colonial Premiers' Conference in London, says the Paris correspondent of The Times, a banquet will be given in Paris by French politicians to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The Temps predicts the failure of the conference, declaring that a British zollverein or even permanent council would be a dangerous experiment.

The July 14 fetes, says the Paris correspondent of The Times, will be on a reduced scale, owing to 100,000 francs being voted for the relief of the Martinique sufferers.

Clergue Steel Rails.

Ottawa, July 4.—The first 10,000 tons of steel rails manufactured by Mr. Clergue at the Soo have been delivered to the I.C.R. authorities, and will be used in repairing the road of the Drummond County line between Montreal and Quebec. It is expected that the supply will be regularly kept up. No test has been made of these rails, as in the opinion of Mr. Schrieber the only absolute and valuable test is durability in wear.

The Work of Old Boys.

Lord Kelvin is seventy-eight years of age. Under a rule recently adopted by a western railway company he couldn't get a job in its service because he is over thirty-five. Yet he can outwork to-day three-quarters of the youngsters, to say nothing of his value as a thinker. The greatest work of our time is being done by men more than three-score years and ten.

The Order of the Garter.

The Order of the Garter was founded in 1844—some writers say 1350—by Edward III. The original number of knights was twenty-five, his majesty making the twenty-sixth.

The emblem of the order is a dark blue ribbon edged with gold, bearing the motto "Honi soit qui mal y pense" in golden letters, with a buckle and pendant of gold richly chased. It is worn on the left leg below the knee. Regarding the adoption of this emblem and motto the story is that the Countess of Salisbury let fall her garter when dancing with the king and that he picked it up and tied it around his own leg, but that, observing the jealous glances of the queen, he restored it to its fair owner with the exclamation, "Honi soit qui mal y pense!"

THE KING'S QUIET DAY

And His Majesty's Best Night Since the Operation.

SHOWS PROGRESS SATISFACTORY

The Wound Shows More Active Signs of Repair—His Majesty Now Moves With Greater Ease—King Edward Enjoys Looking at the Newspaper —A Gay Time For the Canadians.

London, July 5.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace at 7 p.m. yesterday.

"The King had a quiet day. His constitutional condition is satisfactory, and the wound shows more active signs of repair. (Signed.) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

10 a.m. bulletin: 'The King had a good night, and, indeed, slept better than at any time since the operation. The wound now gives less trouble, and his Majesty can move in bed with greater ease. His Majesty's appetite has improved. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

The progress of King Edward continues satisfactory. Beginning July 6, only one bulletin a day concerning His Majesty's condition will be issued; this bulletin will be posted at 9 o'clock in the morning, and the arrangement will be continued until His Majesty is entirely convalescent.

The fact that Queen Alexandra, in company with the Duchess of Aosta, Prince Waldemar of Denmark, and Prince George of Greece, drove out yesterday afternoon, is taken as a sign of the King's satisfactory condition. This was the first recreation of this kind that the Queen has indulged in since His Majesty was taken ill.

The King is allowed to read a good deal now, and he enjoys looking at the newspapers. He expressed amusement lately at some of the sensational and detailed reports of the operation in the press.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the latest report that has reached the office of that newspaper is that if the King continues to improve as hitherto, the coronation will take place during the last week in August. Therefore, the stands on the short route from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey will not be removed at present.

CANADIANS' GAY TIME.

Lunched With Lord Grey and Dined With Sir Gilbert.

London, July 5.—The Canadian Ministers lunched yesterday with Lord and Lady Grey at the Royal Botanical Gardens, dined with Sir Gilbert Parker, and afterwards attended the gorgeous official reception of the India Princes at the India Office.

Sir Frederick Borden is better, but is still unwell.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is much better, and completed yesterday his arrangements to visit Paris, where he will be elaborately, semi-officially, entertained.

Some papers not at a distance, and not too friendly to England, are publishing abominable misrepresentations about the King.

A deputation from the London Chamber of Commerce yesterday waited on Sir William Mulock with the purpose of expressing the endorsation of that body of the Canadian Government's attitude with reference to the reduction in postage on magazines and newspapers.

CANADIANS RETURNING.

3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th C.M.R. Are Coming Home.

Ottawa, July 4.—The Militia Department received a cable yesterday morning which shows that the 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th Canadian Mounted Rifles are coming home at once, as well as the Field Hospital, and Col. Evans and the 2nd C.M.R. The cable says to cease further payments to dependents here.

Canadians Get Lands.

London, July 4.—Lord Onslow says the blockhouses in South Africa would be invaluable for use on farms, which the Government were repeopling. Lord Milner had informed the Government that all of the resources in land and money at the disposal at present had been absorbed by men from the United Kingdom, Canada, and Australia.

BRAKEMEN AND CONDUCTORS AGREE.

C.P.R. Makes Satisfactory Arrangement With Them—Others Still Out.

Winnipeg, July 5.—There is little change in the strike situation up to the present. Matters between the company and the brakemen and conductors have been satisfactorily arranged, but the men out on strike are sticking to their first position, and won't yield, claiming it is only a question of time until the company will have to come to terms. At their meeting yesterday morning, the men all endorsed the action of the committee.

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

Henry E. Wilkins of Cohoes, N.Y., was killed by the exploding of a cannon late Thursday night.

At Seaforth Walter Ruttley, 53 years of age, and demented, cut his throat with a razor and died.

At Cambridge, Mass., Henry F. Kane, formerly a soldier in the Philippines, was murdered on the street Friday morning, as the outcome of a quarrel with an unknown man.

At Trout Creek Charles Slosser lost his life Friday. Deceased and his three sons were peeling bark when a hemlock tree fell and struck Slosser on the head and killed him instantly.

A detachment of Turkish troops recently surrounded a band of Bulgarian brigands at Patili, in the Vilayet of Monastir. Thirty Bulgarians were killed. The remainder were made prisoners.

William Goddard, 20 years of age, a laborer, lost his life by drowning Friday at noon, in the Don. He walked in too deep water, and as he couldn't swim, was drowned. He boarded at Todmorden.

John C. Bann died Friday morning at St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Brockville, from injuries received in a fall. Mr. Bann was proprietor of the Revere House for many years. He was 56 years of age.

John Jackson, an employe of the Polson Iron Works Co., Toronto, collided with another bicyclist, and was thrown violently against the kerbing, on Friday. Three doctors fear that he may not recover.

The mangled body of William Pulkingham, Hamilton, was found on the tracks of the Grand Trunk Railway shortly before 4 o'clock Friday morning. Whether he committed suicide or was accidentally killed nobody knows.

At Brandon, Man., Alf. Salter was crushed to death Thursday night at the electric company's works. In stepping over the big belt he was caught and carried to the fly wheel, where he was almost instantly killed. He was from Ottawa.

At Ridgetown, John Franklin, 21 years of age, a mason apprentice, working for Joseph E. Mitton, contractor there, went bathing in Creek Pond, took cramps and was drowned. Mr. Milton and his son did their utmost to save the young man, but without avail.

Fleeing Convict Murders as He Goes.

Seattle, Wash., July 5.—Escaped convict Harry Tracy has just passed a red letter day in his erratic career. He killed Policeman E. E. Breese and fatally wounded Neil Rawley in the city limits after having murdered Deputy Sheriff Charles Raymond of Snohomish County and probably fatally wounded Deputy Sheriff John Williams of King County early Thursday. In his hopeless flight for safety, with no consideration for human life, Tracy has covered probably 60 miles.

TWO POLLS ALLOWED

County Judge Mahaffy's Muskoka Decision Overruled.

BRIDGLAND MAJORITY ABOUT 90

Election Protests—Several Additional Appeals Are Filed—Petition Against Mr. Hoyle in Which Disqualification Is Asked For—The Disqualification of Mr. Sutherland in South Oxford Petitioned For.

Toronto, July 5.—As a result of the appeal and cross-appeal against the recount before County Judge W. C. Mahaffy in the Muskoka election, Dr. Bridgland's majority is increased to about 90. The recount left the Liberal member-elect with a majority of 62 over his opponent, A. A. Mahaffy, but the allowing of the two polls which were thrown out by the County Judge brings the figures up again. These two polls were District No. 17, Medora and Wood, and No. 18, Medora and Wood.

The appeal was heard before Mr. Justice Maclennan, Dr. Bridgland being represented by Mr. R. A. Grant, and Mr. Mahaffy by Mr. C. A. Masten and Mr. E. N. Armour.

There was both an appeal by Mr. Mahaffy and a cross-appeal by Dr. Bridgland. His Lordship said he thought they should go on with the appeal first, as if it did not change the result the hearing of the cross-appeal might not be necessary. Mr. Grant, however, stated that there were two polls that had been thrown out altogether, and in regard to these he had been instructed to go on with the cross-appeal, irrespective of the result of the appeal.

The date for the hearing of the appeal against the recount in Halton has been fixed for Saturday, July 12, at 11 a.m.

The deposit of $1,000 in the South Norfolk protest was paid in at Osgoode Hall yesterday by Messrs. Bristol, Cawthra & Bailey.

Petition Against Mr. Hoyle.

Whitby, July 5.—A petition was filed yesterday morning with the Local Registrar, Mr. L. F. Barclay, by Kerr, Davidson, Paterson & Grant, agents for Mr. M. H. Roach of Beaverton, solicitor for Mr. W. J. Kester, the defeated candidate in North Ontario, against the return of Mr. W. H. Hoyle, on the usual grounds of corrupt practices and asking for the disqualification of Mr. Hoyle.

South Oxford Protested.

Woodstock, Ont., July 5.—A protest was filed yesterday with Deputy Clerk of the Crown Canfield in the matter of the recent election in South Oxford, where D. Sutherland (Con.) was elected over Dr. McKay (Lib.). The petition was signed by C. R. Patience, J. D. Horsman of Ingersoll and D. Irving of the Township of North Oxford. The usual charges of bribery and corruption, through agents, are made, and, in addition to these, Mr. Sutherland is charged with personal violence of the Election Law, and his disqualification is asked for.

Personal Charges Made.

Kingston, July 5. — H. Doyle, Township of Pittsburg; James E. O'Brien, Township of Loborough, and Alexander Grant, Township of Pittsburg, petition against the return of John S. Gallagher, Harrowsmith, as member of the Provincial Parliament for Frontenac. Personal charges are laid against Mr. Gallagher.

ACQUIRED NEW RIGHTS.

Ontario Power Co. Will Tap the Niagara Above DuFerin Islands.

Niagara Falls, July 5.—The Ontario Power Company concluded an agreement on June 28 last with the Commissioners for the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park whereby they have obtained additional rights doubling their present development. This means that the company named pays to the Commissioners a minimum rental of $30,000 per year, of which two years have now been paid in advance.

The new rights acquired are for taking water from the Niagara River above the rapids, near the Dufferin Islands. The development from the Welland River, which this company is now constructing, as well as that from the rights just acquired, makes the company able to supply unlimited power without interruption during winter on account of anchor or floating ice.

The result will be a development in the near future of at least 400,000 horse power, which, with the development now under way of the Canadian Niagara Power Company, should insure her a bright industrial future.

HIGHEST IN THE WORLD.

Alpine Observatory Will Be 15,000 Feet Above the Sea.

London, July 5.—At the instance of Prof. Angelo Mosso, the well-known physiologist; Queen Marguerite of Italy has consented to allow her beautiful chalet, which is situated on Mont Rosa at a height of over 13,000 feet, to be transformed into a physiological observatory, in order to permit scientists to study the influence which rarefied atmosphere at high latitude has on animal life. This observatory will be the highest of its kind in the world.

Lake Superior Steamer Ashore.

Port Arthur, July 5.—The passenger steamer Iroquois, reported as overdue, from Houghton, Mich., is ashore on Victoria Island, about 28 miles south of this point. The Iroquois was coming in from Duluth yesterday morning, and, while trying to find the Victoria Passage in a fog, went on the rocks. She was under check at the time, and it is hoped that the steamer has not been badly damaged.

ROOSEVELT AT PITTSBURG.

President of United States the Orator of Independence Day in the Strike Region—Cannot Yet Intervene.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 5.—Half a million persons greeted President Roosevelt in Pittsburg yesterday. President Roosevelt reached the city at 8.45 o'clock, and a President salute of twenty-one guns was fired in his honor. He was escorted to his carriage and almost immediately started for Schenley Park, accompanied by a military escort of 3,000 men.

When the head of the military escort reached a position opposite the speaker's stand, it was halted and stood in company front with arms at present. As the President and those in carriages passed in review the music was fairly drowned by the cheering of the multitude of 200,000 people in the stand and occupying vantage points on the amphitheatre-like hillside which rose in front. The Declaration of Independence was read, and then followed the oration of the day by the President.

President Cannot Move.

Washington, July 5.—The President said yesterday that he had yet found no means whereby he could intervene in the coal strike. The President has had before him for several days the report of Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright.

It is stated on good authority that Mr. Wright had informed the President that there is at this time no warrant for the interference of the Chief Executive. The President, nevertheless, is anxious to find a way, and it is hinted that Colonel Wright has pointed out to the President the contingencies under which he may act and that the President will watch the situation daily with the avowed purpose of taking a hand when the contingencies arise.

Move to Break the Strike.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 5.—Ten per cent. to all its workers was the advance given by the Erie Coal Company yesterday, and this plan, it is understood, will be followed by all other companies, there being an agreement to this effect. The increase, officially termed a "bonus," is a reward to men faithful to the company and an incentive to strikers to apply for work.

The plan was proposed by the coal carrying companies as one of the several they have for breaking the strike, and coming when there is much unrest among the men it bears out the hint given by operators of some aggressive move after the 4th of July.

RAIDED A POLICY SHOP.

One Hundred and Ten Men Found in a Montreal Joint.

Montreal, July 5.—Yesterday afternoon, Chief of Detectives Carpenter, Sub-Chief of Police Campeau and ten detectives raided the premises of La Compagnie du Cyclorama de Jerusalem, and seized all the paraphernalia for what is considered by the authorities to be an ordinary policy outfit. Messrs. John Darley and Casimir Beaudry were summoned to appear before the recorder this morning, and will be charged with being the managers of the company.

SIR WILFRID DENIES INTERVIEWS.

Statements Published in New York a Fortnight Ago Apocryphal.

London, June 28.—The Standard to-day says:—Sir Wilfrid Laurier resisted the efforts of the interviewer, remarking that he had never yet been interviewed by a press representative. He was, however, shown a statement from a London newspaper, which he was alleged to have made respecting the Alaskan boundary dispute, and some alleged agitation in Canada for union with the United States, both of which he said were apocryphal.

FIFTEEN PERSONS KILLED.

Frightful Trolley Accident Mars Fourth of July Celebration.

Schenectady, N.Y., July 5.—A despatch from Gloversville says that 15 were killed and 29 were injured last night in a wreck on Fonda, Johnstown and Gloversville Railroad, three miles from that city. As it was the Fourth of July, the cars were crowded with pleasure seekers, many of them prominent men. City Recorder Frank C. Wood of Gloversville had his back broken, and is in a very critical condition.

DeWindt's Prophecy Comes True.

San Francisco, Cal., July 5.—News brought by the steamer St. Paul from the Arctic says the English explorer, Harry DeWindt, and his party were picked up on the Siberian coast, probably at Indian Point, by the United States revenue cutter, Thetis, under the command of Capt. Healey, about the middle of June.

DeWindt is attempting to go from Paris to New York via the Eastern route, and, if he reaches Nome, he will be sure to succeed.

London, July 5.—On the day of his departure from London, DeWindt made this prediction:

"If the ice conditions in Behring Straits do not permit walking, a United States revenue cutter will pick us up, and news of the expedition may be expected in July, via America."

Separate Schools For Blacks.

London, July 5.—Speaking at a conference of teachers in the Government schools in the new South African colonies, says the Johannesburg correspondent of The Times, Mr. Sargant, Director of Education, said the colored children had as much right as children of other taxpayers to access to Government schools, and the Government recognized that it was its duty to provide schools for them. Mr. Sargant added that it was impossible to disregard the social usages of generations, and, therefore, in spite of the extra expenditure involved, separate schools, just as well equipped as those for whites, would be provided for colored children.

Miss Elizabeth Hesselman, Treasurer of the Neenah, Wis., Schiller Club, Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped Her Monthly Suffering and Improved Her General Health.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was always a healthy girl until about a year ago when I caught a severe cold coming home from a party. For months after that I was very irregular and suffered severe pains for a day or two. I lost flesh and strength, and became alarmed. My mother procured a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and I began to take it faithfully. I soon found that my general health improved, and within a couple of months I became regular to a day, and suffered no further pain, and several of my friends have been helped through its use since." — ELIZABETH HESSELMAN, 129 First St., Neenah, Wis.

SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1902.

AN OPPOSITION VIEW OF IT.

The Toronto News, (Conservative,) corcedes that the Ross Government holds the fort and is entitled to govern Ontario, to administrate the affairs of the Province. It says:

"The political situation in Ontario at the present time is, to say the least of it, rather mixed. The Liberal Administration has a numerical majority in the Legislature of one vote, which would disappear after the election of a Speaker. Consequently, unless the present majority is increased by elections made necessary by successful protests, the Government could not call the Legislature to meet, for its first official act would wipe out its voting majority and result in a deadlock. At present, however, having a majority, the Ross Administration is entitled to retain the reins of government.

Speaking of the possibility of a tie in the Legislature through North Grey, as a result of the scrutiny, going Opposition, the News remarks;

But even if that did happen the Ross Government would not necessarily have to resign. It's true the Government wouldn't have any majority in the Legislature, but Mr. Whitney would be in the same position. In such a case it would be the duty of the Lieutenant-Governor to call a new election in the province.

But even this is not likely to happen. There are thirteen protests now filed in the courts against the election of members in the recent campaign. Of these six are against Liberal members-elect and seven against Conservative members-elect. Some, perhaps all, of these protests are likely to be successful, and the relative standing of the two parties, will depend on the result of the bye elections which will follow. Then there is a bye-election in North Renfrew, rendered necessary by the death of the Liberal member elected by a majority of several hundred.

The News faces the situation boldly, and holds out no false hopes for its friends. The Ross Government is in power, and the results of the bye-elections likely to succeed the trials of petitions, will, no doubt, follow the general rule of going in favour of the party in power. In which case the Government's somewhat slender majority will be increased and they will probably meet the House with a fair working majority.

SUMMING UP THE SITUATION.

The Toronto Globe sums up the situation with respect to Imperial Preferential trade, as it views it, in a series of declaratory statements, fifteen in all. These are admirably lucid and concise, and some of them we reproduce below.

"Canada will rejoice to receive a preference for her products in the British markets, if without manifest coercion from the colonies that becomes the accepted policy of Great Britain.

"But with all our great natural wealth and potential industrial development, we cannot afford to clamour for doles from the Mother Country, and we doubt if true Imperial unity can be promoted by any policy which threatens to make the masses of Britain hostile to the outlying British kingdoms.

"We cannot afford to enter into an alliance with any British political party, nor demand favours at Westminster, which many leading British statesmen are certain to denounce as undue concessions to the colonies.

"An Imperial preferential tariff can be safely approached only upon the lines of remissions of taxation by Great Britain in favour of the colonies and remissions of taxation by the colonies in favour of Great Britain.

"Canada sympathises with Mr. Chamberlain's vision of absolute free trade with the empire, but recognises that for the present many of her industries cannot be exposed to the unobstructed sweep of British competition, and that we cannot conveniently raise by any system of direct taxation the millions of revenue that must be lost by the free admission of British goods.

"The old world spends its millions on militarism. The new world spends its millions on settlement and development. Canada should not be required to bear the double burden and meet alike the cost of militarism in Europe and the cost of development in America. Each, we repeat, is entitled to its advantages of its natural position and surroundings. It is unfair that Canada should be taxed for the support of the military armaments of Europe and just as unfair that the heavily burdened British Islands should be taxed for the defence of Canada. This should be the permanent condition, as each should exhaust its resources for the other in case its integrity were assailed by any hostile combination.

"The sovereignty alike of the Imperial and the colonial parliaments must be preserved. In popular sovereignty is the supreme efficacy of British institutions. How can we bind the colonies in advance to participation in all British wars; how bind Great Britain to inevitable sanction of all the demands of her outlying kingdoms? These issues must be determined as they arise. Our aid will be none the less intense and abounding because it is free of all taint of Imperial coercion. In the free action of all parts of the empire lies the best guarantee of harmonies and effective co-operation and the enduring stability of British institutions the world over."

ARRESTED, THEN RELEASED.

Neil McLean Has Troubles With Sheriff About Osborne Hotel.

Hamilton, July 5.—There has been a great deal of excitement around the Osborne Hotel yesterday. Yesterday afternoon Sheriff's Officer Stewart arrested on a capias Neil McLean, who has been in possession of the hotel for the past week. Hazell & Sons had the capias issued for an old account of $800 and a new one of $96. Later a settlement was affected, and McLean was released. He was soon in charge of the officer again. Alexander Patterson of the Royal Hotel being the plaintiff. Late last night McLean is in charge of a sheriff's officer and Detective Coulter. Allegations have been made and it was likely that before morning there would be important developments. McLean's trunks were seized at the G.T.R. station Thursday night, and, it is stated, he had made preparations to leave the city.

INSPECTION OF TENEMENTS.

An Interesting Article in a Prominent Magazine.

By Yokhanna Von Wagner, Secretary Inspection, Yonkers, N.Y.

"Tenement-House Inspection" is the name of a very interesting article that appears in the American Journal of Nursing of a recent date. The article is by Yohanna Von Wagner, Sanitary Inspector, Yonkers, N. Y., and is as follows:

Because so little is done to teach people in their homes how to better their condition, I am grateful for this opportunity to speak to you about my work in the tenement-houses as Sanitary Inspector.

While not every city has a tenement-house problem, every city has a housing problem, and it is the duty of the Board of Health to see that the homes of the working-classes are made at least healthful.

Organizations of public-spirited citizens should be formed, which, after acquainting themselves with local conditions, would revise building and sanitary codes and see to the enforcement of laws. Already this is done in New York, too late, to be sure, to eradicate the evil which a tenement-house is,—it is here to stay,—but an organization of men and women can do much to improve the homes of the poor. To be able to cope with such a problem, a thorough knowledge of existing conditions is essential. A house-to-house inspection will reveal, aside from existing facts, the wants and needs of the people.

Having been a tenement-house inspector for over four years, I am able to speak of the need and benefit of such work. It touches the people in their homes, and their lives can often be made brighter by helpful sympathy. From year to year it is harder for the poor man to live, and the daily complaint is that he cannot find rooms.

Twenty-five years ago the Chief of the Department of Health in Glasgow realized the need of women inspectors in connection with the Health Department, as only women could deal with women effectively, and ever since that time the work has been done there by women health visitors, as they are called.

The larger cities in England have followed the example of Glasgow, and there are several sanitary institutes in England where men and women are graduated to do the work of sanitary inspectors.

Several years ago in Chicago the Board of Health appointed women to inspect factories, sweat-shops, and tenement-houses, and five years ago Yonkers first had a woman tenement-house inspector, and it is almost two years since I was regularly appointed by the

and I can say without vanity that in no city is the work done so effectively as in Yonkers, because the qualifications which a nurse has enables her to do better than the average woman.

It would take too long to detail the combat gone through to get the appointment.

Landlords, politicians (members,) and employees of the Board of Health all fought against the woman inspector, and but for the members of the Board and one brave woman, Miss Mary Marshall Butler, president of the Civic League and Woman's Institute, who overcame all opposition, the appointment would not have been successful. After passing the civil-service examination the appointment was made, and in February, 1900, I commenced my duties as an employee of the Board of Health, as formerly I had done the work of the Civic League.

I will pass over the difficult task of working with the same people that fought so hard not to have me, and will only say that those same men are my best friends at present, and agree with the secretary, who said: "How did we ever get along without our woman inspector?"

The Health Officer said that he would like to have one woman inspector to every twenty-five thousand inhabitants. The president of the board said that the moral influence of a woman inspector in the department had been very beneficial. All this I say to show that the work has been appreciated by friend and foe and the need demonstrated.

In our beautiful Terrace City such bad conditions were revealed as to shock the whole community. Tenement-houses in Yonkers compare favourably with those elsewhere; we have all the evils of New York slums, only on a smaller scale. As a large proportion of our population lives in tenement-houses, the need for improvement was great.

The average tenement-house has deprived the people of light, air, and privacy; it has dark bed-rooms, with sometimes the worse than useless air-shaft opening into a common hall,—a hall which, on entering, sends a chill through one's bones; as a rule it is not ventilated, is very dark, unventilated toilets open into it, and the damp cellar air and odors from cooking and toilets which greet one on entering, are over-powering.

I begin my work in the cellar, much to the surprise of the people, who have neglected to clean it and stored all sorts of rubbish away in it. As a rule, that most important part of the house has also been neglected by the builder, light and air have not been provided for, and after a rainstorm it is very often flooded.

Right here I began to inspect the plumbing, and unless the house is new the pipes or construction are generally defective. I have to get a light to do this. When I go to the upper floors the living-rooms over the cellar are damp also and very unhealthy. The tenants have malaria, rheumatism, and tuberculosis, children have bronchitis and even up to the top floor all complain of ill-health.

I go through the rooms, seeing to proper ventilation, cleanliness, need of repair, and over-crowding; follow the plumbing up to the roof; see to the condition of the roof, fire-escape, hall, and toilets, and then inspect the yard, receptacles for garbage, pulley-line poles, cleanliness, and drainage.

I have witnessed scenes which cannot be described, and every day reveals new misery; the poor little children locked up in basements while both parents work in the mill; the household of the habitual drinking-woman, with neglected, vermin-covered children, six in one bed, poorly covered, looking like little skeletons; the consumptive's room, where bedding, floor, and furniture are covered with expectoration, where the children play on the floor, and wife and baby share the same bed; where, out of fear a contagious patient is hidden in a closet, and out of kindness a paralytic or any other bedridden patient is left alone for a month or two, never bathed, or body or bed-linen changed for fear of causing pain, and where bed-sores from shoulders to heels have become gangrenous.

It was at a small rear house where I knocked, perceiving the odor far off. "No admittance" was on the face of the woman who was supposed to care for the patient, but I managed to gain entrance, and only by the exercise of the greatest tact was I allowed to see the poor, sick woman and care for her—until death. The horrors of that sick-room I shall never forget, and I hope and pray there may never be another case like it.

The poor, the hungry, and the needy,—but it would take too long to speak of all the different phases.

The teachings of Christ are forgotten. We do not know how our neighbours live, and we would rather not know. Not charity, but justice, is needed.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects. The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active; the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. ATTACKED BY INDIANS.

Inmates of B.C. Fort Had Week's Seance With Redskins.

Vancouver, B.C., July 5.—The historic Hudson Bay fort, Saint James, British Columbia, was recently attacked by Indians, halfbreeds and thoroughbreds. Some of them were escaped felons. They killed the cook, chased the officials away and made a charge for the storehouse, the only entrance to the fort. They were met by a hail of bullets from the rifles manipulated by the factor board of the fort and a friend of the cook, who wished to avenge his death and had taken his place. The Indians retreated, but for a week made frequent sorties and charges in an attempt to get at the liquor and stores.

In the meantime, a friendly Indian was despatched to the nearest post for help. Police Officer McLean went from Quesnell alone in disguise, as a posse of police would have been attacked and perhaps murdered. Dressed as an Indian he entered the rear of the fort, and the three brave men of the fort made a night raid and boldly arrested three of the ringleaders. They took their prisoners to civilization to be tried.

DECLINE OF MENTAL AND PHYSICAL VIGOR IN THE HOT WEATHER.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Renews and Invigorates the Body and Maintains a Strong and Clear Brain.

Thousands of people in whose blood lurk the seeds of disease, decline mentally and physically when the hot weather comes on. They become weak, languid, morose, have loss of memory, loss of appetite with wasting of flesh. For all such, Paine's Celery Compound is an absolute necessity at this time. It is the only remedy approved of by able physicians for purifying and enriching the blood, for feeding and nourishing the nerves, for maintaining digestive vigor, for the building of flesh, tissue and muscle, and for promoting refreshing and healthful sleep.

If your condition of health is not satisfactory; if you are not happy, active and vigorous at present, try the virtues of one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound; you will have cause to thank Heaven that such a marvellous recuperator was placed within your reach. The following letter written by Rev. P. Rioux, of St. Anne's Church, Montreal, is convincing and comforting:

"I am fully convinced, both by personal experience and by the statements of many parishioners entrusted to my care, that the celebrated medicine, Paine's Celery Compound, deserves a high recommendation. I therefore willingly indorse the testimonials already given in its behalf."

Oxford's Bodleian Celebration.

The University of Oxford proposes to celebrate in October next the tercentenary of the opening of the Bodleian library, says The New York Evening Post. The commemoration ceremonies will take place on Oct. 8 and 9, and a very large and distinguished attendance of delegates from all parts of the world is expected at Oxford for the occasion. The Bodleian library was actually founded in 1598, but it was not opened till 1602 by Sir Thomas Bodley, who died in 1612. It contains over 500,000 volumes,

DOMINION REVENUE.

Condition of the Finances of Canada on 30th June Last.

REVENUE HEALTHY & BUOYANT

An Increase in Every Department Last Year—Some Figures Illustrative of Growing Time Paste addition to the Debt Two or Three Millions Less Than Anticipated in Budget Speech.

Ottawa, July 5.—Up to June 30th last the revenue of the Dominion on consolidated fund account was $56,-303,694, and the expenditure under the same head $42,255,316. This would give an apparent surplus of revenue of $14,000,000. The capital expenditure up to the same date was $11,532,155, and, deducting this from ordinary receipts and sinking fund, there would be a seeming excess of over $5,000,000 on the right side of the ledger. It should be remembered, however, that outstanding receipts and liabilities for the fiscal year just ended, amounting to large sums in the aggregate, have still to come in, so that when the books for the past twelve months are closed there will be a considerable change in the statement as it now appears. For example, last year the receipts which came in after June 30th amounted to $1,778,000, while the outstanding liabilities totalled $8,291,000, and the capital expenditure $1,560,000. This year, accepting those figures as a basis, the revenue will total $58,000,000, the ordinary expenditure $50,746,000, and the capital expenditure $13,-000,000. Deducting surplus and sinking fund from the capital expenditure, the net result of the year's operations, would be an addition of $3,000,000 to the public debt. It is quite probable that the capital expenditure may be larger than here estimated, but the addition to the debt is certain to be from two to three million dollars less than was anticipated by Mr. Fielding in his budget speech. The financial statement, as it stands at present, shows an increase over the preceding year in ordinary revenue of $5,567,000, in ordinary expenditure of $3,680,000, and in capital expenditure of $1,975,000. The healthy and buoyant character of the revenue is well illustrated by the following increases, the figures in each being for the twelve months and past month respectively:— Customs, $3,807,652, and $619,936; excise, $822,145 and $88,627; postoffice, $379,429 and $16,748; public works and railways, $678,264 and $69,515.

TRAFFIC ON SOO CANALS.

Tonnage This Year Has Surpassed All Previous Years

Ottawa, July 4.—The total freight carried on the Soo Canals east and west for June was 4,731,608 tons, an increase over June, 1901, of 202,583 tons, and over June 1900, of 614,-000 tons. The total for the Canadian canal for June was 1,118,560 tons, a decrease of 116,491 tons, as compared with June, 1901, but an increase of 823,000 tons as compared with June, 1900. During the season of April, May and June the total freight carried by both canals was 11,486,501, an increase of 4,-720,000 tons over the same period of 1900 and of 3,407,000 over the three months of 1900. The total trade through Canadian canal during the three months was 1,650,752 tons, a gain of 264,000 tons over the corresponding months of 1901 and of 970,000 tons over the same quarter of 1900.

Gypsies Field the Road.

Ottawa, July 5.—An extraordinary state of things on the Government canal reserve, three miles from the postoffice, is reported yesterday, and is being investigated. A gang of Roumanian gypsies has camped on the reserve near Dow's Lake, close to the road to Hog's Back, which is much used by citizens and a favorite drive. Information is given by well-known respectable citizens that the gypsies placed a rope across the road last night, stopped carriages and demanded money, in some cases dragging young men and women from carriages and threatening them with violence until they paid for their liberty.

Chicago Cattle Stampeded.

Chicago, Ill., July 5.—Panic stricken and bellowing, a big herd of cattle stampeded in the stock yards yesterday. Twenty-one of the animals met death in the rush. The scene was so terrible that stockmen and cowboys turned their eyes away. One man nearly lost his life. The herd contained more than 600 head. A closed gate caused the trouble.

Why Rheumatism is Like Catarrh.

Both are inflamations. The former of the muscle tissue, the latter of the mucous membrane. The only way to cure either is by a course of blood purifying and blood enriching treatment. Herrill's System Tonic is the most thorough blood purifier and at the same time the most rapid blood making remedy known. 50 pleasant-to-take doses for 50c. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

DRIVEN FROM HOME BY RIVER.

How Rose in the Night and Threatens the Dwellings of Calgary.

Calgary, N.W.T., July 5.—Moderate rain fell all day Thursday until about 5 o'clock, when it began to rain very hard, continuing nearly all the night. The Bow River rose rapidly during the night, and when morning dawned the river flats were a waste of swirling, rushing water.

Some people had moved out Thursday night in anticipation of a flood. Other houses were flooded out during the night, and the inhabitants had to be taken out in boats. Crowds of citizens gathered to watch the work of the rescuers. The firemen and mounted police rendered splendid service in this work.

The water is now within fourteen inches of high water mark of the great flood of 1892. People in the vicinity are preparing to move should the river rise higher. The rain has ceased and it is hoped that the river will not rise any higher.

A CRUEL TREATMENT.

Some Unfortunates Diet Themselves Almost to the Point of Starvation.

Food Distresses Them, Therefore They do not Eat—The Body Craves Nutrition yet the Stomach Refuses to Digest.

What is a Dyspeptic to do, when everything he eats gives him pain and distress.

Many answer this question by advising the unfortunate to abstain from food.

But he is ravenously hungry. His body craves the food necessary to sustain the strength for his daily labour, and not to eat means a constantly diminishing strength.

Physical weakness invites disease, and hampers and hinders in the race of life.

It is not necessary to live on a starvation diet in order to get rid of Stomach trouble.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets make it possible for the Dyspeptic to eat heartily, without any painful after effects.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a specific for diseases of the Stomach only.

They give instant relief, and if a full treatment is taken according to directions, they completely and permanently cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Bloating, Headache or other Stomach trouble.

You may feast without fear, if you are careful to take one or two of these dainty digestive Tablets immediately after each meal.

You may eat what you like for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest the food, every particle of it, without any assistance from the Stomach, and this complete digestion means an entire absence of all unpleasant symptoms.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have changed many a miserable sufferer to a healthy, happy man, or woman, capable of enjoying all the good things of life.

They are sold wherever medicine is sold, and thousands of living men and women to-day testify that they have cured their Stomach trouble, after everything else had failed.

A remedy which has an unbroken record of victory over all diseases of the Stomach, is surely worth the thoughtful consideration, and a fair trial by any one afflicted.

Women's National Council.

St. John, N.B., July 5.—Yesterday afternoon's session of the National Council of Women was almost wholly devoted to the discussion of the report of the Dominion Teachers' Association, and a paper on "Music, It's National Influence." A Dominion certificate for teachers, instead of a provincial certificate, was the theme of the first mentioned, and called for considerable discussion. Last night there was a public meeting.

Sanford Gains Daily

Paris, July 5.—At a public meeting called by Mayor Brown, held here last night, a citizens' committee was appointed to raise a fund for the benefit of Joshua Sanford and his rescuers.

Dr. Dunton, the physician in attendance upon Sanford, declared last night that his patient was mending every day, and he looks for his early recovery.

Josh Billings Said of Niagara Falls

that the reason why people liked it was "Because nobody kin make wun jest like it." For the same reason people like Four T's, the great guaranteed cough cure. It is the only lung remedy made that cures coughs and colds in two days with perfect safety. Children like it and it cures croupy coughs. Sold in 25c bottles by Ormond and Walsh, druggists.

Eggshells.

Housekeepers must remember that good eggs always have dull looking shells.

Smyrna.

Smyrna is the smartest looking town in Turkey so far as trade is concerned. It does a bigger business than Constantinople. It is the headquarters of the wool and of the rug and carpet trade.

A Powerful Explosive.

The most wonderful and the most powerful explosive known is said to be chloride of nitrogen. It is believed to be the only substance that will explode on coming in contact with a bright beam of light, whether the beam be from an electric light or the sun.

A Naval Prejudice.

There is a prejudice in the navy against giving a woman's name to a war vessel of any type. It is believed to be unlucky.

SNARES FOR THE SIMPLE

WHAT the brand,—"Joseph Rodgers, Sheffield,"—signifies on a knife blade, the slate frame brand of—"The Slater Shoe"—signifies on a shoe sole.

But don't confuse mere personal names with registered brands!

The advantage of a brand, depends entirely upon its record for merit, established by the years certain goods have been publicly tested under that brand.

And, when such a brand has become a passport to people's confidence, there creeps in a species of piracy, which trades upon that confidence by the selling of unknown goods, at a long profit, under some name which sounds like that of the brand.

This is how heedless Consumers are snared, and sold, and laughed at.

No purchaser should accept a blind excuse from a Retailer for the absence of the advertised trade mark, and the presence of something which resembles it superficially, but is not it legally.

There are thousands of men named "Rodgers," but there is only one standard brand of "Rodger's Cutlery," as there is only one standard brand of "The Slater Shoe."

If these words—"The Slater Shoe," are not stamped on the sole in a slate frame, it is not a genuine "Slater Shoe," and you buy it at your own risk.

The Slater Shoe Co. do not stand behind any but their own make—the shoe with a five year record of fixed value and uniform quality.

When you get the slate frame brand of "The Slater Shoe," stamped on the soles with the Makers price, you get the responsible, Goodyear Welted article.

Special Trains on the Grand Trunk on Circus Day.

The Grand Trunk Railway in order to meet the heavy traffic as well as to accommodate their patrons will run a special from Peterborough on circus day, Tuesday July 8th, leaving at 6.30 p.m. for Campbellford and intermediate points. This arrangement fills the requirements of the people in this district.

Fishing at Hastings.

A party of Peterborough fishermen went down to Hastings on the noon train yesterday and enjoyed a splendid afternoon's sport, each member returning with his full complement of twelve bass. The members of the party were unanimous in their praise of the appetising luncheon which Mr. Arthur Spellman of the Clarendon, got up for them at a moment's notice.

Excursion to Town.

Messrs. J. F. Leader and D. M. Speirs, representing Prospect Lodge, No. 314, I.O.O.F., Toronto, are in town to-day arranging for a three days' excursion from that city to Peterborough. The excursionists will leave Toronto on Saturday, August 2nd, and return on Monday, August 4th, Toronto's Civic holiday. The excursionists will come by the back route of the Grand Trunk Railway, and it is estimated that it will be a record breaker.

THE CEREAL COMPANY.

The Work on the Buildings Being Rushed Along.

The work on the buildings of the American Cereal Company is progressing quite rapidly just at present. The work of placing the machinery in the main building is being rushed along and this portion of the concern is assuming a rather finished appearance.

The new warehouse building which is being erected at the front of the main building will be a substantial structure. This building will blind up the front of the main structure for about three stories at least.

However, it is on the elevator at the rear of the cleaning house that great activity is noticed. The elevator building is being rushed up at the rate of 10 feet a day. Day and night shifts are employed, the night gang being provided with electric light in order that they may proceed as rapidly as possible with the work.

THE BAND CONCERT

Cut Short Last Night—South-ender's Letter.

The 57th Regimental Band concert was cut rather short last night by the rain which threatened to draw out the several hundred people who assembled in Victoria Park. The band played only two selections, after which an adjournment took place.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir, — Considerable dissatisfaction appears to exist amongst the townspeople regarding the hour at which the band concerts commence. There appears to be no reason why the programme should not start at eight o'clock, instead of half-past eight or a quarter to nine o'clock, as has been the case this summer. There was a time when the concerts did start at eight o'clock, but by the end of the present season, from all appearances, nine o'clock may be deemed early enough for a few. Why not have the programme start at eight o'clock, and conclude at half past nine? This would allow people living at a distance to reach their homes at a respectable hour.

Yours truly,
SOUTH-ENDER.

ALL SAINT'S PICNIC.

A Most Enjoyable Day Spent Down the River.

The annual Sunday school excursion of All Saints' church, was held at Jubilee per steamer City of Peterborough yesterday, and was largely attended, there being almost the boat's capacity on board. The day was ideal and the sail was thoroughly enjoyed.

After lunch at the Point, a baseball match between the Church Boys' Brigade and the Sunday School resulted in the winning of a good League ball by the Brigade by a score of 18 to 13.

The usual races were then run off, the winners of which were:

Infant class, Girls—Gertrude Rush, Alice Lundy and Helen Metheral.

8 years and under — Charlotte Dummitt, Rose Hillier and Stella Cuffe.

9 and 10 years — Olivia Cuffe, Eva Roadhouse and Marjorie Latimer.

11 and 12 years — Hazel Morris, Anna Cuffe, and Hazel Buller.

13 and 14 years — Lena Bestard, Annie Hillier and Pearl Foster.

15 and 18 years — Lily Dunford, Beatrice Besterd and Clara Scott.

Altogether it was one of the most successful of All Saints' picnics, for which also much credit is due to the officers and crew of the City.

DOWN THE RIVER.

Great Traffic on the Otonabee and Rice Lake Waters.

Mr. Wm. Collins, the genial lock master on the Otonabee River, reports a very brisk navigation season so far. The amount of excursions, etc., down the river has been exceptionally large and during the week Mr. Collins has locked through not less than 62 steamboats. This is a record breaker.

To-day every steamboat on the Rice Lake waters is in port. The City and North Star lay in dock all morning and started on their regular Saturday afternoon trip down the river at 2 o'clock. Both boats had a large number of passengers.

The Beaver, Water Lily and Rainbow made their regular market day trips to town.

The City has quite a few excursions booked for the coming week.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Miss Katharine Garvey and Mr. Richard Hefferman.

At 9.30 o'clock, on Tuesday, July 1st, Mr. Richard Hefferman, second eldest son of Mr. Thos. Hefferman, and Miss Katherine Garvey, second daughter of Mr. William Garvey, all of Caughnawaga, were united in marriage in St. Paul's church, Norwood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McNulty, in the presence of a number of their intimate friends and relatives.

The bride looked very sweet attired in cream cashmere trimmed with chiffon, and white chiffon hat. The bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Hefernan, sister of the groom, was gowned in pale green cashmere, with cream satin, velvet and ribbon trimmings, and hat to match. The groom was ably supported by Mr. David Garvey, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony at the church was over, the bridal party were driven to the home of the bride's father, at Caugnawaga, were after the customary felicitations were showered on the happy young couple they were ushered in a spacious dining hall, to be seated at a table of elegant refreshments, which was festooned with palms, ferns and ox-eyed marguerites. Among those present at dinner, were Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, P. P., of Ennismore, cousin of the groom, and Rev. Father McNulty, the officiating pastor. Both clergymen made neat and appropriate speeches, failing not to sound the praises of the groom and bride, both of whom were known to them from infancy.

The numbers increased the more rapidly as the day was leaving till their host of friends were all present and all remained to enjoy a night enlivened with unusual scenes of gaiety.

The bride's estimation in the eyes of her many friends could be judged by the varied collection of presents of a costly nature, presented her on this all important occasion, and could be better remembered than described.

Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan being so highly esteemed the settlement can congratulate themselves upon the fact that they are not losing either of them as they will settle down on Mr. Heffernan's beautiful farm "Maple Crown," lot 16, concession 5.

A SUICIDE IN MARIPOSA.

John T. Warder, a Well-known Farmer of Victoria County.

Took His Own Life Wednesday—Body Found Hanging in the Barn.

Mr. John T. Warder, a well-known farmer residing about 5 miles west of Little Britain, committed suicide on Wednesday afternoon at about 5.30 o'clock, by hanging himself in the barn. On Wednesday, Mr. Warder was assisting his hired men in haying, and about 3 o'clock in the afternoon he left the field and went to the house, telling the man he would return later. Instead of returning he secured a rope, went to the barn and committed the rash act.

Mr. Warder of late has been noticed to be a little melancholy at times. However, no person ever entertained a thought that he would take his life. Mrs. Warder was away at the time at a neighbour's, and as she did not intend returning until evening she had left the table set for her husband and the men to get their supper.

The body was discovered by the men about six o'clock hanging from a beam in the barn, and after cutting it down Dr. Hall was sent for. Upon an examination being made Dr. Hall said the neck was broken and that death must have been instantaneous. Under the circumstances he considered that an inquest was unnecessary.

Mr. Warder was 39 years of age, was a well-to-do farmer, and highly esteemed by his friends. He leaves a wife but no family. His wife was a Miss Braden, daughter of Mr. Jas. Braden, of Pinedale, Mariposa. Deceased was a member of Little Britain Lodge Canadian Home Circle, and that society attended the funeral which took place this afternoon at two o'clock to the Pinedale cemetery.

Mrs. Warder will have the sympathy of the entire community in her sad bereavement.—Post.

PRICE OF COAL.

Mr. Elias Rogers Received the Toronto School Contract.

From present appearances coal is going to be somewhat dearer this year than it has been for some time. The Toronto School Board recently advertised for tenders for the supply of coal for the schools of the city. The following figures were quoted; Straitsville, soft, $4.63; Pittsburg, soft, $4.73; grate, $6.10; egg, stove and nut, $6.30. There was a long debate on the possibility of lower prices after the settlement of the coal strike, but the board decided to take the best offer at present available. The successful tenderer was the Elias Rogers Company, and the contracts amounts to $40,200.

It must be remembered that the freight rate from Toronto to Peterborough is 75 cents a ton.

T. A. S. BEAT THE Y. M. C. A.

The Game Last Night on the Oval.

THE SCORE WAS 4 TO 2.

The "Y" Boys Played a Plucky Game and Showed Great Staying Powers.

LACROSSE.

A large crowd gathered on the Nicholls Oval Friday evening to witness the scheduled game in the City League between the Y.M.C.A. and St. Peter's T.A.S. teams which resulted in a victory for the T.A.S. twelve by a score of 4 to 2. Mr. Jack McCabe acted in the capacity of referee, and although the lot of that official is at all times a hard one Jack's decisions, whenever they were rendered were entirely satisfactory. The game was fast from start to finish, and was interspersed with brilliant combination work, close checking and occasional dashes of rough play. "Love-taps" were administered quite freely, but the players took to them as a duck takes to water, and it kept the referee hustling to consult the revised statutes governing his duties to see wherein the players violated the lacrosse commandments. But only two players lingered at the side during the progress of the game, and that was for indulging in a rib test with their sticks. Some of the players bear marks of the struggle, Pennick and Robertson being particularly unfortunate in this regard, having received cuts from which the claret trickled quite copiously. But mistakes like this occur in the best regulated family, and the best of good feeling existed amongst the players throughout the game.

The Y.M.C.A. team was an exceptionally strong one, in fact it is considered the strongest twelve which that organization has put on the oval this season. And the quality of lacrosse was also considered the best. Captain Robertson played a cool, steady and scientific game, and was ably assisted by Foreman, Pennick and Jack McDonald. Smith, on the defence, also played an excellent game, as did Trollope and Best. In fact the whole team had on their working clothes, and every player did his prettiest.

The T.A.S. team was also in fine shape. Several changes had been made in the line-up. McNichol and McCoy was removed from the home out to the centre. Derocher was also moved farther out and Mahoney and Lynch moved in on the home. Ed. Hickey, one of the old guard, figured in Fred Derocher's old position on the defence. F. McCoy and E. McNichol played an exceedingly fine game at centre, and Jimmy O'Brien in goal played phenomenal lacrosse. Lou McCoy and Geo. Lynch on the home had some heavy men for company, but they played a rattling game. In fact the same tribute can be paid to the T.A.S. players as was paid to their opponents, as every member of the team played excellent lacrosse.

The following was the line-up:

Y. M. C. A.	T. A. S.
goal.
Ellis	O'Brien
point.
Smith	Hickey
cover point.
Trollope	McDonough
1st defence
Frost	Meagher
2nd defence.
Dumble	Crowley
3rd defence.
Galley	Derocher

McDonald	McNichol
1st home.
Robertson	F McCoy
2nd home.
Foreman	Mahoney
3rd home.
Pennick	Gorham
outside home.
Best	Lynch
inside home.
Angleayc	L. McCoy
field captain.
R. Glover	Joe Picard
umpire.
H. Taylor	F. McGrath

NOTES.

Messrs. Geo. Lynch, F. McCoy, J. Gorham and E. McNichol tallied the four goals for the T.A.S., and Messrs. Frost and Best did the trick for the Y.M.C.A.

Fred Smith was welcomed on the field again last night, having fully recovered from injuries received some weeks ago.

R. J. Frost is fast shaping into his old-time form, and there is plenty of lacrosse in his constitution yet.

The people have a tendency to crowd in on the field at the different games, interfering in no small degree with the players. Last evening Jack McDonald collided with a spectator, who was a little too fartin on the line.

Jack McDonough, the bantam-weight on the T.A.S. team received an injury on the arm during the game, as did F. McCoy.

Mr. Fred Lynch, of the New Westminster team, was an interested spectator on the oval last evening.

The Athletics and T.A.S. come together next Wednesday evening.

A special meeting of the II Y.M.C.A. team is called for next Wednesday night at 9 o'clock, in the parlours of the Association. A full attendance of all members is requested as business of importance will be transacted.

On the Murray street school ground next Thursday evening the II T.A.S. and the II. Y.M.C.A. Lacrosse Teams will cross sticks. The game will no doubt be an interesting one.

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star says:—A good exhibition game took place in Peterborough on Dominion Day between the T.A.S. club of that place, and Cobourg, the former winning by 2 to 0. During the first quarter T.A.S. scored a goal, but did not score another until the last quarter. T.A.S. had a good team, their home displaying very good combination work. Cobourg's defence played a fine game, Pringle, Hitchins, McCaughney and Byam playing well. McCallum also played a fine game in goal. Cobourg was weak in the field. During their stay in Peterborough the club were well treated by the T.A.S. officials. The Cobourgs wish to thank Mr. Williamson, secretary of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., for his kind treatment of them both before and after the game on Tuesday, by allowing them the use of the baths.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

The two rinks which have been selected to go to Toronto on Tuesday and represent the Peterborough Club in the bowling tournament for the championship of the Dominion were selected yesterday and last night were pitted against each other for practice. An idea of the evenness of their strength may be gained from the fact of the score being a tie when the fourthteenth and concluding end was played.

Skips Dixon and Elliott had a very close game in the scheduled series resulting as follows:

E Runnals	R H Bradburn
G K Martin	W F Johnston
E B Stone	W Rudkins
F J Bell	W G Ferguson
F H Dixon, sk...13	A Elliott, sk...10

A JULY WEDDING.

A very pretty event took place at the residence of Mr. George Long, Ashburnham, yesterday, it being the marriage of his eldest daughter, Miss Maud, to Mr. William Peace, of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham. The house was prettily decorated with ferns and roses. The bride was attired in a travelling suit of ashes of roses, trimmed with all-over lace and appliques. She wore a picture hat to match. The bride was attended by Miss Mary McWha, who was daintily attired in white organdy and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Robert Long, brother of the bride, acted as groomsman. After a very sumptuous repast the young couple left on the 4.45 C.P.R. train for Toronto, where they will reside in future. They will take up their residence at No. 854 King street, west. Amongst the many presents received was a handsome sum of money, the gift of the bride's father and father-in-law.

SMITHTOWN ROADS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like to know if the Township of Smith are aware of their responsibility in the maintenance of their roads, as anything more dangerous than the condition of the Mud Lake road and the road from Auburn up to the water works can't be imagined. A pile of broken stones laid on the middle of the road and a ditch at either side of the narrow way, one risks a broken neck at each turn out, and goodness help them at night. The fact is, they leave the travellers to complete at their risk the levelling off and rounding up of the roads. This should not be. An action at law would soon straighten the matter out, and teach these would-be road makers their responsibilities.

Yours,
YANKEE.

MATTERS MILITARY

BY SENTRY.

The Annual Inspection of the 57th Regiment, which will take place on Thursday night of next week, promises to be one of more than ordinary interest. Firstly, it is to be held in the evening, when the townspeople will have an opportunity of witnessing the event, and secondly, the manoeuvring will be of a more exciting nature than heretofore. The manoeuvring will take place in Ashburnham, and Armour's Hill will be attacked by the Regiment, while the 14th Field Battery will form the defence. Both bands will be in attendance, and will accompany the boys in red across the river. Every member of the Regiment should be on hand, and the Rangers should make a very credible showing. Lieut.-Col. Montizambert, D. O. C., Kingston, will be the inspecting officer.

Lieut. W. C. Ackerman will be in command of the section of the 14th Field Battery which will defend the hill. He has applied to Kingston for blank ammunition, and no doubt a desperate fight will be waged. The 57th will be divided into three sections, and the hill will be attacked from the north, west and south. The only possible retreat of the enemy to the east will be cut off by the canal, which is supposed to be full of water.

The opinion appears to be unanimous that the Cavalry camp at Kingston this year was one of the best that has been held in years. This cannot surely be ascribed to the fact that there were no infantry men in the brigade. However, seriously speaking, it is conceded that the men were given an exceptionally careful training during the twelve days that they were under canvas. The new establishment of the Dragoons was not up to full strength, and the Colborne squadron was decidedly weak, having a parade state of about twenty-five officers and men out of an establishment of 70. This, however, in no way reflects upon the strength or popularity of Capt. McLaughlin with his men. On the other hand, he is to be highly commended upon the pluck he displayed in turning out a squadron at all, and what men he had were of a very excellent type. Capt. McLaughlin is a Bowmanville barrister. He only received his commission a year ago, and had attended but one military camp. Both Major Brown, who for years commanded the squadron, and Capt. Rogers, who is still in command, are in South Africa, and although only slightly acquainted with his men, and living at a long distance from the squadron's headquaters, Capt. McLaughlin showed up at camp with his squadron, without a single other officer in it to assist him, and managed to pull through in a manner that won for him many complimentary references from brigade officers, his fellow Dragoon officers, and the men under him. It is Capt. McLaughlin's intention to transfer the equipment for one troop to Bowmanville. One of the troops of the Colborne squadron will be raised there. This seems to be an excellent plan, and might be more generally adopted. Now that the establishment is increased to in the neighborhood of 70 men in each squadron, the headquarters of the various troops that go to make up that squadron might be located in nearby towns and villages, and the establishment of the Regiment might be recruited at all times to full strength, and at the same time with the picked men of the district.

One of the most important lessons of the South African war is that a soldier who can shoot straight is a more useful man than one whose sole qualification is a knowledge of the drill book. In looking back, it is a great wonder that the soldiers of the Empire accomplished as much as they did in South Africa. Too much attention has always been made to the Red Book, and too little to the business end of the rifle.

The present Minister of Militia and Defence, Sir F. W. Borden, deserves the honours that the King has shown him not only in his good work in dispatching the Contingents, but also for the way he has encouraged rifle shooting. The Militia of Canada owe a great deal to the men who stuck nobly to the king of all sports when it was not at all popular, even among the Militia. These men, who were called Pot Hunters, form the nucleus of the large number of good shots we have to-day. In the 57th there was a time when 30 rounds of ammunition a year was furnished by the Government to train soldiers, but, to the credit of the Regiment, they purchased out of their own funds extra ammunition to give each man a chance to learn to use the tools he had to work with.

The local rifle association deserves a great deal of credit also, in view of the fact that the present range was built and equipped by them. There has been a steady increase in the interest taken in shooting here, and at the ranges. Every Saturday this season there have been three and sometimes four targets busy. In some of the companies of the 57th 50 per cent. of the men have fired over 30 rounds, making increased scores at each practice. In the Rangers at the present time, 20 per cent. of the men could be rated as first-class shots.

No. 4 Company of the 57th Regiment is now the weakest company numerically speaking that there is in the Peterborough Rangers. This is to be regretted, as a little over a year ago No. 4 prided themselves in being second to none in the Regiment. The present small parade state is not due to any dissatisfaction in the ranks, but entirely to hard luck—No. 4 has, to use a slang phrase, been "up against it." They have suffered most deplorably by the removal from town of some of their best men, which has been almost sufficient to dishearten the remaining members of the Company. Within the past year they have lost Sgt. Paterson, Sgt. George Burnham, Sgt. Jackson, Corp. Revell, Pte. Tommy Burnham, Pte. Morden, Pte. Milne Hamilton, Pte. George Dawson, Pte. R. N. Bell, Pte. R. Henderson, and Sgt. Paddon has taken his departure for the remainder of the military season at least. The men just mentioned all took a deep interest in the Company; most of them held excellent certificates, and all were splendid shots. It is hoped that No. 4 will pull through the present crisis and soon be recruited up to full strength.

Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards, commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, has intimated that the annual trip of the Regiment will likely take place on Labour Day. This should prove to be a most opportune time for the men to have an outing, and there will likely be a good representation of all ranks. There has as yet been no intimation as to where the Regiment will go for their trip.

While the Campbellford rifle association were shooting at the butts recently, a ball glanced from the target and struck the marksman, T. J. Taylor, inflicting a severe wound in the right side.

An officer who is receiving all kinds of praise for his excellent work during the recent cavalry camp is Capt. W. T. Hall. Major D. W. Johnston has acted in the capacity of adjutant of the 3rd Dragoons since the removal from Canada of Capt. R. A. Cockburn. This year, however, Major Johnston was assigned to the position of Brigade Major, and Capt. Hall was appointed acting adjutant. In addition to the regular duties attached to the office of adjutant, Capt. Hall found attached to his new office the work that was formerly performed by the paymaster. There being no paymaster on the establishment of the Dragoons, the duties are supposed to be performed by the second in command of the Regiment, which in this case would have been Major Johnston. However, as previously stated, that officer being attached to the brigade staff, Captain Hall found his duties onerous in comparison to what they ordinarily would be. However, he was equal to the occasion, and displayed good judgement in the many important questions that from time to time are left to the discretion of the Adjutant.

There appears to be no doubt now that the entire Canadian Field Force in South Africa, with the exception of the Constabulary, will be home inside of a month or six weeks. The Militia Department has received caple instructions from Cape Town to stop the further allotment of pay to the families of the men of the 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th Canadian Mounted Rifles. Col. Pinault signed his last check for allotted pay yesterday morning. The cable is taken on to mean that all four regiments will soon start for home. We may expect the entire Peterborough Contingent here before September 1st.

The Toronto Globe says editorially: "It will be satisfactory for the women of Canada to know that the President of the Johannesburg branch of the Loyal Women's Guild is Mrs. Greenwood, daughter of Sir Henri Joly. Mrs. Greenwood is the wife of Lieut.-Col. Greenwood, district engineer and manager of the railway system of which Johannesburg is the centre. Lieut.-Col. Greenwood went out as an officer of the Canadian Dragoons, but Lord Kitchener took advantage of his technical knowledge and put him in charge of the railway lines of the conquered territory. The special mission of the Loyal Women's Guild at present is to care for the graves of the British dead. This work is being energetically looked after. In an address at a recent meeting Mrs. Greenwood hoped that their numbers would be increased to a thousand before next year."

Why ALABASTINE Should be Used for Tinting and Decorating Walls and Ceilings.

1. IT IS SANITARY. Physicians say "The walls of a room to be healthy must breathe." Alabastine being a porous cement, permits the free passage of air.
2. IT IS PERMANENT, and hardens with age, entirely different from kalsomine preparations.
3. EASILY APPLIED. Anyone can brush it on—no one can rub it off.
4. CONVENIENT, as it is ready for use by the addition of cold water.
5. IT IS ECONOMICAL, costing for material less than one cent per square yard for plain tinting.
6. LABOR SAVING, as it admits of re-coating from time to time as is necessary to renew, doing away with the nasty mess of washing off kalsomines and scraping off wall paper.
7. HANDY TO GET, as it is for sale by hardware and paint dealers everywhere. Never sold in bulk.

Painters, write for our free offer "Two Good Things" and book of instructions how to use ALABASTINE. Address

The Pretty Woman's Doctrine.

Beauty's only skin deep, so they say;
Ah, well, that's plenty deep enough for me.
They'll ne'er get me to give myself away
While the surface still is beautiful—to see.

Woman's Way.

He—Come, now, Julie, you've got to make up your mind whether you prefer my company or Mr. Smith's.

She—I can't, really. Whenever I'm with one of you I prefer the other!

Toys.

Betzer—Why do you have iron bars in front of your kitchen windows and doors?

Shemster—To prevent the escape of the cook.

A Law of Nature.

Their knowledge not to show
Than it is for one fool not to hide
That which he doesn't know.

Health and Hope.

"He who has health has hope; and he who has hope has everything." But hope flees at the approach of kidney disease with the dreadful pains which accompany it. MY COUNTRY.

My country is the world; I count
No sons of man my foes,
Whether the warm life currents mount
And mantle brown like snow,
Or red, or yellow, brow or black,
The face that into mine looks back.

My native land is Mother Earth,
And all men are my kin,
Whether of rude or gentle birth,
However steeped in sin;
Or rich or poor, or great or small,
I count them brothers, one and all.

My birthplace is no spot apart,
I claim no town or state,
Love hath a shrine in every heart,
And wheresoe'er men mate
To do the right, and say the truth
Love evermore renews her youth.

My flag is the star-spangled sky,
Woven without a seam,
Where dawn and sunset colors lie,
Fair as an angel's dream,
The flag that still, unstained, untorn,
Floats over all of mortal born.

My party is all human-kind,
My platforms, brotherhood;
I count all men of honest mind
Who work for human good,
And for the hope that gleams afar,
My comrades in this holy war.

My heroes are the great and good
Of every age and clime,
Too often mocked, misunderstood,
And murdered in their time.
But spite of ignorance and hate,
Known and exalted soon or late.

My country is the world: I scorn
No lesser love than mine,
But calmly wait that happy morn
When all shall own this sign,
And love of country, as of clan,
Shall yield to world-wide love of man.

Said a Case of St. Vitus Dance Could not be Cured.

Called One Day and Found the Patient Ironing and Learned That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had Succeeded Where Other Medicines had Failed.

The sufferer from St. Vitus dance, even in a mild form, is much to be pitied, but when the disease assumes an aggravated form the patient is usually as helpless as an infant, and has to be watched with as much care. St. Vitus dance is a disease of the nerves and must be treated through them, and for this purpose there is no other medicine in the world acts so speedily as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Proof of this statement is found in the cure of Miss Louise Luffman, whose home is at Poucher's Mills, Ont., who was cured by these pills after two doctors had failed to benefit her in the least. The young lady's mother tells the story of her daughter's illness as follows:—"I do not think it possible anyone could be afflicted with a more severe form of St. Vitus dance than that which attacked my daughter Louise. Her arms and legs would twitch and jerk, her face was drawn and finally her left side became numb as though paralyzed. Two doctors attended her, but their treatment not only did not help her but she grew steadily worse. Her tongue became swollen, her speech thick and indistinct, and she could neither sit still nor stand still. She could not hold anything in her hand and it was necessary to watch her all the time as we feared she would injure herself. The last doctor who attended her told me she would never get better, and it was then that I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After she had taken two boxes we could see an improvement in her condition. Her appetite improved, she could sleep better and the spasms were less severe. From that on there was a marked improvement in her condition and one day the doctor who had said she could not get better called while passing and found her ironing—something she had not been able to do for months. I told him it was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that was curing her and he said, "Well, I am surprised, but continue the pills, they will cure her." She used in all eight or ten boxes and is now as healthy a girl as you will find anywhere, and she has not since had a symptom of the trouble."

If you are weak or ailing; if your nerves are tired and jaded, or your blood is out of condition, you will be wise to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which are an unfailing cure for all blood and nerve troubles. But be sure you get the genuine, with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Too Regular.

"For ten years," said the new partaker at a boarding house, "my habits were as regular as clockwork. I rose on the stroke of 6. Half an hour later I sat down to breakfast. At 7 I was at work, dined at 12, ate supper at 6 and was in bed at 9:30. I ate only healthy food and hadn't a sick day in all that time."

"Dear me!" asked the deacon in sympathetic tones. "And what were you in for?"

An awful silence ensued.

Meat Eating.

Meat eating reached its greatest height in this country, and to its excess are charged the prevalence of rheumatism, gout and kindred evils and the consequent heart difficulties which annually mow down too large a proportion of the population.

Glazing Pens.

The glazing of pens, in some varieties considered an important operation, is done with ice dissolved in naphtha.

Blighted by Blood.

Traditions are common in western Kansas of trees suddenly dying without apparent cause after having been used as gallows for lynchings. Many are said never to have leaved again after this experience.

Coffee Test.

To test coffee grind and over one tablespoonful pour one cup of cold water. If the coffee colors the water slowly and floats, it is pure; if it sinks to the bottom and the water immediately is stained brown, you may feel sure there is some other adulterant in it.

THE POET LAUREATE.

Mr. Alfred Austin, the Present Holder of the Office, Talks Interestingly About His Post and Work.

Mr. Alfred Austin, Poet Laureate, contributes a special preface to the American edition, which explains his opinion of his own post. He writes:

I have long observed that the only way of addressing the American people that is agreeable to them is to do so with unhesitating frankness, and as that mode of address is, if we may say so, as congenial to the present writer as it is to themselves, he is going to avail himself of it on this occasion. There are many persons who imagine that the office of Poet Laureate is a mere court appointment, and that the holder of it is expected, on stated occasions, to publish courtly sentiments in verse, and as this conception is calculated to prepossess American opinion against both, he wants to assure them that it is a wholly mistaken one. Do they think, had such been the nature and responsibilities of the office, it would ever have been offered to a man of such manly independence of character as Walter Scott, or is it to be supposed that such men as Wadsworth and Tennyson would have accepted it without hesitation, had any taint of courtly servility been attached to it? But, as a fact, it was expressly understood, when Southey was nominated to the post, that, whatever might have once been its supposed functions and obligations, these had altogether passed away, thanks to one of those unwritten, but none the less operative, modifications that are continuously taking place in the British constitution and British society, and when the present writer had the honor, however undeserved, of being nominated as Tennyson's successor, it was in writing communicated to him, with that spontaneous graciousness of language which was one of the distinctive gifts of our late beloved and revered Queen, that she was quite sure he would know when best and how best, to give expression to national sentiment.

"In this spirit," Mr. Austin goes on, "the honor was conferred; in this spirit it was accepted." But, this being so, he feels that whenever the Poet Laureate expresses the racial thoughts and racial sentiments of the British people, he must perforce be expressing those of the American people no less. How can it be otherwise? To enforce the answer to the question as succinctly as possible, may it not be said with absolute truth that both speak not only the same language, but pursue the same ideal. Like the Knights of the Round Table of old, "they both go in search of the modern Holy Grail—the freedom, the dignity, the intellectual evolution of mankind."

Mr. Austin adds that he is no "courtly convert to sympathy with the people and policy of the United States." He is gratified to be able to remember that search would in vain be made among his writings, whether in verse or prose, since first he began to publish what he wrote, now nearly fifty years ago, for any sentiment or word of his wanting in appreciation of the American people.

A Story of Bret Harte.

The London Daily Chronicle tells the following story about Bret Harte It seems that during his early years he had an engagement to attend the opening of a new saloon in Market street, San Francisco. The interest did not begin till after 11 p.m., and Mr. Harte was late in getting back to the Chronicle. The night editor had gone, leaving word that Mr. Harte was to hand in his half-column to the foreman printer without editorial revision. Mr. Harte had taken particular pains with his copy, which was really funny. Beginning in grandiloquent terms he described the new premises accurately enough. Then he came on to the good cheer, then to more good cheer, his praise of the refreshments piling up stage by stage, till it wound up in incoherency. It was an exact portrayal of the stages of a man's mind passing from exhilaration to intoxication. Looking for his article next day Mr. Harte found half-a-column of descriptive matter as dull as ditch-water. He inquired. "Well, Mr. Harte, said the foreman, "I killed it. You must have had a terrible skinful last night. It's lucky the old man wasn't about when you got back, for if there is anything he's down on it's drink." Poor Bret Harte, who expected San Francisco to laugh over his little article, went sadly away—the more sadly as at that time of his life he was a teetotaler!

Bean Superstitions.

Every lover of rare and curious information knows that most of the ancients were "dead set" against the beans, but no modern unraveler of old time mysteries knows why. It may be truly said that there are but few philosophers of the present day that "know beans." Pythagoras admonished his pupils on what grounds no one knows. He was also authority for the old time superstition that any sentence written in bean juice could be seen plainly reproduced on the disk of the moon.

Andrew Lang said that the ancient folklore of beans is a most curious and interesting topic, because it seems wholly out of the question that we should ever understand what it was all about. Demeter was the patroness of all fruits and vegetables but the ancients considered it impious to attribute to her the discovery of the bean. Heraclides, on the authority of Orpheus, declared that beans buried in manure piles forthwith became human beings.

The Way to Move Them.

A street preacher in a city in Scotland called a policeman who was passing and complained about being annoyed by a certain section of his audience and asked him to remove the objectionable persons.

"Weel, ye see," replied the cautious officer, "it would be a hard job for me to spot them, but I'll tell ye what I'd dae if I were ye."

"What would you do?" eagerly inquired the preacher.

"Just gang roon wi' the hat."

The Giant Ferregus.

The giant Ferregus, slain by Orlando, the nephew of Charlemagne, was twenty-eight feet high and so heavy that no horse could be found that was strong enough to bear him.

Horseflesh.

Russian physicians assert that horseflesh is more nutritious than beef.

THE ENGLISH CLIMATE.

It Is at Once the Worst and the Best in the World.

Of all known climates the English is, says John Corbin, at once the worst and the best. From year's end to year's end the whole island and the heavens above are steeped in the soft damp of the surrounding seas. A long and drenching rain is almost unknown; if a man can forego the vanity of being quite dry, and is not above an occasional retreat into a cab, an umbrella or a raincoat is scarcely necessary. Yet the sky is never crystal clear, as it so often is with us; the sun seldom dazzles, the stars never flicker and blaze. Month in and month out all the landscape is blurred in all pervading damp—thin, almost imperceptible in summer, yet changing the verdure to an olive green; azure and opalescent in spring, purple in autumn, golden gray or lurid dun color in winter. And frost and snow are as rare as the heat of pure sunlight.

The defects of this climate are at one with the virtues in that they drive men into the open; indeed, it would not be easy to say what are defects and what are virtues. The temperance of the summer heat makes out of doors a paradise. In the winter one is chilled to the bone in English houses—not only American residents, but the natives themselves, if they stay long indoors. The coal consumed seems enough to heat the entire island to incandescence, yet such is the efficiency of the open fireplace of the country that the man who crouches before it goes blue in the lips and white to the roots of his nose, while the particles of half consumed carbon gather minute globules of mist above the chimneys, shroud the city in a black natural fog, and the citizens in a fog of the spirit.

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

To Clean Brass.

When cleaning brass, better results are obtained if the discolored articles are treated to an application of a salt and vinegar solution before the usual brass polish is used.

British Fisheries.

Fish to the value of £10,000,000 is landed in the United Kingdom annually. This unsown harvest of the sea is gathered by some 74,000 fishermen.

Pungent Cresses.

Pungent cresses are of two varieties. The water cress grows freely in wet places and is one of our most common and popular salad greens. It belongs to the mustard family. The cultivated cress is larger and more tender than the wild. The garden variety is known as pepper grass.

The Butternut Tree.

The butternut is a tree that likes best a rocky, uneven soil and in whose shade neither shrub nor herb will thrive. The bark is used as a dyestuff for woolens.

Voices Reversed.

Among birds that have the power of imitation the parrot is the best, but as a matter of fact its voice is decidedly inferior to that of the mynah, a species of starling. Curiously enough, the male bird speaks in a high, clear tone, like that of a child, while the female has a gruff voice.

Swiss Exports.

Switzerland is, population considered, the greatest exporting country in the world, not even England being excepted, and its exports are almost exclusively manufactured articles.

Legs so Swelled He Couldn't Walk.

Kidney and Urinary Troubles Were Followed by Dropsy —A Perfect Cure by

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

This case of Mr. James Treneman, the well-known butcher, of 536 Adelaide street, London, Ont., is another proof that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are effective in the most severe and complicated diseases of the kidneys.

The double action which this famous prescription has on both the kidneys and liver is in a large measure responsible for its wonderful curative effects. When there are backache, frequent, difficult or painful urination, dropsical swellings, biliousness, constipation or stomach derangements, you may depend upon it that the kidneys are clogged and the liver sluggish.

It is at such times that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prove themselves prompt to give relief and certain to effect a cure. The evidence to prove this fact is simply overwhelming.

Mr. James Treneman states: "Two years ago I was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. Besides the pain and inconvenience caused by these troubles I became dropsical, and my legs would swell up so that I could scarcely go around at all. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I procured a box and continued the use of this valuable medicine until now I can say for a certainty that I am entirely cured. I never took any medicine that did me so much good, and am firmly convinced that if it had not been for this medicine I would not be working to-day.

As a family medicine of tested and known worth, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have never been approached. They act directly on the kidneys and liver, regulate the bowels and ensure the perfect action of the digestive and filtering systems. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 2

THE LORDLY MOOSE.

Habits of This Splendid Game Animal—The Way It Is Called, Killed or Trapped.

The history of the moose is interesting. When the snow has left the ground entirely bare late in April or early in May, the moose migrate from their winter haunts and approach the marshes, ponds and rivers, where they search for their summer food, consisting of the various aquatic plants which flourish there. Their favorite diet is the water lily, which they browse as soon as it makes its appearance on the surface of the water, always wading deep into the water and dragging up the plant by its root, and frequently keeping the head for a minute and more at a time under the water. When they cannot obtain the water lily they feed upon the rushes.

About this time or a little later the females go apart, seeking the most impenetrable thickets, near or bordering on the water and there bring forth their young. Animals 2 years old never produce more than one at a birth. Those of 3 years old and upward almost always produce two, and occasionally, though rarely, there are three little ones at a birth. As the season advances the moose frequent water more and more, often remaining in it for hours at a time in the heat of midsummer, not only to enjoy its cooling effect, but also to escape the plague of flies, from which they are great sufferers. There are huge insects that burrow deep into the flesh of the moose to lay their eggs.

A heavy thunderstorm seems to afford the acme of enjoyment to the moose. They swim back and forth during its continuance, apparently in a high state of delight.

The female, during her visits to the water, hides her young with great care to protect them from the ferocity of the old males, who are unnatural parents and would destroy them. The mother generally selects a very dense clump of large bushes, or a spruce thicket, which, from its density, prevents the male from reaching them.

The horns of the bull begin to sprout in April and grow very rapidly. Generally in September they have lost their mossy covering, or, in other words, are out of velvet. At this period the males are frequently very fat, and generally fierce and savage, ready to attack man or anything else that stands in their way. In the course of a few weeks, they grow thin and poor, because of their continual roaming and their many combats, and the fact that at this time they also refuse food. At this period the loud bellow of the male is frequently heard and distinguished by the hunter, at a distance of two or three miles, in the stillness of the night. The bulls make another noise, which, from the nature of its sound, the hunters call chopping. It is produced by forcibly bringing together and separating the jaws in a peculiar manner. This, as its name implies, resembles the sound of an ax used at a great distance.

The call of a cow, which the hunter imitates usually through a horn or trumpet made of birch bark, is a series of grunts or groans, winding up with a prolonged dismal, and rather unearthly roar, which, in calm weather, can be heard distinctly two or three miles away. One peculiarity of the moose is that he can go straight to the point whence the call proceeds even after a considerable time has elapsed and without a repitition of the sound to guide him.

From the middle of September till toward the end of October is the season for moose calling, and the full of the moon is the best time, for the bulls seldom come up to the call before sunset, and if the night be dark, the hunter often fails to see the game that has come to his call sufficiently well to be able to take aim. Most of the success in hunting moose by call is had in the half hour between sundown and dark. Later than that, even with good moonlight, one cannot make sure of his shot. A still, frosty evening is best for then there is less opportunity for a good scent. Many a moose is lost by his crossing the tracks of the hunter in his approach. For this reason, whenever practicable, it is best to call from a canoe, paddled up to and concealed in a little island or point on a lake or river. Sitting in a spot like this for the greater part of a night is sometimes a severe tax upon the patience of the hunter, who may repeat his calls at intervals of a quarter of an hour or so, and get no response but the dismal echo of his dismal call, repeated here and there through the woods.

On the other hand, there is nothing more exciting than to hear a moose slowly approaching through the woods. One is sometimes kept on the tiptoe of expectation for half an hour or even longer. The stillness after sunset is so profound that the slightest movement is distinctly audible.

Sometimes the moose answer to the call much more readily than at other times. A young bull has been brought up by the sound of tearing the birch bark off a tree to make a horn. He heard the noise and came up, doubtless taking it for the noise sometimes made by a moose in tearing the bark from a tree with his horns.

The most successful callers of moose are Indians; and it is an education to hear their low, half-suppressed call, which is sometimes needed to bring a very old bull within range. These low calls, uttered when the moose is pausing, uncertain whether to come or go, close to the caller, yet not within shot, require the greatest skill; a false note and all is lost.

The old bulls are very pugnacious at this season and fight desperately and sometimes to the death. Instances are on record in which rival lovers, lured from different directions by the call of a cow moose or the hunter's counterfeit, have charged so violently upon each other that their horns have become interlocked and they have died without getting free.

Much has been written by sportsmen and others about the delicacy of a steak from a bull moose. Nothing can be more deceptive. Its flesh at this season is no more fit to eat than that of a domestic bull. The meat of the cow moose is really delicious in the fall of the year, and no beef is more juicy or tender than the meat of a dry cow moose at this season.

In view of the slaughtering of these animals in the past in all parts of Canada, it is remarkable that they have not all gone the way of the North American bison. Nothing but their concealment in the fastnesses of the Canadian forests of the far north has saved them from extinction. Instances are not wanting of 50 or more of them being killed at one time by the same party of Indians, merely for their skins.

The cunning of the Indians in taking this splendid game is illustrated by the story of one of them who found three moose swimming upon a a lake, and killed them all single handed, though he had no firearm of any description with him. He paddled as fast as he could alongside one of them, and threw his blanket over the animal's head. Leaving this one to swim about, he gave chase to another, came up to him, threw his coat over his head, and left him to swim about, too. He then gave chase to the third, and after killing it came back and despatched the other two.

The West Indian Volcanoes.

The volcanic outburst in the West Indies and the response along the corresponding line of torsion around the earth is accounted for in Lowthian Green's theory of the formation of continents advanced in his book, "Vestiges of the Molten Globe." Green conceives of the earth as infolding upon itself in the gradual process of cooling, in the form of a six-faced tetrahedron, the ocean forming the sphere and the continental projections the protuberances of the faces whose geographical distribution has been determined by the law of the rotating sphere, the different parts of which have concordant velocities. The diminution of the velocity in the northern protuberances caused by increasing distance from the centre, and at the same time an accession of velocity in the southern protuberances, would cause a rupture and account for that remarkable circumferential depression marked by the Gulf of Mexico, the Mediterranean Sea, the Persian Gulf and the Australasian Archipelago. If the theory be correct that line of torsion is not likely to ever be a permanent or safe home for mankind.

What Ethan Allen Said.

A lecturer on the mistakes of history says that Ethan Allen did not utter at the taking of Fort Ticonderoga the ringing phrase associated with that event in the mind of every schoolboy. Instead of informing the British commander that he demanded the surrender of the stronghold "in the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress," he shouted, "Come out of that, you old rat!"

The Boundary Line.

A well known judge on a Virginia circuit was recently reminded very forcibly of his approaching baldness by one of his rural acquaintances. "Jedge," drawled the farmer, "it won't be very long 'fo' you'll hev to tie a string around yer head to tell how fer up to wash yer face."

The Modern Method.

"I am writing a story of a struggling inventor."

"It won't do," answered the abruptly critical friend. "Inventors don't struggle nowadays. They let the people who are eager to buy stock do the struggling."

Your Biography.

Here is your biography in a nutshell: "Born, welcomed, caressed, cried, fed, grew, amused, reared, studied, examined, graduated, in love, loved, engaged, married, quarreled, reconciled, suffered, mourned and forgotten."

Jenny—Face powder! She ought to belong to the Plasterers' union.

RATTLESNAKE FLAGS.

After the rattlesnake had been adopted as an emblem and had appeared on the flags of several of the colonies Benjamin Franklin defended the device on the grounds that the rattlesnake is found only in America; that all serpents' emblems were considered by the ancients to be symbols of wisdom; that his bright, lidless eyes signify vigilance; that he never attacks without first giving fair warning of his presence; that his rattles, while distinct, are so firmly joined that they cannot be separated without being ruined forever, and that as he grows older the rattles increase in number, as it was to be hoped the colonies would.

Indeed this idea was made use of in a flag device which represented a rattlesnake with nine joints, each joint lettered with red silk. The head was marked "N. E." (New England), the remaining sections "N. Y." "N. J." "Pa." "Md." "Va." "N. C." "S. C." and "Ga." This curious standard was discarded for the one made by Mrs. Ross in Philadelphia in 1777, a flag similar to the United States flag of today, only with fewer stars.

Only Pursuing His Profession.

A Brooklyn magistrate recently had four darkies who were caught in a gambling raid before him. The first of the lot to be brought to the bar was an undersized man, with a comical face, as black as night. The dialogue between the magistrate and the prisoner created some merriment in the court.

"What is your name?" inquired the magistrate sternly.

"Mah name's Smiff," replied the darky.

"What is your profession?"

"I'se a locksmiff by trade, sah."

"What were you doing when the police broke into the room last night?"

"Judge, I was pursuin' mah profession. I was makin' a bolt for the door."

"Officer," said the magistrate, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "lock Smith up."

The Agonizing Pains of Rheumatism.

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Augustus—Weally, my boy, I can't say that I've made much progress so far, but I believe I've hit on the right idea now. Do you see this dawg?

"Of course. What a delightful pug! Just like the one Miss De Rich admired, by the way."

"It's the very one, my boy. She went into ecstasies over it at the dawg show."

"Ah, I see. So you've bought it for her?"

"No, for myself."

"For yourself? What good can that do you?"

"Why, my boy, can't you see? Bai Jove, the dear girl will have to take me or lose the dawg, you know!"

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

What He Had Read.

An unlettered Celt's application to the Philadelphia court of naturalization resulted in the following dialogue:

Judge—Have you read the Declaration of Independence?

Applicant—No, sir.

Judge—Have you read the constitution of the United States?

Applicant—No, sir.

Judge—Have you read the history of the United States?

Applicant—No, sir.

Judge—No? Well, what have you read?

Applicant—Oi have red hair on me head, your honor.

A GIGANTIC NEW INDUSTRY.

The Canadian Cordage Company Utilizing Over an Acre and a Half of Floor Space.

10,000 POUNDS OF BINDER TWINE PER DAY.

This is the Output Already, but, by the Fall it Will be Increased to 20,000 lbs, and There Will Also be About 18,000 Pounds of Rope and Cord Manufactured per Day—$300,000 of the $400,000 Capital Already Paid up—Stupendous Business Operations Already Undertaken.

There might have been a few citizens who cavilled at the action of the Council in granting a $4,500 building site to the Canadian Cordage Company, together with the concession of partial exemption, as an inducement to have the headquarters of the corporation located in Peterborough, but it would be a difficult proposition at the present time to find a single ratepayer who is not now thoroughly in accord with the policy which was pursued by the council in connection with the matter.

On the vacant block of land bounded by Aylmer, Perry, Bethune and Lake streets, which was handed over to the company, great buildings have sprung into existence, almost as quickly as though placed there by magic, and already the air resounds with the clatter and crash of the powerful machines, as they create an output of ten thousand pounds of binder twine a day.

Visitors who have been accorded the privilege of passing through the buildings, are amazed at the magnitude of the enterprise, which has sprung up in such a marvellously short space of time. Ground was not broken for the foundations until the snow flew last year, and yet the company has now over 60,000 sq. feet, or nearly an acre and a half, of floor space at its disposal. This statement is hard to realize, but a visit to the works reveals other things just as wonderful.

The main factory of the company is completed and consists of a preparation room, 122 feet by 73 feet, connected with a motor house 12 feet by 12 feet, in which is placed a 75 horse power motor; a spinning room, 150 feet by 90 feet, connected with a motor house 12 feet by 12 feet, in which is placed a 200 horse power motor; a rope room and bailing room 130 feet by 90 feet, connected with a motor house 12 feet by 12 feet, in which is placed a 100 horse power motor; a machine shop, 50 feet by 45 feet, in which is placed a ten horse power motor. The boiler house and hot air room is 40 feet by 40 feet, in which is placed a 30 horse power motor, and is complete. A steel oil tank has been erected in a brick house 16 feet by 16 feet, and has a capacity of 16,000 gallons of oil. The warehouse is 50 feet by 264 feet. A tar house is now being erected for the manufacture of tar rope for laths, etc. It will be 160 feet long by 40 feet wide. The buildings are built of solid brick and are one storey high, the main building being 16 feet at the walls, rising to 40 feet at the top, with a great lantern roof that extends the whole length. An office building, 30 feet by 48 feet, two storeys high, will be erected in front of the main buildings this summer if the ground space which has been set aside for this purpose is not needed for buildings to accommodate more machinery, which it is more than probable will be the case.

The buildings were laid out by the manager, Mr. W. T. Clarke, in almost exactly the same form as the big McCormack Cordage Factory, in Chicago. The big 260 foot storehouse, which runs along the west side of the lot, is divided into two compartments—one for the raw material and the other for the finished product. It forms one side of the great oblong square, in which form the buildings are laid out. From the north end of the immense storehouse, the raw material passes by means of carriers into the preparation room, where it is oiled, and passes through the first grade of preparation by being combed into long sinewy coils. From these machines it passes on to others, where the strands are drawn out to a finer and finer degree, until they are spun into binder twine, and wound on spindles, from which the cord is drawn by machines, and wound into the balls, in which form it goes to the consumer.

By the adoption of the very latest and most modern methods of handling the raw material, and putting it through the various stages required, a bundle of manilla or sisil can pass from the store house and be turned out as the finished product, bagged, labelled and ready for shipment in an incredibly short space of time.

The process of manufacturing is most interesting to watch. The raw material is received in the form of fibre and is classed in three grades—Manilla, from Manilla and the Philippine Islands; sisil, from Yucatan and Mexico; and New Zealand, from New Zealand. For the manufacture of the best class of binder twine the pure manilla is used, and for the cheaper grades the sisil and New Zealand, in certain proportions, the quality of the finished product becoming coarser as the quantity of the latter fibre is increased.

Though only half of the binder twine machinery, which will be required, is in operation, and none of the rope or tar rope machinery is yet placed in position, sixty hands are already employed, under Superintendent C. F. Holmes, who has gained a large experience in the business through a long association with some of the largest factories in the United States. It is estimated that when the works have been fully completed, over two hundred hands will be employed, and the output will be 20,000 pounds of binder twine and about 18,000 pounds of rope and cord per day.

The company at the outset secured Mr. W. T. Clark as manager. He has a wide and varied experience in the cordage business, having been for years in the fibre business in the Philippine Islands and Yucatan, and also in the cordage business as superintendent of the Pearson Cordage Works, of Xenia, Ohio. The foremen of the different departments are all men who have a thorough knowledge of the business and have gained their experience in some of the largest and best equipped cordage factories in the United States, which have the reputation of turning out and making first-class twine, rope, etc.

Stockholders will be interested in learning that the Canadian Cordage Company possesses many advantages over competitors in the business in the matter of producing equally as good twine at a much smaller expenditure. Amongst these advantages are the following, which demand a special claim for consideration:

1. The company have entered into a contract with the Otonabee Power Company, Limited, whereby they get 440 electrical horse power, for the purpose of driving the machinery in their factory, at the rate of ten dollars per horse power per annum. Steam power usually costs about $35 per horse power per annum. The company, therefore, saves $25 per horse power per annum, or in round numbers $11,000 per annum on the item of motive power alone. The chief competitors use power generated by steam.

2. The company have also a contract with the Otonabee Power Company, entitling them to be supplied with thirty additional electrical horse power for lighting their entire factory, ware houses, boiler houses, tar house, offices and other buildings. By reason of having such cheap power the company makes a saving of at least $500 per year in lighting their premises, over current prices.

3. The company have put in the Sturtevant Air Heating System. The heat is forced through the buildings in large pipes, by a fan eight feet in diameter. The fan is run by a 30 horse power electric motor. This additional horse power is also furnished by the same Power Company at $10 per horse power per annum. It is the most up-to-date, economical and efficient system of heating a large building that is known. The company estimate that a saving of $500 per year will be made in heating the premises.

4. The company have obtained a bonus of $4,500.00 from the town of Peterborough with which the present site was purchased, containing two and and a quarter acres, between Lake and Perry streets, and between Aylmer and Bethune streets in Peterborough.

5. The company also obtained a by-law from the Town Council of the Town of Peterborough, which has been ratified by the ratepayers of Peterborough by a large majority, and subsequently ratified and approved by the Legislature of the Province of Ontario, fixing the company's assessment at $4,500 for all purposes, and granting to the company exemption from taxation upon their buildings and machinery for municipal and public school purposes. On this item the company estimate they will effect a saving of at least $1,700 per year in taxes.

6. The company have put in their factory the latest and most improved automatic sprinkler system that can be obtained for fire protection. In case of fire, the heat from the fire melts the caps on the small sprinklers that are distributed eight feet apart throughout their entire buildings, and the water automatically rushes out without any action on the part of anyone. Each department of the factory is separated by fireproof doors, which automatically close by the heat in case of fire. Fire extinguishers are placed in different parts of the buildings, and three street hydrants are on the streets adjoining the factory. The boiler for heating purposes is completely isolated; the electric motors are isolated in small motor houses adjoining the factory. The entire buildings are completely isolated by streets on all sides, and are laid out with a view of getting the cheapest insurance rates. They have not a large 600 horse power boiler to increase their risk from fire. The company estimate that the system which they have adopted for fire protection will save the company about $1,500 per year in insurance premiums on buildings, machinery and stock.

7. The company are in a position to get cheap freight rates into and out of Peterborough, on their raw material and finished products, on account of the fact that the works are close to both lines of railway, namely, the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific Railways, and they have secured a railway siding immediately adjoining their warehouses.

8. The company further possess the local advantage of being the only binder twine factory in a very large grain growing district of the province of Ontario, thereby giving it a special advantage over its competitors in such district.

9. This company now already has in the neighbourhood of 4,000 shareholders in different parts of Canada, who are interested in its success, and who will use its twine, and recommend it to others, thereby making for the company a most valuable good will and tending to do away with expensive agents and sellers.

10. The location and arrangement of the buildings are most complete throughout, being laid out on a principle to save the least possible handling in the process of manufacture, and in receiving the raw material and shipping their finished products. Their raw material comes in by the carload, is landed in the warehouse, and thence it is taken to the preparation room; thence to the spinning room adjoining, and thence to the bailing room and rope room adjoining, and from thence the finished product will be taken by carriers into the particular part of the storehouse where it should go. These carriers will be operated by electric power, and it is estimated that the services of four men will be dispensed with, thereby making a saving of about $1,800 a year in wages. In these several respects the company claim they will save many hundreds of dollars per year in handling and cartage in the operation of their factory.

The binder twine machines have been made by Messrs. Fairbairn, Lawson, Combe, Barbour Co., Limited, manufacturers of cordage machinery, Belfast, Ireland; The Hoover and Gamble Co., of Miamisburg, Ohio; and John Lloyd, manufacturer, of New York. This machinery was ordered and made expressly for the company, and is the very latest and most improved binder twine machinery that is made in the world. A duplicate order for similar machines has been placed with the same companies for delivery about the 15th of July. The rope machinery was manufactured by the Lockwood Manufacturing Co., of Boston., and is now being installed. The tar house machinery is being built by the Hoover & Gamble Co., and will be ready for delivery about the 15th of July. By combining the business of manufacturing binder twine, rope and cordage, and putting in the capacity for manufacturing which the company are putting in, the greatest efficiency, flexibility and economy is obtained in the operation of the factory, and the output of the factory in any one line can be substantially increased by lessening the output in some other line.

The Canadian Cordage Company already ranks high amongst Peterborough's substantial manufacturing industries—as a matter of fact it stands third in capitalization, the Canadian General Electric Company, and the American Cereal Company, being the only two concerns which can claim precedence in this respect. The management of the company is also in the very satisfactory position of being able to state that of the $400,000 capital, $300,000 is already paid up. A guarantee of careful and judicial management is found in the composition of the directorate, which includes Mr. Adam Hall, as President, and Messrs John Lapg, M.P., and Thomas Elzard, ex-M.P.P., as Vice-Presidents. An idea of the general interest in the welfare of the company which is entertained from one end of Canada to the other, may be gained from the fact that already advisory boards, composed of the leading agriculturists, have been established in the counties of Peterborough, Lanark, Durham, Hastings, Renfrew, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Victoria, Simcoe, York, Lennox, Addington, Ontario and Dundas, as well as in the districts of Delorsime, aMn.; Carberry, Souris, Man.; Pontiac, Que., Amherst Island, and other places.

Miss Dillwyn Snubbed in Public.

Miss Dillwyn of Swansea, Wales, has in turn written novels, acted as reviewer for The London Spectator, served as a farm bailiff and is now the partner in a flourishing spelter business. She walks three miles to business every morning and remains at her office daily from shortly after 9 in the morning till 5 in the afternoon. She is a member of the school board and chairwoman of the hospital committee. She has one remarkable weakness. She is a lover of the "weed" in the form of cigars and makes no secret of her pleasure in smoking. She carries a cigar case and has even been seen in public with a cigar in her mouth. "I like to smoke," she says, "and I see no objection to it. I always smoke openly. I do not believe in women smoking in secret."

A Whistler Story.

An artist recently returned from abroad is responsible for this Whistler story: "The sometimes amiable J. MacNeill had been invited to inspect a canvas by one of the younger impressionists. The characteristic Whistlerese judgment was being passed, when the culprit—for such he had been made to feel—broke in with: 'Oh, it's only a potboiler. Simply intended to keep the wolf from the door.' 'Ah, I see,' said Whistler. 'I suppose you hang it outside the door.'"

NORTHWEST FRUIT.

May Rival Crop in Ontario—Interesting Paper by Dr. Saunders.

The Geological and Biological section met immediately on the adjournment of the main body of the Royal Society of Canada in Toronto recently, and during its session Dr. Saunders read his paper describing experiments in plant breeding at the experimental farms. He described the work that was being done by the farms in endeavoring to stock Manitoba with a hardy variety of fruit. They had introduced the Siberian apple, which bears a fruit little larger than an Ontario haw, and crossed it with the Ontario apple. The result was an apple about an inch in diameter. About four hundred of these had been crossed, and last year they had thirty trees bearing fruit. This year about seventy would be producing fruit. Seedlings were being raised from the crosses, and these were being again crossed with the Ontario fruit. They retained the hardiness of the Siberian apple, but the more they were crossed the nearer they came to the Ontario fruit.

It had been found impossible to raise gooseberries because of rust, but hardy varieties were secured, and two at least are now doing well in the west. A cross between the black currant and the gooseberry had also been crossed, but very few of the bushes, although blossoming profusely, bore fruit. The fruit that was produced was of the size of a large black currant and the color of a gooseberry.

An attempt had been made to cross the sand cherry, which is found edible in some parts of the west and in others not edible, with the Ontario cherry, but had been unsuccessful. A cross between the sand cherry and two varieties of plums had been tried; both were successful. The fruit produced from this cross was smaller but possessed the characteristics of the ordinary plum.

According to Dr. Saunders' opinion it will yet be possible to produce hardy varieties of all the more common Ontario fruits, which will thrive in the Canadian North West. Then, in addition to being the greatest wheat-producing region in the world, it will also rival the older provinces as a fruit producer. This time is believed to be not far distant either, as grafts from the present apple trees are being forwarded to farmers throughout the province.

Chemical Value of the Body.

An ingenious chemist has made the claim that the average human being is worth about $18,300 from the chemical standpoint. His calculations are based on the fact that the human body contains three pounds and thirteen ounces of calcium, and calcium just now is worth $300 an ounce.

Nature to Help Nature.

The stored up health you get in out-of-door summer pleasures is lastingly beneficial because of the oxygen you have added to your blood. Oxygen is blood food and tissue nourishment; it also exerts an antiseptic action in the body, destroying disease germs. Powley's Liquified Ozone increases the oxygen-carrying power of the blood; assists the body in storing up health energy. Any germ-produced or chronic ailment can be benefited by Powley's Liquified Ozone. Severe types, like consumption, Bright's disease of the kidneys, blood disorders, may yield slowly. Ordinary summer sickness responds quickly to Powley's Liquified Ozone treatment. It is most valuable for dysentery, diarrhea, cholera morbus and cholera infantum. CHEERFUL AND FEELS STRONGER

Queen Alexandra's Happy Message to the President of the United States—King Gratified That His Dinner to London's Poor Was So Unique a Success—Description of the Great Feasts.

Washington, July 5.—The President has received the following cablegram from Queen Alexandra:

"London, July 4.— The President, Washington:

"The King is most grateful for kind sympathy. He is, thank God, getting on very favorably now.

(Signed.) ALEXANDRA."

London, July 5. (10.12 a.m.)—The following bulletin regarding King Edward's condition was posted at Buckingham Palace at 10 o'clock this morning: His Majesty had another excellent night. He is cheerful and feels much stronger. We are glad to be able to state that we consider the King now out of danger. The evening bulletins will, therefore, be discontinued. (Signed.) Reeves, Laking, Barlow."

London, July 6.—The following bulletin was posted at 9 o'clock this morning at Buckingham Palace: "The King's progress continues to be in every way satisfactory. (Signed.) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Good Progress Sunday.

Although no more evening bulletins regarding the condition of King Edward are to be issued, it was announced at Buckingham Palace this evening that His Majesty had made good progress since morning, and that he was much gratified with the accounts he received of the successful carrying out of the plans for the dinners for the poor in London. The King received many telegrams of thanks and congratulations from the scene of these festivities, declaring that the pleasure of the occasion was vastly enhanced by the tidings that His Majesty was out of danger.

On his arrival at York House this evening, after a long tour of the many dining rendezvous, the Prince of Wales telegraphed to the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, that the program was everywhere carried out without a hitch. The Prince in this despatch commended all the mayors and all others concerned for the excellency of the arrangements for the dinners and thanked the people for the hearty welcomes accorded himself and the Princess.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the general chairman of the feast, has transmitted his thanks to all responsible for the organization of the feasts for their painstaking devotion in carrying out the wishes of the King.

The appearance of Queen Alexandra as she drove out in an open carriage for an hour this evening, accompanied by some of the royal guests at the palace, occasioned enthusiasm in the park and in the streets which Her Majesty traversed.

FEASTS FOR THE POOR.

His Majesty Spends $150,000 in Providing Them With Substantial Two Course Dinners and Presents.

London, July 7.—About one-tenth of the population of metropolitan London enjoyed the King's hospitality, and at least eighty thousand attendants waited upon them at eight hundred feasts in the twenty-nine boroughs.

The statistics of this unexampled bounty to the London poor might be extended to the mileage of the tables, the tonnage of the provision consumed and many other details; but the spirit of loyalty and affection of the masses for their Sovereign could not be summed up in cold figures, nor could the perfection of the organization with which the general scheme of the entertainment has been worked out be disclosed in this way.

Every onlooker at these dinners was impressed with the heartiness with which the King's health was drunk and his special message received and with which the National Anthem was sung. The King, in consequence of his illness, command without doubt the sympathy of the masses to an exceptional degree.

The largest company of diners at any one place was at Fulham, where the Bishop of London said grace and the Prince and Princess of Wales were spectators. The greatest number under a single roof was 10,500 at the factory of the London General Omnibus Company, where Princess Christian was warmly welcomed. Thirteen members of the royal family were indefatigable in visiting as many dining places as possible.

The same general order was followed at the eight hundred dinners. There were two courses, one with a choice of four or five kinds of meat and vegetables and plum pudding for a sweet, and ale, beer, cider and ginger ale were served, and every guest had a little smoking. There were presented, to the women and children a quarter of a pound of chocolate and a souvenir coronation mug. Thousands of well-to-do women waited on them, and eighteen hundred musicians, singers, reciters and other artists entertained them. To every man was presented a package of cigarettes and another of tobacco, but there was entertainments at more than half the dinners, Arthur Roberts leading the way at the great hall of the Law Courts and the grounds of London Hospital, and nearly all the concert singers and music hall artists of London offering their professional services. Most of the professional performers had the good taste to appear handsomely dressed, as though they were entertaining West End drawing-rooms instead of the poorest people of London.

The entertainments provided for the King's six hundred thousand guests were enjoyed even more heartily than the excellent dinners, and masses and classes were brought into sympathetic touch at the close of the interrupted coronation festivities.

King's Message.

At every gathering was read a message from the King to the poor, sent through the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, as follows:

"Buckingham Palace, 11.20 a.m.

"I am commanded by the King to inform Your Lordship that His Majesty and the Queen had intended visiting some of his coronation dinners to-day, and he deeply regrets that his illness prevents their doing so. The King deputed members of his family to represent him at as many of these dinners as possible. I am further commanded by the King to express his hope that his guests are enjoying themselves and passing a happy day.

(Signed) Knollys."

Germans Cheer For King.

Travemunde, Germany, July 7.—After awarding the prizes to the winners in the North German Association yacht races here Saturday, Emperor William read a telegram from King Edward's physicians announcing that His Majesty was out of danger and called for three cheers for the King, which were heartily given.

Injured in London.

Belleville, July 7.—Word has been received here of a serious accident to James Johnson, brother of ex-Mayor Johnson. He was knocked down by a cab in London, England, and for a time his life was despaired of. Mr. Johnson was formerly editor of The Ottawa Citizen and The Kingston Daily Whig.

The Pope's Jubilee.

Rome, July 7.—The Pope's jubilee in honor of the 24th anniversary of his coronation, was celebrated last night by fetes at the Vatican

EXPECTS VICTORY SOON.

What President Mitchell of the Miners Said to Them Sunday.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 7.—It is the opinion of mining men that the backbone of the strike is broken, while the leaders of the strike declare vigorously that their ranks are solid.

President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers delivered an address before the striking firemen, who held a meeting in this city yesterday. If President Mitchell's remarks are to be taken as the sentiment at strike headquarters, then there is little probability that the miners are yet willing to give up the strike. Mr. Mitchell said:

"Of all the strikes of my recollection, or of any that I have ever participated in, there never was one I was so confident of winning as this one. And let me tell you that the day is not far away when my words will come true. One thing I wish to impress upon you people, and that is, this great strike will never be settled with my consent only on condition that each and every man that has left his place with us in our battle shall be returned to his former position; otherwise there shall be no settlement that will permit discrimination for taking an active part in our battle."

3,000 to Strike in Chicago.

Chicago, July 7.—The freight handlers, numbering nearly 9,000 men, employed in the different railway warehouses and depots in Chicago at a special meeting last night, decided to go on strike within 48 hours, to enforce their demands for higher wages.

To Fill Strikers' Places.

Winnipeg, July 7.—The Canadian Northern brought in sixty men Saturday night to fill the places of strikers. These men came by boat from Fort William, and the car was switched into Canadian Northern yards, where the company will house and look after them. The strikers are confident that they will induce many of them not to work, and if any have been brought from the States they will likely get the authorities after the company for violating the Alien Labor Act.

DAMAGE FROM LIGHTNING.

Farmers in the Township of Pickering Suffer Considerably.

Brougham, July 7.—The thunderstorm which raged here Friday night and Saturday, has done a great amount of damage to the crops. Hay is suffering to the greatest extent from rot.

An implement shed on the Forsythe farm, near the village, occupied by William Cassie, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. The loss is about $500; no insurance.

The barn of James Ogilvie, half a mile west of Ashburn, was also struck by lightning and totally destroyed; two cattle were burned; loss over the amount of insurance about $1,000.

A freak of the lightning is to be seen on the barn of R. S. Phillips, just south of here. During the forenoon, lightning struck the barn, knocking in the end and tearing up the roof, but did not set fire to it.

LORD GREY SUNSTRUCK.

Unfortunate Hitch in Cecil Rhodes' Scholarship Arrangements.

London, July 7.—An unfortunate hitch has occurred in the arrangements regarding the Cecil Rhodes' scholarships, owing to the illness of Lord Grey, who suffered a slight sunstroke in the Channel Islands this week. Serious complications were at first feared, but Lord Grey will be well enough July 8 to go to the Continent, though perfect rest is enjoined. As Lord Grey is spokesman of Mr. Rhodes' executors, several meetings and an informal discussion by the colonial premiers and others now in London regarding the best method for selecting candidates, etc., have been temporary postponed.

Justice Richardson Stricken.

Winnipeg, July 7.—A Regina, N.W.T., despatch says: Justice Richardson has been stricken with apoplexy and lies in a critical condition at his home. Drs. Bell and Graham were at his bedside all night.

The Hon. Hugh Richardson practised law in London and Woodstock, Ont., till 1872. He went to the N. W. T. in 1876. In 1887 he was a judge of the Supreme Court of the N.W.T. He is now chief justice. He presided at the trial of Louis Riel. He is now 76 years of age.

Once a Champion Oarsman.

Toronto, July 7.—Thomas T. Tinning, who has for the past 70 years resided in the city died on Sunday. In his early days Mr. Tinning was instrumental in saving the lives of many crews of vessels shipwrecked on Lake Ontario and Humber Bay, for which he received many handsome testimonials, also certificate of heroic conduct from the Royal Humane Society.

He was champion oarsman of Canada for some twenty years, and at Lachine rowed a championship race witnessed by the present King of England, then Prince of Wales, and whose personal congratulations he received. Mr. Tinning leaves one son, W. K. S. Tinning, of H. M. Customs.

Great Britain and Ireland import about 265,000,000 pounds of cheese each year. Canada supplies about 60 per cent. of the whole.

LENNOX AND NORTH GREY.

The attitude of the Conservative press toward Mr. Justice Maclennan is interesting. They find his judgment on Lennox exceedingly satisfactory, and that on North Grey quite unsatisfactory. In the case of Lennox they concede that he is a just and upright Judge; in North Grey their criticism is as hostile as they dare make it. Because the Judge was unable to find upon the most flimsy and imperfect evidence, or rather upon no evidence at all, that the "machine" had ruthlessly broken into the ballot-boxes and destroyed Boyd ballots, they quarrel with the judgment and insist that, notwithstanding the Judge's plain and common-sense view of the affair, there was fraud and manipulation in order to cheat the Conservative candidate. But they find it exceedingly difficult to argue that a Judge who was so thouroughly conscientious and impartial in Lennox could proceed immediately to take on a partisan character and give an unjust verdict in another constituency. The people will probably conclude that the judgment in each case was impartial and judicial, and that a good deal of laboured Conservative attack has been effectively answered by Mr. Justice Maclennan's rational observations on the disputed North Grey ballots.—Globe.

CANADIAN BANKS.

Two shrewd Japanese gentlemen are now in Canada to study the Canadian banking system. What they will learn is what even a good many many Canadians do not known — the principles, laws, methods and results, and other chief features. They will learn, as pointed out by the Insurance and Finance Chronicle, that our banks are operated and chartered under an Act of Parliament which gives them certain privileges and imposes certain restrictions. No new bank can be established with a less capital than $500,000. It is allowed to circulate notes to the extent of its paid-up capital, and these notes are a first charge on all its assets, besides which the banks have to deposit with the Government 5 per cent. of their circulation as a further protection to note holders. They may receive deposits to any extent, and these funds enable them to extend the accommodation and loans and discounts to customers. Our banks, therefore, act as the distributors of the surplus, the stored capital of the people; they act like a system of reservoirs in a water supply, by collecting what would otherwise have little or no utility, and economically distributing it according to the needs of the community. The banks of Canada have branches spread all over the country, which receive local deposits, and make local loans, and generally afford banking facilities to the people of the city, town or district where such banks are established. Each branch bank has the strength and the resources at command of the central establishment, so that each branch is beyond the reach of danger from any local conditions. The management is in the hands of long experienced, expert bankers, each chief officer being styled "General Manager." The shareholders are represented by a Board of Directors, whom they appoint, and who report direct to them every year, and these directors hold meetings at short intervals to supervise the business and confer with the manager. Such in brief, is the Canadian banking system, which is regarded as the best on the continent, especially as contrasted with that of the United States, where there are often bank failures. A chartered bank failure in Canada is a rare occurrence.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Opposition journals smart with contempt at Hon. Mr. Ross' majority of one. Its better however, than Mr. Whitney's minority of two.

Three more petitions have been filed against the return of Conservative members elect, Mr. W. H. Hoyle, North Ontario; Mr. J. S. Gallagher, Frontenac, and Mr. Donald Sutherland, South Oxford.

The decision of the courts in Lennox and North Grey gives the seat in Lennox to the Conservatives and settles the tenure of the Liberals in the latter constituency. A further scrutiny in North Grey is threatened, but it must be remembered, says Saturday Night, that men as well as ballots can be tampered with and electors brought up to swear how they voted are as easily "touched," and greater reasons for touching them exist than can be imagined when votes are being first counted. The decision of Justice Maclennan that there was no evidence of fraud in North Grey is much more valuable to the Liberals than the loss of Lennox is damaging. To retain a constituency is of much less importance than to retain a reputation, and, in the constituencies which are liable to be opened before the House meets, the retention of a good name and the judicial contradiction of the charge that there was ballot-switching without doubt will put the Government in a better position than if it could count two or three more of a majority upon its fingers.

CONDITION AND PRICES OF CATTLE.

The price of export cattle in Toronto could not sustain the record of a few days ago, in the face of a weakening British demand through the postponement of the cornation festivities. There is a large class in Britain to whom indulgence in abundant food is a luxury reserved for great occasions. Large numbers celebrate Christmas Day by indulgence in a dinner of beef, and the proposed coronation festivities were to have included the enjoyment of a similar luxury by many to whom beef is a rare treat. Importers made allowance for an unusual demand, and the result was a stiffening of the price of export cattle in Canada. The record of $7 was the highest in Toronto for many years, but it fell away 25 cents on Thursday, choice export cattle selling at from $5.25 to $6.75 per cwt., and medium for from $4.50 to $5.25. The weakness in the market continued yesterday and a further drop of 10 cents occurred, choice export cattle selling from $5 to $6.25.

This is in part a reaction from the high price recorded a short time ago, as it had the effect of bringing in more grass-fed cattle than the market could conveniently absorb. Many were marketed before they were properly prepared. The change will no doubt induce owners to hold their cattle back till ready for the market. Another influence which may be regarded as weakening on prices, but generally beneficial, is the abundant crop of hay and the rich pasture of the present season. In this respect the season makes a record both in Ontario and the west, and the growth of cattle and other live stock has been unusually rapid. Cattle-raisers must expect to feel the natural results of abundant production. The weakness of yesterday's market was general, and affected all grades of cattle, as well as sheep and lambs. But cattle-raisers have no cause for complaint, as prices are still comparatively high, and the weight and condition of their stock reflect the excellence of the season.—Globe.

FARMERS FLOCK TO MODEL FARM.

"The excursions to the Experimental Farm at Guelph, have been remarkably large this year," said Mr. Walter White, of the Grand Trunk Railway on Friday. "We have carried at least 5,000 more people there this year than the total number of any previous year. I can give no reason for this, except the growing popularity of the institution. Traffic on all lines have been very heavy this year, however, and I expect it will be an exceptionally busy year for the roads."

A RAILWAY MAN.

Extraordinary Unpleasant Symptoms of Kidney Trouble in This Case.

Tortured by all Kinds of Pains and Aches he Tries Everything, but Fails to Find Relief Till a Friend Advises Him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills—They Have Made a Well Man of Him and he is Grateful.

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—(Special.)—Frank Chartrand, a railway man, whose home is 130 Little Chaudiere street, has acknowledged that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done more for him than anything else in the world has ever done. He says: "I suffered with backache and was always drowsy and had a very heavy feeling in my limbs.

"I had frequent severe headaches and more times very sharp pains in the top of my head, which gave me much annoyance in my work.

"My fingers would cramp and I would have an uneasiness in my legs and occasional pains in the lions.

"I was dizzy in spells and short of breath. If I ate a hearty meal I would have a pain in my left side. My appetite would sometimes be very good and sometimes I couldn't eat anything.

"I had a constant soreness and tenderness over the spine and tired feeling in the region of my kidneys.

"I suffered quite a little with a dragging heavy feeling across the lions.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by a friend of mine who had been cured, and I began to use them.

"Almost from the start I began to feel the wonderful improvement, which continued as the treatment proceeded, till the unpleasant symptoms had one by one entirely disappeared.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have worked a wonderful cure in my case and I cannot speak too highly of this great and good remedy."

What Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for Mr. Chartrand they have done for thousands of others, and they'll do the same for you if you give them a chance.

There are many railway men in Canada to-day who find Dodd's Kidney Pills indispensable. They are the railway man's surest and best friend.

The constant vibration on trains and engines is very hard on the kidneys, and Dodd's Kidney Pills make these organs well and able to resist disease.

FATHER OF ASTRONOMERS DEAD.

M. Herve Faye, Oldest Member of French Academy, Passes Away.

Paris, July 7.—M. Herve A. E. A. Faye, the astronomer, is dead. He was the oldest member of the Academy of Sciences, and was born in 1814.

"Father" of Astronomers.

M. Harve A. E A. Faye has been for some years the "father" of all living astronomers, and also of the French Academy of Sciences. He was born at Saint Benoit-du-Sault in the department of Indre, on Oct. 5th, 1814, and consequently at the time of his death was in his 88th year.

Five years ago he celebrated his jubilee of membership of the institute to which he was elected by his colleagues. The savant continued his researches with almost juvenile activity up to his last year, his scientific works being very numerous, and distinguished by the clearness of his exposition.

He was head of the French Nautical Office and president of the official board of the Paris Observatory. In the short lived Rochebouet Ministry, called into office by Marshal MacMahon in 1877, he held the portfolio of public instruction.

M. Faye discovered, simultaneously, with M. de Vico, at Rome, on Aug. 22, 1844, a comet in Aquarius, which was rediscovered in California in 1894. The Vico-Faye comet is so faint that, though its period of return is only 1,993 days, it has escaped detection on nine successive appearances in the last 50 years.

FATAL BURNING NEAR NORTH BAY

A Farm Laborer at Princeton Cuts His Throat—A Seven-Year-Old Boy Drowned at Deschene Near Ottawa—Brakeman Cody Killed Through Being Struck by a C.P.R. Engine at Winnipeg.

Durham, July 7.—A sad case of drowning occurred here yesterday, two twin brothers named Gregson, from Lindsay, while bathing in the Saugeen River, near the Driving Park, at what is commonly known as Moffat's hole, were drowned. How it happened it unknown. Their clothes were found on the bank at 4 o'clock. A large party immediately commenced dragging the river but as yet the bodies have not been found.

MOTHER AND CHILD BURNED.

Frightful Catastrophe Near North Bay, Due to Lamp Exploding.

North Bay, July 7.—Mrs. A. Cockerline and her little four-year-old daughter were burned to death late Friday night at their home about 12 miles out in the country, and her little five-year-old boy was so badly burned that there is little hope of his recovery. Mr. Cockerline was absent from home, and when Mrs. Cockerline and children retired for the night a lamp was left burning on the table, and it is supposed the lamp exploded.

Drowned in the Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 7.—Anthony Farrell, aged 7, was drowned yesterday at Deschene, a village 6 miles from Ottawa. He was in a boat fishing, and, being missed by his mother, it was decided to drag the mill race with the result that the body was found in the bottom, life being extinct.

Killed by a Train.

Winnipeg, July 7.—Brakeman Andrew Curley, aged 22 and unmarried, was killed on the C.P.R. Saturday night through being struck by an engine. He was trying to jump on but slipped and was hit by the engine, which was stopped ten feet from him.

Three Yachters Drowned.

New York, July 7.—The wife of Captain Tiemann N. Horn of the 95th Company, Seacoast Artillery; his daughter Frances, aged 7, and Miss Alice McMahon of Nyack, N.Y., were drowned in Sandy Hook Bay yesterday. Their yacht capsized, and the ebb tide swept them out of the reach of rescue.

WAS WATCHMAN BURNED?

Rowland Burr Missing Since C.P.R. Car Shops Were Burned in Perth.

Perth, July 7.—The blacksmith shop, machine shop, oilhouse, main offices, four box cars, together with a large amount of valuable machinery in the C.P.R. car buildings in Perth, were totally destroyed by fire between 4 and 5 o'clock Saturday morning.

The fire was first noticed in the blacksmith shop and is supposed to have started from one of the furnaces. Alarms were immediately sounded and responded to by the firemen and several hundred citizens. About ten lines of hose were attached to the hydrants in the C. P. R. shops, but the fire had gained great headway, and it was with much difficulty that the adjoining wood mill, in which the cars were built, was saved. The wood mill was in flames several times, but the firemen worked hard and finally had the fire under control, but not before the above mentioned property was consumed. As a result of the fire 300 men were thrown out of work.

Night Watchman Rowland Burr is missing. He was seen entering the blacksmith shop after the fire was raging, but has not since been found. The burnt buildings will be rebuilt immediately.

Wagon and Trolley Collide.

Hamilton, July 7.—Early Saturday afternoon a team of horses hitched to a Canadian Transfer Company's wagon, loaded with trunks, ran away up South James street, and dashed square into a street car coming north. The tongue of the wagon was forced through the glass partition, and the car front was badly smashed. The motorman, Isaac Patterson, was hurt on his legs. One horse broke away, and the other was hurt a little.

At the farm of Miss McKenzie, about one mile east of Princeton village, Alexander Grant, a laborer, 19 years of age, in a temporary fit of insanity, made an attempt to commit suicide Saturday by cutting his throat with a razor. It is doubtful if he will recover.

Gale on Newfoundland Coast.

St. John's, N.F., July 7.—A furious gale raged here Saturday night and swept the whole seaboard, destroying much fishing property. It is feared that the storm caused great havoc among shipping.

The steamer Harmony, at this port, broke from her moorings, damaged three ships, several wharves and fishing vessels and finally went ashore in Petty Harbor. Her crew was rescued.

Other vessels were beached, and it is believed that much damage was done to the fishing fleet on the Grand Banks.

Why Rheumatism is Like Catarrh.

Both are inflamations. The former of the muscle tissue, the latter of the mucous membrane. The only way to cure either is by a course of blood purifying and blood enriching treatment. Merrill's System Tonic is the most thorough blood purifier and at the same time the most rapid blood making remedy known. 50 pleasant-to-take doses for 25c. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

THE FLOOD SEASON.

Fatal Storm and Cloudburst in Western New York—Two Miles of N.Y.C. Tracks Gone—Northwest Floods.

Buffalo, July 7.—Western New York was swept by a severe storm yesterday and the damage will aggregate many thousands of dollars. Minnie Loper was drowned at Arcade, where the storm approached the proportions of a cloudburst. The rivers overflowed, and many town were inundated. Miss Loper's home was swept into the flood and demolished. At Yorkshire and Sandusky the disaster is widespread. Much stock perished, and property damage was heavy.

Through the Genesee Valley rain has fallen for 24 hours, and all streams are roaring torrents. Hundreds of people abandoned their homes, and many residences were swept into the flood. Pike is under four feet of water, and a quarter of a million in property has been swept away, including the opera house Lathrop's store and the postoffice. The Tonawanda is carrying destruction in every direction, and at Batavia the town looks like a lake.

Two Miles of Track Gone.

Lockport, N.Y., July 7.—Two miles of the New York Central tracks on the Niagara Falls-Rochester branch, between Middleport and Medina, were washed out by the flood at an early hour yesterday. An eastbound special freight train ran upon the weakened roadbed and was wrecked. Many cars were wrecked, and others are imbedded in the mud up to the axles.

DESTRUCTIVE FLOODS IN THE WEST.

Six Frame Houses Carried Down and Residents Flee to High Ground.

Winnipeg, July 7.—A telephone message from Cardston, N. W. T., states that six frame houses, mostly new, have been carried away by the flood. One large-sized house passed Lethbridge yesterday in midstream, but it is not known from what locality. The bridge over the St. Mary's River, has sagged fully six feet and crossing is now dangerous.

Five hundred Indians are camped in the vicinity of Kipp's coulee, fearing inundation of the reservation. They predicted weeks ago a second flood greater than that of May. The river here fell fully four feet Saturday night, and the mountains appear comparatively free from snow, the melting of which augmented the already raging rivers.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Two Houses at Woodstock Damaged by the Storm.

Woodstock, July 7.—During the severe electrical storm Saturday morning the home of Dr. McLay on George street and that of W. R. Hicks on Brock street were struck by lightning, and although considerable injury was inflicted on both buildings no persons were injured. The bolt struck a chimney on Dr. McLay's residence exactly at 8 o'clock. The western portion of the roof of Mr. Hicks' house was struck as the family were seated at the breakfast table, and about one-quarter of it was torn away.

Barns Burned in Orford.

Ridgetown, July 7.—The barns of M. Kenney, on the 8th concession of Orford, were struck by lightning on Saturday morning and totally destroyed, with 80 tons of hay, 300 bushels of beans, 250 bushels of oats, some machinery, some wheat and two calves.

Mr. Kenney and his hired man, Fields, were in the barn at the time, both of whom suffered from the shock, but the latter was rescued by Kenney. Kenney after rescuing his man, in an attempt to loosen a horse in the barn, was severely kicked in the breast, but managed to save his horses and a lot of pigs in an adjoining enclosure. The loss is in the neighborhood of $2,000, insured in the Howard Mutual for $650.

Malt Breakfast Food

Is More Nutritious and Appetizing and is an Aid to Digestive Vigour.

One 15 Cent Package Makes Twenty-Five Meals.

The use of beef in the hot weather is very frequently the cause of indigestion and serious stomach derangements. The use of heavy and rich meats at the morning meal is responsible for thousands of cases of dyspepsia.

A dish of Malt Breakfast Food will supply more nutrition, energy and strength for the day's work than a pound of beefsteak can afford. It keeps the stomach in perfect condition, prevents constipation, and keeps the blood at normal temperature. If you would have a clear brain and full physical vigour, use Malt Breakfast Food every morning. 15 cents a package. All grocers.

Fire Still Rages.

Lorenzo Marquez, Portuguese East Africa, July 6.—The fire which began here July 3, and which by the following day, had destroyed British military stores valed at over £500,000, shows little signs of abating, and is likely to burn for some days to come.

Mohican Long Overdue.

Honolulu, July 7.—The United States training ship Mohican is now 37 days out from Yokohama for Honolulu, and considerable anxiety is felt for her safety. The only explanations of her delay are an accident, or that she is making the voyage under sail.

The gossip never makes a long story short enough to leave out the scandal.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. Mark Burnham of Ashburnham.

The death of Mrs. Burnham, the relict of the late Rev. Mark Burnham, closes a life whose span almost covered a century. On Saturday, Mrs. Burnham passed away, at the family residence, "Inglebourne," Ashburnham, at the advanced age of 92 years. Mrs. Burnham was associated with the village, which derives its name from her husband's surname, for about fifty years, having come to reside there at the time the late Rev. Mark Burnham became rector of Peterborough, (St. John's.)

The deceased lady was of United Empire Loyalist stock, her father having been the late Sheriff Bostwick, of Simcoe County. She was also a niece of the once well known Ryersons, Rev. Egerton Ryerson, Superintendent of Education for many years, Rev. John and Rev. William Ryerson. Mrs. Burnham's grandmother had the distinction of being known as the first white child born in Canada after the cession, having been designated as the "mother of Nova Scotia. Seventy years ago Miss Bostwick was united in marriage to Rev. Mark Burnham, then rector of St. Thomas. In 1852 he became rector of Peterborough, and took up his residence on the banks of the Otonabee, at the beautiful spot in Ashburnham, known as "Inglebourne." Here he resided till his death and here Mrs. Burnham continued to reside till her demise. Her surviving children are Mrs. R. Revell, Woodstock; Mr. Zacchaeus Burnham, Otonabee; and Dr. George Burnham, Peterborough.

Mrs. Burnham, though necessarily living a retired and quiet life, in her declining years left behind here a name for many good works during her years of activity, and the universal esteem of the entire community in which she dwelt for so many years. The funeral took place from the family residence, Ashburnham, this afternoon, and the remains were laid at rest in the Little Lake cemetery.

THE LIGHTNING'S FREAKS.

Mrs. C. E. Hubbs Injured on Saturday Evening—Other Damage in Ashburnham.

The thunderstorms of the last days have attained a violence which is almost tropical in its character. Accompanied by terrific downpours of rain, no little damage has been done throughout this section of the country.

Considerable damage was done by the rain and lightning which visited this vicinity on Saturday night and Sunday morning. Over three inches of rain fell, and the creeks throughout Peterborough and Ashburnham were full to overflowing. As is generally the case George street was flooded and the water rushed down over the pavement at a furious rate. The low corners were submerged and many cellars were flooded. Sewers became choked and a deluge appeared imminent. The City of Peterborough and the North Star, which had quite a number of townspeople on their regular Saturday afternoon trips, just pulled into port as the storm broke.

The passengers remained on board until the storm abated, and were thankful that their trip was at an end.

The house of Mr. Harry Cox, North Monaghan, was struck by lightning on Saturday morning. The electric current tore a hole in the window, and split a bed post into several pieces and the hired men at the house had a narrow escape.

On Saturday evening there was a flash of more than usual violence, followed by a deafening crash of thunder, which resembled the firing of a feu de joie in its sharpness. The storm was so close that trouble was anticipated, and it proved that the village did not escape scathless.

Mrs. C. E. Hubbs, of Elizabeth st., was one of the sufferers. The lightning appeared to enter the house by the chimney, burning and blackening the paper on the wall in the dining room, and giving Mrs. Hubbs so severe a shock as to paralyze her right arm, and blacken her thumb. Under medical attendance Mrs. Hubbs is convalescing.

The property of Mr. William Crowe, who lives just around the corner on Sophia street, also suffered at the same time, the lightning ripping a portion of the shingles off the roof, smashing the scantling beneath and then passing out just under the eaves. Though considerably shaken up by the shock, none of the inmates of the house were prostrated.

The barn of Mr. Peter Farrelly, a few miles from Downeyville, in Emily Township, was struck by lightning, which passed through the roof downwards, splintering a number of rafters, and went out through a window in the basement cellar. Four horses and several head of cattle were prostrated by the electric shock but recovered in the course of a few hours. The fact that the building was not set on fire is considered remarkable, as considerable hay was stored in the loft through which the bolt passed.

The creek in Ashburnham was never known to be as high as it is at present.

A resident of Ashburnham who has a hen coop near the creek and who is noted for his fancy poultry raising had 92 chickens drowned on Saturday night. His neighbours are advising him to go into raising ducks.

THE WEATHER.

Saturday's Storm Brought Heaviest Rainfall in Town's History.

The rainfall of Saturday was probably the heaviest that this town has ever experienced. It certainly was the heaviest for many years. One storm followed another, with terrific thunder and vivid lightning. The rainfall, measured at 9 p.m., amounted to 2.41 inches; after that hour on Saturday night and early on Sunday morning, .88 of an inch more fell, making 3.29 inches. Very few months have that much rain. Last month—June—wet as it was, had only 2.67 inches. The nearest approach to Saturday's figures for one day that the local weather observer can find in his records, was July 27, 1897—five years ago—when a succession of thunderstorms totalled 2.23 for the day. Saturday was also the warmest day of the year so far, 84 degrees in the shade being recorded.

Miss Maggie Record, an employee of the Auburn Woollen Mills, who resides on Stewart street, Ashburnham, met with a painful accident this morning. Miss Record is engaged as a corder and this morning her hand caught in the machinery, with rather serious consequences. Miss Record's hand was badly lacerated, and she may loose one or more of her fingers.

Broke Windows.

Three boys were seen throwing stones at the South Ward school last night. They made their escape before being caught, but succeeded in breaking about half a dozen panes of glass. The names of the boys are known, and they will be prosecuted.

JOHN DUNN'S CASE.

He Will Spend 10 Days on the Hill for Vandalism.

The authorities are determined to punish the individuals who persist in stealing flowers from Victoria Park. Because John Dunn had done what he should not have done in this regard he will spend 10 days on the hill. John did not appear on Saturday morning in response to a summons, so he was gathered in from the street during the afternoon and his case was dealt with at a special sitting of the Police Court at 4 o'clock. He was given his choice of paying $2 and costs or putting in 10 days in jail, and chose the latter.

THREE MEN ARRESTED

For Stealing Butter—One is a Supposed Horse Thief.

Chief Rossel this morning received a communication from Chief Douglas of Port Hope, stating that he has arrested three men in Hamilton Township, who had stolen a quantity of butter from a farmer living about 14 miles from Port Hope. One of the men was Bill Sidy, of Peterborough Copper Wire Fame, and the other two were George and William Lacheur, two well known characters. A liveryman in Port Hope identified Wm. Lacheur as the man who hired a horse from him some time ago and drove to Peterborough, but never returned the outfit. It will be remembered that Chief Douglas sent word out to Peterborough and the local authorities arrested a man who answered the description of Lacheur but who proved to be the wrong individual.

COMING HOME.

The 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th Canadian Mounted Rifles on the Ocean.

A cablegram received at Ottawa states that the 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th, Canadian Mounted rifles which sailed from Halifax less than two months ago, have sailed for home and are due at Halifax on July 28th. Lieut. E. O. Bradburn of town and Lieut. E. A. Shaw, of Millbrook, are amongst the officers mentioned as on their way back. Ptes. Mordeo, T. H. Burnham, John Strickland and the other of the Peterborough boys, who left Peterborough last are amongst the number. They could not have been in South Africa more than six weeks.

EDINBURGH STREET CELLARS.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir, — Allow me space in your paper to ask the council if it is fair play that some of the residents on Edinburgh street have to suffer having their cellars full of water on account of a close fence across the drain where the water should run The fence I speak of is that of James Bogue, contractor. Now we ask the council to see that there is a proper passage for the water to run away.

Yours, etc.,

THE EVILS OF GAMBLING.

Revs. Potter and Bastow Preached Last Night

And Asked Their People to Stamp out the Evil—Their Remarks.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST.

Rev. J. Bastow, pastor of Murray street Baptist church, last night, preached a sermon dealing with the evils of gambling. He took for his text: "Ezekiel 22 chap., verses 12—14—Thou has greedily gained," etc. The reverend gentleman stated that in consequence of considerable talk in the last few weeks of the prevalence of gambling amongst many of the prominent citizens of the town, the Ministerial Association had voted to unitedly preach on the vice of the gaming spirit.

It was a common, dangerous and destructive evil, and he had been informed that considering the size of its population, Peterborough had less to boast of in this respect than any other town of the Province.

It was right to have pride in the town in which we lived, but other things were necessary to true prosperity besides abundant water power and large commerce. Righteousness exalted a people, not wealth. Sad to say the gambling spirit existed most largely where people had attained the highest stage of civilization.

He defined gambling as playing a game for money or gain, and contrasted it with the ordinary transactions of legitimate business where both parties to a deal, were satisfied with their part in a mutual bargain. In gambling only one party could gain and that at the expense of the other.

Gambling generally led to various evils such as theft, drinking, neglect of home duties, bad example to the young people of the family, etc. No man could be a gambler without his own moral character being undermined. Such a man becomes callous and indifferent to human suffering and his finer nature debased and generally ruined for time and Eternity.

But the gospel of Christ is for gamblers as well as the thief on the cross, Magdalens and all the world's broken ones. He concluded by an earnest plea, especially addressed to young men, to keep clear of the evil, and by practising the Golden Rule of doing to others as we would that others should do to us, build up a noble Christian character and reputation.

The service was well attended and the reverend gentleman's remarks listened to with deep interest by all present.

During the service Miss Stephens and Mr. Farley sang a duet, "In the Secret of His Presence," and at the close all joined in singing the hymn, "Yield not to Temptation."

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

At St. Andrew's yesterday the choir was in excellent form. The evening anthem "The Radiant Morn," was rendered with good effect. The request was made for more tenor singers, whose voices the choirmaster is willing to train for their service in the choir.

The Rev. J. G. Potter preached on "Gambling" last night. As the Scripture lessons he read Proverbs 28th chapter. The texts were Proverbs 30, 8 and 9, and Matthew 6, 11.

"Remove far from me vanity and lies, give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me.' "Lest I be full and deny Thee and say who is the Lord? Or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain." "Give us this day our daily bread."

Mr. Potter referred to the texts as implying and regarding: 1, Absolute dependence on God and recognition of Him in all our lives. 2, God daily provision. 3, Contentment. 4, Industry. 5, Gratitude to God and freedom from any desire to frustrate the kindness and goodness of God to our fellow men. 6, Prohibition against doing any harm or in any way injuring the good of any other creature. 7, The word of God condemns ill-gotten gains, or moneys gained by fraud and violation of law.

The preacher claimed the united interest of his congregation against what he termed "a most iniquitous traffic" for two strong reasons:

1. It is utterly opposed to the genuis and spirit of the Gospel, "as ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them."

2. The law of our Dominion is very strong in its opposition to this pernicious thing.

Mr. Potter then read from the Criminal Code laws governing:

1. The act of gambling in its many forms.
2. The criminality of cheating or defrauding at any game.
3. The interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duty by promises of office, or threats of any kind.
4. The crime of gambling on any train or steamboat used as a public conveyance.
5. The responsibility under fine or imprisonment or both, of any conductor or officer who fails to report such gambling to the proper authorities.
6. The responsibility under fine or imprisonment of any public officer of the law who fails to carry out the provisions of the law.
7. The responsibility under fine or imprisonment of any owner of train or steamboat to have notices of this law placed in a conspicuous place.

TURNER RESTORED TO HEALTH.

Discharged From Hospital at Pretoria on June 17th.

The numerous friends of Mr. Reginal Turner, who went to South Africa with the last contingent Canadian Mounted Infantry, will be pleased to learn of his recovery from a serious illness. Alderman J. J. Turner, who is at present in England, has received from the War Office the following telegram, which he has forwarded to the Examiner:

War Office June 26th

To J. J. Turner, St. Blasey:

Private Turner, 2d Canadian Mounted Infantry, discharged Hospital Pretoria, 17th June.

Private Turner will therefore, in all probability, soon be home, as he was discharged in time to join the returning Canadian troops which are now enroute home. His family and friends are congratulated upon his having passed safely through the dangers incident to campaigning.

ORANGEMEN AT CHURCH.

They Attended Divine Worship at St. Paul's.

Rev. Mr. Wilson Preached an Impressive Sermon to the Followers of William, Prince of Orange.

The Orangeman of the Town of Peterborough attended divine service in a body at St. Paul's church yesterday evening. There was a splendid turn out of the members of the Order, many of whom appeared in full regalia. They assembled at the lodge rooms on Simcoe street, and marched to the church, headed by the Peterborough Citizens' Band.

Rev. Mr. Wilson, the assistant pastor of St. Paul's, preached an interesting sermon to the brethren, who occupied the centre row of seats. He took his text from the first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, — "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit ye like men, be strong."

The preacher first explained under what circumstances these words were uttered. Well might Paul have spoken to his followers in the wicked city of Corinth, which at that time was one of the most wicked cities in the world, these words of admonition. The preacher thought that he could not choose a better text for that evening, especially when we live in an age where sin meets them on every side and where the faith of so many people is wavering.

Taking the text clause by clause Rev. Mr. Wilson went on to point out the great need for us to be on the watch against sin, for many a nation, which had been great, had gone down, simply because its leaders have failed to watch. He warned the members of the order before him to live up to the provisions of their constitution at all times.

Secondly, we are told to stand fast. The Bible is the book on which their Lodge is founded. They are pledged to defend that sacred book, which has civilized nations, and that has lived down every foul blast of infidelity, but that still stands, and will stand forever.

"Quit you like men," say the Scriptures. This is a military expression that was used in ancient times. It stirred the hearts and steadied the nerves of men in the time of trouble, and its true meaning is "acquit yourselves like men." It was a command generally used by officers. "What are men!" enquired the speaker, and in answering the question himself, the reverend gentleman told of the varieties of true manhood, and referred in patriotic terms to the manner in which Canadians had acquitted themselves in South Africa. However, there were battles for us to fight in business and commercial life, where we are alone, and may God give us power to acquit ourselves in this regard. What we want is men to make Canada great and Britain greater. We want courage individually, and courage on the part of our organisations, and the speaker here said he was struck with pride on reading the noble principles of the constitution of the Orange Order. If every Orangemen would live up to those principles they might well feel proud. Let them not forget their obligations, and in celebrating the glorious Twelfth of July may they realize what the true meaning of celebration is, and may they conduct themselves with credit to their noble Order. He might well say in the words of the text, "Quit ye like men, be strong, etc."

CHURCH CHIMES.

Several Special Sermons Delivered Yesterday.

HOLIDAY READING.

At St. John's church last night, Rev. J. C. Davidson spoke on the subject of Holiday Reading, taking the example of the Ethopian eunuch, who profitably spent his time in reading, while travelling. He pointed out that the holiday season furnished an opportunity of a certain amount of solid reading — scientific, literary and religious — to persons who have at other times not the necessary leisure. Reading for pleasure and recreation was legitimately allowable, and this might be attended with profit or degradation. Lighter literature was subdivided into classes — first, biographical and historical stories, also standard novels, giving true and healthy pictures of life—Dickens, Scott, Blackmore, Kingsley, Parker, etc.; second, sentimental love stories — weak, soft and pulpy, and giving an opportunity to rather kill time than to use it; thirdly, the sensational novel of the day was mentioned. In these books, desperate crimes, unblushing immorality and sensational substitutes for religion, were the oft-recurring themes. If people could see it in its true light they would scorn the irreligious and immoral novel. It was strange that many of those who would rightly resent any indelicate or improper speech in their presence, would allow themselves to read, and even recommend to others, books in which the low, filthy, and degrading things of life were drawn from their hiding places and daringly exposed in all their heidousness. It was not only that in the selection of such books, one's sweetness, purity and health were at stake, but everyone who reads an unwholesome book thereby sets an example that others felt justified in following. The preacher urged in conclusion that, at least, the sanctity of the Lord's Day should be guarded not only from such literature, but from the secularising influence of the sensational newspapers, but also literature which might be in place on other days of the week. He appealed to his hearers, wherever they might find themselves on Sunday, to keep up a strong distinction, and carefully guard the sacred influences of the day.

ST. LUKE'S.

Last night Rev. E. A. Langfeldt preached on "Prepared Prayer." "There is a pause of preparation," Mr. Langfeldt said, "words selected, accurate speaking, an order in prayer, a new relation to God recognized, an audience asked, reception given—all leading up to self-dedication. Words are immense helps to thought. We cannot think accurately nor without wavering, unless we have words. Therefore never be indifferent to the language in which we clothe our religion. Do not say, "God knows what I feel, and it does not matter how I say it, or whether I say it at all." If God has given you thoughts ask Him to give them right expression, and the more you do this carefully, and, as far as you can, in anticipation, the better you will pray. For you will find that while all is of God's free grace and sovereign mercy, yet the more pains and trouble you put into anything, and the greater effort you make, the more will God bless it and the larger will be the result.

"We may all thank God that we belong to a Church which has prepared for us long before, the words of our prayers; and Oh, what words they are! So simple that a child can understand them, and yet so grand, that, except out of the Bible there is no eloquence in the whole world to compare with them; so condensed that no one who is at all spiritual can weary of them; and yet so full, that I defy any man to come to Church and not find somewhere in our daily liturgy something to meet and satisfy his want, and we know beforehand what we are going to say and before we come to church we can attune our minds to our petitions. And we can follow with the heart because the mind is at leisure, and there is not attempt to make prayer a fine intellectual exercise, or a training school for the attention.

And in using words prepared for us we do what the saints and angels are doing in Heaven — using prescribed forms of words, and their instruction is more than once revealed to us in the Bible, while they offer in prepared sentences their lofty adoration around the throne. We thank the Great Head of the Church for the words prepared for us."

GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

At the evening service the pastor took for his subject one of the lessons derived from the recent illness of the King—the efficacy of intercessory prayer. The choir sag the anthems "Fatherland," and "The Bird Let Loose in Eastern Skies," the alto and bass solos being taken by Miss D. Yenney and Mr. Mulligan. The morning anthem wee "Rock of Ages," Miss Metheral taking the soprano solo.

THE "SOO" DEVELOPING.

A Great City Growing up in the Wilderness.

Sault Ste. Marie expects to have a population of 200,000 in ten years or less. The steel and steel rail and pulp mills are running to their full capacity, and the plant is being laid down for the works of a tube company, that, it is reported, will employ several thousand men. Over $2,000,000 has been spent in the buildings and plant of the pulp mill. The companies now in operation at the "Soo" have a combined capital of $117,000,000. Cheap raw material, cheap power, cheap transportation, are the three factors now doing wonders in developing this industrial centre, that had only 2,500 inhabitants four years ago, and now has 15,000. The line from the "Soo" towards Michipicoten is progressing rapidly and the district is beginning to be settled. The "Soo" promises to be a good place for a young man to settle, and "grow up with the country."

Coal Was Known 300 B. C.

The first record we have of coal is about 300 years before the Christian era. Coal was used as fuel in England as early as 852, and in 1234 the first charter to dig for it was granted by Henry III. to the inhabitants of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

BRITISH DINNER TABLE.

Food Imports Into Britain Last Year—Some Lines in Which It May Be Indefinitely Expanded.

An English correspondent writes: England is the Canadian farmers' most profitable market. Cater for it, and not New York, Chicago and other points in the United States.

Of the 5,876,000,000 pounds of meat consumed in Great Britain last year no less than 2,128,000,000 pounds weight were imported in one form or another. Ireland, with a population of 4,500,000, or a little over one-eighth of great Britain, exported 640,000 head of cattle and 641,000 sheep. What will Canada do in the next decade?

Value of British Imports in 1901.

Live and dead meat	$225,500,000
Wheat and wheat flour	170,000,000
Bacon and hams	89,000,000
Cheese	34,000,000
Butter	88,000,000
Eggs	30,000,000
Vegetables	16,500,000
Condensed Milk in tins	6,000,000

The value of the imports of live stock and the produce thereof was nearly $580,000,000; of wheat, wheat flour, corn, grain and feeding stuffs, only $296,000,000.

Of the $16,500,000 sent abroad for vegetables, nearly half was paid for potatoes, and almost $4,000,000 for onions.

The trade in condensed milk, which could be conducted better from Canada than from any other country, is increasing both in volume and favor. Nearly one-half of the total world's production is still made in England and Ireland, notwithstanding that milk is dear and taxes are very high.

Sir Thomas Cleeve & Co., Limerick, Ireland, manufacture one-third of the condensed milk used in the world. Sir Thomas and his brothers, who are interested with him in this wonderful trade, were born in the Eastern Townships, Quebec.

A large trade in poultry is conducted from the continent, principally in turkeys and geese at Christmas. Russia has, however, made a bid for the London market, more especially for chickens, of which half a million are used annually in the metropolis.

The Canadian trade in poultry with the old country was started so long ago as 1874, and is now sure to assume large proportions. Many Canadians would, however, be surprised to find that poultry is still a luxury and not an ordinary article of diet in this country; it is rarely found on the tables of the working or, indeed, of the middle classes. Canada can remedy this, and with great advantage to her farmers, consequently the following may be of interest:

There was a splendid supply of Canadian turkeys in the London markets at Christmas, prices being 12½c to 14½c per pound in the feather. French are very good, 12½c to 14c for hens and 27c for cocks. Irish show an improvement, but the English birds, of wonderful size (40 pounds) and quality, fetched fancy prices, $10 to $15 each, and smaller Norfolk bred birds 25c to 27½c per pound at the Smithfield market.

English bred chickens (capons) weighing 20 pounds were offered at Leadenhall market, and smaller birds, smooth-skinned, with good color and quality were procurable at $2.50 a pair. The ordinary retail prices for chickens is $1.25 to $1.75 a pair, and none too good at that.

It will be seen that there is still room for improvement in Canadian turkeys and chickens. The Britishers who can afford to eat poultry at the present prohibitive cost to the poor man will have none but the best, and he will pay the highest price for it; but what is more, the Englishman can also raise them, but not in sufficient quantity.

At the shows of poultry in 1901 a decided improvement was visible, and large sums were given for breeding stock. At a sale in July last, owing to the death of a noted exhibitor, the prices were very high, notably for Orpingtons. One black Orpington at this sale made $750, another cock of the same breed $100, a hen $105 and $90 for another hen of this highly prized variety. Again, $30 to $60 were frequently paid for Orpingtons at the Crystal Palace and other shows.

The Buff Orpington with white legs are the birds for table, and, as one of the leading London journals says, "they are extra good for crossing purposes, lay large brown eggs, are good table birds and undoubtedly hardy." Dorkings continue to hold their own. The Dorking-Indian game crosses exhibited at the dead poultry shows were perfection. In any other class the chief prizes were won with Buff Orpingtons.

Canadians should make a note of this and keep their eyes on London, Liverpool and Glasgow, the best markets for all kinds of food produced in the Dominion. The general desire now expressed is that Canada should receive a greater proportion of the enormous sums now expended by Britain for food. It was at Ottawa that the great trade in live cattle, dead meat and poultry was first started in 1874, and it is this branch of agriculture that the Dominion should strain every effort to develop and capture.

The only chance Canada has of successfully competing with foreigners, who are fully alive to the requirements of the British markets, is to improve the quality of the cattle, sheep, pigs and poultry in the Dominion, and at once. Englishmen, even on the score of loyalty to the Empire, cannot be expected to buy Canadian edibles of inferior quality if they can get better elsewhere at the same price; indeed, why should Canadians themselves continue to eat beef or other food of bad description?

Remember that there are 6½ million more British mouths to feed here than there were twenty years ago and the annual increase in population bids fair to continue.

Three Great Skeletons.

The vicinity of Palermo, Italy, has yielded three remarkable human skeletons, one in 1410, one in 1516 and the last in 1550. The first was twenty-one, the second thirty and the third thirty-four feet in height.

Have Courage.

You must have courage, my boy. No matter what band of circumstances array themselves against you, if your purpose is right you will succeed. Life is a beautiful thing. The chance to fight is a great blessing. No matter how hard the situation may seem, keep on doing right, bravely face the future, set your standard high, work and wait, be patient and thankful, and you will win. You may never be rich as the world goes—not rich in money or rich in power—but you may be rich in the knowledge of the truth that you have made the best of your chance to be a man. Don't set your standard by the men who have achieved great wealth. That is nothing compared to the riches that belong to him who has struggled to enlarge and ennoble the circle of life in which he is cast.

Were Superstitious.

"If a fire does not burn well," says the old household superstition, "and you want it to draw, you should set the poker across the top bar of the grate." This is supposed to placate the gnomes, whom it was formerly believed were very jealous of the robbery of their underground country of its coal treasures and were very apt to take their vengeance out in preventing the fire from burning. It was the mystic form of the cross thus made which was supposed to drive them away. Nevertheless it would not do to use the shovel in this charm or the fire would be sure to go out.

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognising the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

An Adroit Answer.

The celebrated physician Zimmerman attended Frederick the Great in his last illness. One day, as the story is recorded in "Salad For the Social," the king said to him:

"You have, I presume, helped many a man into another world."

This was rather an unexpected thrust for the doctor, but the dose he gave the king in return was a judicious mixture of truth and flattery:

"Not so many as your majesty nor with so much honor to myself."

To Extract Oil From Wood.

To get the essential oil from wood, barks, roots, herbs, etc., place them in a bottle and pour upon them a spoonful of ether. Keep in a cool place a few hours and then fill the bottle with cold water. The essential oil will swim upon the surface and may be easily separated.

Child Insurance.

The insurance of the lives of children is forbidden in Montreal on the ground that many parents neglect their sick offspring when they know they will profit by their death.

Fat as a Food.

The great curse of modern civilization—consumption—is mainly due to insufficiency of fat in our daily food. Tea or coffee supplies none of this necessity, but cocoa and chocolate do, and that in the most appetising and digestible form in which it is possible to obtain fat.

Dampness Causes Piles.

Teamsters, drivers, farmers and all persons who are much exposed to dampness and sudden changes in temperature, are especially liable to suffer from piles, than which there is scarcely a disease which brings with it more acute misery.

Mr. John Tuttle, expressman, 107 Stewart street, Kingston, Ont, states; "Like most men who do much driving, sitting a great deal, and often exposed to dampness, I have been a great sufferer from piles. As a matter of fact I had piles for a number of years and tried nearly everything I could hear of in a vain effort to get cured, but only succeeded when I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. The first application of this grand preparation brought me relief from the dreadful itching, burning sensations, and less than two boxes made a perfect and permanent cure. I am grateful for the freedom from suffering, and desire others to benefit by my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment."

You hear of all sorts of treatments being tried in vain as a cure for piles, but never heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment failing. So certain is this preparation to bring prompt relief and lasting cure that it has come to be considered the only positive and actual cure for this dreadful ailment. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

ONE'S POINT OF VIEW.

HOW THE PEOPLE AND THE WORLD LOOK TO THE CORNER GROCER.

He Tells Some Folk How He Sees Them, Which Is Not the Way They See Themselves—A Kindly, Good-Natured Critic of Erring Humanity—The Parson and the Doctor—Drunkard Meets Drunkard.

I heard a very clever man once say that everyone looked out upon the world and his fellow-men and women through a window whose panes gave him an opportunity peculiar to himself, and that the things that one man saw were by no means the same as those his neighbor might see, although the "objective" world, at least I think objective was the word he used, was exactly the same. I've often turned over that saying in my mind, and I think, that, although I never had any great education, that I have found out what he meant, and I believe that he told the truth. I think, too, that it is every man's duty to add his little bit of knowledge to the knowledge that the world possesses, and although the window through which a corner grocer looks out is apt to be a small one and somewhat dimmed with molasses and flour, I have been thinking that it mightn't be a bad thing for me to tell some of the things that I see, and perhaps some of the people who have bigger and clearer windows than mine, may be induced to do the same thing, and in this way I may do a small service by helping people to see themselves as others see them. I am not sure that what I see is the only truth concerning any man, for I dare say that my window is not always in the best condition; but, on the other hand, I think that I often see things in a man or woman that they do not see themselves and that none of their friends would care to tell them about. Of course even in my humble position, I know more people than I could undertake to describe, but if I tell about a few they might do for examples, or what the educated people call types of others.

There's my parson, for instance. He's a very nice man, and sometimes when he gets all worked up in the pulpit and preaches about the beauty of being good, you'd think that he never knew what it was to be anything else, and yet he has his own faults. He talks a great deal about having faith in God, and once or twice when business has been bad and I was pretty down-hearted, the way he exhorted me to have faith and rest assured God would bring me through all right was really beautiful. But I have seen him sometimes, when the church was pretty empty, owing to rain or sickness in the congregation or because it was hot, look as though he wasn't able to take his own medicine. Instead of preaching on these days strong words of faith and assurance he'd almost groan when he'd talk about the indifference and the carelessness of the people about church going. And I can't help thinkin' that if he'd show his faith by his own actions that his advice to people would carry more weight with it. After all I believe it is the imaginary troubles more than the real ones that shake people's faith. For I saw that same parson when he lost his little boy, although for weeks after when he prayed for the little children, his voice would almost break, and we all knew whom he was thinking about, yet he wasn't gloomy, but preached about being patient under affliction in a way that did us all good to hear. However, he's a pretty decent sort the parson, after all. There is one thing I'll say for him, and that is that he always pays his account at my store and doesn't have to be chased for it for months, which brings me to speak of a certain lady whose name I'll not mention, for she has a very high place in society in our town and has offices in I couldn't tell you how many benevolent and charitable organizations and if I said a word against her, it might do me a lot of harm.

She's a good customer in a way. She'll stop her carriage and come in, and, looking at me as though I belonged to another sort of people than herself, will say, in her high-pitched voice, "Well, Jones, have you any fresh vegetables this morning?" She doesn't haggle over the price, but she talks to me in a way that makes my blood boil. I could stand that, though, for a man mustn't be too particular when he has his living to make, but what does make me mad in the way she'll put off paying her bill month after month. My creditors won't wait for me, and many a time I've been hard put to it by her carelessness, for it's nothing short of carelessness, of that I am sure. If only people would think about things. Half the trouble there is in this world is because people don't think, but look at matters only from their own side of the fence.

I remember having that brought home to me once by our doctor. He's a good sort, is the doctor, and has brought me and my children through more than one tight place. This time I was talking away at a great rate to him about my little girl, who was ill at the time, but not very ill, and I noticed that he looked as though he were a bit wearied, and I took the huff, and said that I guessed he hadn't much interest in my little girl. He's not a profane man, the doctor, at least I never heard him use strong language before, but this time he broke out, "Good God, Jones, I have been in a dozen houses this afternoon, and have heard nothing but stories about aches and pains until I am sick of the whole family of humanity. My sympathy is exhausted, and I'll have to get a taste of something else before I get back to a normal condition." I thought a good deal about it after he had gone away, and when I remembered all the sick people that doctors and parsons have to meet with, sometimes not very bad, and again, very, and I don't know which is the worse, and all of them grunting and groaning, it's little wonder that they get tired out. It wouldn't be a bad idea if some doctor and parson would just follow my example and tell us something of what they have to go through. Perhaps it would teach some of us a little sense.

There's another character I want to tell about and then I'll have to quit, I guess, or I'll use up all the space the editor will give me. This chap was a farmer, and his father, who was one of the pioneers in our section, left him as good a hundred acres as any man could desire. Pretty well cleared, with a nice bit of bush on the back lot, a neat house, and fences all in good condition and well stocked. Well, for a while everything went well. Bill had married a nice wife, and had three little folks growing about him, when the devil got into the Garden of Eden by telling Bill that he was a smart fellow, and that he ought to run for Township Councillor. He did run, and got in, and as he was a pretty glib talker, he didn't stop there, but was next Reeve and then Warden, and at last I'm blest if he didn't go down to Ottawa. But the farm had been going to the dogs, and Bill, who was a jovial fellow and fond of his glass, wasn't far behind the farm. I'm not going to make a long story, for it's too sad for that, but the last I heard of Bill he was driving a team for a wood yard, and living in a little bit of a house that he wouldn't have put his hired man in in the days when he was on the farm.

I've often wondered what use I'd make of that story if I were a preacher, for preachers are always working in things in their sermons that they have seen and known. Bill was ambitious and wanted to serve his country, and there were lots of people to tell him that he was too good a fellow to stay in a quiet life; so I am not sure that the Almighty is going to blame Bill very much. It's a queer business, though, when the drink gets hold of a man. I'm not a total abstainer, and I think that some of the women's organizations go too far; but there's no question about the mischief that's done by liquor. Even when a man sees what a fool it makes of him, he'll keep on. There was a man in our town, an old bachelor and a well-educated man. He had retired from business and could live comfortably on his income, but he was drunk most of the time. He went regularly to church, and I've seen him sitting behind the pillar in the church swearing away at the minister under his breath and fairly baptized in whiskey. Well, one day he was sitting outside his house quite in view of my store when a big baker across the way came out on the street, shouting and roaring and drunk as a fool. The old gentleman I tell of was quite sober at the time, and he sat watching the baker, who was shouting, being a Scotchman, "Scotland forever." By-and-bye he came across the street and held out his hand in a friendly way to Macdonald, but the latter got up with a look of utter contempt on his face, and saying, "Ye damned ideot," went away into the house. And that very afternoon he was out on the street drunk as ever, so that seeing ourselves as others see us doesn't cure a drunkard.—C. Karl, Corner Grocer, in The Globe.

Port Said.

There may be viler towns than Port Said. We have never seen them. Leadville in its most flourishing and fiercest days could not equal this city at the mouth of the Suez canal, says the foreign correspondent of The Kansas City Journal. If ten righteous men were needed to save this town of 35,000 people, it would go unsaved. The inquiry, "Do you want anything?" which in Egypt covers a multitude of sins, is met with from small boys upon the main streets. Vice which in American cities hides itself in the back alleys here flaunts itself in gay gauze garb and brazen face upon the boulevards. It is a made town, on made earth, and its manufacture is not morally a success. The few decent people condemned by business necessity to dwell in Port Said console themselves by the assertion that all new towns go through this period of viciousness, and Port Said is not a quarter of a century old. After seeing Port Said we do not wonder that Moses fled into the wilderness.

Babylon.

The river Euphrates flowed through the city of Babylon, and on each side of its banks the walls of the city were carried up to a height as great as at any other point, so that even during a siege the city was as formidably defended on the river as on the land side.

The Thumb Seal.

In olden times it was the pressure of the thumb upon the wax of a document's seal that made the deed a valid and binding instrument, and in verbal contracts the thumb ratified the bargain.

The Agonising Pains of Rheumatism.

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Why a Bulldog Is So Called.

As to the derivation of the word bulldog, it is only necessary to state that at one time this species was exclusively used in bull baiting, and from that circumstance arose the name by which it is universally known. A cross between this and the terrier is appropriately termed the bull terrier.

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

Many Tombs For One Island.

There are said to be more than 3,000 prehistoric buildings in the island of Sardinia. They are almost all in fertile districts and are built in groups which are separated from one another by wide and generally barren spaces. These buildings, it is supposed, were tombs.

INSPECTION OF TENEMENTS.

An Interesting Article in a Prominent Magazine.

By Yokhanna Von Wagner, Secretary Inspection, Yonkers, N.Y.

"Tenement-House Inspection" is the name of a very interesting article that appears in the American Journal of Nursing of a recent date. The article is by Yohanna Von Wagner, Sanitary Inspector, Yonkers, N. Y., and is as follows:

The greedy landlord who looks for twelve per cent. has to be dealt with. Model tenement-houses can be erected on a paying financial basis. They have proved a success wherever they have been built, and aside from the fact that they returned between five and six per cent., they have provided healthy homes for people of small means.

While they are a great blessing, the greater need is to put exisiting houses in sanitary condition and prevent badly constructed houses from being erected, and here it is where a woman inspector does the most good.

Everything dangerous to public health is reported,—dark rooms and halls, closed skylights and air-shafts, defective and boxed-in plumbing, filth and disease, damp cellers, overcrowding,—all these things and reported, and in a given time remedied, which may be from a day to a month. If the owner is not willing or able to do it, the Board of Health has the work done. The law is that one toilet shall be provided for every two families, but I think that each family should have its own water-closet, and to have it not in a dark corner, but open to the external air, is just as important.

Fire-escapes should receive better attention; the straight, narrow ladders without the platform will hardly answer for most people—not to speak of the absence of fire-escapes in so many houses.

The house-to-house instruction, aside from reporting nuisances, is an important part of the work.

"Thank God! some one is going around that knows something," an old Irishwoman said. They have had missionaries to look after their spiritual welfare, but no one to help them bear their burden and improve their lot in life.

After explaining to them how to care for and feed babies, the women will say, "Why did we not know this before?" A birth and a death every year and sickness and undertakers' bill in many cases cause the poor man's poverty. Ignorance of the common laws of health and unhealthy homes and food are undoubtedly causes of the prevalence of the drink habit.

Much can be done towards the prevention of the spread of contagious diseases, and especially tuberculosis, not only by the fumigation of rooms and the enforcement of strict cleanliness and isolation, but by providing sputum-cups for the poor which may be burned after use, and after death from this disease fumigation and thorough cleaning before another family moves in.

With the teachings given to the people how to protect themselves and how to improve their ways of living there should go the enforcement of laws governing landlords and agents and an awakening of the social conscience at large, and I confess that is the hardest part of my work. Being a woman and having no vote, politics do not influence my reports. Cellars have to be cleaned and whitewashed, carpets removed from stairs, halls ventilated and cleaned, rooms whitewashed or painted, papers removed where possible, air-shafts and skylights made to open to admit air, roofs repaired, and plumbing looked after. The characteristics of the different nationalities have to be dealt with, and each watched accordingly.

When commencing to inspect a street the children carry the news that the Health Board is around, which is the signal for general house-cleaning.

When I try to have people move out

OF UNHEALTHY HOUSES

I hear always the same remark, "We can't find good rooms," and the requests for me to find rooms are numerous indeed and difficult to comply with.

After revealing conditions in Yonkers, some good citizens remodelled old houses and put them in sanitary condition, and it has proved a financial success. There is a woman rent-collector who collects weekly, which is safer for the landlord and easier for the tenant, and with it goes a supervision which is of great value to both. With improved homes we have better health and better citizenship, which is all-important to a nation.

While far from being good, conditions are greatly improved in Yonkers. Better school attendance in winter, decreased immorality rate, especially among children, and greater cleanliness are among the visible results from the work done so far.

Prevention is my motto, and when we can prevent disease we have touched the foundation of most evils.

What larger field of usefulness could we wish for than to go from house to house and give the people the benefit of our knowledge of sanitation, hygiene, and domestic science? A great English statesman has said, "Of what use is sanitary legislation unless it is practically applied?" and only by obtaining the co-operation of every housekeeper with the Board of Health can rules and laws be enforced.

Let there be well-trained women to do this work. As Dr. Benjamin Lee, president of the State Board of Health, said: "Women are born sanitarians, and make better teachers; besides, they attend to detail work, and I would say the work is essentially among women. No matter what the condition of the house, a woman is admitted because she will understand, when a man cannot enter, and very often the remark is made, 'I am so glad it is a woman this time.'"

After inspecting rooms, closets, and bedding, I am made acquainted with the sorrows, the wants, and sometimes the joys of the family, and I seldom leave without having given advice or help, or put them in the way to help themselves. The invitation to call again soon or spend Sunday with the family shows that the visit has been appreciated.

The field for usefulness is large, and the work fills one's life to the utmost. While it is hard to bear so many people's burdens, the thought that this work is a step in the right direction gives new courage and hope.

I hope to live long enough to see more cities take up this work. Only those women who love the people and will work for public service and not personal gain should take it up. It is

THE HARDEST WORK

I have ever done, and it requires courage and a good deal of faith to enter into all places.

May more nurses prepare for this work, and indeed be the friends of the people.

It is the true mission of the Board of Health to take up this work, and and may there be enough public-spirited men and women in every city to see to it that the large class of working-people at least have healthy homes.

At the close of Mrs. Von Wagner's paper the following letter, which was addressed to Miss Dock, was read by the secretary:

"In view of Mrs. Von Wagner's attendance at the International Council of Nurses I would like to give my testimony to the efficiency of her work in Yonkers, and emphasize the desirability of inducing nurses to consider the official inspection of tenement-houses as a field for their professional ability.

"In visiting Health Departments here and abroad with reference to the work of women Sanitary Inspectors, it has impressed me that, other qualifications being equal, the knowledge possessed by a trained nurse who had the ability to impart it would be of great additional benefit in accomplishing permanent good results, and I am hoping that as the work is taken up in this country more nurses may be found who will fit themselves for the position.

"In Chicago, where six women Tenement and Factory Inspectors are employed by the Health Department, the duties of the women are about the same as those prescribed for men. I believe the duties of the woman inspector should include the instructive work, and that to her should be given certain duties differentiating her work from that of a general Sanitary Inspector.

"There are comparatively few places in this country where women are employed in connection with Health Boards, but it is our earnest hope that an impetus may be given to the idea through this Nurses' Council, and that a great and practical purpose may be reached through the paper to be read and discussed at your meeting.

"Wishing you all progress in the various departments of helpfulness you are considering,

"I am very cordially yours,

"MISS MARSHALL BUTLER."

STONY LAKE NOTES.

The Sunday services have not yet begun at the pavilion.

A Gilmour Company drive is passing through Stony Lake. A good many of the cottagers located the cookery on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McAllister are comfortably domiciled at "Jennemac" cottage. Miss Mabel Roy is a guest for a few weeks. Mr. Herb Edmison and Mr. Alf. Terrill were Sunday visitors.

Mr. Crane is doing quite a lot of painting around "Glad-hal-ken." He has lined the inside of his cottage this spring with two-inch strips of ash and walnut. The effect is very pretty.

Mr. Fred Addison holds the rowing record from Juniper to Boschink. He states that with his father-in-law steering for him, he covered the distance from the store to his own boathouse in 29 minutes 30 1-2 seconds. He is prepared to repeat the feat on provocation.

Mr. Roly Johnston spent Sunday with Mr. Alex. McCallum at the latter's cottage.

Mr. R.R. Hall spent Sunday at his Boschink cottage. He was accompanied by Mr. W. F. Clarke, of the Cordage Company.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall was at the lake for Sunday.

Dr. Neill spent yesterday at Mr. Robt. Neill's Stony Lake cottage.

Two and one-half hours are required for a mosquito to develop from its first stage, a speck resembling cholera bacteria, to its active and venomous maturity. The insect in all its phases may be instantly killed by contact with minute quantities of permanganate of potassium. It is claimed that one part of this substance in 1,500 of solution distributed in mosquito marshes will render the development of larvae impossible; that a handful of permanganate will oxidise a ten acre swamp, kill its embryo insects, and keep it free from organic matter for thirty days at a cost of 25 cents; that with care a whole State may be kept free from insect pests at a small cost. An efficacious method is to scatter a few crystals widely apart. A single pinch of permanganate has killed all the germs in a 1,000 gallon tank.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

All records are broken by the number of clubs represented, and the number of rinks entered for the Dominion bowling tournament commencing on the Yacht Club lawn at the Toronto Island to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. When the committee met on Saturday evening to make the draw the Secretary reported 64 entries, representing 24 clubs. Last year there were 48 entries. The clubs represented are:—Toronto Victorias, 7 rinks; Canada, 6; Granite, 5; R.C.Y.C., 4; Toronto Thistles, 4; Caer Howell, 2; Guelph, 3; St. Catharines, 3; Prospect Park, 3; Balmy Beach, 3; Peterborough, 2; Brampton, 2; Galt, 2; Hamilton Thistles, 2; Weston, 2; Kew Beach, 2; St. Matthew's, 2; Parkdale, 2, and one each from Mitchell, Stratford, Kincardine, Harriston, London and New Toronto. The new-comers are Peterborough, Stratford, Harriston, Galt, Balmy Beach and Kew Beach, while the Hamilton Thistles are returning after some years of absence. The number of entries is just sufficient to make a regular draw from the commencement, so that each rink starts with the same opportunities of reaching the final. The first round will be played at 2 and 4 to-morrow, on the greens shown in the schedule below. There are 18 greens laid out, the first 12 numbering as formerly, from the north side of the lawn, and the other six, 13 to 18, numbering to the east, from the old lawn. In the cup competition 21 ends will be played, in the association 18, and in the consolation 15.

The Yacht Club launch leaves the town clubhouse at the foot of the western ramp of York street bridge, each day at 9, 9.30, 10 and 11 a.m.; also 1 p.m., and each half hour thereafter until 6.30 p.m.; leaving the Island club one quarter of an hour later, except on the 6.30 trip, when it lies at the Island until 7.45. On the 3, 4, 5, 6 and 6.30 o'clock trips the launch will call at the south end of the wharf on the west side of Yonge street. On Tuesday, however, the first trip of the launch will be made at 1 p.m.

Entries for doubles and singles close at noon on Wednesday, July 9, with the Secretary.

The committee has appointed the following umpires:—A. S. Wigmore, Geo. R. Hargraft, J. T. Johnston, Q. D. McCulloch, David Carlyle, F. O. Cayley, G. C. Bigger, Dr. Henwood and C. T. Mead.

In the first round Skip Geo. Giroux's rink plays E. C. Davies of the Caer Howell Club at 2 o'clock to-morrow.

At 4 o'clock Dr. Moher's rink plays against A. G. F. Lawrence of the Toronto Granites.

LACROSSE.

A full practice of the Athletics is called for to-night.

A full practice of the T.A.S. lacrosse team is called for this evening at 7 o'clock.

BASEBALL.

The Young Victors will soon have to change their name. They did not live up to it on Saturday, when a combination team from the Independents and Crescents defeated them in a 13 inninge game by a score of 9 to 7. The match was pulled off on the Central Park, and was witnessed by an enthusiastic crowd. The umpires were Ned Fitzpatrick and Hague Sawers, and the teams were as follows;

Victors — Frank Hawkins, 2b; R. Heaslip, ss; Bruce Hawkins, 3b; Fred Hall, lf; L. McQuay, cf; C. Lech, p; Roy Hawkins, c; Art Hall, rf.

Independents and Crescents — J. Seymour, p; V. Carton, c; C. Ray, 3b; Allan Campbell 1b; Gordon Campbell, ss; Frank Heffernan, cf; Gordon Long, 2b.

GOLF.

The brilliant victory of Mrs. Manice, who won the Metropolitan golf championship hands down by 7 up and 6 to play, has undoubtedly engendered some bitterness of spirit and acrimony of discussion.

The delicate point at issue is whether the new champion's husband should have caddied for her. Public opinion is by no means a unit, and the most eminent sporting authorities are widely at variance.

Those extremists who incline to the theory that man, considered in the abstract, is absolutely no good, and that woman is a superior, but invariably long suffering and neglected being, have viewed with stern approval the spectacle of the new champion's husband loaded down with golf sticks, staggering weakly in her wake as she swiped the ball far and accurately.

Upon the other hand the spinster who was her competitor in the final round upon the Jersey links, playing modestly and coolly, with only the ordinary freckled small boy caddy at her side, aroused the sympathy and admiration of the married men.

Every mother's son of them would have considered it not only a distinguished honour, but a rare personal pleasure to tote a bunch of golfing implements for the contestant who has thus far resisted the wiles and blandishments of the opposite sex.

But they gazed upon the dutiful Mr. Manice, and his burden with scorn and derision, and protested indignantly that his indirect participation in the struggle was contrary to the best interests of the sport.

It is a curious anomaly that the average male creature is woman's untiring gallant and obsequious slave before marriage but is transformed into a domineering dictator as soon as he has acquired lawful possession.

The man who will speed like an antelope seven blocks to procure a box of caramel cream chocolates for his inamorata during the mating season, will growl like a hyena and complain how tired he is if asked to go to the corner for a bucket of water when the honeymoon has waned.

Ivory Carving.

The ivory carvers of this country do little or nothing in the East Indian or Japanese manner, nor do they occupy themselves with figure work. Their chief employment is in producing decorative toilet and stationery articles. The carvers of ivory use much the same tools as the wood carvers, but of lighter and more delicate make.

The work is extremely tedious and laborious. The carving is usually done in low relief, and the subjects are such as are suitable to this treatment—Persian designs in delicate curves, the cactus, with some varieties of palms, and hints caught from those marvelously simple but artistic carvings of the Alaskan Indians. The ivory is stained slightly so as to bring out the design and is permitted to absorb moisture, which it readily does, in order to give it that fresh look common in newly manufactured articles of ivory. The art of staining ivory is a secret guarded well by the carvers.

Some idea of the cost of ivory carving may be had from the fact that, while a hand mirror framed in plain ivory may be had for $10 or $12, a mirror in carved ivory may cost $100 or more. The small articles in carved ivory cost from $5 to $25, and a toilet set in that material may bring as much as $500.

AUGUST CORONATION.

Monday's Decision Places Date Between 10th and 15th.

NOT OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED.

King's Rapid Recovery Makes the Ceremony Possible Sooner Than Expected —His Majesty Had Nine Hours' Natural Sleep Sunday Night— Royal Family Considers King's Case Most Hopeful.

London, July 8.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the following bulletin on King Edward's condition was posted at Buckingham Palace:

"The King had nine hours' natural sleep, and his progress continues to be uninterrupted. The wound is discharging freely, and is less painful to dress. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

King Edward passed a favorable day, and the verbal report given out last night was that His Majesty is still doing well.

The use by the Prince of Wales of the word "recovery" when he referred to the King's progress at the inauguration of the Raphael Nurses home of Guys Hospital yesterday afternoon is regarded in many quarters as indicating that the royal family considers the King's case most hopefully.

Coronation in August.

King Edward will be crowned between Aug. 11 and Aug. 15. His recovery has been so rapid and satisfactory that the above decision was arrived at yesterday. No official announcement of the fact has yet been made, however. The pageant through the streets and the ceremony at Westminster Abbey will be much curtailed from the original plan. Their Majesties will drive from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey through the Mall to Whitehall, and thence to the Abbey, the same route as taken at the opening of Parliament.

No intimation has yet reached the Canadian Ministers regarding the coronation, but it is expected to occur before the close of August or early in September, in which case Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Fielding and others would be there. It is hoped also that a fresh contingent of Canadian troops may come over. Sir Frederick Borden is spending a few days in the country. It is intended to decorate the Canadian arch for Kitchener's return with a new flag design.

The King has been greatly moved by the popular expression of sympathy for him in his illness, and intends to express his feelings in a special message of thanksgiving to the world, to take the place of that prepared for cabling to the empire on Coronation Day.

It is stated the King desires to delay Kitchener's arrival in England until he can personally receive him.

Kitchener Struck With Consternation.

Las Palmas, July 8.—Gen. Kitchener and Gen. French arrived here last night on their way home, and were struck with consternation on hearing of the King's illness and the postponement of the coronation.

A FAREWELL LETTER.

General Lord Kitchener's Praise of "Our Quondam Enemies."

Pretoria, July 7.—Lord Kitchener's valedictory to the troops, dated June 25, after extolling the conduct of the British soldiers in the face of great hardships and difficulties and against dangerous and elusive antagonists, commends the kindly and humane spirit displayed in all ranks, and concludes as follows: "This message would be incomplete were no reference made to the soldierly qualities displayed throughout the campaign by our quondam enemies and the admirable spirit displayed in carrying out the surrender. Many of those who have contended until the end have expressed the hope that they may have, in the future, an opportunity to serve side by side with His Majesty's forces."

UNDER CANADA'S ARCH.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain Pitched Forward Headfirst Against Glass Door of Cab—His Head Badly Cut.

London, July 8.—The Colonial Secretary Joseph Chamberlain, was somewhat cut on the head yesterday, as the result of a cab accident in Whitehall.

His hansom was passing through the Canadian arch when the horse slipped, and Mr. Chamberlain was precipitated forward with great violence. His head struck and shattered the glass front of the cab. When extricated, it was seen that his head was badly lacerated and bleeding profusely. A policeman helped the Secretary into a cab, and accompanied him to Charing Cross Hospital, where his injuries were dressed.

While Mr. Chamberlain's wounds bled a great deal, they were not serious.

Nevertheless, Mr. Chamberlain was sufficiently injured to necessitate his removal to the hospital, and he was carried on a stretcher from the room where his wounds were dressed.

It is officially announced that he is suffering from a scalp wound, which is of a severe, but not dangerous character, rendering advisable his detention for the night. The gash on his forehead required a number of stitches. The conference of the Colonial Premiers who were to have met to discuss Imperial topics, has been postponed owing to the accident. Mr. Chamberlain is resting quietly, but the doctors are not sure he can be moved to-day.

Mrs. Chamberlain remained at the hospital until a late hour.

The following bulletin was issued this afternoon from Charing Cross Hospital: "Mr. Chamberlain is suffering from a scalp wound on the forehead. He is now free from pain and feeling comfortable. There is no concussion.

Mr. Chamberlain's injuries, although not dangerous, are likely to detain him in the house for the remainder of the week. He has already cancelled his engagements until next Thursday, and it is extremely doubtful if he will be permitted to attend the Coronation banquet, to be held in the Guildhall Friday, or the reception to Lord Kitchener Saturday on his return from South Africa.

The Colonial Secretary has a nasty crescent shaped cut across the forehead, three inches long, and penetrating to the bone. Pieces of broken glass were embedded in the wound There was no concussion, but the bone is bruised. Mr. Chamberlain also sustained a slighter cut under the right eye. Mr. Chamberlain treats the matter of his accident lightly.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the Prince and Princess of Wales have sent messages of inquiry to Charing Cross Hospital.

ESCAPED DEATH BY MINUTES

Standing Brick Walls in Whitby Fell, Demolishing Buildings.

Whitby, July 8.—A miraculous escape from death was recorded here yesterday afternoon, and from three to five people in this town congratulated themselves last night that they are alive and unharmed.

For several months the brick walls of the old Gross Building on the main street of the town have been standing as a reminder of the last serious town fire, and to the majority of people a daily menace to the lives of many passing, and particularly to the occupants of two adjoining buildings, occupied by Arthur Gilpin, as a jewelry shop, and James Worfolk, as a barber shop and private dwelling. Yesterday the crash came during the fearful storm, and the Gilpin store is crushed to the ground, and the Worfolk shop and dwelling is practically a ruin.

Five minutes before the disaster Mrs. Gilpin and her daughter closed their shop and went home, and surely it was an intervention of Providence that sent Mrs. James Worfolk from her room upstairs to let her husband in at the back door. Just as he got in the room in which she had been sitting was filled with falling bricks, the roof and other debris. That part of her house is a dense ruin. Fortunately the barber shop was empty, Monday being a half holiday in the local barber shops. The frame buildings are wrecks, and the contents totally destroyed.

FATALITY ON WINNIFREDIAN.

Trooper Gotro of Moncton, N.B., Pitched in Ship's Hold.

Montreal, July 8.—At 7.00 a.m. on Friday, June 6, there occurred a fatal accident on board the transport Winnifredian, which sailed from Halifax for South Africa, on May 17 with the Sixth Regiment of Squadrons C and D of the Canadian Mounted Rifles on board. So writes a correspondent: "At sea, off the South African coast, under date of June 7, one day out of Cape Town, when the mail steamer was sighted, six members of D Squadron were pitched into the hold of the ship. Trooper Gotro of Moncton, N.B., was killed outright, Trooper Hickey of Halifax was very badly injured and not expected to recover; Trooper Harper had his leg broken; Sergt. L'Hereux of Quebec was badly bruised, as was also a fifth man, whose name does not transpire. The accident was caused by the lurching of the ship in a heavy sea.

CANADIANS STRANDED.

Interview the Mayor of Cape Town For Assistance.

London, July 8.—(Telegram cable)—Many Canadians and Australians are in Cape Town in a stranded condition. They interviewed the Mayor of the place on Saturday demanding assistance and threatening to raise a disturbance if it was refused. The Mayor promised them assistance, in the shape of employment, until the arrival of expected transports to take them home.

Another Canadian Dead.

Ottawa, July 8.—W. Smith of St. Catharines, a member of the 3rd C. M.R., is dead of pneumonia at Newcastle, South Africa.

Double Drowning at Lethbridge.

Winnipeg, July 8.—News of a double drowning has reached here from Lethbridge of Joseph and Thomas Davis, brothers, and Wm. Kemp, who were attempting to cross the flooded Little Bow River in a small boat, when it capsized. Kemp immediately disappeared. The Davis brothers held on to the craft until Thomas was exhausted and went down. Joseph, with the boat, drifted to an island, where he was rescued. Kemp was married and leaves a wife and family in Michigan.

Both Legs Amputated.

St. Thomas, July 8.—A yard engine on the L. E. & D.R.R. ran over William Arnold, a sectionman, while backing down to the dock at Port Stanley Sunday night, cutting off one leg just above the ankle and the other just below the knee. He was brought to St. Thomas Hospital, where both legs were amputated.

Fatal Sleep Under a Car.

Sectionman Drowned.

Carbery, Man., July 8. — James Guy, a C.P.R. sectionman, aged 20, was drowned yesterday while bathing in Clarke's Lake. He was seized with cramps and sank before assistance could be rendered.

A CONSPIRACY TO DEFAME.

Electoral purity will not be advanced so long as one party, which, to say the least of it, is as deeply tainted as the other, stands by and hypocritically assumes the holier-than-thou attitude. Everyone recognizes it for for hypocrisy, and the disgust that it engenders stands in the way of effecting any real reform. Exaggerating the evil is another bad influence. It is in all conscience bad enough without seeking to magnify it. It is quite untrue that corruption plays a dominating part in elections in this Province, and, that being the case, it is surely not a desirable thing that the opposite impression should be cultivated. It would be a sad thing for this Province if electoral offences were as common as the Opposition press would have us believe.

If the Liberal party were callous to the heinousness of dishonest interference with the machinery of voting, or if it were defending ballot-tampering, it would be the duty of the electorate to punish it without mercy. But is that the case? We say without fear of responsible contradiction that the Ontario Government, for the first time in the political history of this Dominion, instituted legal proceedings against men whose offences had been committed in the supposed interests of Liberal candidates. Where or when was this ever done before? Mr. Whitney's friends were in power in Ottawa for eighteen years. We do not need to rechronicle the lapses from electoral purity which distinguished that period. Mr. Whitney himself does not undertake to deny them. He dismisses it all as "ancient history." Wr have no indication that when the events took place his indignation was much stirred thereby. The time had apparently not come for the moral upheaval of which he has been giving an imitation for some two years. The singular thing is that the volcano only proceeds to vent its lava on the heads of a Government that has shown greater sensitiveness to the demand for better things in elections than any of its predecessors in any part of the Dominion. It does not appear to have come up to Mr. Whitney's high standard, notwithstanding that thirty persons were convicted by the courts and fines to the amount of $7,000 imposed. In North Waterloo, for example, the Government brought to trial two of the men who were alleged to have altered or mutilated ballots in the interests of the Liberal candidate. A witness was brought thousands of miles to testify against these men. His testimony that the accused had been guilty of certain acts was unfortunately contradicted, and by whom? By the Conservative scrutineer, among others, who said that the acts in question could not have been done without his knowledge. All the others who were there testified to the same effect. The defence were able to show conclusively that the chief witness was unworthy of credence. The case accordingly broke down, and the Magistrate dismissed the accused. Yet this is one of the strong cases upon which the Opposition bases its accusation that the Government is careless or callous in repressing electoral irregularities. Before the election we heard a great deal about Duncan Bole. One would have thought that if the Opposition could only get its hands on Duncan Bole tremendous revelations would follow. Mr. Bole's arrival in Toronto was publicly chronicled the other day, but we have not heard that any steps have been taken by the Opposition to make use of the event for the humiliation of the Government.

But the fact that we desire to impress on the public mind is that the Ontario Government has set a new precedent in the matter of punishing those guilty of offences against the inviolability of the ballot box. It prosecuted indiscriminately friend and foe, secured many convictions, and virtually gave notice that the election "operator" is a criminal, and will be proceeded against as such. When or where has a Conservative Government done this? The fact of the matter is that Mr. Whitney being unable to bring any other accusation against the Ontario Government, has seized upon a series of criminal acts in the West Elgin and North Waterloo elections, and has endeavoured to saddle the responsibility for them upon the Administration. He, moreover, thinks that by keeping up the cry in regard to the recent general election he will produce the impression that the word Liberal is synonymous with corruption. He is engaged, in fact, in a conspiracy to defame his opponents.—Globe.

BRITON AND BOER.

It is stated that at St. Helena when Cronje led a number of the Boer prisoners to the ship that was to take them home, they sang, "God Save the King," heartily, Cronje included, who had already taken the oath of allegiance. This remarkable story serves to give additional credence to previous reports of the goodwill with which the Boers are accepting the British rule. Their course in this matter is not the least extraordinary — is perhaps the most extraordinary—of the many strange things since the beginning of the war. That any person two months ago expected the Boers to give in with a good grace is doubtful; and the wildest flights of fancy never expected the thoroughgoing, complete, frank and apparently cheerful acceptance by these resolute men of their defeat. Prophecies by the hundred were published that the war, whatever its ending, would be followed in South Africa by many years, perhaps by some generations, of bitter feelings and dangerous race cleavage. So far these prophecies seem likely to be utterly dishonoured. The Boer leaders and soldiers seem almost unanimous in a readiness to fraternize with their conquerors. And it is to be remembered that when such men take an oath of allegiance, it is probably to them a binding thing not merely politically but religiously.

What explanation is there of the complete acceptance by the Boers of the result of the war? The answer is difficult. Perhaps the strong common sense which the Boers undoubtedly possess wherever their knowledge of facts is adequate, has something to do with it. The common sense of the Boers did not prevent them from engaging in what for them to the British idea was a hopeless war. The Boers were then supposed to be too ignorant to know what they were about. Knowing as they did, and as all of us do now, but did not then, that they could put 80,000 fighting men out, and thinking as they did reasonably that Britain could not do as much in South Africa — and how many of us prior to the war believed she could?—the Boers do not seem to have been so very ignorant, nor much lacking in sense. And they have since shown that they have a big fund indeed of common sense under most circumstances. Perhaps this quality is telling strongly in favour of a complete acquiescence and co-operation in a new order of things.

But the Journal's conviction is that greatest of all factors towards the new Boer frame of mind has been the humane British conduct of the war. Many of us thought the British policy, if not altogether a mistake, too lenient by long odds. Sterner pursuance of war, less generosity, less concern for the property or the families of the enemy, seemed possibly likely to be the more merciful policy in the end, by bringing the war to a speedier close. This was widely argued. The logic of events seems to refute that idea and to justify the British course. The war possibly—though not probably—might have been hammered to a close earlier; but surely it would have ended with a proportionate measure of that bitterness which some prophesied would exist in any case, but which seems to be utterly absent. The Boers, who though unmilitary, unlettered, almost uneducated, fought as a rule with a humanity and fairness as conspicuous as their courage and shrewdness are we believe exhibiting in their acceptance of the result an intelligent and powerful sense of the fairness and humanity of the men who fought against them, and who won with a bravery equal to and a wealth and numerical strength greater than their own.

If this idea of the Boer spirit be correct, a future harmonious as well as prosperous is at the door of South Africa. The same British spirit which conducted the war nobly will continue in the British peace administration; and the spirit which in the Boers seems to show a manly appreciation of the course their opponents pursued will honour fully the justice and freedom of British rule. — Ottawa Journal.

Paine's Celery Compound

SHOULD BE USED IN JULY AND AUGUST.

To Test a Logging Law.

Vancouver, B. C., July 7.—Owing to the fact that cedar timber cannot be exported to the States, the price on Puget Sound has gone up to $12 and the price here down to $6.50 per thousand. The Loggers' combine has secured eminent legal authority to the effect that the Government of the province cannot grant a special license to loggers to cut timber and then prevent their selling it where they choose. The combine will fight the Government in a test case.

ALL TRAINS ABANDONED.

Result of Washouts—Boy Drowned in Alleghany River.

Olean, N.Y., July 8.—A heavy rain and cloudburst did much damage throughout Alleghany County yesterday. Many washouts along the Rochester division of the Western New York & Pennsylvania Railroad occurred, and all trains were abandoned.

On the Erie railroad, washouts occurred at several points between Salamanca and Hornellsville, and at Scio a bridge was carried away. Much stock was killed by lightning.

Paul Fuhrer, 10 years old, was drowned in the Alleghany River here. While swimming he was overpowered in an eddy that had been created by a sudden rise in the river. A companion, Claude Varnard, 12 years old, made a dive into 12 or 15 feet of water and recovered the body.

A RAILWAY MAN.

Extraordinary Unpleasant Symptoms of Kidney Trouble in This Case.

Tortured by all Kinds of Pains and Aches he Tries Everything, but Fails to Find Relief Till a Friend Advises Him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills—They Have Made a Well Man of Him and he is Grateful.

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—(Special.)—Frank Chartrand, a railway man, whose home is 130 Little Chaudiere street, has acknowledged that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done more for him than anything else in the world has ever done. He says: "I suffered with backache and was always drowsy and had a very heavy feeling in my limbs.

"I had frequent severe headaches and more times very sharp pains in the top of my head, which gave me much annoyance in my work.

"My fingers would cramp and I would have an uneasiness in my legs and occasional pains in the loins.

"I was dizzy in spells and short of breath. If I ate a hearty meal I would have a pain in my left side. My appetite would sometimes be very good and sometimes I couldn't eat anything.

"I had a constant soreness and tenderness over the spine and tired feeling in the region of my kidneys.

"I suffered quite a little with a dragging heavy feeling across the loins.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by a friend of mine who had been cured, and I began to use them.

"Almost from the start I began to feel the wonderful improvement, which continued as the treatment proceeded, till the unpleasant symptoms had one by one entirely disappeared.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have worked a wonderful cure in my case and I cannot speak too highly of this great and good remedy."

What Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for Mr. Chartrand they have done for thousands of others, and they'll do the same for you if you give them a chance.

There are many railway men in Canada to-day who find Dodd's Kidney Pills indispensable. They are the railway man's surest and best friend.

The constant vibration on trains and engines is very hard on the kidneys, and Dodd's Kidney Pills make these organs well and able to resist disease.

HEROES OF THE WELL

A Mass Meeting at Paris Decides To Take Action.

SANFORD'S RESCUERS PRAISED

Their Heroism to Be Suitably Recognized—Investigating Committee Appointed Which Will Report Facts to Royal Humane Society—Subscriptions to Be Received For His Benefit—Suffering From Abscess.

Paris, July 8.—Mayor Brown occupied the chair at a mass meeting of citizens last night at which resolutions touching the recent experiences of Joshua Sanford and his rescuers from the well on the Skelly farm.

One resolution recorded the meeting's "high sense of the noble heroism and self-sacrifice displayed by those persons who bravely risked their lives from the 24th to the 27th June, 1902, in their efforts, which happily proved successful, to rescue Mr. Joshua Sanford from the well on the farm occupied by Mr. George Scott."

Another, "that this meeting is of the opinion that many of those who assisted in the work of rescue are worthy of special recognition at the hands of the community and of the Royal Humane Association, and that a committee consisting of Messrs David Brown, J. H. Fisher, Richard Thompson, F. Snoke, and T. Scott Davidson, be appointed to make the necessary enquiries, secure evidence and conduct such correspondence as may be necessary to lay the facts before the Royal Humane Association; and, be it further

"Resolved, that such committee be requested to take steps to obtain subscriptions towards a 'Sanford Rescuers' Fund,' with a view to presenting testimonials to those who in their several capacities are especially worthy of recognition, and that such committee be empowered to determine the shape such testimonials shall take and make all arrangements for presenting same."

Moved by T. Scott Davidson, seconded by James Smiley, "That this meeting desires to express its most sincere sympathy with Joshua Sanford in the sufferings undergone by him during the four days he spent underground, realizing as he must have done, that his escape could be looked forward to with only the most meagre hope, and to place on record its admiration for the fortitude displayed by him in his most trying situation."

Sanford has had two very uncomfortable days, owing to the formation of three very painful abcesses, one on the left arm, one on the armpit, and the third on the crown of his head, in consequence of which his temperature went up, and his general condition was one of distress.

Last night he was easier, but his recovery will be delayed.

BIG STRIKE AT CHICAGO.

9,000 Freight Handlers Go Out—C.N.R. Strikers Ask For Arbitration—Arrest of Ten Coal Strikers.

Chicago, July 8.—A strike of 9,000 freight handlers in Chicago was called yesterday, and every freight house of the 24 railroads concerned is practically tied up. Business men fear that the strike will be the most serious which has affected their interests in years.

Coal Strikers Arrested.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 8.—Sheriff Reiff swore out warrants yesterday for the arrest of ten strikers at Williamstown, this county, for inciting a riot and interfering with his deputies in protecting non-union men going to and from work in the mines at Lykens and Williamstown. The Sheriff says the situation in the region is critical.

Strikers Ask Arbitration.

Winnipeg, July 8.—Canadian Northern train on the Portage branch was stoned yesterday morning and a couple of men were hurt, but not seriously.

The company claims that they will have everything moving freely in a few days and that many of the sectionmen have returned. This is strenuously denied by the strikers.

A delegation of prominent labor men and representatives of the strikers waited upon Mayor Arbuthnot yesterday to elicit his support in having the strike terminated. The Mayor promised to do all in his power to have the strike satisfactorily settled.

It has been learned from the Vice-President of the U. B. R. Employers that the Canadian Northern firemen presented a schedule yesterday morning, and will give the company 36 hours to accept it.

Plumbers' Strike Settled.

Toronto, July 8.—The strike of the union plumbers, steam and gas fitters is a thing of the past, a satisfactory settlement having been arrived at yesterday. Although the men did not get everything, yet they affected a compromise which they look upon as a fair settlement. It was finally agreed that the employes be given an increase all round of 2½c an hour, which will bring the wages up to 30c an hour. On Jan. 1, 1903, another advance of 2c. an hour will be given, making the wages paid after that date, 32c an hour. The new agreement will be effective until Dec. 31, 1903. The men return to work this morning.

Toronto Street Railway Again.

Toronto, July 8.—A good deal of friction is developing between the officials of the Street Railway Company and the members of the union, and it begins to look as if the agreement entered into as a basis for the strike being declared off is not working to the satisfaction of both parties to the contract. A mass meeting of the union is called for two o'clock Sunday afternoon at Richmond Hall for the purpose of discussing the new phases of the trouble.

The heat of a common coal fire is 1,140 degrees but it takes 3,479 degrees to melt iron.

A protest has been filed in North Wentworth by Lieut.-Col. H. C. Gwyn, acting for A. R. Wardell, the defeated candidate, against the return of R. A. Thompson. The petition recites the usual list of charges of corruption on the part of the successful nominee's agents.

Scott.

Scott believed that "Waverley" was his best novel and "The Lady of the Lake" his best poem. He and the Ballantynes had more than one lively discussion on the subject, but he would never admit a change of opinion. He knew "The Lady of the Lake" by heart and once repeated the whole to prove the fact.—Literary Life.

A Rough Ride.

Physician (at hospital)—I thought you merely had the measles?

Patient—Well, isn't that enough?

Physician—Yes, but you are covered with bruises from head to foot. How do you account for that?

Patient—Oh, they brought me here in an ambulance.

Her Noble Deed.

"No wonder he loves her! Didn't she save his life?"

"Mercy! How?"

"Why, he said if she didn't accept him he'd go and kill himself, and she took him."

THE WEATHER IN CANADA.

Unsettled Condition Will Continue For Some Days—Havoc Caused by Lightning—Barn Burned—Horse Killed.

Toronto, July 8.—During the past few days thunderstorms have been general throughout the province, remarked R. A. Stupart, director of the Observatory in Queen's Park, last night. Since July 1 the rainfall in Toronto has amounted to 1.33 inches, which is considerably above the average, and there has been more rain in the northern sections of the province than in Toronto.

The present unsettled condition of the weather will continue for some days, but the storm is now central over the Northwest Territories. The electrical storm was caused by the heat and had its origin in this section.

Reports from outside towns show that the storm yesterday was general in eastern and western Ontario. Yesterday afternoon at Guelph six inches of water covered the G.T.R. tracks for a distance of 100 yards. The thunder and lightning was terrific. The rain came down in torrents, and over a wide area wheat and oat fields are flattened. The ensuing damage will be great.

Barn Burned.

Pickering, July 8.—One of the most terrific storms seen in this section for years passed over here yesterday afternoon. Rain fell in torrents for hours, accompanied with some hail and strong gales. A number of fruit and other trees were blown down, and much damage will be done to crops.

David E. Hughes' large barn west of the town was struck by lightning and burned to its foundation. A new Massey binder and about four hundred bushels of grain were consumed in the barn. The loss will be $2,000.

Thomas Knox had a valuable horse killed by the lightning in the stable below his barn. His son was in the stable, but escaped with a severe shock.

Washout Near Peterboro.

Toronto, July 8.—The C. P. R. train from the east, due in Toronto at 7.25 last night, was about seven hours late because of a washout on the line near Peterboro. The train leaving here for the east, however, was able to leave on time, as the damage was repaired before it reached the place.

Horse Killed by Lightning.

Glencoe, July 8.—During an electrical storm which visited this section yesterday afternoon, a valuable horse belonging to the Woodburn Milling Company was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The horse was hitched to a post near the mill at the time.

PERSISTENT AND GLARING ATTEMPTS MADE TO DEFRAUD THE PUBLIC.

Several Vile Imitations of Paine's Celery Compound Now Sold in Some Drug Stores.

Recognizing the virtues, fame and wondrous sales of Paine's Celery Compound, Nature's health restorer, unscrupulous and dishonest men are making persistent and glaring attempts to defraud the public by putting up vile imitations. These imitations by adopting the name Celery Compound, the style of bottle, etc., (marks peculiar to the genuine Paine's Celery Compound, have just brought themselves within the meshes of the law, and this nefarious work will be forcibly brought to the attention of the guilty parties within a short time.

For the present it is deemed advisable to warn the public and put them on their guard. The sick and suffering, and friends of such, are notified that the following imitations are deceptions and frauds;

Gibson, Howell & Co's, Celery Compound.

Robertson & Co's Celery Compound.

Andrew's Celery Compound.

The only genuine Celery Compound is PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND; it is the kind that "makes sick people well."

Count Coming Here.

New York, July 5.—Rocco Dianovich, Count of Lirra, who has traveled around the world, getting himself arrested in many cities for the purpose of experiencing the various methods of prison discipline, is here again, having arrived on the steamship Havana. He explains his mission as the investigation of conditions existing in prisons, asylums and public institutions for the poor and the criminal generally. He is going to Toronto, Canada, shortly.

St. John's church bell was tolled out of respect to the memory of the deceased, her husband, the late Rev. Burnham, being a former Rector of St. John's.

McDONOUGH'S INJURIES.

He Met With an Accident at the Cereal Co's Building.

An accident occurred at the new elevator building of the American Cereal Company at half past 8 o'clock this morning and as a result Mr. Jack McDonough, one of the employees, was seriously injured. The The work on the elevator building is proceeding quite rapidly and a very large force of men is engaged. The heavy material is elevated to where the men are at work by means of a boom. The surface of the elevator is a mesh of large holes which will constitute the bins when completed. These are boarded over at short distances in order to permit of the men working thereon. This morning the boom stick broke and came down with such force on the bin on which McDonough and two other workmen were working that it broke the planking and caused them to fall to the bottom of the pit. A quantity of material fell on top of McDonough who was extricated after some little difficulty. He was badly cut about the head and was bruised about the body. Dr. McGrath was promptly in attendance and McDonough was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The other two men, Fowler and Byers were only slightly injured.

THE CIRCUS PARADE.

The fine street parade of the Forepaugh-Sells circus and menagerie was witnessed this morning by thousands of spectators. And it was well worth seeing being full of interest in every department. The splendid show of well-kept horses, the riders and the large herd of elephants all presented a clean, neat appearance, showing that good things of this kind are considered worthy of good care. The clean appearance of everything is creditable since almost every day for a month past the show has had to fight with rain and mud. An excellent performance attended by thousands was given at the grounds, and those who missed it this afternoon will find the evening performance well worth attending.

The Weather.

Yesterday's temperature — Highest, 87 degrees in the shade; lowest 65 degrees; rain, .50 of an inch.

The Inspection.

The members of the 57th Regiment are reminded of the Company drill which will take place to-morrow night at 7.30 o'clock, and the Regimental Inspection at 6.30 o'clock Thursday evening.

The Right Man in the Right Place.

Mr. Fred Allison, well known in town, has accepted a responsible position with Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co., of the City Clothing Store. He has assumed the management of the ready-made clothing department, a position for which he is specially fitted by long experience and a practical knowledge of the trade. Mr. Allison has also the reputation of being a conscientious salesman and an excellent stock-keeper.

Obituary.

The death occurred at Roseneath on Saturday last of Mr. George Turner, father of Mr. M.A. Turner of the Peterborough Music Store, town. The deceased was 68 years of age and had lived all his life in the same locality. He leaves to mourn his demise a wife and the following sons and daughters: Messrs. M. A., Peterborough; Walter and Bert, of California; E. H., Rochester; Lester, Uxbridge, and Frank at home, and Misses Flo, Uxbridge; Ida, Campbellford; Eva and Hattie at home. The funeral, which took place Monday, was largely attended.

NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE BUILDING.

There are two chief reasons why there should be as little delay as possible in providing the town with a suitable Collegiate Institute building. There is absolute and pressing necessity, in the interests of the Institute, for a new building, and there is pressing necessity for increased public school accommodation, which will be provided by the erection of a new building releasing the present premises to be occupied for public school purposes. Time after time the question of additional public school accommodation has urged itself, and has otherwise been urged, upon the Board of Education, and this question is more insistent at the present time than ever before. With the increase of population that has taken place and is in operation continuously, the congestion of our public school accommodation becomes greater. And the question of providing additional space permits of a comparatively easy solution, and that is to devote the buildings at present occupied by the Collegiate Institute to public school purposes. This will provide a large part of the additional accommodation required, and at the same time relieve the ratepayers of a considerable expense or rather permit the expense to be applied to the cost of a new Institute building. The Menzies property now used for public school purposes will not be needed, if the Institute building is turned over for public school use. The rental of the Menzies property—$560 a year—will thus be saved. This sum represents the interest at 4 per cent. upon a capital of $13,750, which would go a considerable way in providing for the cost of a new Institute building.

The present Institute building is entirely inadequate and does not at all fulfil the requirements of the law as to accommodation and equipment, and it is only by the good nature, so to speak, and lenieney of the Department of Education that the annual Government grant is forthcoming. Peterborough as a matter of fact has no right to exceptional treatment in this regard when other places have to comply and do comply with the requirements of the law. It is to be remembered that at the last visit, the High School Inspector, pretty plainly intimated that if the improvements required were not provided, the Institute would be degraded to the status of an ordinary High School. It is a reproach to Peterborough which leads in everything else, that we incur the danger of being placed in a secondary position in the matter of higher education to such places as Lindsay, Napanee, Woodstock, Guelph, Stratford, Cobourg, and even Norwood, which, we are advised, have all better buildings in the matter of legal requirements, than Peterborough. With an unusually efficient staff, and otherwise advantageously conditioned for maintaining a first class educational institution, it would be most unfortunate if failure to supply the material conditions, as represented by buildings, should make Peterborough a laughing stock through the degradation of its Collegiate Institute to the status of an ordinary High School.

We must have a new Institute building, and the conditions are favourable for the Board taking action. The saving effected by dispensing with the Menzies property and the increased grant that will come to an Institute properly equipped for general teaching, and the teaching of technical branches and Domestic Science, will go a considerable way towards meeting the cost of a new building, properly equipped, which will place the town in a position in regard to buildings, in keeping with its general advanced position in the province, and at the same time provide the public school accommodation that is so urgently required. Besides, the Central School Kindergarten premises are notoriously unfit for use, being damp, and perilous to the health of teachers and pupils every moment of occupation.

The question must be faced. The public interests demand that prompt steps be taken, not only in the educational interests of the town, but for the sake of the credit of the town. The Board of Education has no right to urge as an excuse for their dilitoriness that the people do not want a new that the people do not want a new Institute building, and thereby the necessary increased public school accommodation. Let the Board submit its requisition to the Town Council; let the town submit a bylaw to the people, and let the people decide. Peterborough cannot afford to be degraded to a secondary position through the failure to keep abreast of the times in educational matters, especially when we lead in all other respects.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

A Keene Young Lady's Unaccountable Absence.

The quiet village of Keene is greatly excited over the unaccountable disappearance of Miss English, who has been missing since Saturday night at 10.30.

Miss English, a niece of Mr. Robt. English, general merchant, aged about 23 or 24 years, assisted her uncle in his shop, and was thus engaged on Saturday night. About ten o'clock she left the shop, and called at a dressmaker's, and was seen home by a young man with whom she is said to have been keeping company, and he left her safely on the verandah of her uncle's residence at 10.30. This is the last that has been seen of the young lady up to Tuesday, though most diligent search and enquiry have been made.

So far nothing has come to public knowledge that would account for Miss English's strange disappearance.

THE CIRCUS IS IN TOWN.

Arrived Here This Morning With a Big Equipment.

The Street Parade Attracted Thousands —Busses Busy Carrying Passengers This Afternoon.

The circus is here. And the small boy and everybody else who have been on the qui vive for many days, are happy.

The first rays of the rising sun saw many boys and men waiting at the station of the Grand Trunk Railway. And by the time the trains came in, in four sections, comprising 72 large cars, representing the Forepaugh-Sells Bros. circus, the boys could be numbered by hundreds. No sooner had the train stopped than the management was besieged by an army of youths willing to carry water or do anything to merit the coveted pasteboard that would admit them to the circus ring.

The work of unloading from the cars, and transferring to the grounds was done with amazing speed, and soon the tents were ready and preparations in progress for the big street parade.

The show is located on the agricultural grounds. The main circus canvas is perhaps one of the largest ever spread. It is capable of taking care of between ten and twelve thousand people.

At about half past ten the parade started from the grounds on its trip around town. But some time before this the people were ready to receive it. The main streets were all thickly lined with people of all ages and classes, anxious to see and hear all they could for nothing.

The parade was introduced by a drum and bugle corps, followed by a mounted escort of the soldiers of all the armies in the U. S. since revolutionary days. First came the old continentals with their odd three cornered hats and knee breeches. Then came the boys of 1812, the Mexican war soldiers with their stove pipe hats, the more familiar figures of the Boys of '61, and finally the Rough Riders. These, and in fact all the participants in the parade, were very neatly and attractively costumed, and the high order of the show was evidenced by the clean, slick appearance of both performers and animals.

Then followed the long line of menageris cages, the numerous bands, with quick tune on high strung instruments, the cages with wild beasts, the steam calliope, with its budget of the latest popular airs, and finally the amusing hay cart party of acrobats with their neck breaking performances in the hay wagon.

The doors to the tents opened at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and a steady stream of people poured in. The menagerie of the show is a good one, but it is in the ring performance that the circus excels. The programme is jam-ful of hair-raising scenes—Diavolo, the dare-devil, loop-the-looper, high in air acrobats, with their sensational feats, daring equestrian performances, trick bicycle riding, and the intensely stirring chariot and other races. Then there are the scenes that cause the tensioned nerves to relax as the omnipresent clown or the well trained animals do clever antics.

The loop-the-loop act is last on the programme this afternoon but first to-night. This is undoubtedly the most thrilling feature of the show, so should not be missed. The doors will open at seven o'clock this evening, one hour before the performance begins.

The circus came here from Belleville, where it showed to immense and delighted audiences. It will exhibit in Barrie to-morrow.

The Canadian General Electric Co. closed down for the day in order that the employees might view the procession and take in the sights.

From the Minister of Public Works as follows;

T. H. G. Denne, Esq.,

Dear Sir, — Permit me to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of 30th, regarding additional accommodation in the river applied for by the citizens of your town.

As I have explained to you, Parliament has not placed at my disposal any money to carry out that work. I have no right to take any steps towards such works without a special authorization from my colleagues. When I came to Ottawa there was not a quorum of ministers in the capital. I will do my level best to make the necessary arrangements, but it is indeed very difficult, as when Parliament has not voted money for a work, a Minister has no right whatever to go on with the work. As soon as I am back to Ottawa I will see the acting Prime Minister and ask his advice and co-operation in the matter.

Truly yours,
J. ISRAEL TARTE.

THE JOINT COMMITTEE

through Ald. Morrison reported as subjoined;

Gentlemen,—Having been appointed to meet the representatives of the County Council regarding repairs to Otonabee bridge, we met Messrs. E. A. Peck, Commissioner, and J. E. Belcher, County Engineer on the 3rd inst., at 9 a.m.

After a thorough examination of the bridge we came to the conclusion that the present condition of the floor and joists was so bad that any attempt at patching would be a waste of money.

We therefore recommend the following be carried out;

Complete new joists 3x12 inches, set 18 feet apart, centre to centre; A subfloor of 3 inch pine plank, laid diagonally and spiked to joists; A top, or wearing floor of 2 inch pine plank, laid longitudially, and spiked to sub-floor. Estimated cost as above, $625.00. The old material to be divided equally, and to be used for repairs elsewhere.

The superstructure requires tightening, many of the rods and bolts causing undue vibration.

An experienced man with proper appliances will be required for this operation.

We also recommend that notices be put up on each end of the bridge prohibiting driving faster than a walk.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman of Joint Committee.

June 3rd, 1902.

The report was adopted.

THE BOARD OF WORKS

reported as follows through Ald. Edgcumbe;

1. We recommend that the Town pay William Downer, caretaker of the locks, bridge, $45.00 a year, as the Town's share of his salary.

2. We recommend that James English be paid $50 a year additional salary, to date from May 1st, 1902, and that it be part of his duty to act as engineer of the road roller, flush sewers, etc.

3. We recommend that tenders be asked for a gravel walk on the River Road, north of Smith street, subject to the specifications to be drawn up by the Engineer.

4. We cannot recommend that the request of Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald for permission to construct a railway siding on Bethune street be granted, as it obstruct the street too much.

5. We recommend that the request of Rev. W. J. McColl for a granolithic sidewalk at St. Peter's Presbytery be granted, on the petition being presented in proper form and properly signed.

6. We have examined the petition for a granolithic sidewalk on the east side of Stewart street, from Dalhousie to King streets, and find that it is not sufficiently signed.

7. We recommend that the Stevenson Coal Company's tender for steam coal at $4.85 per ton be accepted, provided the Company deliver it where and as it is required by the Town Engineer, and that each load be weighed on the market scales, and the market weigh ticket be given to the Engineer, the Town to pay for the weighing.

8. We recommend that the application of the Peterborough Light & Power Co. for permission to place a pole line on Dublin street from George to Aylmer streets be granted, the poles to be placed subject to the approval of the Town Engineer.

9. We recommend that the Town Engineer be instructed to order the removal of any unused poles from the streets, and that if they are not removed the Engineer be instructed to remove them.

10. We recommend that the Chairman of this Board be authorized to arrange with the Water Commissioners for a constant flow of water into the dead ends of the sewers.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

H. BEST,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE COURT OF REVISION

reported through Ald. Shortly as follows;

Gentlemen,—Your Court of Revision beg leave to report that they have considered the application of Mr. Hugh Porter for the refund of $1.89 personal property tax, paid by him, and recommend that upon Mr. Porter producing a receipt showing that he paid taxes for 1901, in Otonabee, a cheque for $1.89 be issued him.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

B. SHORTLY,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

Ald. Corkery introduced the bylaw for the appointment of a collector of taxes. The bylaw received its several readings and was passed. Mr. W. J. Green being re-appointed at a salary of $700.

STORM'S DESTRUCTIVE WORK.

Serious Damage Reported From Cavan.

Excursion Party Down the River Suffered Badly—At Chemong Park.

The storm of yesterday afternoon proved to be just as disasterous as the storm of Saturday last and upwards of half an inch of rain fell. From various parts of the country come reports of the storm's doings which would indicate that Peterborough escaped fairly well.

The Sunday School of St. John's church had their annual outing to Jubilee Point yesterday. They left here at noon when the weather looked ideal for an excursion. When the party arrived at Jubilee the rain was coming down in torrents. The excursionists did not land but remained on board until they struck the Peterborough wharf. Those who took in the event had a thrilling experience.

Many Millbrook people are in town to-day having come in to attend the circus. They report heavy damage in that vicinity, houses and barns having been struck by lightning, foundations having been swept from under barns and general destruction committed.

The house of Mr. Andrew Hogg on the W. J. Hall farm, North Monaghan, was struck by lightning yesterday and badly damaged. The electric fluid came down the chimney and tore the corner out of the house. One room is completely demolished. No one was injured however.

The storm played great havoc at Chemong. Several large pine trees three feet in diameter were blown down and several oak trees were demolished. The walks through the park were badly damaged by the great flood of water.

The barn of Mr. Samuel Might of Cavan, was blown from its foundations and completely wrecked.

The side was blown out of the brick house of Mr. Thomas Donaldson, Cavan, and a barn belonging to Mr. Samuel Roddy, near Fraserville, was blown to pieces.

THE STORM IN OMEMEE.

Lamb's Tannery Struck and Employees Shocked.

The storm touched Omemee pretty sharply. Yesterday at about 4.30 lightning struck Lamb's large tannery and three of the employees were prostrated. One man named Owen Johnson was badly shocked, remaining entirely unconscious for hours, but finally came to himself, and will doubtless recover. He is a married man with a wife and two children.

SCHOLES DEFEATED BY TITUS.

United States Sculler Turns the Tables on the Toronto Man.

Henley-on-Thames, July 8.—In his preliminary heat yesterday with C. S. Titus, of the Union Boat Club, New York, Lou Scholes, of Toronto, was vanquished, and is out of it for the Diamond Sculls for 1902.

Scholes caught the water first rowing 37 strokes to the minute and had a distinct lead at the quarter mile. At half the course he led by about three-quarters of a length. Time, 4.05.

Titus here spurted, but Scholes responded and at the three-quarter mile he led by a good length. Titus then gradually gained until the last hundred and fifty yards when he spurted, winning by a length and a half. Time 8.33.

The result occasioned no little disappointment among the Canadians present, who had looked to Scholes taking the first heat at least.

Over-confidence and perhaps lack of judgment contributed to settle the business for Scholes, who also displayed a slight nervousness. Titus, on the other hand, showed excellent judgment and skill and won his race by scientific sculling.

In heat A Beresford in 8.47 defeated Johnson, and in heat C Etherington-Smith of the Leanders, came in ahead of Prevel, the French representative. Smith, who has been coached by Tom Sullivan, is regarded now as the likely one. His time was 8.43.

It furnishes a delicious dish, and its strengthening qualities are beneficial to the worker. I can recommend it with pleasure." See your grocer.

Not Left Out.

An English paper tells a story of some children's theatricals. A party of children were giving a little drama of their own, in which courtships and weddings played a leading part in the plot. While the play was in progress one of the grownups went behind the scenes and found a very small girl sitting in the corner.

"Why are you left out?" he asked. "Aren't you playing too?"

"Oh, I'm not left out," came the reply. "I'm the baby waiting to be borned."

Without a Rival.

Printers' Ink undertakes to explain why the newspaper is the foremost and unrivaled medium of publicity. "It can be said of no other medium," it affirms, "that it goes everywhere and is read by everybody. A certain few only read the billboards, the street car and steamboat cards, etc., but the newspaper goes into every home and is the one supreme source of information."

His Final Instructions.

An old darky who was fearful of being buried alive left these final instructions:

"After my time come lemme stay as long as possible. Don't make de funeral sermont too long, kase dat'll make me sleep only de sounder; but blow de dinner ho'n over me. Ef dat don't wake me, I is sho' gone!"

Forethought.

"You are probably not aware, sir," said the angry father, "that last year my daughter spent $1,500 on her dress."

"Yes, I am," said the young man firmly. "I advised her to do it over a year ago, when we first became engaged."

Wasn't His Hat, Anyway.

Mr. Weddle, visiting his wife's relatives up in Maine, fairly had to go to church that Sunday. He didn't want to go, but his wife thought it would do him good and would be apt to preserve the harmony of the family.

The sermon was long and powder dry, and Weddle stole off into the arms of Morpheus gently and serenely. As he did not snore, his wife did not suspect that he had gone to sleep alongside of her and gave herself up fully to inspecting the bonnet of the woman in the pew in front.

Like all things, good and bad, the sermon came to an end at last, but Weddle slumbered on like a baby even after a deacon began taking up the collection in a hat. When the derby was passed to Weddle, Mrs. Weddle was surprised to see that he did not respond. She nudged him violently to bring him back to his senses, and Weddle, awakening with a start, sat upright and, bewildered, gazed at the hat in the hand of the deacon. Then he shook his head sleepily and said:

"No; that isn't mine. Mine is a gray one."

Bad Nerve.

"Well, ain't that a lovely customer? I just dote on waiting on that kind. Did you see her, though?" The shopgirl was bubbling over with rage. A woman and her daughter had looked at not fewer than twenty-five silk waists! At last they took up one, and the woman brought forth a tape measure. "I think we might get it out of three and a half yards or three and two-thirds anyhow. Just wait—twenty-three inches down the front, three-quarters for the sleeves, allow a quarter for collar and cuffs. Yes, that'll do it." As she talked she ran the tape over the waist, the clerk standing by almost bursting with indignation. "Three yards of lace, one and a quarter of insertion," she went on, measuring the trimming. "Put that down, Amy. Now let's go. We can get up a waist exactly like that for $7.50, and they ask $14.98. They've got their nerve, haven't they?"

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhosone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

From the Theater Gallery.

Mr. W. Pett Ridge tells in the English Illustrated that the best repartee he ever encountered was in the gallery of a theater. An extremely stout, good tempered woman contrived to wedge herself into a space that would have accommodated a person of ordinary size, to the unconcealed annoyance of a smartly dressed youth next to her. She began to peel an orange, and the youth, with a gesture of complaint, removed his silk hat fussily to a safer position.

"I suppose," said the good tempered woman, "that you'd rather have had a gentleman sitting by the side of you, sir, wouldn't you?"

The youth replied snappishly in the affirmative.

"Ah," said the woman thoughtfully, "so would I!"

No Deaths Have Resulted

From consumption where the patient was not first afflicted with a common cough. This ought to warn people to take Four T's, the great guaranteed cough cure, which cures coughs in 24 hours, the worst colds in two days, and is the only positive cure known for bronchitis and pneumonia. Large bottles 25 cents at Ormond & Walsh's drug store.

Growth of Children.

At five years of age boys are mainly taller than girls, but the girls appear to equal them at the seventh year and continue thus up to and including the ninth year, after which the boys rise again above the girls for two years. At about twelve years the girls suddenly become taller than the boys, continuing until the fifteenth year, when the boys finally regain their superiority of stature.

Could not do One Day's Work

Without Being Laid up for Two Days Afterward — Languid and Miserable—Cannot say Anything too Good for

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Mrs. G. M. Brown, Cobourg, Ont., states: "I was completely run down in health last spring and could not do one day's work without being laid up for about two days afterward. I felt weak, languid and miserable most of the time, and was often blue and discouraged because of my continued ill-health. When in this state I was advised to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and did so with most satisfacory results. It built up my system wonderfully strengthened and restored my nerves, and took away all feelings of languor and fatigue. I cannot say anything too good about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and hope that others may profit by my experience."

People who are pale, weak and run down and are unable to find anything to build them up would do well to follow the advice of Mrs. Brown and use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is bound to do you good, because it puts new life and vigour into the blood and nerves; 50 c a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 4

CRISPI'S NARROW ESCAPE.

The Courrier des Etats Unis says that on Jan. 14, 1858, the late Francesco Crispi, the great Italian statesman, then a political refugee in Paris, received from an Italian friend connected with the Paris opera two gallery tickets for the performance of that evening, which the emperor and empress were expected to attend. Crispi and his wife were on the point of starting for the theater when the latter exclaimed, "Francesco, where shall we get a candle?"

They were in such destitution that they had neither candles nor matches nor yet the wherewithal to buy them. Going to the opera would involve groping for their room at midnight and going to bed in total darkness. Too proud to confess their condition and to borrow, a few sous, they regretfully denied themselves the promised treat, remained in their room and retired before the twilight had faded.

On the following morning they learned of Orsini's attack on the emperor, the police raids and the arrest of all Italian revolutionists found in or near the theater. If Crispi had been in the house, he would certainly have been among the first arrested, for he was known as an ardent disciple of Mazzini.

Division General Poor Speller.

"When I was in the civil war," said General Grosvenor, "I had a division commander who was the finest looking man on a horse you ever saw. He was a good soldier, too, but he had some educational deficiencies. One day he thought to drill his division. After some maneuvering he got them lined up in column of fours to start.

"The proper command is 'Column, forward!' The general didn't know this, and he waved his sword in the air and yelled 'Column!' Not a man moved. The general had a voice you could hear half a mile. He stood up in his stirrups and yelled again, 'Column!' Still there was no move. Then he turned his horse and dashed back to the soldiers.

"'What's the matter?' he shouted, so loud that everybody on the parade ground could hear him. 'Can't you understand when I give a command? Column! Column! I'll spell it for you, you idiots—C-o-l-u-m-n!'"

Strange Effects of Extreme Cold.

Dr. Moss of the English polar expedition of 1875-77, among many other things, told of the strange effects of the extreme cold upon the candles they burned. The temperature was from 35 to 50 degrees below zero, and the doctor says he was considerably discouraged when upon looking at his candle he discovered that the flame "had all it could do to keep warm." It was so cold that the flame could not melt all of the tallow of the candle, but was forced to eat its way down, leaving a sort of skeleton candle standing. There was heat enough, however, to melt odd shaped holes in the thin walls of tallow, the result being a beautiful lace-like cylinder of white, with a narrow tongue of yellow flame burning on the inside and sending out many streaks of light into the darkness.

Eating Seals in England.

The water baily of London brought a "quick" seal to court, receiving 26 shillings 8 pence (1530), and in the same year the item "for bringing a cele" 15 shillings occurs. Seals were eaten, though they may have been kept as a curiosity. One was presented to Cromwell, Wolsey's successor in Henry's favor, though it died before he could have derived much pleasure from it. Perhaps he ate it. At Henry VII.'s wedding feast in 1487 one of the dishes was "seyle in fenyn, entirely served richly," and very rich it must have been. In Cromwell's accounts for 1537 William Wodehouse's servant brings a porpoise, and porpoises we know are eaten.

Highflown Language.

In the east the flow of language in praise of rulers is sometimes wonderful. The Burmese greeting Lord Curzon, viceroy of India, at the Royal lakes, declared that "his glory shines resplendent as the orb of day, his intellect is as farreaching as the lightning. May he be as glorious as the sun and moon!"

The Prince of Wales was extolled by an oriental subject as "great thief" under the impression that this was the highest possible compliment. Another monarch was named "the protector of all vegetables, regulator of the seasons, absolute master of the ebb and flow of the sea."

When Abroad, Speak English.

The English speaking tourist who wastes half an hour of time, temper and energy in trying to make some dweller in a foreign land understand his bad French or Spanish only to be shocked at length by some such a question as "Can't you speak English?" is almost as common nowadays as the track walking tragedian. This is a little story of his experience in Spain, as told by "The Dominie" in The Ladies' Home Journal:

"One day we all entered a little shop in Madrid, and the captain began to speak in Spanish to the girl who was behind the counter. She failed to understand, and so he tried again. Once and again he tried and tried and summoned up his whole vocabulary. At last in his attempt to make his meaning plain by illustration he drew from his pocketcase a card and with it stroked his chin. The girl fell into fits of laughter and in perfect English said, 'Oh, what you want is a fine tooth comb!'"

Hot Water Pipes in Greenland.

There is a place called Kakortok in Greenland, which was colonized centuries ago by Norwegians, but which is now a deserted heap of ruins. Among the relics discovered there were the pipes lying in what was evidently a cathedral and attendant dwelling houses. From the position of these pipes it is certain that they were employed for conveying some fluid to the apartments of these several buildings, and on making a searching examination the discoverers found that the pipes were connected to a natural hot water spring of volcanic origin.

The Limbs in Walking.

It is pointed out that in walking or running the arms and legs produce a "balancing" like that of the reciprocating and revolving parts of a locomotive. The movements of the legs react upon the trunk and tend to rotate it in alternate directions about a vertical axis, but the swinging of the arms, each in unison with the opposite leg, produces an opposing mechanical couple, the effect of which is to rotate the trunk in the other direction, thus balancing, in part at least, the rotating action of the legs.

Egyptian Humor.

In a handbook for travelers in the Sudan issued by the Egyptian government, referring to the currency, it is quaintly observed that "in the more undressed parts of the country" beads and bracelets are current.

In the section on shooting there is a pleasant reference to the sporting tourist, who is warned that only crocodiles may be shot at from steamers, and even this practice is deprecated as being "more dangerous to the riverain population than the crocodile."

Throwing Men Overboard.

In ancient Scotland the barbarous custom existed which cost Jonah so much inconvenience. When a ship became unmanageable, it was usual to cast lots for the purpose of discovering who was responsible for the trouble, and the man upon whom the lot fell was condemned. Instead of human beings dogs used sometimes to be thrown into the sea with their legs bound.

MR. HILL'S PROPOSITION.

When the order of new business was taken up Mr. Hill asked Mr. Stevenson to take the chair while he gave notice of a motion he would introduce later on. The notice of motion he intended to introduce was regarding the erection in Peterborough of a new Collegiate Institute. He prefaced his remarks by stating that there was no doubt in the least that Peterborough was in need of a modern Collegiate Institute. Brantford Whitby, Bowmanville and even Norwood were ahead of us in having a Collegiately Institute distinctly separate from the public schools. Why should Peterborough take a second place to any town in the Dominion? While we strive to keep pace with other towns commercially we should not neglect our educational institutions. In his endeavour to show what comparatively small increase it would be on the ratepayers of the town, Mr. Hill said that they were paying $550 in rent and taxes for the Menzie School and were they to establish Domestic Science and Manual Training into the school course, entailing an additional rent of $500, making a total rent of $1,050. The interest on the money required for a new Collegiate Institute would be about $1,600 or less than $400 more than what they would be paying for rent of two inferior buildings. As to the time in which the building would be built, Chairman Hill said his plan was to have the Board take the matter up vigorously this fall, refer it to the Property Committee, consult with the town council and have the ratepayers vote on the matter. The object would be to have the new building open for business by September 1904. The present Collegiate Institute could be used for public school and kindergarten purposes instead of having a kindergarten down in a hole in the ground as at present.

Touching the general aspect of the case, Mr. Hill held that our population is increasing and we must take into consideration the last report of the Inspector of Collegiate Institutes, which said that Peterborough would be before long dropped back into a lower grade. We should not be satisfied to stand still. We are a progressive town commercially, and why not be such educationally? He held that in the matter of building a new Collegiate Institute the board did not really represent the views of the people of the town. It was due to the Board to ask the people to give an expression to the ratepayers on such an important matter. The Town Council had gone out and searched for new industries. They have been successful in what they undertook. Why cannot Peterborough's Board of Education be just as progressive, and place the town on a par educationally with the best cities of Ontario? He therefore gave notice of the following motion;

That the Property Committee be instructed to enquire into the cost of the erection a suitable building for a Collegiate Institute and Domestic Science and Manual Training Schools, with a view to asking the Town Council to submit a bylaw to the ratepayers to provide the money for the erection of such a building.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

Cannot Be Carried Away by the Military Spirit.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER SPEAKS.

The Premier's Address Before the Constitutional Club Was Received With the Most Pronounced Applause—A Good Word For the Arts of Peace As a Defence of the Empire.

London, July 9.—The British Empire League had a large meeting Monday at which questions of concern to the Empire were discussed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and those of his Ministers who are in London, were entertained at a complimentary banquet at the Constitutional Club Monday night. They were given a given a grand reception and the applause which followed Sir Wilfrid's utterances was most pronounced. He said nothing about the Imperial conference. He observed that while some thought the British Empire must be preserved by measures of war, he believed it could be well defended by the arts of peace. Britain, Sir Wilfrid declared, is the one nation in Europe which can never be carried away by the spirit of militarism.

A Constitutional Victory.

London, July 9.—Speaking at different banquets in London, last night, the Colonial Premiers now assembled here congratulated the empire and Sir John Gordon Sprigg, Prime Minister of Cape Colony, on the victory for constitutional government gained in that colony by the decision of the Imperial Government against the proposal to suspend the Cape constitution.

Sir John Gordon Sprigg, speaking at the same banquet, thanked the other colonial Premiers for having helped to fight the battle of constitutionalism.

Colonial Premiers Dined.

Mr. Chamberlain, of course, was unable to attend, but Mrs. Chamberlain was present. Doing Well, But He Will Stay in Hospital For a Few Days.

London, July 9.—There was a constant stream of callers at Charing Cross Hospital yesterday, both to condole with Joseph Chamberlain, whose forehead was severely cut in a cab accident Monday, and to congratulate him on his birthday. Mrs. Chamberlain was an early arrival with a supply of flowers and cushions.

The bulletin issued from the hospital at 11.30 a.m. read:

"Mr. Chamberlain is progressing very well. He passed a good night. Absolute quiet is essential. He will remain in the hospital for the present."

RICE ABANDONS HOPE.

Death Watch Keeping a Very Close Guard on Doomed Man

Toronto, July 9.—Fred Lee Rice, the murderer of County Constable Boyd, has abandoned all hope. A few days ago he arranged with his counsel, T. C. Robinette, K.C., for the disposal of his few personal belongings and is now paying particular attention to everything that his spiritual adviser, Rev. Robert Hall, has to say. He reads his Bible constantly, and is carrying out the wishes of his mother, who wrote recently' "If you have to die, my only hope is that you will be prepared for the end."

One week from Friday is the day on which he has been doomed to die. The death watch are keeping a close guard on him, as Rice is said to have declared that the authorities would never put the rope around his neck.

THOMAS BERRY KILLED.

He Was Struck by a Train at East Toronto.

Toronto, July 9.—Thomas Berry, a sectionman employed by the Grand Trunk Railway, was struck by a Grand Trunk passenger train at East Toronto at noon yesterday and almost instantly killed. Dr. Walters was called to see him immediately after the accident, and the man's life was then extinct. Berry was a widower, about 55 years of age, and lived on Gerrard street east, Toronto. He leaves several children.

KEENE MYSTERY BECOMES TRAGEDY.

Sad Suicide of Miss Maggie English.

BODY FOUND THIS MORNING.

No Doubt of Suicidal Nature of the Happening—No Cause Known to Prompt so Desperate Ending of Life—No Inquest Will be Held.

This morning James Dickson, an old resident of Keene, and an inveterate fisherman, found the body of Maggie English in the Indian River at Keene, while trawling below the bridge which crosses the village at the foot of one of the streets, and the subdued excitement that had prevailed in the village over her mysterious disappearance as related in yesterday's issue, assumed an acute form when the news of the awful discovery made by the fisherman flashed through the village. As stated yesterday, Miss English was a niece of Mr. Robert English, general merchant of Keene, She had been living with her uncle and grandmother in the neat new residence just west of the store building. On Saturday night it appears she had been calling upon a friend and at about ten o'clock she returned home in company with a young man named McIntyre with who she was said to have been, as the phrase is, keeping company. He parted from her on the verandah of her residence at about 10.30, and noticed nothing unusual in the unhappy girl's demeanour.

From that time, so far as information is available, she was not again seen alone, but it is plain that some extraordinary influence must have operated upon her mind to bring her to the desperate act of ending her own life. If she had for any time previously entertained such an idea she must have masked her feelings in a very effective way, for she gave no sign, so far as yet heard, of any such inclination.

There is little doubt of the manner of her death. It is only a short distance from the English residence to the bridge at the foot of the street. The bridge is boarded with a high wooden parapet on each side with, at a low height above the floor of the bridge, openings here and there through which grain was passed from farmers' wagons to the vessels which frequently came up the river in the palmy days of Keene, when a considerable grain trade was done at this point.

The deceased young lady was an orphan, and had previously lived with another uncle, coming to Keene to reside about a year ago. She was some 23 or 25 years of age.

It is understood that there will be no inquest into the circumstances of her death, and the remains were interred in the Keene cemetery to-day.

CAPITAL INCREASED.

The Lakefield Portland Cement Company's Capital now $1,000,000.

Mr. J. M. Kilbourn returned to Lakefield last evening, after an absence of ten days, and our Lakefield correspondent learns from an interview with him that a special general meeting of the shareholders of the company was held at Owen Sound on the 5th inst., at which a bylaw of the company, increasing the capital stock of the company to $1,000,000 was confirmed, and $100,000 of the increase at once subscribed for by the former shareholders

The company has arranged for the lease of the water power at Dam No. 2, Lakefield Division of the Trent Canal, and will at once let the contract for putting in the concrete work required for housing and installing the necessary water wheels.

Negotiations are going on for the supply of the necessary cement plant. Some of it indeed is already ordered from the Krugg Works, Magdibourg, Germany. The intention of the company is to increase the output to one thousand barrels per day, which they think is as much as the limited market will stand at present, especially in view of the several large plants now about to commence operations. It would appear that with the greatly reduced price a very large output is necessary to afford any profit for the manufacturer.

The company's Monarch brand has already caught the market in a remarkable way, the demand for it being considerably greater than the company can supply. Their traveller has been called in, and his services discontinued. It pays to make a first-class article.

knew one day how I would feel the next. I was nervous and had no appetite, neither could I sleep soundly nights. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, used in conjunction with your Sanative Wash, did more for me than all the medicines and the skill of the doctors. For eight months I have enjoyed perfect health. I verily believe that most of the doctors are guessing and experimenting when they try to cure a woman with an assortment of complications, such as mine; but you do not guess. How I wish all suffering women could only know of your remedy; there would be less suffering I know."—LAURA HOWARD, 113 Newberry Ave., Chicago, Ill.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The selection of August for the coronation ceremonies, is fitting anyway. The imperial month is a very proper time for a most august rite.

When the Coronation comes in August, there will be doubtless another military contingent selected. The returning coronation contingent will probably be out of the running, for it will be reasonably argued that they have had their turn, and seen as much, barring the actual coronation ceremony, as if it had actually taken place. If Canada is represented another contingent will in all probability be selected, so that honours will be equitably distributed.

The courts have refused to enforce the payment to the Doherty Organ Company for about $10,000 insurance on the plant on the ground that although the policies were issued the premiums had not been paid. It may strike some, the Hamilton Times thinks, that it is not quite just that the company which would have had a valid claim for the premiums, and which by its action in issuing the policies showed that it was willing to honour the credit of the insured, should thus escape responsibility, but that appears to be the law. Note well that if your premium is not paid you are not insured.

The Halifax Herald has, says its Montreal namesake, for years taken the lead of other journals of Eastern Canada in promoting schemes of public importance, outside the lines of everyday newspaper work. A year ago it raised a large Patriotic Fund and an Indian Famine Fund, the two approximating $25,000. A few days ago the result of another appeal by the Herald to the people of Nova Scotia was seen when a fine monument to the sons of Nova Scotia who fell in South Africa was unveiled in Halifax. The cost of this most appropriate memorial was $10,000, of which $3,500 were granted by the Provincial Government and the remainder collected through the efforts of the Herald. It is worthy of note that this is the first monument erected in the Empire to the memory of its fallen heroes in the recent war.

A FREAK OF LIGHTNING.

John Klinck, of 486, Yonge street, Toronto, a builder and contractor, shows upon his right wrist a black black and blue mark, and he believes that it is a photographic impression by lightning of a part of a dwelling at the corner of St. Clarens avenue and Bloor street, where he was at work during the thunderstorm of Saturday morning. Mr. Klinck's experience was certainly remarkable, and the fact that history tells of numerous instances of lightning prints upon both man and beasts, give it credence. A flash of lightning struck the house, tearing splinters from both sides and completely enveloping Mr. Klinck in its white light. The man felt as if he were knee-deep in molten lead, but the fluid seemed to move slowly away, leaving him unharmed. His wrist felt sore and he has since assured his friends that an examination of it revealed an impression of the very building in which he stood. The mark is not now so distinct in character as it was when Mr. Klinck first saw it.

FICTION IN THE PULPIT.

A Montreal Congregational minister, the Rev. Mr. Harvey, made a new departure last evening when, instead of preaching a sermon to his congregation, he read to them the first chapter of a novel he has written. The reading is "to be continued in our next," every Sunday evening, until the book is finished.

Evidently the church does move, but in what direction? Many people of the present generation will remember a time when the great non-conformist conscience of England generally condemned novel reading as sinful, regarding fiction as the invention of the father of lies, and would have scouted novel reading on Sunday as unthinkable.

Now we have Mrs. Brown Potter giving a recitation in a ritualistic church, and Mr. Harvey reading a novel from the pulpit of a Congregational church.

Frankly, we are not enthusiastic about the new departure. Mr. Harvey justified his action by the divine example of speaking in parables. He also quoted the example of the Prophet Nathan, in rebuking David. If scriptural example is all that is necessary to justify the introduction of what are now regarded as novelties in divine service, Mr. Harvey can go much further than he has gone. When he has finished the serial he might devote a Sunday evening to instructing and interesting his congregation by asking riddles and offering prizes for the best answers by the following Sunday. He could justify his course by the example of Samson, who said to his thirty Phillistine companions: "I will now put forth a riddle unto you: If ye can certainly declare it me within the seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty sheets and thirty changes of garments; but if you cannot declare it me, then shall ye give me thirty sheets and thirty changes of garments."

On the following Sunday Mr. Harvey might "pack the house" (we beg pardon) fill the church by announcing that he would entertain, inspire and instruct the congregation with a little dancing in place of a long sermon, and cite the examples of Miriam and David as sufficient justification.

When the church has to depend upon readings and recitations to attract people to its services its glory will have departed.—Montreal Star.

THE DEMAND FOR WHITE ASH WOOD.

Mr. T. Southworth, Director of Forestry, has received a letter from a manufacturer in Eastern Canada asking to be put into communication with parties who could supply quantities of white ash wood. A similar communication was received a short time ago from an English firm. Mr. Southworth says that white ash is very scarce in this province and Ontario manufacturers themselves cannot get sufficient quantities of it. The wood is used by carriage and saddlery manufacturers, and owing to its scarcity and the demands for it it is exceedingly valuable. He thinks that Ontario farmers would find it valuable to plant the tree in their wooded lands. It is a prolific seeder, grows rapidly, and is commercially valuable in about ten years.

The selection of a proper food for the baby is of vital importance It must be nourishing, easily assimilated, readily digested, and must never vary in quality.

Nestlé's Food has all these requisites. It is made from cow's milk—the most nourishing of all substances—and requires only the addition of water to be ready for use.

BENSFORT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Rev. Thos. Dodds, of the Rainy River District, has been spending some time with his people in Bensfort.

Mr. Fred Manning left Saturday for his home in Lindsay. He intends attending the University after midsummer.

Miss Verna Scarlett, of the General Hospital, Toronto, spent a week at the home of Mr. Thos. Dodds.

The wife of Mr. Andrew Finnie presented him with a fine baby last week. Mother and child are doing well.

Miss Fannie Waterman, of Anson Mills, is spending her holidays at home.

Mr. Thos. Armstrong has two peach trees in front of his store nicely loaded with fruit, possibly the first peaches ever grown in Monaghan.

The thunder storm of Friday night did considerable damage. The lightning killed a cow for Wm. Pimmott, also striking the barn of Mr. Wm. Sisson in two places. No damage of any extent was done except to loosen a few boards and sliver one post.

The campers and tourists are beginning to take advantage of the warm weather of the last few days. Mr. Wedlock and Jubilee Point seem to be well patronized considering the earliness of the season.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

The council of the Township of North Monaghan met in the Town Hall on Monday, July 7th, 1902, at 2 o'clock p.m.

There were present, the Reeve, and Councillors Madill, Smith and Dobbin.

The minutes of the last two meetings were read and confirmed.

Communications were received and read from The County Clerk of Peterborough County, stating the total equalized value of North Monaghan for county purposes was $577,166.—Received.

From the Clerk of Cavan, stating that Cavan Council considered the boundary road between North Monaghan and Cavan on the 11th concession of North Monaghan in a dangerous condition, also that Cavan Council would not contribute one cent towards the repair of the road through lot 1, on 11th concession, North Monaghan.—Received.

From W. H. Bradburn, the Township Treasurer, stating the bank overdraft to date was $411.99.—Received.

Gravel certificates were fyled as follows: 95 yards from J. Madill's pit, for Road Division No. 3; 140 yards from S. G. Bennett's pit, for Road Division No. 3; — yards from John Patton's pit, for Road Division No. 1. These were passed and ordered to be paid.

Mr. J. Smith, of the committee which met the committee of Cavan Council re repairs to Boundary Road reported at length as to the nature and cost of the work, undertaken jointly with Cavan. The report showed expenditures as follows; — John McIntosh, for 40 yards gravelling at 50 cents a yard, $20; and removing stone from road, $8; total $28; J. Crow, 33 yards gravelling at 55 cents a yard, $18.15; W. Jackson, 41 yards gravelling at 55 cents a yard, $22.25; D. Trew, repairing watering trough at Springville, $18; a grand total of $86.72.

It was moved by Messrs. Madill and Dobbin that the reeve and Councillor Smith be and are hereby appointed a committee to take the necessary legal steps to have the valuations of the municipalities for county purposes equalized by the county judge. —Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Dobbin and Madill that the report as read regarding the work done on Cavan boundary be accepted and fyled as R. No. 202; also that orders be issued for 1-2 the amounts as therein stated, such being N. Monaghan's share of said expenditure.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Madill and Smith, that whereas the township of Cavan is most benefitted by the side road through lot 1, on 11th concession of N. Monaghan, and having refused to contribute anything towards its repair or maintenance, be it resolved therefore that the clerk be authorized to undertake the necessary preparation of a bylaw and lawful publication of the same for the purpose of closing the said road.—Carried.

Bylaw No. 411 to authorize the Reeve and treasurer to borrow money to meet the current expenditures of the municipality until the taxes can be collected, was then introduced, read and finally passed.

The final passing of bylaw No. 410, referred to this meeting was deferred until a future meeting.

Council then adjourned until the 2nd Monday in August.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

THE HENLEY REGATTA

Argonauts of Toronto Defeat University College, Oxford.

THEIR BOW SLIPPED HIS SEAT.

Despite This Mishap They Won the Race Easily on Their Merits, and Scored a Popular Victory in London—Titus, Who Beat Scholes, Successful in Another Heat For Diamond Sculls.

Henley, Eng., July 9. — Yesterday the racing in the Coronation Henley Regatta began at 12.30 p m.

In the first heat for the Grand Challenge Cup Leander Rowing Club beat the Kingston Rowing Club easily by a length and a quarter. Time 7 minutes 34 seconds.

In the second heat for the Grand Challenge Cup the Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto beat University College, Oxford, by 2½ lengths in 7 minutes. 25 seconds. This was a good race for a mile. The Argonauts, stationed on the Berks shore, jumped off with the lead, but bow slipped his seat, and University led at the half mile. The Canadians, however, gradually overhauled their opponents and ultimately easily defeated the Oxonians, who were the head of the river (leading crew) at Oxford this season.

The Argonauts will row third Trinity, Cambridge, on Wednesday.

The final heat for the Grand Challenge Cup for the day resulted in the London Rowing Club beating the Thames Rowing Club by a length and a quarter in 7 minutes 58 seconds.

In the fourth heat (first of the day) for the Diamond Sculls, C. S. Titus, Union Boat Club, New York, beat W. W. Field, Exeter College, Oxford, by three lengths in 9 minutes 17 second. Titus' easy victory over Field, who is the holder of the Oxford University sculls, increases the American's chances for the Diamonds. Titus, who was on the Berks station, had the measure of his opponent from the first. The Oxonian stuck to his work manfully for three-quarters of a mile. At Frawley Court (half the course) Titus, whose time up to that point was four minutes 26 second, was only a foot ahead, but thence the American drew further and further away, Field being completely exhausted.

Titus' performance made such an impression that even money was laid on his winning the Diamond Sculls.

In the fifth heat for the Diamonds J. Beresford of the Kensington Rowing Club had the Berks station and led his opponent, St. George Ashe of the Thames Rowing Club, from the mark. Beresford kept some lengths ahead of Ashe throughout, and paddled in, the easiest of winners, in 4 minutes.

In the sixth heat for the Diamond Sculls R. B. Etherington-Smith beat H. T. Blackstaffe easily. Time 9 minutes 1 second.

In the seventh heat for the Diamond Sculls, F. S. Kelley, Balliol College, Oxford, beat A. H. Cloutt, London Rowing Club. Kelley won easily. Time 8 minutes, 54 seconds. This was the last heat of the Diamonds for the day.

In the first heat of the Thames Challenge Cup, Thames Rowing Club beat London Rowing Club. The Thames Rowing Club won by three lengths. Time, 8 minutes 16 seconds.

In the first heat for the Ladies' Challenge Plate Radley College Boat Club beat Jesus College, Cambridge, by a length. Time, 7 minutes 37 seconds. This was a grand struggle., and was won by a bare length.

In the first heat for the Silver Goblets Ward and Taylor, Third Trinity, Cambridge, beat Somville and Crombrugge, Club Nautique of Ghent. Ward and Taylor won easily. Time, 8 minutes 45 seconds.

In the second heat for the Thames Cup, Trinity College, Dublin, beat Molesey Boat Club, by a length. Time 7 minutes 45 seconds.

The second heat for the Thames Cup proved to be a very fine race. The Irishmen got the best of matters at Frawley Court and won by a bare length.

The Argonauts' victory at Henley is generally popular. Their form for several days past has suggested victory. The evening papers agree that they won easily on their merits. The Argonauts' next opponents are Third Trinity. If they beat them, they stand a good chance to win the Grand Challenge Cup.

CAR MEN WITH GRIEVANCES.

Toronto, July 9.—Enquiries made at the Toronto Railway Company's offices yesterday regarding alleged dissatisfaction among the men as a result of some employes being laid off, of complaints being made elicited the information that certain of the employes enterviewed Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Keating yesterday morning and their claims were gone into carefully. Appeals were made against the decision of the road-masters and the result of the interview was that some men were confirmed in their complaints and others were sent back to their cars pending judgment.

The Canadian Northern Strike

Winnipeg, July 9.—The Canadian Northern strike has now entered upon its second week. Both sides are claiming ultimate victory.

Mr. Broatch, chairman of the strikers' committee, said yesterday morning that there are still hundreds of men out on strike. There were probably over a hundred section gangs out.

Mr. D. B. Hanna, on the other hand, said that the company was operating as usual. The shops were all going full blast and all trains were on time. So far as the company was concerned, the strike was over.

A special despatch received in London from Rome says that socialist riots occurred at Orte, on the right bank of the Tiber, during the municipal elections held there Tuesday. The polling place was wrecked. Over 40 persons were wounded.

Quebec, July 9.—A woman named Lapointe died suddenly yesterday afternoon, at the office of Mr. Ernest Trudel, who is an amateur hypnotist, residing on Dorchester street, St. Roch. The woman's husband is at present absent from town on a hunting expedition. The district coroner, Dr. A. G. Belleau, will hold an inquest on the remains this morning.

WELCOME TO LORD KITCHENER.

Will Be Entertained by the Prince of Wales—Program Similar to That on Lord Robert's Return.

London, July 9.—The program for the reception of Lord Kitchener upon his arrival from South Africa is similar to the one carried out upon the occasion of the home-coming from South Africa of Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief of the Forces.

After his elaborate welcome at Southampton, Lord Kitchener is expected to reach London at noon on July 12. He will be escorted to St. James' Palace, where he will be entertained at luncheon by the Prince of Wales. The Prince will act for the King, and it is said that His Majesty, were it not for his illness, would have honored Lord Kitchener by entertaining him at luncheon, as he did Lord Roberts when the latter returned.

The reception adopted by the London County Council to tender Lord Kitchener the congratulations of London upon the successful termination of the South African war was opposed by labor members of the Council and by Lord Russell (Liberal), who remarked that he could not forget or forgive the judicial murder of Commandant Scheepers.

The resolution was passed with only a dozen dissenting votes.

Permanent Garrison of 50,000.

London, July 9.—The Daily Mail this morning says the permanent garrison in South Africa is to be 50,000 men, under the command of Lt.-Gen. Lyttleton. Besides this force the system of having a large number of reservists scattered throughout the country, either on farms or in official positions, will be extensively followed. The reservists could be called upon for service in case of emergency.

A RAILWAY MAN.

Extraordinary Unpleasant Symptoms of Kidney Trouble in This Case.

Tortured by all Kinds of Pains and Aches he Tries Everything, but Fails to Find Relief Till a Friend Advises Him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills—They Have Made a Well Man of Him and he is Grateful.

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—(Special.) — Frank Chartrand, a railway man, whose home is 130 Little Chaudiere street, has acknowledged that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done more for him than anything else in the world has ever done. He says: "I suffered with backache and was always drowsy and had a very heavy feeling in my limbs.

"I had frequent severe headaches and more times very sharp pains in the top of my head, which gave me much annoyance in my work.

"My fingers would cramp and I would have an uneasiness in my legs and occasional pains in the lions.

"I was dizzy in spells and short of breath. If I ate a hearty meal I would have a pain in my left side. My appetite would sometimes be very good and sometimes I couldn't eat anything.

"I had a constant soreness and tenderness over the spine and tired feeling in the region of my kidneys.

"I suffered quite a little with a dragging heavy feeling across the lions.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by a friend of mine who had been cured, and I began to use them.

"Almost from the start I began to feel the wonderful improvement, which continued as the treatment proceeded, till the unpleasant symptoms had one by one entirely disappeared.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have worked a wonderful cure in my case and I cannot speak too highly of this great and good remedy."

What Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for Mr. Chartrand they have done for thousands of others, and they'll do the same for you if you give them a chance.

There are many railway men in Canada to-day who find Dodd's Kidney Pills indispensable. They are the railway man's surest and best friend.

The constant vibration on trains and engines is very hard on the kidneys, and Dodd's Kidney Pills make these organs well and able to resist disease.

A Consultation Held.

Drs. McDade, Rush and Sims, three of the most eminent American doctors, in a series of articles, outlined a tonic treatment calculated to cure a vast number of diseases. Their suggestions were embodied in a formula which is dispensed by a Brantford druggist and called Merrill's System Tonic. It is a reliable and pleasant remedy for stomach, bowel and kidney diseases. Sold at 50c per bottle at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

Circus Left Some Money.

It is gratifying to know that while the circus must have taken a lot of money out of town yesterday, it must also have left a lot. Scarcely any line of business but what shared in the benefits. About twenty of the high salaried artists booked their orders for suits with Messrs. H. E. Bradley & Co., which is quite flattering to this enterprising firm of merchant tailors.

The Corticelli Magazine.

Without being absolutely unique in its way, Corticelli Home Needlework for 3rd quarter 1902, presents several new features, and develops and enlatges upon many old ideas. It is a particularly practical number, and the mysteries of artistic work which it lays bare to the diligent needle worker are worth many times over the nomimal price at which it is sold. Corticelli Home Needlework should find a place in every household in Canada. Single copy, 10 cts., or 35 cts. per year for 4 issues. Address, Corticelli Silk Co., St. Johns, P.Q.

STUCK IN THE MUD.

People Who Attended the Circus Last Night had a Time.

The heavy rains of the past few days had a bad effect upon the great Forepaugh and Sells Bros. circus which showed her yesterday. The Agricultural Grounds in which the tents were pitched, was in a terribly water-soaked condition. The menagerie tent was decidedly the worst of all the tents, a fact which was no doubt due to the great amount of traffic around the row of cages. Animal wagons sunk to the hubs of the wheels in mud, the elephants marked time in mud to their huge knees, the water buffalo appeared contented in his natural water quarters, and the showmen with their boots and stockings off and their trousers rolled up waded around in their endeavour to release the animals under their charge.

Just outside the grounds a huge wagon sunk to the hubs and for an hour five teams of horses tugged at it. Then two elephants were forced into service and with the addition of four or five more teams of horses the waggon was released from where it was embedded in the mud. The same wagon went through the Charlotte street bridge and for an hour or more the men worked at this point before they raised the vehicle to the road again.

The people coming out of the circus last night had to wade in mud almost to their knees. The menagerie tent had been taken down and in the darkness many tried to walk across at this point. The attempt proved desasterous and many a man had muddy trousers and many a woman muddy skirts, and all had muddy boots as a result, which would not have been so bad if the performances had been good. The programme was cut down about half.

POLICE COURT.

Men Fined for Having Fish in Their Possession.

At the police court this afternoon before Police Magistrate Dumble, Fred Bates, Samuel Anglesyc, Dan Whetung and Sampson Fawn, were up on a charge of having maskinonge in their possession during the close season, which ended on June 15th. The Police Magistrate found them guilty, and fined them each, including costs, $13.48, to be paid forthwith. Messrs. Bates and Anglesyc paid their fines, but at three o'clock this afternoon the others were still unpaid.

PETERBOROUGH OLD BOYS.

A meeting for the purpose of forming a Peterborough and County Old Boys' Association was held on Monday evening at 282 Queen street east, Toronto. Mr. L. A. Morrison occupied the chair. The minutes of the meeting were taken and a committee appointed to locate former residents. Finding the present accommodation too small for the increasing number of members, arrangements were made to hold an adjourned meeting at St. George's Hall, Elm street, on Monday evening, July 21, at 8 o'clock.

ENTRANCE SCHOLARSHIPS.

Miss Marguerite Burnett and Master Maxwell Fife the Winners.

Miss Marguerite Burnett and Master Maxwell Fife are the winners of the scholarships given to the two public school pupils, boy and girl, who take the highest marks at the examinations for entrance to the Collegiate Institute. Some years ago Dr. Burnham, former chairman of the Board, after consultation with Mr. Wm. Smith, principal of the Central School, introduced a resolution in the Board which was adopted, giving a year's free tuition in the Collegiate Institute to the two Public or Separate School pupils who won the highest marks at the entrance examinations. Of course the money value of the scholarship is not great; it means remission of the Institute fees, amounting to $10 per year, which means practically free school books, for the amount of the fees is about equivalent to the cost of books for a Collegiate Institute course. Besides a spirit of rivalry and application is excited in entrance classes, which should affect all the pupils for all have a chance to win the prize.

NEW ONTARIO LUMBER CAMPS

A Gang of Thirty Goes North This Afternoon.

Mr. William Kennealey, formerly of Peterborough and Lakefield, is guilty of robbing his old homes. This morning he sent by Grand Trunk Railway, a gang of thirty men, whom he has engaged to work for Mr. Ed. Hall, an extensive lumberman, at Nairn Centre. This place is on the C. P. R. line between Sudbury and the "Soo." The temptations which Mr. Kennealey held out to the men he ployed were high wages and steady employment. The prospects are that lumbering operations will be active and extensive in the future in that portion of New Ontario.

LACROSSE.

The game to-night on the Nicholls oval between the Athletics and the T.A.S teams, promises to be the biggest event in lacrosse circles so far this season. The Athletics and the Y.M.C.A.'s, and the T.A.S. and the Y.M.C.A.'s have come together on several occasions, but the T.A.S. boys boys and the Athletics have not as yet crossed sticks with each other. Both teams are confident of winning to-night and it will be a keen swift game from start to finish. A good sized crowd should be present on the oval to-night.

The members of the II. Y.M.C.A. team are reminded of the meeting in the parlour to-night at 9 o'clock, at which all are requested to be in attendance. Besides other business, the team to play against the T.A.S. to-morrow night will be picked.

CURLING.

A Montreal Star cable says; A largely attended and representative meeting in connection with the proposed visit of a Scottish curling team to Canada, was held in the Royal Hotel, Edinburgh. The secretary of the Committee, Mr. Davidson Smith, C.A., said the Canadian clubs had passed a resolution desiring a visit of Scottish curlers. Mr. Smith said he had written a letter to noblemen and gentlemen interested in Canada asking for their patronage and support and to gentlemen of influence in the curling world. Generally speaking the project had been favourably received. Letters had been received from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Jos. Chamberlain, who said he was deeply interested in the matter, Lord Mount stephen, who promised a subscription of $50, Lord Strathcona, Lord Elgin, and Lord Balfour of Burleigh. Forty curlers had volunteered to go. They received from the Canadian branches offers of hospitality and the Canadians were prepared to wait on the Canadian Pacific Railway authorities to see if the visiting team could obtain free transit from place to place. It was estimated that the tour would take 28 days with 16 days extra for the sea voyage.

Mr. Wrighton, at the same price, picked up Warsaw, Fraserville, Otonabee Union, Bensfort, Mount Pleasant, Central Smith, and Peterborough.

At 9 3-8c., which was still the favourite price, Mr. Kerr took as his selections Lakefield, Trewern, Myrtle, East Emily, Fleetwood, Cavanville, N. Smith and Missing Link.

A peculiar circumstance then occurred, in which Messrs. Cook, Bailey and Rollins each claimed to have shouted out 9 3-8c first. A compromise was effected by the three buyers being allowed to bid in turns.

Mr. Bailey took as his factories, Norwood, Percy, Dartford, Shamrock, Oak Leaf and Maple Leaf.

Mr. Rollins took Oakdale, Pine Grove, Warminster, Daisy D., Young's Point, North Dummer, Apsley, South Burleigh, and Stony Lake.

Mr. Cook chose Keene, Cedardale, Lang and Indian River.

Buckhorn sold to Mr. Fitzgerald at 9 3-8, and Bobcaygeon sold to Mr. Kerr at the same figure.

The Board then adjourned for two weeks.

CARSCALLEN IS SAFE

Justice Maclennan Dismisses Mr. Madole's Cross-Petition.

CROSS-APPEAL WAS NOT ARGUED

The North Grey Cross-Appeal Stands For Further Consideration-Protest Against the Return of Mr. Kribs in South Waterloo Dropped -- Petition Against the Election of Mr. Miscampbell.

Toronto, July 9.—The Lennox cross-appeal by Mr. Madole, the defeated Liberal candidate, was heard by Mr. Justice Maclennan of Osgoode Hall yesterday, and dismissed, so that T. G. Carscallen now holds the seat. Hon. S. H. Blake, K.C., and Eric Armour appeared for the Conservative candidate, and George H. Watson for Mr. Madole.

Counsel for Mr. Madole did not offer any argument. In any event, he said he could hope for but two ballots, so he would therefore, not argue the cross-appeal, and thereupon the judge dismissed the case.

On the question of costs, Mr. Blake claimed them, because he had been successful in both the appeal and cross-appeal.

Mr. Watson, however, held that his opponent had only been partly successful, because ballots had been allowed to both sides.

The judge said he would consider the question of costs later.

Mr. Watson then brought up the cross-appeal in North Grey. By the appeal of the Conservative candidate A. G. McKay, the Liberal member-elect was confirmed in his seat by a majority of two, and Mr. Watson wanted the cross-appeal of the latter taken up. He thought that Mr. McKay's majority would be increased.

Mr. Justice Maclennan was not inclined, however, to take the matter up, and Mr. Blake objected to it being heard because of the absence of W. D. McPherson. It was finally decided that Mr. McPherson should be consulted, and if either of the counsel desired the matter to go on His Lordship would give an appointment.

The time for making the necessary $1,000 deposit in the protest against Mr. Kribs, the Conservative M.P.P.-elect for South Waterloo, has expired, and, as the money has not been forthcoming, the protest has been dropped.

J. P. Downey who successfully contested South Wellington in the Conservative interests, is also safe. A protest was lodged against him some time ago, and yesterday was the last day, for the deposit of $1,000. The money was not put up.

The protests in Lincoln against Dr. Jessop, and in South Waterloo against Dr. Lackman, were filed at Osgoode Hall yesterday.

A new rule has been posted by the Court of Appeal regarding the Ontario Election Act. In cases arising in provincial juridical districts, presentation of the petition shall be made by delivery to the local registrar of the High Court for the provincial juridical district in which the electoral district is situated. It is further ordered that a deputy clerk of the Crown, when receiving a petition shall proceed in the same manner as a local registrar of the High Court.

In cases not otherwise prescribed for petitions, presentation of the petition shall be made by delivery to the registrar of the court, who shall thereupon proceed in the same manner as in the case of other petitions.

Mr. Miscampbell's Election Protested.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 9.—A petition was entered yesterday against the return of Mr. Andrew Miscampbell, the Conservative member elected at the late election in the riding of Sault Ste. Marie. The petitioner is Mr. C. N. Smith, the defeated Liberal candidate, who charges bribery and corruption against Mr. Miscampbell and his agents. The petition was filed with Crown Attorney Kehoe, Clerk of the Peace, on account of the office of the local Registrar being vacant through the recent death of Dr. Farwell.

DEATH OF WM. CLARK.

The Prominent Thread Manufacturer Died on Board His Yacht.

Portland, Eng. July 9.—Wm. Clark, the prominent thread manufacturer, of Paisley, Scotland, passed away on board his yacht Cherokee off Southampton.

He was born in Paisley, Scotland, in 1841. After being graduated from a grammar school in Paisley, he entered the thread mills founded there by his ancestors. He mastered the details of every department of the business.

A few years ago the Clark Company, the Coates Company and other big concerns in the U. S. united, and the mills in Scotland and England were taken into the combination. The Newark mills are now managed by William Clark's eldest son, J. William Clark. W. Campbell Clark, a nephew of William Clark, manages the Kearny mills.

ADA GRAY IS DEAD.

Famous East Lynne Star Ended Her Days in Dire Poverty.

New York, July 9.—Ada Gray, aged 60 years, the noted actress who made the play "East Lynne" famous in every corner of this country, Canada, and England, died yesterday at her home in Brooklyn, after a long illness. Ada Gray was born in Boston, Mass., and was not 11 years old when she saw her first play. Her father, a journeyman mason, had died a few years before and left his family in poor circumstances, so at the age of 14 little Ada found a chance to earn a small sum of money each night at the Boston Museum and gladly accepted it. The play in which she made her first appearance was "The Hunchback." At 16 she was playing principal characters. She went to Ben DeBar's theatre, St. Louis, as leading actress, and next to Louisville.

Ada Gray played "East Lynne" for 40 years. No actress ever became more closely identified with any one play than did she with the popular drama, which she played upwards of 5,000 times. The character of Lady Isabel was to her what Rip Van Winkle is to Joseph Jefferson, and for more than four decades theatre-goers knew "East Lynne" for Ada Gray and Ada Gray for "East Lynne." She was married to Chas. F. Tingay when she was a member of Sir Henry Irving's company.

THE ANNUAL WARNING.

How City Swindlers Worked Old-Time Ruse on Farmers.

The other day as a train drew into a country station a few hours' journey west of Toronto, two men drove up in a buggy and caught the train. They were mud-bespattered and evidently in a hurry. They were swindlers, and we understand they made quite a bit of money in the neighborhood they were leaving so suddenly that afternoon. They were working the old, old game of selling worthless watches and jewelry to farmers, representing themselves as commercial travelers for a jewelry house, which, having failed in business, left them stranded without money and far from home. They were thus compelled to raise money in order to get to Toronto, and meeting a farmer they would offer to sell him an eighty dollar gold watch for forty dollars. Before leaving the man they would sell the watch to him even if they got only five dollars for it. The purchaser was led to believe that he was the only man in the Province who was getting this great bargain, as they were compelled by their necessities to make the sale, and with the proceeds would reach the city and find an eager market among the leading jewelers for all the goods they had. Having found one dupe they would seek another once out of sight of the first. When the purchasers began to go into the villages to get their watches valued, and found them worth about a dollar per pound, the swindlers jumped into another county and operated there.

It is surprising that such frauds, although exposed over and over again in the newspapers throughout Ontario, can be worked year after year. The duty of the press, no doubt, is to keep on exposing such swindles. The duty of the Government is to seek to so perfect the Provincial police system that the experience of the people in one county will benefit those in every other. Those who perpetrate these swindles are generally very honest-seeming men, adherents of the same Church and followers of the same political leaders as the farmer they are seeking to defraud. They are clever confidence men, and only those who are forewarned are likely to resist the traps they set.

Offers to Put British Ships at Disposal of Admiralty.

London, July 9.—In the House of Commons the Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, H. C. Arnold-Forster, replying to William Redmond, the Irish leader, confirmed the report that J. Pierpont Morgan had offered to place all the British ships in the new combine at the disposal of the Admiralty for the next 50 years, on certain terms.

Mr. Arnold-Forster added that the offer had not yet been accepted, because it could only be dealt with in relation to British shipping generally and the Atlantic trade position, which was being carefully considered by the Government.

Andree Murder Scouted.

New York, July 9.—Little credence is placed here by Arctic authorities in the reported death of Andree, the explorer, at the hands of natives, 800 miles north of York, Northwest Territory.

In Poor Health for 19 Years.

Too Weak to Work and had Severe Headaches—Remarkable Influence of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

When a person gets weak and run down in health, the fault is usually with the blood supply—the blood is deficient in quantity or quality. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a wonderful system builder because it forms new blood and creates new nerve force.

Mrs. James Clancey, 714 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., states; "I have used four boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found them an excellent medicine. I was troubled more or less for nineteen years with severe headaches, which made me useless as far as accomplishing any work was concerned.

"The nerve Food seemed to build me up generally, and so made a thorough cure of my old trouble. I would not think of being without Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in the house, and would strongly recommend anyone suffering as I did to give it a fair trial. It succeeded in my case after a great many remedies had failed."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

CORONATION'S HERE.

NUMEROUS EVIDENCES OF IT IN TORONTO BUSINESS CIRCLES.

Troubles, Incident to the Crowning of the King in England, That One Can't Get Away From in Canada—A Bit of Canadian Newspaper English That Contains Some Wit and Some Humor.

"Yes," remarked the flippant young man, "it's quite true, as Young says in his Night Thoughts, that 'Coronation is the thief of time.' You simply can't get away from it," writes H. F. G. in The Toronto Star.

"I came down Yonge street this morning, and the first thing I saw in the window was a sign: 'Get one of our coronation hats.' I went inside and asked the disguised duke behind the counter how a coronation hat differed from the common or garden kind that I usually wear. He said the coronation hat cost a little more, was made of red, white and blue straw and had some new wrinkles in the crown. He also pointed out that the ribbon had beautiful decorative effects in the way of scenes from His Majesty's life before he got his present job. There was for instance, Albert Edward, introducing the cigarette into England. Albert Edward planning the first Tuxedo coat, Albert Edward using a toothpick at Monte Carlo, and several other choice episodes which are indelibly stamped on every loyal mind. The sweatband, too, bore the motto, 'Ich Dien," alluding to its humble utility in the matter of disposing of the honest drops which bedew the ordinary forehead.

"Well, I bought one of the patriotic lids, but the clerk was a hustler, he wouldn't let me get out.

"'Have you tried one of our coronation collars?" he asked.

"'Well, how does it work?'

"'This collar,' he said 'is got out to perpetuate the memory of the late Duke of Clarence, who, you will remember, was nicknamed Collars and Cuffs. Our firm thought it would be a touching thing, and not unprofitable on this unique occasion, to invent some little memorial that would also have a practical value. The coronation collar, with all its poignant associations, costs only 20 cents, or three for half a dollar. It is of the stand-up lie-down variety, is fully four inches high, and is guaranteed to keep the wearer's chin up, and give him a Royal air, even in the patrol wagon.'

"Of course," continued the flippant young man, "I bought one of the fashionable garottes—it reminded me somewhat of an Elizabethan ruff—and took risks of getting a crick in the neck. But I wasn't to get off so easy. That counter jumper saw he had a good thing, so he loaded me up with a coronation necktie, a startlingly neat and quiet thing in a Union Jack effect. I also bought a coronation shirt, which drops off when you pull a string, the idea being that such an article will be very handy for patriots who are fagged out with excessive coronation joy. I find that the shoe stores are selling an article based on a similar principle. You touch one of the buttons and the shoe falls off. The button may be pushed at the foot of the stairs, although a very slight, indefinite kind of lu ch against the washstand will do the trick just as well. Of course I have a pair of those shoes. I bought them two sizes too large, because this is an age of expansion, and I believe in Joe Chamberlain.

"However," said the flippant young man, lighting a fresh cigar, "I'm not through with that gents' furnishing store—I beg pardon, haberdasher's shop. The next thing I loaded up with was badges. I got six of His Nibs in different poses, and just to be gallant, and to keep him company, I threw a dollar into half a dozon more or less counterfeit presentments of Alexandra. I thought perhaps Tedward would feel lonesome, and that she might feel slighted. Well, after I had bought a pair of coronation suspenders, warranted to give you a chest like a field marshal and a coronation belt that wouldn't give an inch for a ten course dinner, and a coronation vest elaborately arabesqued with the Royal Standard check, and coronation cuff links with pictures of Windsor Castle and swans sailing in the moat, and coronation underwear, with lithographs of the Buckingham Palace refrigerator, and coronation socks with the harp that once through Tara's halls on the soles—a nasty crack at Ireland that — and coronation pants with the Scotch thistle and the rose of Old England worked into the pattern—when I had accumulated all that outfit I was still up against the coronation buttons. That set me back a dollar and a half. Of course I can't wear them all on my coat, so I've just stuck them where the ordinary buttons go. If you look closely you'll see that I'm a complete and compendious illustrated synopsis of the history of England, from the time of William the Conquerer down. If I happen to lose a button, it will put me back a whole era. At present I feel keenly the want of King John signing the Magna Charter and the Puritan revolution. You see they were in a position of great responsibility."

"But that wasn't the worst of it. When I got through with the gents' furnisher, I went to the barber shop.

"'Will you have a coronation shave?" asked the union man who had me by the throat.

"'What kind's that?'

"'Well, it is one you will remember as long as you do the coronation. First we apply red hot cloths to the face until the flesh is nicely parboiled. Then we skin you. After that we pluck out each hair separately, saying, 'He loves me; he loves me not.' Then we do you up in lanoline cream and cotton batting, and send you home in an ambulance. Some of our customers ask for chloroform, but we refuse because the idea is to impress this splendid historic function on your memory.'

"'Well, no,' said I. 'I guess you can trim my whiskers a la Edward VII., give me a drink of bay rum, and use some of your inter-Imperial fast line sea foam on my hair.'

"'And you don't want a coronation hair cut?' persisted the knight of the scissors. 'You'd fit into a coronation hair cut like a night porter into a high ball.'

"'What is it?'

"'Well, it's for bald-headed men like you. We run the clippers round the suburbs of your intellect and on that pretty, glistening bald spot, we paint the music of Rule Britannia or God Save the King, whichever you want.'

"Well," continued the flippant young man, "I managed to escape with a coronation singe and an Imperial shampoo, and then I hiked down to the corner of King and Yonge streets. While I stood there a dentist friend of mine came along and left his card in my hand. 'Get your crown work down in time for the Coronation.' While I was still puzzling over this merry quip an old college chum of mine approached.

"'What you going to do on June 26?" he enquired.

"'I'm going to keep sober.'

"'How foolish! Don't you remember that the King's family name is Wettin?'

"Although I was somewhat stunned, it was nothing to the blow I got a minute later. A well-known saloon keeper rushed by and thrust a beautiful piece of pasteboard into my hand. It had the royal arms at the top and bore this inscription: 'No subject who is truly loyal to the chief magistrate, will get his Coronation jag elsewhere than in King street. P.S.—Queen is dead.'

"And now," said the flippant young man, "I'm off to Buffalo for a month for fear some undertaker'll come along and tout me for a Coronation funeral."

Curious Styles of Letter Endings.

Any one in the habit of perusing old letters is struck with the tone of great humility and deference which pervades the correspondence of our ancestors.

A few specimens of the style of beginning and ending letters may prove interesting as in striking contrast to the laconic "yours obediently," "faithfully" or "truly" of the present day. It would certainly be difficult to match the following subscription of a letter from the Duke of Shrewsbury to Sir Thomas Hanmer, dated September, 1713: "I desire that you will believe that, wherever I am, I shall always endeavor to deserve and very much value your friendship, being, with a sincere esteem, sir, your most faithful and obedient servant, Shrewsbury."

Frequently one meets with bellicose subscriptions, as in the case of the Earls of Huntly and Errol, who, in 1594, threatened "awful consequences" to the magistrates of Aberdeen unless they released certain gentlemen imprisoned in their city and inscribed, "Yours as ye will, either present peace or weir."

Miss Helen Clergue.

In The Edinburgh Review appears a most interesting article on "Mme. du Deffand and her friends," which has been most favorably commented upon by the London Press. The article is written by Miss Helen Clergue, a sister of Mr. F. W. Clergue, of Sault Ste. Marie. She is one of the four charming daughters of Mr. Clergue, of Bangor, Maine, a Frenchman born, who went across the line when a child, and married an American lady, intellectual, energetic, religious and devoted to her family. The influence of such parentage is very distinct in Miss Clergue, who shares the brilliant and sound qualities of two races. The Helen mine, Lake Superior, one of the richest iron mines in Canad , has been named by her brother after Miss Clergue.

The article above referred to is very able and brilliant. The Times, in a criticism, compared the style of the young author to that of Macaulay.

The Agonizing Pains of Rheumatism.

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Fatal to Mice.

Mice cannot exist on Papa Little, an island in St. Magnus bay, on the west of Shetland. To test the truth of this statement several mice at various times were brought there, but the soil proved so uncongenial that they soon died.

South Sea Superstitions.

Nearly all tribes of south sea islanders believe that the sky is a great blue basin inverted over the world. To them the outside of the basin is all fire. The sun, moon and stars they take to be holes cut in the basin through which a peep at the great outside fire may be had.

Under the Rose.

The rose is the emblem of secrecy in Greece, and accordingly this flower used to be hung over the table where guests were entertained in token that nothing heard there was to be repeated.

Health for Women.

"Few things are more important to a community than the health of its women. If strong is the frame of a mother," says a proverb, "the sons will give laws to the people." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is especially woman's medicine. By its action on the blood and nerves it gives strength and vigour to the delicate feminine organs and ensures their regular and healthful functions. It gives colour to the pale, strength to the weak, and a rounded form to the thin and angular.

A Sluggish Lizard.

The tuatawa, a nine inch long lizard of New Zealand, is said to be the most sluggish animal in the world. He is usually found clinging to rocks and has been known to remain in the same spot for months. How he lives is a mystery.

Black Walnut.

Black walnut is less than half the weight of a corresponding quantity of ebony.

Life on Islands.

People usually live longer in islands and small peninsulas than on continents. Barbados, Greece, Madeira and the Shetlands are all favorable to long life.

The Solano.

The solano is a hot southeast wind, loaded with fine dust, which blows across Spain. It produces great uneasiness throughout the country. The Spanish have a proverb which says, "Ask no favors during solano."

VICTORIA CHEESE BOARD.

1812 Boxes Were Boarded Monday Morning.

Buyers Flavelle and Fitzgerald Secure the Lot at 9 1-8c.

(Lindsay Post.)

The Victoria County Cheese Board met this morning at 10 o'clock in the market room. After considerable talking the salesmen disposed of the full number of boxes boarded to Mr. Flavelle and Mr. Fitzgerald, the two buyers present at 9 1-8c.

Factories Represented.

The following factories boarded the number of boxes placed opposite:

Star	113
Cameron	114
Dunsford	155
Mariposa	145
Janetville	57
Omemee	150
Fenelon Falls	38
North Verulam	130
North Ops	95
Pine Grove	70
Reaboro	150
Bobcaygeon	215
Maple Leaf	115
Palestine	85
Red Rock	160

How the Bidding Went.

President Robertson called for bids, and Mr. Flavelle started it going by calling 8 3-4c. Mr. Fitzgerald raised it to 8 7-8c. and Mr. Flavelle jumped to 9c. Mr. Fitzgerald went a point better and called 9 1-16c. Mr. Flavelle refused to go higher and Mr. Fitzgerald was asked to name his selections. He called Omemee, Star, Dunsford, Maple Leaf and Reaboro, but these factories refused to sell.

Mr. Fitzgerald—"That settles it. I think I have offered a high price and I cannot see my way clear to offer more."

President Robertson—"What's the matter with Mr. Whitton this year? He has never put in an appearance so far, and this is the third sale for this board. I think you fellows must have him bought over."

Mr. Fitzgerald—"No, he is welcome to come as far as I am concerned. I understand he is not buying much cheese this year."

Mr. Robertson—"What price did Peterborough Board cheese sell at last meeting?"

Mr. Fitzgerald—"Some factories sold at 9 5-16c., but the price was 9 3-8c."

Mr. Flavelle — "The increase of cheese this year is about 20 per cent. more than last year, and according to the market we think it better not to buy too heavily."

Mr. Fitzgerald said that there were over 2,000 more boxes on Peterborough Board for June this year than last.

The buyers did not feel inclined to go higher than 9 1-16c., and as some of the salesmen were anxious to get home Mr. Taylor Parkin, of the Cameron factory, moved that the Board adjourn till Saturday. Mr. Parkin did not get a seconder, so the motion was not put. The salesmen were all anxious to sell, so finally a suggestion was made by Mr. Clancy that if 9 1-8c. were given he thought they should accept.

Mr. Fitzgerald said he would give 9 1-8c. for selections. This was granted, and he called Star, Dunsford, Omemee, Reaboro, Bobcaygeon, Maple Leaf and Palestine. These factories accepted, so he secured 903 boxes.

Mr. Flavelle then secured the remaining 849 boxes, clearing the board at the same price.

The next sale will be held on Monday, July 21st.

The Day of Miracles

is past, but many who are cured of itching, bleeding or protruding piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, look upon their recovery as being the next thing to miraculous. It is not uncommon for persons who have undergone painful, risky and expensive operations in vain to be finally cured by this wonderful ointment. It is the standard the world over and the only guaranteed cure for piles.

MARK STREET LEAGUE.

The Regular Weekly Meeting Held Last Night—The Programme.

The usual weekly meeting of the Mark street E. L. of C. E. was held on Monday evening. Notwithstanding the condition of the streets and unfavourable weather, the attendance was fairly good, and an interesting and profitable hour was spent.

The president, Miss Minnie Hamilton, of Ashburnham, occupied the chair, and the topic was taken by Mr. Williamson, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., of Peterborough, who commenced by asking for a few references to passages of Scripture bearing on the subject, and then proceeded to speak for a few minutes words which were instructive as well as deeply impressive.

Mr. Williamson's kindness in assisting with the work in the interests of the society was much appreciated by its members.

The service was interspersed with appropriate music selected for the occasion by the Music Committee. Among the numbers was a trio by Mr. Spear, of Ashburnham, and Misses Lottie Beer, London, and M. Howson, of Keene.

At the close of the meeting, the secretary, Mr. Leslie Murray, conducted the monthly consecration service, each member present responding to his or her name at the roll call. The members of the league extend a cordial invitation to all who can make it convenient to attend the meetings, and are always glad to welcome new members.

LAKEFIELD.

Interesting Items From the Village to the North.

Miss Hendren and her sister have returned from Cardiff, where they have been staying for about a month. The many friends of Miss Hendren will regret to hear that she is not as well as when she left Lakefield.

The Presbyterian Sabbath School excursion which was to have taken place last Friday, but was postponed on account of the rain on that date, has been set for Friday, July 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Rubery and family of Hamilton, who have been visiting Mr. M. Fisher, have returned home after spending a couple of weeks enjoying the beauties of nature about Lakefield.

Mr. Fife, of Peterborough, has been in Lakefield for a few days conducting public school leaving examinations.

Mr. Marling of Montreal, is the guest of Mr. H. Lefevre.

Mr. F. M. DelaFosse, who has been in Muskoka for the past couple of weeks has returned home looking hale and hearty after his short holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. McAllister and Miss Roy passed through the village Friday on their way to Stony Lake.

Many of our citizens took advantage of the hot weather on Tuesday to attend the circus, and after getting on their tightest boots and highest collars, rushed to the depot in order to get a seat in the train which was to bring them to see the monkeys and enable them to spend the afternoon under a tent that they might get enough circus to last them for one more year. We understand they got what they were after.

STOCK MARKETS.

A High and Low Priced Stock.

July 8.—We would to-day direct your special attention to New York Central, Also to So. R. Both of these stocks are bound to sell up materially and proportionately and for th efollowing reasons: New York Central has not advanced proportionately with the other shares of similar calibre. It was higher in price when L.N. was below 6, and when Ills. was close up to 140. It is one of the best investment securities upon the list and its equities in many other Vanderbilt lines earn it sufficient to pay its present dividends, leaving its own earnings for its surplus account. Its holdings of such shares as Lake Shore and others will eventually carry the market price of its own shares above 200. We have in past letters figured out conclusively that such must certainly come about. The N.Y.C. is on eof the two main transportation arteries of this country, and as time goes on, these great highways of commerce aer bound to increase in earning power and in value. Space forbids exhaustive analysis to prove the point, the fact nevertheless remains. Traders or investors will make no mistake in purchasing N. Y.C. S.R. at present writing should appeal strongly to such traders as like a low priced ordinarily slow moving stock. The rise in L.N. and Ills. Cen. is bound to accelerate a movement in little Southern Ry., as that company is directly interested in the combination movement amoung the roads of the South. It is a joint party with the L.N. in control of the C.I.L. and the resultant rise in L.N. should be followed by a proportionate rise in S.R. In addition, Southern Railway is one of the improving roads of the South. Those who knew the South, say five years ago, are unable to appreciate a marvellous change for the better that has taken place in that territory. The Southern Railway is one of the improving lines of the South., and one of the greatest beneficiaries and will, in comparatively short time, sell above 50. It ought to sell well above 40 in the next two weeks, possibly in a few days. It is hard to exactly state the exact time when such a stock will move, but move it will and in the upward direction, consequently the shares should be purchased now. We are immensely bullish upon Southern Railway and advise its immediate purchase. We advocated in last night's letter immediate purchase of N.Y.C. and S. R. To-day we give our reason. N. Y.C. recorded a gain of nearly three per cent., so did St. Paul and rose to 178 3-4. We are bullish as ever and P. A. touched 154 and has several points ahead of it in upward direction. M.O.P. made a new high record for this movement, going up to 111 1-2. U. P. was in more urgent demand on best of buying. These shares should rise more this summer. S. Pac. touched 65 3-4. At. crossed 84. Ill. Cen. rested around 143. Erratic quotations at expense of values were made for C. F. I. It looks as if the short interest had been run in. Steels were lower. Copper was off a point, and sugar as much. A great reaction, due to profit taking, set in the last hour. Stocks are, in our opinion, a great purchase.—Haight & Freese.

BURNED LITTLE BIRDS.

The Barbarous Act of a Resident of Toronto.

David Scott, an elderly man, with white hair and long beard, was fined $5 and costs or 30 days at yesterday's police court, Toronto, for burning some young sparrows alive in their nest. He lived on Sword street, Toronto, and on Dominion Day he knocked the nest from the eaves of his house. The evidence in the case was given by neighbours, some of whom were children, and showed that Scott had burned the nest on the road. His story was that he had killed the birds first but the Magistrate did not believe him. His Worship said that he had intended to make the penalty $20 and costs or thirty days, but had reduced it on account of the good character given Scott by his employer, and also because Staff Inspector Archibald, the prosecutor, had expressed his unwillingness to have the defendant severely punished. Mr. Kingsford also remarked that he would be sorry to be the man who would pass over the act of burning little innocent birds.

Latest Fashion Notes.

For Seashore or Yachting.

All the costumes intended for seaside and yachting must bear some distinctly nautical device, from the conventional sailor dress and reefer, with "buzzard" on sleeve and anchors on collar and shield to the more elaborate frocks which follow the fancy tailor made models. In the accompanying illustration is shown a very pretty type of these frocks, not too severe nor over ornamental. The material is dark blue mohair, of a very coarse grain. The gored skirt is very close fitting from belt to knee, and from there to the edge very flaring all seams being finished with several rows of stiching done with Corticeli silk in self colour. The border is of striped taffeta, china blue and white, cut on the bias, and finished with three rows of velvet ribbon, one on either edge and one through the middle. The same trimming borders the collarless Eton, finishing the blouse front, and being prolonged to form little tabs below the belt in a vest effect, and at the shoulders to give the required breadth. At either side of this trimming on the front are embroidered anchors, and two groups of little stars worked with white Corticeli EE Embroidery silk.

INDIAN RIVER.

On Saturday evening last the Indian River football team journeyed to Norwood, where they played a friendly game against the team of that place. The teams lined up as follows.

Indian River.		Norwood.
	Goal.
W. Brakenridge,		E. Watson,
	Backs.
W. Foster,		A. Finley,
M. O'Leary,		J. Miller,
A. Fife,		J.Lynn,
	Halves.
B. Fife,		A. Kempt.
D. Devlin,		E. Morrow,
A. Nelson, R.W.		C. McNichol,
F. Devlin, R.W.		H. McNichol,
	Forwards.
W. O'Leary, C.		D. E. Hunter,
A. Nelson, L.W.		A. Robinson,
R. Devlin, L.W.		S. Wildman,

Referee, W. O'Keefe.

The ball was faced at 6.45, and soon Indian River rushed on the Norwood goal, which was well relieved by Finlay. Norwood forwards now rushed on their opponents goal, and after about 12 minutes play the first, and only, goal was scored by Hunter. From this on, both goals were often in danger, but owing to the magnificent work of Brackenridge, and Norwood's strong defence, no goals were scored. In the second half Indian River tried hard to even the score and pressed closely around Norwood's goal, so that Watson had to keep on the alert. During this half Indian River appeared to have the better of the game, but were unlucky in scoring. Next Friday evening the return match will be played, so another chance is given us to do better than even matters.

SUSPICION AS A FINE ART.

The people of Ontario are not nearly as excitable as the Opposition press thinks they are. When the wind is northeast they can tell a hawk from a bernshaw. While the Tory editors are dwelling in a world of their own construction, with a language all its own, a world peopled by machines, deft operators, ballot switchers, thumb nail artists, etc., the people generally are quite content to live in the prosaic world of Ontario. The Whitney outfit are in a state of frightful suspicion. A ballot paper found in an envelope throws them into transports of suspicion. Indeed a scrap of any sort of paper found within half a mile of a polling booth is immediately despatched to Morrisburg to be examined under what Mr. Weller called the million magnifier. The reasoning power which we humble people exercise on the ordinary affairs of life have been temporarily called in, so far as the ordinary Tory editors are concerned. They are in the position of that judge who, having heard the case for the prosecution, refused to hear any more, because he had his mind made up and further evidence would only serve to confuse him.

A good specimen of the sort of mental eclipse into which too much brooding on one subject has thrown them, is afforded by an episode in the North Grey case. When the votes were counted by the deputy returning officer, at poll No. 9, St. Vincent, there were 29 for the Conservative candidate and 40 for the Liberal. After the difficulties about the four ballots that were found to have a double cross on them, affidavits were obtained by the Conservative managers from those who had voted for Mr. Boyd in that sub-division. Unfortunately, this proved too much, for it was found that 30 persons swore they had voted for him, although but 29 ballots came out of the box. This count remained in this somewhat unsatisfactory condition for a week or more, and now it appears that still another supporter of Mr. Boyd's has turned up. So that 31 persons take affidavits that they voted for Mr. Boyd, while only 29 ballots marked for him came out of the box. This slight discrepancy might discourage people of ordinary resources and less sanguine temperament, but it does not dash the spirits of Conservative journalists for a moment. One explanation covers all such unexplainable things—Grit rascality. Two of the ballots deposited by the Conservative voters were switched, is the explanation that is glibly offered to the public.

It will be remembered that all who were in the polling-booth, including the Conservative scrutineers, have stated that the process of counting the ballots was watched so keenly that they are ready to assert that the marks which were afterwards found on the ballots were not there when the count was made. Whether it is possible that a watch so close as this could be maintained, it would certainly be close enough to prevent the returning officer doing anything by which a ballot deposited for Mr. Boyd could be converted into one for Mr. McKay. Every voter knows the process by which a vote is recorded. The voter hands the ballot which he has just marked to the deputy returning officer, that gentleman merely glances at it to see that his initial is on it, and immediately thereon drops it into the box. Does any voter depart until he has seen the ballot he has handed in duly deposited in the box? Not once in a hundred times. But in addition to the eye of the voter, every other eye in the polling-booth is on the deputy returning officer. The wizard Houdin could scarcely hope to perform any tricks under such circumstances. Yet we are asked to believe, apart altogether from the question of the honesty or dishonesty of the returning officer, that these slight-of-hand wonders are performed by the ordinary, everyday citizens of quiet country sides. In the story that our Conservative friends are telling there is no use objecting that an elephant cannot climb a tree. In the interests of the story the elephant must climb the tree.—Globe.

A LIVE MINISTER.

The enemies of Hon. Mr. Tarte deal with him in a most unfair way imparting motives and misrepresenting his position, but the fact cannot be concealed or evaded that he is one of the most energetic and progressive as well as aggressive and broad-minded Ministers of Public Works the Dominion has ever had. Mr. Tarte not only believes in doing things, but in seeing things for himself, forming his own judgment and acting on his own responsibility. He practically applies the spirit of the motto: "If you want your business done, do it; if not, send." Mr. Tarte doesn't send, he goes and sees for himself, an example that all administrative and executive officials might follow with profit. Mr. Tarte is continually moving about the country in his private car, which is not, as his enemies charge, a mere luxurious resting place, but an office on wheels—his workshop where he does a large amount of departmental work, which in the case of many ministers ceases when they leave their office. Yesterday morning Mr. Tarte set out on his tour of the St. Lawrence highway and the great lakes. His intention is to go as far west as Winnipeg, and the trip will occupy several weeks. The Minister of Public Works will make a study of the requirements of transportation as he goes.

The majority of "one" is still the piece de resistance of the Tory papers. When, remarks the Ottawa Free Press, shortly the Renfrew election will make it two and other circumstances make it something more, it is hard to foresee what they will do. By the way it may be noted that influential Conservatives in Renfrew are favouring the election of Mr. Munro, son of the deceased member elect, by acclamation. And further; in the opinion of very high legal authority, one Conservative election is null and void. That counts something.

GOOD COMMERCIAL CONDITIONS

All interested in the prosperity and welfare of Canada will be glad to learn that the business failures occurring in the Dominion during the first six months of 1902 were exceptionally few in number and remarkably light in character. According to Bradstreet's, Canadian failures from Jan. 1st to June 30th, totalled 603, with liabilities of $5,103,000, against 717 with liabilities of $6,412,000 in the same period of 1901.

Taking Canada and the United States together, the returns are equally favourable. Only once in 9 years have the June failures been fewer in number than last month, and the same remark is true of the quarter's returns, while only twice since 1888, in 1900 and 1899, were there fewer failures for the half year than there were in the six months ending June 30th.

THE HAY CROP.

Ontario never before had such a hay crop as this year, but unfortunately the weather has been the worst possible for the cutting, curing and housing of it. For four weeks or more now it has rained more or less nearly every day. The consequence is that while the crop has been very satisfactory in every respect, the opportunities for harvesting it have been of the very poorest, and it is learned with regret that a great many fields that have been cut, and where the hay was on the ground for curing, have been damaged to such an extent by the wet that the hay will not bring more than half its value, even if it brings that. In some sections of the country, where the hay has been put in the barns, it was found necessary to have it taken out, on account of over-heating. Those farmers who have been fortunate enough to have a late crop will probably be in the best position, although there is uncertainty even yet that the wet season is completed, for there is still more or less thunder in the air. Between Toronto and Barrie quite a number of hay fields are totally under water. The prospects of $4 a ton hay for feeding purposes next spring are not so bright as they were ten or fifteen days ago.

STOCK MARKETS.

New York, July 9th.—The buying in St. Paul and in U.P. has been accompanied by a statement that a closer relation between the two companies is not far away. The report is believed to have been put out for market purposes.

The advance in U. P. was stimulated by a very positive and somewhat detailed story to the effect that U. P. interests had acquired control of St. Paul, and would ally the two properties at an early date. The denial of this report did not destroy its vitality, on account of an impression that such a deal would be denied anyway. The activity in U. P. brought quite an amount of buying in S. Pac., and during the morning a rumor was afloat that it had been decided to begin dividends on that stock. This rumor is untrue. S. Pac. may be advanced on the earnings, which are large, or on prospects which are good. Wall street is getting a little tired of the persistent suits against U.S.S. The feeling that a not very disinterested opposition to the financing plan is being worked to death has gained ground. Apart from any expression of opinion on the merits of the stock, this method of stimulating the defensive instinct of the inside is probably not so remunerative as some operators had expected. Colo. fuel and Iron did not act well, and sold in well informed quarters from the opening of the market. It was generally thought that the western element was taking free advantage of the general strength to liquidate for the first time in some considerable period. Ten. coal shared the weakness to a moderate extent.

Opinion so far does not favour any gold shipments this week, but definite information on this point is not at present available. Am. sugar lost ground on limited trade. There was, however, very little stock coming out. Colo. and Southern was advanced by a small bull pool in the market, and it was thought that in view of the limited loating supply it would not be difficult to mark up the price a little. The western wire houses had a very fair supply of orders. There was some talk of a concerted movement impending in the soft coal stocks, with Penna. as the leader.

President Jeffries of Denver and R G. is in town, and is bullish on the outlook for his road. The best of the buying orders seem to be in the preferred stock.

A prominent New York to a prominent Phil. house says a report is current that an injunction will be applied for to restrain the United States Steel Corporation from paying the common stock dividends, but on what grounds it is not stated.

RAILWAY EMPLOYES IN LUCK.

Montreal Street Railway Co. Give Them 10 Per Cent. Increase.

Montreal, July 10.—The head of the Montreal Street and the Park and Island Railways have given an increase of 10 per cent. to their conductors and motormen. Following a meeting of the directors yesterday, Mr. Wanklyn issued a circular increasing the pay of the men who had been in the company's employ over two years from 15 to 16½ cents per hour, and those under two years from 14 2-7 to 15½ cents per hour, amounting to $50,000. The company made a similar increase in 1899.

This Strike About Settled.

Chicago, July 10.—The strike of freight handlers is virtually settled. Meetings of the strikers will be held to-day to ratify the action taken last night by President Curran of the order.

The Color Line in Labor.

Toronto, July 10.—The Iron Moulders in convention assembled had rather a warm debate on the question as to whether the negroes of the sunny South were to be admitted into the union. The Southern delegates warmly opposed the move to have the negroes of the Southern States admitted, and used some very strong arguments backing up their view of the question. The delegates from the Northern States spoke up in favor of the negro and insisted that he had rights as a toiler just the same as the white man. Canadian delegates stood for the negroes. The question was not settled. The event of the day was a resolution brought in favoring the cause of the striking coal miners in Pennsylvania. The convention decided to give them $1,000 should the need arise.

MR. MARCONI'S VISIT.

Will Not Come to Canada Until End of August.

Halifax, N.S., July 10.—Mr. Vyvyan, engineer in charge of the erection of the Marconi station, said yesterday that Mr. Marconi would not come to Cape Breton until the latter part of August. The postponement of Mr. Marconi's visit is due to the fact that the Italian Government has just placed at his disposal a man-of-war, on board of which Mr. Marconi will make experiments in long-distance wireless telegraphy. In the meantime it is altogether likely communication with the Cornwall station will be established by Mr. Vyvyan. Mr. Marconi will probably come to Sydney direct in the Italian warship.

The Day of Miracles

is past, but many who are cured of itching, bleeding or protruding piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, look upon their recovery as being the next thing to miraculous. It is not uncommon for persons who have undergone painful, risky and expensive operations in vain to be finally cured by this wonderful ointment. It is the standard the world over and the only guaranteed cure for piles.

LIGHTNING'S CHOICE.

Struck Indian Chief Jonathan While Riding With Mr. Garlow.

KILLED THE ONE, LEFT THE OTHER

Cecil Rennie, Third Son of Principal of Oakwood School, Drowned—Death by Drowning Comes to a Little Girl Who Tried Unsuccessfully to Save Her Brother—Killed by a Plank.

Onondaga, July 10.—A terrific electric storm passed over the Indian Reserve yesterday afternoon, during which Chief Levi Jonathan, who was driving a team of horses attached to a buggy, near Council House, was killed outright, as also was one horse. Mr. Garlow, who was riding with the deceased, received a severe shock, but is otherwise uninjured.

The deceased was one of the most powerful chiefs of the Six Nations, and at time of death was completing a large number of contracts, amongst which are the building of the new Public school and the new steel arch bridge. He was a man who will be greatly missed by the Council, and by the public as a contractor. The deceased was widely known throughout the country and highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Cecil Rennie Drowned.

Lindsay, July 10.—At Oakwood Tuesday night, Cecil Rennie, third son of Mr. R. G. Rennie, Principal of the Oakwood School, was drowned while bathing in a creek east of the village. On account of the heavy rain recently the water was very high. It was supposed that the lad got beyond his depth, and was carried away by the current. The body was found yesterday morning about 7 o'clock. Cecil was thirteen years old and a general favorite among his friends.

Both Children Drowned.

Winnipeg, Man., July 10.—While two children of Thomas McLellan were playing on the banks of the Bow River yesterday morning, the youngest boy, aged 6, fell in. His sister, aged 11, sprang in to save her brother. The current was very strong, and both were swept away and drowned. The bodies have not been recovered.

Killed by a Plank.

Wallaceburg, July 10.—Harry Milerd, son of Israel Milerd, builder, of this town, was killed by falling on the dock at the Sydenham Glass Works here yesterday afternoon. He and some others were bathing and diving from a piece of timber several feet above the dock, which supported a gangway plank. By some means the timber was shaken from its supports, and, falling on Milerd, killed him instantly.

Toronto Woman Hurt.

Hamilton, July 10.—A woman who says she is Margaret Reeves, Toronto, was found in the Cannon street yard of the G.T.R. last evening suffering from a terrible wound in the head. She was taken to the General Hospital in the ambulance. She said she fell down a flight of stairs in a hotel in Ingersoll yesterday morning, and that the wound had not been dressed. She took a train for this city after the accident, intending to go on to Toronto.

Man and Wife Killed.

Easton, Pa., July 10.—A cloudburst in the Upper Bushkill district of Northampton County last night, did a vast amount of damage. Charles Abel, a farmer, who, with his wife, was returning from the harvest field, was struck by lightning and killed.

Fatal Car Collision.

Troy, N.Y., July 10.—As a result of a head-on collision between two cars on the Hudson Valley Railroad, at Caldwell, late yesterday afternoon, one person was killed and at least 16 others were more or less seriously injured. One car was an express, and the other a passenger, the latter being loaded with 84 excursionists from Stillwater, members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

11,000 Ontario Students.

Toronto, July 10.—Registrar Jenkins of the Ontario Education Department said yesterday that approximately 11,000 Ontario students are writing or have written on examinations authorized by the Education Department this year. Of this great army of scholars 5,500 wrote on Part I. of the junior leaving examination, 1,200 on Part I. matriculation, 3,000 tried for the junior leaving teachers' certificate. 1,000 wrote on the senior leaving examination, 1,000 candidates were examined in the contests for commercial diplomas, while over a score of adult scholars tried for the commercial specialist examination. The examiners have begun reading the papers sent in.

French Electors Bribed.

Paris, July 10.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday by a vote of 307 to 224, invalidated the election of Count Jean de Castellane, a brother of Count Boni de Castellane, at St. Flour, Department of Cantal. Sums of from 5,000 to 10,000 francs were given to electors.

Sir John Bourinot Critically Ill.

Ottawa, July 10.—Sir John Bourinot's condition is unchanged. He is still critically ill, and it is morally certain that even should he be restored to a measure of health he will never again be strong enough to perform the duties of his position in the House of Commons.

Pro-Boers and Radicals Have Made Kitchener Their Hero.

WHY THEIR CHANGE OF FRONT.

The Victorious General Is Credited With Having Brought the War to a Close by Insisting Upon Magnanimous Terms For a Brave Enemy—Lord Methuen's Return—His Status

London, July 10.—Lord Methuen's return to England has been as quiet as Lord Kitchener's welcome will be demonstrative. Lord Methuen remained in South Africa for a longer period than any other of the Generals of the original army corps of which so much was expected and by which so little was accomplished. He has risen in the public estimation in consequence of the English grit with which he persisted in seeing the thing through, and, notwithstanding his final defeat and capture, he has a better public reputation than General Buller or the other Generals, with the single exception of General French. General Sir George White, who has been properly reticent since the relief of Ladysmith, has profited by the publication of the recent budget of war correspondence, and is now accounted one of the most gallant and faithful soldiers of the British army.

Kitchener and the Radicals.

Lord Kitchener has become the hero of the Radicals and the pro-Boers, because he is credited with having brought the war to a close by insisting upon magnanimous terms for a brave enemy. Both political camps will unite in welcoming him home this week. His next command will probably be in India, but he will likely remain until the end of the year in England, where he can be consulted by the War and Colonial Offices respecting the settlement in South Africa.

SALVATION ARMY.

Captain Lacey, an Earnest Worker in Hamilton, Ont., Endured Awful Pain—His Patience is Rewarded at Last.

The life of an officer in the Salvation Army is never a bed of roses.

No man or woman has a place in this wonderful organization who is not prepared for hard work.

There is no room in the Army for those who are afraid of hunger, exposure or of hard work seven days in the week.

It is quite natural then, that many of these devoted men and women find themselves very much run down, and the victims of many forms of disease. Captain Lacey, of Hamilton, than whom there is no more self-sacrificing officer in the service of the Salvation Army in Canada, was tortured for eight long years with Dyspepsia.

He exercised the greatest care possible in his diet and did everything in his power to correct the trouble, but to no purpose.

He used many medicines and treatments, some of which gave him a little temporary relief, but none gave him a permanent cure.

At last, by the advice of friends, he began a treatment of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the results in his case were simply marvellous. The first dose gave him positive and instant relief, and before the first box was completely used he was almost entirely cured.

He can now eat anything he cares to without the slightest unpleasant consequences, and his general health is very much improved.

It is not often that such a small quantity even of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will make a complete cure of a case of eight years' standing but Captain Lacey's careful living no doubt very much assisted and facilitated the treatment.

Captain Lacey's experience is only one of a great many, and it is conspicuous only on account of the exceptional severity of the case, and the remarkable rapidity of his recovery through the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Julia Arthur Under Knife.

Boston, Mass., July 10.—Mrs. B. P. Cheney who was known on the stage as Julia Arthur, was operated upon for appendicitis yesterday at her home on Little Brewster Island, Boston harbor.

The operation was entirely successful, and it is expected that Mrs. Cheney's convalescence will be rapid, unless some unexpected complications should manifest themselves.

LOST A GALLANT RACE.

At Henley Argonauts of Toronto Were Beaten by Crack Cambridge Crew—Losers Cheered at the Finish.

Henley, Eng., July 10.—In spite of a dull threatening morning exceptionally large crowds assembled here yesterday to witness the second day's racing of the Henley regatta.

Interest in the meeting was vastly enhanced in the danger of the Diamond Sculls and the Grand Challenge Cup crossing the Atlantic. Canadians and Americans were present in force to support their respective compatriots.

The wind was sufficiently strong in the forenoon to churn the water. It blew directly off the Bucks shore, giving the boats on that station a great advantage. Some experts estimated that the station on the Bucks side was worth a full length.

The first contest was the fourth heat for the Grand Challenge Cup. Although the London Rowing Club had the advantage of the Bucks station, and rowed in excellent form, Leander led all the way. London.s spurt towards the finish proving fruitless. The time was very fast, considering the wind, supporting the generally accepted view that nobody knows what reserve power is possessed by the Leanders until they are hard pressed. The half-mile time was 2 minutes, 31 seconds. The mile was done in 5 minutes 30 seconds.

This opened the way for what was generally regarded as the most important event of the regatta, the Canadians' contest with Third Trinity, the crack Cambridge crew, accepted by all as the British champions in the heats for the Grand Challenge Cup, containing as the crew did, such noted oarsmen as C. J. Goldie, J. Edwards-Moss, and W. Dudley-Ward. The race was close and exciting to Fawley Court. The Argonauts led to that point (half the distance) when Third Trinity caught up, took command, and finished in the splendid time of 7 minutes 11 seconds. The Canadians, even when they were passed, hung on in the most spirited fashion, and spurted time after time. But they were handicapped by the fact that they held the Berks side. The time for the half mile was 2 minutes 27 seconds. Fawley Court was passed in 3 minutes 21 seconds.

Both struck forty for the first minute, and raced nose and nose. At Fawley Court Third Trinity forged a quarter of a length to the front, rowing grandly. The collegians drew away gradually, amidst the greatest excitement. The losers were loudly cheered at the finish.

The third heat for the Thames Challenge Cup was a great struggle. The Irishmen would have won but for their disadvantage of station. The Trinity Hall, Cambridge, beat Trinity, Dublin, by a quarter of a length. Time, 7 minutes, 28 second.

The Dublin crew got off first, and still led at Fawley Court, after which Cambridge gradually drew level. A neck-and-neck race ensued, and the Englishmen won by a narrow margin.

After the lunch interval, the fourth heat for the Thames Challenge Cup was rowed in a downfall of rain, which sent the summer picnickers in search of shelter. The Royal School of Mines Boat Club crew got clear away from the start, and kept the Thames Rowing Club men in hand the whole distance, winning by three-quarters of a length. Time 7 minutes, 42 second.

In the third heat for the Ladies' Challenge Plate, Eton beat Christ Church, Oxford, easily. Time 7 minutes 29 seconds.

In the fourth heat University College, Oxford beat Ridley School by two lengths. Time, 7 minutes 38 seconds.

The third heat aroused unusual enthusiasm, and the Eton boys, whose special claim to this trophy is generally conceded, carried the good wishes of everyone. They had the Bucks shore, and took full advantage of it. Christ Church held their own for some distance, but were then rowed down and the Etonians came away, and won as they liked in excellent time, 7 minutes 29 seconds.

In the second heat for the Silver Goblets the Honorable C. Craven and J. W. Knight, London Rowing Club, easily beat a pair of the Reading Rowing Club. Time, 9 minutes 11 seconds. This was a procession and a hollow victory.

In the eighth heat of the Diamonds, F. S. Kelly, Baliol College, Oxford, beat C. S. Titus, Union Boat Club, New York. Kelly won easily. Time, 8 minutes 39 seconds.

In the ninth heat R. B. Etherington-Smith, Leander Boat Club, beat J. Beresford, Kensington Rowing Club, easily. Time, 8 minutes 58 seconds.

Titus was a warm favorite, but he was rowed to a standstill, to the surprise of everyone. His opponent, F. S. Kelly, Baliol College, Oxford, led away from the start, and was three lengths ahead at Fawley Court. He maintained his distance and paddled home an easy victor. He put in 38 strokes in the first minute to the American's 35. The wisdom of the manoeuvre was clearly evident. The Oxonian went to the front forthwith and gained a quarter of a length in the first quarter of a mile. At the half-mile he was half a length to the good. Kelly's time at Fawley Court was 3 minutes 2 seconds. He had then tacked on over a couple more lengths, and Titus' fate was apparent, as he was completely outrowed.

MRS. MAXWELL BARTER, Grand Cascapedia, Que., writes:

"I take great pleasure in telling you what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has done for me and mine. A year ago my little girl, now nearly three years old, was attacked by Cholera Infantum. It was in the hot season and she was teething at the time. The doctor gave her up; in fact, I did so myself.

"I finally decided to try Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry. I procured a bottle and it did her so much good that I got another bottle and by the time it was finished she was completely cured. As for myself, it has saved me from inflammation of the bowels several times. I always keep a bottle in the house and cannot recommend it too highly."

Wedding Bells.

A most interesting yet quiet wedding took place last night at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. R. J. Martin, No 141 Rubidge st., when Mr. Gilbert Andrew Borland and Miss Maud Mary Rabey, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, were united in the bonds of matrimony, by Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's. Both parties are well known in Peterborough, and have a large circle of friends. The happy couple leave today for Toronto, where they will reside in future.

A SCHOLASTIC EXCURSION.

Peterborough Educationists to Make an Old Country Tour.

To-morrow three prominent educationists, directly connected with educational matters, and one indirectly connected therewith, start out for a visit to the Old Country. The party consists of Messrs. J. Jeffries and H. R. H. Kenner, of the Collegiate Institute staff, D. Walker, Inspector of Public Schools, and George W. Morrow, Secretary of the Board of Education. The party will visit the British Islands, the three first making a specialty of the places of historical and literary interest, so that visual familiarity with the places and scenes associated with British history and literature, may impress themselves more intelligibly upon their minds, and thereby better equip them for the work of dealing in class with the subjects relating to these scenes and incidents. Mr. Morrow doubtless goes for pleasure to be derived from good travelling company, and for the pleasure the trip will afford, and won't perhaps take quite so much "shop" with him, though no doubt the other members of the party will manage to delightfully mingle pleasure and profit. The party expects in the time at its disposal to do the British Isles, as thoroughly as possible, and touch up France a little, and return to town by Sept. 1st. They leave town to-morrow for Montreal, where they will embark on the Mongolian on Saturday for the sea voyage. The many friends of the tourists wish them a happy and prosperous paddle across the herring pond to and fro, a pleasant tour, and a good sight of the Coronation festivities, which will, it is expected, take place during the month of August. Bon voyage, boys.

THE INSPECTION.

An Attempt Will be Made to Take Armour's Hill.

Lieut.-Col. C. E. Montizambert, D. O. C., Kingston, arrived in town yesterday and last night inspected the various companies of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers. There was a very good turn out of all ranks and the six companies were put through company movements. They acquitted themselves most creditably and gave evidence of careful training.

The Regimental Inspection will take place this evening. It promises to be of more than ordinary interest in as much as an attempt will be made to capture Armour's Hill. The two local sections of the Durham Field Battery, under the command of Lieut. W. C. Ackerman will take up a position on the hill and the 57th Regiment will be divided into three sections and will attempt to take it from the north, east and south. Blank ammunition will be used.

The regiment will parade down George street as the clock strikes 7. The men are asked to be at the armouries at 6.30 o'clock sharp. Muster Parade will be held at the close of the Inspection.

SPECIAL SERVICE AND SERMON.

Sketch of the History of the Parish From Its Founding.

ITS SEVERAL RECTORS AND ITS WORKERS.

A Record of Continued Prosperity and Progress—Increase of Material, Equipment and Membership—Requested Offering to School House Building Fund Contributed in Full.

The weather last night on the occasion of the celebration of St. Luke's Ashburnhma, 26th anniversary, was unpropitious, and the attendance of the congregation was smaller than it would have been otherwise. Yet the stalwarts of the congregation were present, and a delightfully hearty service was held, and the deep interest in the welfare of the church at its silver jubilee, as well as in the past, was shown by the material contribution of $400 to the reduction of the school house building fund debt.

The church was very prettily decorated for the occasion with Union Jacks and maple leaves, and those who took part in the services were Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, Port Hope; Rev. George Warren, Lakefield; Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rector of St. John's and Rev. W. L. Armitage, Rector of All Saint's.

Rev. Dr. Symonds opened the service, and the lessons were read by Revs. Messrs. Armitage and Davidson, and Rev. Mr. Warren read the prayers.

Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, Rector of St. Luke's, made a few remarks, in which he referred to the fact that the first service was held in St. Luke's 26 years ago, when Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, then Rector, preached in the evening, and the Bishop of Toronto preached in the morning. He was sorry that this, the 26th anniversary, was not more largely attended by the members of the congregation, but the unpleasant state of the weather had no doubt prevented many from being present.

THE SERMON.

Rev. H. J. Cody, M.A., of Toronto, preached a very interesting sermon, taking for his text the 4th vs. of the 16th chap. of St. Luke, the words of which are as follows: "What man of you having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness and go after that which is lost until he find it."

He said he had chosen his text from what had been said was the most beautiful book in the Bible. After picturing the manner in which Christ is always portrayed as being the Good Shepherd, and the sweet expression of benevolence that is always painted on his face, he told of how God comes as a Good Shepherd to save those who have wandered from Him. Christ wishes to make His attitude clear. A peculiar characteristic of Him was that he chose His company chiefly amongst sinful persons. He never offered any excuse, nor did His followers ever suspect of Him any wrong doing. An explanation of His going amongst those who indulged in wickedness is easily explained by the fact that there is always more actual interest taken in a person that is lost than at any other time, in order that that which is lost may be regained.

The lessons that we are to learn from the text are that Christ suffers

THE LATE REV. W. C. BRADSHAW, M. A.
First Rector St. Luke's, 1876—1890.

a loss from every one that strays from his side.

The second thought evolved is that of Christ's concern for His wandering sheep, and how the sheep thoughtlessly wandered from the fold. Another thought evolved is the prompt and never failing energy with which Christ searches for those of His flock who are lost. He never needs to be aroused; it is He who has all the concern. Then when He searches for the lost sheep He is persistent. Finally the weak one is upheld by the strong arm of the Shepherd and led home on a line that is so strong that it cannot be broken.

The preacher went on to show how we may think that the loss of one sheep does not amount to much, when there is a flock of one hundred or more. Is not the loss of one from the family side felt as severely as if there was only two in that family? Is the loss of one mitigated by the fact that there are others? Not so; and it is likewise with the Great Shepherd. The loss of one sheep from the fold is of great concern to Him. The reverend gentleman closed a most interesting address with an earnest appeal to those present to live consistent Christian lives in their homes and in their business relations.

During the evening the choir sang an anthem entitled, "Sing a Song of Praise," in an excellent manner.

The offertory of the evening amounted to $400.00.

SKETCH AND HISTORY OF PARISH.

At such a time a little sketch of the history of the parish since its inception, taken in part from a most interesting history of the parish, compiled by the present Rector, Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, will be read with interest.

The Parish of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, was formed chiefly through the exertions and by the liberality of the late Rev. Mark Burnham, B.A., who not only gave the site for a church but also aided largely in its erection, and for two years contributed generously to the clergyman's support. The first service was held on the 9th of July, 1876, the late Bishop of Toronto, Right Reverend Dr. Bethune, officiating in the morning, and the first Incumbent, the late Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, preaching his first sermon in the evening. The only building then erected was a small school room.

The first Vestry meeting was held on Thursday, July 13, 1876, at which the following gentlemen were present: Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Rev. Mark Burnham, Messrs. H. T. Strickland, Jacob Friend, A. Ingram, John Burnham, Wm. Mills, J. Z. Rogers, G. C. Rogers, A. H. Peck. The first Wardens then elected were Mr. H. T. Strickland, People's Warden, and Mr. John Burnham, Rector's Warden, who held their office for twenty-one consecutive years. Mr. G. C. Rogers was the first Vestry clerk.

The following items of interest are noted: It was decided to name the church "St. Luke the Evangelist." Mr. Jacob Friend volunteered to act as sexton, free of charge. Rev. Mark Burnham offered to build a driving shed, which offer was gratefully accepted. The first confirmation was administered to 34 candidates by the Right Reverend Dr. Bethune, October 15th, 1876.

PROGRESS.

Very soon the little school-house was found inadequate to the needs of the constantly increasing congregation, and at a congregational meeting held on Monday, September 4th, 1876, it was unanimously decided to build a new church. A committee, consisting of Rev. Mark Burnham, Messrs. H. T. Strickland, Mark Curtis and John Burnham was elected to take all necessary steps.

The foundation stone was laid on Ascension Day, May 10th, 1877, and the church was opened under auspicious circumstances on September 23rd, 1877, and subsequently consecrated in May, 1878, all indebtedness having been removed. The preacher on this occasion was Rev. Canon Stennett.

At the Easter Vestry meeting in 1878 the reports gave much encouragement and proved to be highly favourable, showing a marked progress in every department of church life.

At this meeting thanks were tendered to Wm. McCullough and others for their kind gift of a Communion Service; to Hon. George A. Cox for his kindness in insuring the church premises for three years free of charge; and to Mr. Rogers for the gift of a stove for the school room. The first Lay Delegates to the Synod were Messrs. H. T. Strickland and John Burnham. On May 17th, 1877, the Rev. Mark Burnham, the generous and loyal friend and supporter of St. Luke's, was called to his well earned rest, aged seventy-three years. He was buried in the Little Lake Cemetery on May 19th, the Rev. Messrs. Beck, Clementi and Bradshaw officiating. Subsequently a memorial window in memory of Rev. M. Burnham was placed in the Chancel by his friends. Mr. William Wand presented the church with a pulpit, and the Ladies' Aid Society presented to the church a font. Both gifts were received in 1877. The church bell was given by the Sunday School scholars. At the Easter Vestry in 1878, the first Assistant Wardens were elected in the persons of Messrs. H. C. Burritt, M.D., and Henry Denne, Esq.

At this meeting Messrs. A. H. Peck and Henry Denne were appointed Auditors. The first record of the Sunday School is found in the Vestry report of

THE LATE MR. GEO. C. ROGERS.

1878 when a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. George C. Rogers, since deceased, for his efficient and untiring services as its first superintendent. Harvest Thanksgiving Services were inaugurated on Sept. 26th, 1878, and the church decorated for the first time. A Committee to raise funds for the purpose of obtaining a pipe organ was also appointed at this meeting, consisting of Messrs. H. C. Burritt, M. D., H. H. Smith, John Butcher and J. Z. Rogers. Two memorial windows were placed in the church in 1879, by Richard White, Esq., of Montreal, in memory of Thomas and Dorothea White, who died in 1877 and 1872 respectively.

Messrs. C. Crowe, Abs. Ingram and J. Heap were the first Sidesmen. In 1880 a pipe organ was placed in the church, Mr. W. J. Hallot being the organist. In the same year steps were taken to raise funds for the building of a parsonage. The efforts in this matter were so successful that the first Rector occupied a handsome brick parsonage in 1881. In 1882, two other memorial windows were placed in the church in memory of Mr. Charles Bertram Orde who died August 24, 1872, and Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers who died September 26th, 1875. In 1883, a memorial window was placed in the church in memory of Mrs. Isabelle Balfour Calcutt who died March 3rd, 1881. Mrs. Soanes presented a brass Alms Dish to the church in 1884. Silver offertory plates were also donated by unknown friends. The first public Baptism took place in the church on August 27th, 1876, the person baptized being Joseph Samuel, son of Joseph and Mary Ann Phillips. The first marriage was celebrated on August 17th, 1876, the contracting parties being Thomas White and Mary Ann O'Neill. At both ordinances the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw officiated. The first appointment of Lay Readers and Catechists dates from March 31,1880, Messrs. H. C. Burritt, M.D., and G. C. Rogers receiving the appointment. In March, 1880, a monthly issue of a Parish Magazine was begun. A very interesting publication called Church Work, edited in Halifax, N. S., was used as a centre, while the Rev. Mr. Bradshaw edited a cover, which contained parochial matters of interest to church and people. The first subscribers to this Parish Magizine were: Mrs. H. C. Burritt, Mrs. M. Clementi, Mrs. T. Lannin, Mrs. J. B. Clementi, Messrs. J. Butcher, R. Nimmo, H. H. Smith, J. Ball, A. Ingram, H. Robinson, H. C. Rogers, E. Morgan, J. Howden and R. Taylor.

Sad were the circumstances that surrounded the untimely death of one of the most faithful and loyal members of St. Luke's, the much lamented Mr. George C. Rogers. On April 29th, 1883, his sudden death by drowning occurred. His body was not found until May 6th. "He was such a noble character, and he was such an earnest and devout churchmen, so cheerful and unassuming, so bright and happy and helpful to all, in church and Sunday school, in business and social life and recreation, that our loss as a congregation and a community is, humanly speaking, irreparable," were the words Mr. Bradshaw uttered when he alluded to this sad death at a memorial service held in St. Luke's on April 29th. He was buried May 7th, 1883.

ST. LUKE'S CONSTITUTED A RECTORY.

Through the liberality of the congregation, aided by the generous anonymous donation of a member, an endowment was raised and the parish constituted a rectory, the first incumbent, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, being duly inducted as Rector by the Bishop of Toronto, on the 26th of October 1884. In September, 1885, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Smith presented to St. Luke's a beautiful brass-lectern containing this inscription: To the glory of God and for services much appreciated. In 1885, the old school room being found too small for the increasing number of Sunday school scholars was replaced by a very commodious and well designed structure, with library and infant-class room according to the most modern ideas. The corner-stone was laid by John Burnham, Esq., October 22nd, 1885.

The members of St. Luke's church are not only loyal to their religious centre, but also to their country. In 1885, when the Riel rebellion unsettled the country, Messrs. M. B. Orde, A. B. Rogers, Joseph Chrowe, Thos. Graham and A. G. Tytler, responded to the call to arms and served their country faithfully in the suppression of the rebellion. They returned safe and sound on July 19th. Two memorial windows were placed in the church in memory of Mr. and Mrs. William Mills and Miss Clara Mills, who died in 1885 and 1887, the Misses Mills being the donors.

RECONSTRUCTION.

August 29th, 1886, the last service in the old Chancel was held. Reconstruction began at once; the Chancel which had been very small, was enlarged to double its size, Cathedral glass windows with suitable emblems were put in and a new carpet, the gift of the Ladies' Aid Society, provided. Dr. Burritt presented a Corona.

The faithful sexton, Mr. Jacob Friend, who volunteered his services without remuneration at the commencement of the new Parish, died January 20th, 1888. In 1888, the present organ was purchased and placed in the church. On Monday evening, October 8th, 1888, a meeting was held at which Rev. W. C. Bradshaw was made the recipient of an address and a cheque for two hundred dollars, in order that he might take a well earned rest and strengthen his health. Mr. Bradshaw had received instructions from his medical advisers to rest entirely from his duties and spend the winter in a warmer climate. Mr. Bradshaw spent the winter in Denver Colorado, returning in June, 1889. During the absence of Mr. Bradshaw the Rev. Geo. Warren, B.A., was the local tenens. In August, 1889, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw was again compelled by poor health to leave the parish to seek restoration in another climate. In August 25th, 1889, the Rev. J. W. McCleary took charge of St. Luke's Parish as locum tenens. In January, 1890, the Hon. Robert Hamilton died, one of St. Luke's most generous and faithful members. He had been a communicant of St. Luke's since its inception and his death removed from the church a very earnest and sincere friend. On April, 3, 1890, Rev. Mr. Bradshaw tendered his resignation on account of ill health. The resignation was reluctantly accepted by the congregation, among whom Mr. Bradshaw had so faithfully laboured for fourteen years.

At a vestry meeting held April 14th,

THE LATE REV. J. W. McCLEARY.
Second Rector, 1890—1892.

1890, the Rev. J. W. McCleary accepted the position of Rector of the Parish. Rev. W. J. McCleary resigned the Rectorship of St. Luke's on account of the uncertain condition of his health, Ap-

REPORT ON THE CROPS

Yields in Many Localities May Be Records.

DAMAGE BY THE RECENT RAINS

Corn Seems to Be a Failure Generally, and Hay Suffered Very Much From Wet Weather—Fall Wheat May Be a Very Good Average Crop—Peas Suffered Most Fruit Promises Well.

Toronto, July 10.—Reports received from all parts of the province as to the prospects of the hay, grain, root and fruit crops, show conclusively, that, had this been an average season, and free from the extraordinary amount of rain that has fallen, the yield, in every particular, would probably have been a record one.

Even as it is, the prospects for crops, either up to or above the average, are very bright all over, except in the matter of hay. The rain has played great havoc with the hay crop, which, while it was an extra large one, has not been harvested successfully, owing to the recent almost continuous rainfall. Corn, too, has suffered from wet and cold, and the yield will be rather poor.

In some localities it is the crops on the lowlands that will suffer, while the high lands will escape damage. Fall wheat will be from an average to a very good yield. The heavy rain has done it good in places by drowning off the Hessian fly, but continued wet weather threatens it with rust. The oat crop seems to promise well all over, and so does barley. Peas have suffered severely in some parts of the Province.

The root crop generally will be up to the average, if not a little better. The fruit yield promises to be heavy. Berries will be a large yield, and apples will likely be plentiful. Cherries and plums look well. It seems to be the general opinion that, if the weather from now on proves in any way favorable, much of the apparent damage done in some places may yet be avoided.

EACH PAYS HIS OWN COSTS.

The Judge Refused to Make Order in Lennox Appeal.

Toronto, July 10.—At Osgoode Hall, yesterday morning, Mr. Justice Maclennan handed out judgment in the application for costs, in the appeal against the recount in Lennox. Hon. S. H. Blake, counsel for the Conservative candidate, asked for costs because his client had been successful in both the appeal and cross-appeal. George H. Watson, for Mr. Madole, held that his opponent had only been partially successful in the appeal. The judge refused to make any order, and each side must therefore, pay its own costs. It is likely that this will be considered a precedent in other cases, where there is both an appeal and a cross-appeal.

The North Grey Cross-Appeal.

At 10.30 o'clock this morning, Judge Maclennan will hear the cross-appeal against the recount in North Grey.

The necessary $1,000 deposits in the protests in West Huron, against M. G. Cameron, and in North Wentworth, against R. A. Thompson, were made at Osgoode Hall yesterday by Messrs. Bristol, Cawthra and Bayly.

Frontenac Deposit Up.

Kingston, July 10.—Yesterday morning the $1,000, to accompany the protest of W. J. Shibley against the return of J. S. Gallagher, was deposited with A. McGill, registrar of the High Court of Justice.

RAILWAY COMMISSION NAMED.

Men Who Will Supervise Construction of Temiskaming Railway.

Toronto, July 10.—The commissioners who are to supervise the construction of the Temiskaming Railway have been appointed by the Ontario Government. There are five of them, and their names are: A. E. Ames, chairman; Hon. Thomas Bain, ex-Speaker, House of Commons; B. J. Folger, Kingston; M. J. O'Brien, Renfrew, and E. C. Gurney.

The position of secretary has not yet been filled.

In selecting the commission the Government has considered the agricultural, financial, commercial and industrial interests. Mr. Ames may be consiered as representing the financial interests; Mr. Bain, the agricultural; Mr. Gurney, the industrial; Mr. Folger and Mr. O'Brien, the commercial interests.

Each of the commissioners will receive an honorarium of $1,000 a year and actual expenses.

Unable to Act.

Of the gentlemen asked to accept, one, Hon. Thomas Bain, formerly Speaker of the House of Commons, has found himself unable to act, and the Government last night received with regret a statement from him to that effect.

Cyclone Near Windsor

Windsor, July 10.—Farmers who came into Windsor from Sandwich East Township this morning reported that the district was visited by a cyclone on Monday evening. The greatest damage was done along the Tecumseh road, where whole orchards were uprooted and barns unroofed. Besides damaging buildings, it levelled the grain, especially corn.

Both Thorough and Effective.

This is What the People of Canada Say About the Action of

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Hosts of people are in the habit of trying new-fangled medicines, which are offered to the public from time to time but when these fail they return to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, knowing that in this tried and tested remedy they have a treatment that will of a certainty cure them. Some way or other you can always depend on Dr. Chase's remedies.

Mrs. F. Henthorn, whose husband is of the firm of Mark & Henthorn, founders and machinists, and who lives at 286 Ann street, Belleville, states: "Some years ago I was taken with a pain across the small of my back, caused no doubt from deranged kidneys, and my system generally was very much run down. I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I must say I found relief from my trouble at once. They proved thorough and effective in action, and soon brought about a complete cure. We have also used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in our family and found them very helpful."

THE CANADA PAVILION.

That at Wolverhampton Has a Colonnaded Front and a Lofty Gilded Dome—A Striking Building.

At Wolverhampton, Eng., the Canadian Government has a separate building, a pavilion with a colonnaded front and lofty gilded dome. It is one of the most striking and beautiful buildings on the grounds. It is rectangular in plan, covering an area of 8,000 square feet, and situated between the Industrial and Machinery Halls, the main front facing the park. On passing through the portico, which emphasizes the main entrance, one is immediately under the dome, which gives an imposing and dignified effect to the interior, and which is further enhanced by a most pleasing color scheme in royal purple and white. Additional entrances are placed in the sides facing the Industrial and Machinery Halls.

The first object to claim the attention on entering the Canadian Pavilion is the magnificent trophy of grains, grasses and cereals. This forms the centrepiece of the large circular dome, which rises to a height of 40 feet. The trophy is circular at the base, and rises almost to the top of the dome, at the base of which, about 40 feet in circumference, four large arches are sprung to the walls, the whole being so arranged as to form a sort of temple of cereals. The grain and grasses are shown in sheaves and bunches, festooned and wreathed in many varied and artistic forms. On the immense stand in the centre are grouped hundreds of bottles of all shapes and sizes, containing specimens of wheat, oats, barley, rye, Indian corn, peas, flax, millet, buckwheat, and in fact all the leading varieties of grains, grasses and fodder plants which grow to such perfection in Canada. These samples are all carefully labeled, giving the name and address of the grower, yield per acre, etc. The collection contains thousands of samples, comprising over five hundred different varieties. The exhibit is probably the best of the kind ever seen in England. It is an object-lesson that cannot fail to impress every one who sees it with the fact that Canada is a country rich in agricultural resources of almost endless variety. The list of varieties of grain shown is as follows: Oats 107 varieties, two-rowed barley 30, six-rowed barley 38, fall wheat 22, spring wheat 117, peas 61, Indian corn 37, millet 9, Soja beans, horse beans, flax and hops.

To the right of the trophy there is a splendid display of food products, in which many Canadian firms are represented.

Canada is celebrated for her fruit, and here we find four pyramids containing fruit of all kinds preserved in antiseptic fluid. A long table, artistically arranged, contains fifty varieties of apples, which have been preserved in cold-storage since they were packed last autumn.

The mineral section contains a great variety of specimens, suggestive of Canada's richness in mineral resources and the immense possibilities which will follow in the way of development from increased investment of capital. The exhibit is an extensive one, including gold nuggets, gold-copper ores, nickel and nickel products, various gold ores from different Provinces, petroleum, graphite, coal, silver-lead ores, iron and steel exhibits, mica, asbestos, manganese, antimony, mineral paints, copper ores, ornamental and building stone, bricks and clays, corundum, etc.

Canada is famous for her richness in the wealth of her forests. The display in the forestry section in the pavilion is attractive in appearance and pleasantly varied in the large number of exhibits of different classes of timber, many being shown in the log, square, as well as finished and polished. The specimens are all labeled. Photographs of many varieties of Canadian trees are displayed in frames made from the wood which they represent. A few pieces of furniture are also here shown, illustrating the manufactured product. This section includes splendid specimens (stuffed) of some of the noble animals in which sportsmen take great interest and in which Canadian forests abound.

Prominently displayed on the walls of the Canadian Pavilion are some solid facts regarding Canada's varied resources, forest, mineral, agricultural, fruit, fisheries and dairying. These are so arranged that they can be taken in at a glance, and in a minute or two enable the visitor to judge for himself of the progress which has been made of recent years.

'MID PINES AND CEDARS.

A Nature Student Tells Some Things About Birds About Toronto.

"You love birds, you say, but there are no birds in Toronto, and the woods are far away.

"Ah, boy, you are mistaken. As I write in a little back room in the heart of the city a summer yellow bird hops about the apple tree outside peering into the blossoms for insects. In that tall poplar two Baltimore orioles flash in their golden and black livery, while that sombre hued bird that is hopping about in the mite of a garden is a wood thrush, shyest of birds. He has been here for days, and looks lonesome. Possibly he lost his mate on the long trip up from the sunny South.

"Come with me for a street car ride, twenty minutes, walk with me, ten minutes, up this hill, follow me round this fence, come and dive with me down into this ravine, says H.D. C. in Toronto Star. Here among these pines and cedars, these bushes and thickets, we will find birds within hearing of the trolley cars. Step lightly, for the ground is covered with trilliums, violets, and the blossoms of the wild strawberry, 'wasting their sweetness on the desert air,' if you like.

"Hush! do you hear that singer? That is a redstart, a little patch of black and flame-colored feathers. See him flitting among the cedars. Hear that faint rustling among the dead leaves? There goes a chewink and his mate. Watch them steal silently away. Probably their nest is right under this brush heap, hard to find, but there just the same. A little deeper into the ravine, down near the little swamp stream where cowslips by the hundred spread yellow splashes on the sodden earth. Hush again. There goes a wood thrush. Hard to see, isn't he? But his mate is somewhere around here, and we may step on his nest if we are not careful. What's that? It sounds like a hive of bees buzzing. See that crow, perched like a sentinel on that tall pine? He has his eye on us. That buzzing you hear is made by a nestful of fledgeling crows in that pine tree, and that silent, watchful, somber hued bird has his eye on us.

"What was that? That was a nighthawk. See him. He has flown only a few yards. Note the odd way he perches, lengthwise to that low branch. His nest is on the ground, too, and near-by, doubtless.

"Come up where it is dryer. That loud cackling note you hear is a higholder, or golden-winged woodpecker, calling from the dead stub. Listen to him pounding in the wood. What a knocker he is. Br-r-r! Gracious! that was a startler, and that, my boy, was a partridge. What! you say, a partridge so close to Toronto? Sure. See here; look under that dead leaf. An egg, and another and another, seven in all. There'll be a covey of partridges in this ravine next fall if all goes well.

"Now, boy, we will go home again and leave the birds in peace. You'll never tell me again that the birds are too far away to be seen, will you?"

The Fugitives From Slavery.

We observe a paragraph going the rounds of the press, originally published in a western paper, which estimates the number of colored persons who have entered Canada during the last three years at no less than 30,000. We have the very best means of ascertaining the truth of the matter, and we can state positively that the highest computation by well-informed persons does not make the number more than 3,000. There are not more than 30,000 in the country altogether, although so early as 1826 the American Government complained to Great Britain against harboring fugitive slaves in Canada, which shows that a considerable number must have come over even at that early day. In New York State, with its three millions of population, there are not more than 50,000 colored persons resident. —From The Globe of June 10, 1852.

Boy shot a Companion.

Owen Sound, July 9.—Robert Watson, a 13-year-old boy of Balaclava, received a charge from a shot gun in the face. Fred Wright, a companion, was examining the gun at the time it was discharged. The boy was taken to the Marine Hospital, where he received aid. The boys had the weapon at the barn preparing to shoot a rat.

Selling Army Remounts.

Toronto, July 9.—As was to be expected there was an attendance of several hundred persons at the auction sale of horses which was commenced yesterday morning by Auctioneer C. M. Henderson at the Exhibition grounds. This is the largest sale of horses ever held in Ontario, 650 animals being on hand for disposal without reserve. The horses were purchased in the Southern and Western States as British remounts, and were shipped here at the latter end of May. Lieut.-Col. Dent was ordered to dispose of them, as they were not needed when the war was over. Up to the close of the sale yesterday, 160 horses had been disposed of, the average price being about $40.

National Council of Women.

St. John, N.B., July 9.—At yesterday's session of the National Council of Women the financial statement was read, showing receipts of $1,007 and expenditures of $772. An invitation from the Toronto Council to hold the National Council of 1903 in Toronto was accepted. Last night a public meeting in the interest of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held.

Health for Women.

"Few things are more important to a community than the health of its women. If strong is the frame of a mother," says a proverb, "the sons will give laws to the people." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is especially woman's medicine. By its action on the blood and nerves it gives strength and vigour to the delicate feminine organs and ensures their regular and healthful functions. It gives colour to the pale, strength to the weak, and a rounded form to the thin and angular.

Manias of Authors.

In a recent article on the "Mania of Authors" in the Revue Universelle of Paris we are told that Darwin always practiced on his old fiddle before writing; Chateaubriand while dictating to his secretary was in the habit of walking in his bare feet; Schiller and Goethe could not write unless their feet were on ice; Lord Derby always filled his mouth with brandy cherries; Fenimore Cooper used to chew gumdrops; Byron filled his pockets with truffles; Theophile Gautier burned incense.

An Insinuating Missive.

He was a German student, and this was the letter he addressed to his uncle:

Dear Uncle—A very strange thing happened yesterday. I went to see a friend of mine at the bank who knows your handwriting very well, and he thought you were ill, as I had not lately presented any checks signed by you. He begs to be remembered to you, as also do I, and you might let my friend see your signature again. If you are very busy, you might send a blank check, and I will fill it in. Yours affectionately, KARL.

Swindled Again.

"Ah," exclaimed Mrs. Oldcastle as she took a book from the table in the magnificent library of the new neighbors, "hand laid paper, isn't it?"

"Is it?" her hostess asked, looking at it doubtfully. "I told Josiah when I bought them books that that's one of the set of that he was payin' a whole lot too much. I'm glad it wasn't me. If I'd of went and give such a price for something that was hand laid, I'd never hear the last of it from him. But he wouldn't believe it when I told him he was cheated, because I seen the same set with nearly three times more gilt on the bindin's for a lower price. Josiah's awful headstrong in some ways."

The Agonising Pains of Rheumatism.

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Last night's heavy down pour of rain, did not prevent the largest crowd of the season gathering on the Nicholls oval to witness the lacrosse match between the Athletics and the T.A.S. The game was started shortly after seven o'clock by Referee Glover, and in spite of the rain the teams battled for supremacy until time was called, neither team scoring a goal.

The game was full of ginger from start to finish, and the style of lacrosse put up, considering the state of the weather, was first class. The checking was decidedly close at times and the combination work very pretty, the T.A.S. team excelling in this respect. The excitement during the game was at the top notch, and the supporters of the two teams applauded the different players and yelled themselves hoarse. Nor was the enthusiasm confined to the men alone. Numbers of the fair sex congregated in groups and applauded and encouraged their favourite players to deeds of valour. The teams fought with wonderful tenacity, but could not make the ball take kindly to the net. The shooting was very poor, which is accounted for by the fact that the rain had rendered the lacrosse sticks practically useless, as far as effectual shooting was concerned. Of course there was the usual number of players ruled off for alleged infractions of the rules governing the game, but there were always enough players in the game to keep the enthusiasm alive, and encourage the rooters to root as they never did before. Naturally the gathering was disappointed at no goals being scored, but the players did their best with this object in view, and, in the language of the turf, "a race horse cannot do more." The arnica and court plaster corps of the two teams, which were stationed on the outskirts of the oval, were not called on during the evening, as none of the players were badly injured. If the weather man had only muzzled Jupiter Pluvius for a few hours, and allow old Sol to smile his prettiest on the green oval, the crowd would have been better satisfied, and the relative merit of the two teams decided satisfactorily. A water-soaked crowd wended its weary way down the winding roadway that leads from the oval, and their thought had shifted from lacrosse to the fact that a change of apparel was necessary when they reached their respective domiciles. It was simply verifying the truth of the old adage, "All is not sunshine."

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH 26TH ANNIVERSARY

ril 18th, 1892. The retiring Rector, during his charge, had won many friends, who admired his kindness of heart, his kindness of heart, his firmness of purpose and his many noble qualities of head, heart and hands.

REV. H. SYMONDS BECOMES RECTOR.

A committee, appointed by the Vestry, to consider the selection of a successor to Mr. McCleary, met the congregation at a meeting held on April 25th, and recommended that Rev. Herbert Symonds, M.A., Professor of Theology in Trinity College, Toronto, be invited to become St. Luke's Rector. Rev. Mr. Symonds accepted the position in a letter sent to the Wardens. A Peterborough paper, refering to the appointment, says; "Rev. Prof. Symonds is a young man of unusual ability, implied by his appointment to the important position which he now holds, and which he fills to the satisfaction of all concerned, and which he might continue to fill, did not his preference lie in the direction of parish work." On May 15th,

REV. HERBERT SYMONDS, M.A., D.D.
Third Rector, 1892—1901.

1892, Rev. H. Symonds preached for the first time at St. Luke's, and on Monday, May 16th, a reception was tendered him by the congregation. From May till September, 1892, the parish was supplied with services by Mr. C. W. Hedley, B.A., than a student at Trinity College, who afterwards became missionary of the Mission of Otonabee. In September, 1892, Rev. and Mrs. Symonds, and family took up their residence in the Rectory. St. Luke's Guild, sub-divided into several chapters, was organized in January, 1893. The Parish Magazine experienced another change in March, 1893, when "Home Words," became its centre-sheet. The paper is considerably larger in size and more interesting in its reading matter. In the September number, 1894, of the Parish paper, we notice this item;—"Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, for many years Rector of St Luke's, has fully recovered his health during his sojourn at Denver, Col., and has returned to Canada to take charge of Port Arthur, one of the most important parishes in the Diocese of Algoma." In October, 1895, the brothers and sisters of the late Mary Bradfield, placed in St. Luke's church a handsome brass reading desk for the Altar, in memory of the departed. The Rectory was enlarged to its present size in 1896 and was ready for occupation in July, 1896.

On Friday, June 5th, 1896, the dedication of a beautiful memorial, presented to the church by Mrs. Robert Hamilton in memory of her husband, the late Honourable Robert Hamilton, took place. The memorial consists of a new chancel, altar, credence-table, sedilia, communion rail, choir seats and prayer desk, all executed in solid oak. The memorial plate has the following inscription;—"To the greater glory of God and in memory of Honourable Robert Hamilton, this altar and other work adorned with carving was erected by his surviving widow, Easter, 1896."

FIRST RECTOR PASSES AWAY.

On June 24th, 1896, the first Rector of St. Luke's entered into rest, leaving behind in St. Luke's a memorial that testifyes to the noble work he did. On July 5th, 1896, a memorial service was held in St. Luke's, at which Rev. H. Symonds preached. In his sermon, referring to the death of Mr. Bradshaw, he said; "We, dear brethern, this morning, are contemplating the life of one who, so far as human judgement may decide, was faithful in his calling, who with no mean gifts used them to the uttermost in the field of duty, and that field lay here. The fourteen best years of Mr. Bradshaw's life was spent in building up this parish."

A memorial tablet to the late Rev. W. C. Bradshaw was placed on the north wall of the chancel, with the inscription thereon;—"To the glory of God, and in memory of Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, who during fourteen years, 1876-1890, laboured earnestly in the erection of this Church, and in the organization of this Parish, this Tablet is erected by his former parishoners. Died June 26th, 1896. 'One Soweth and Another Reapeth.'" At Christmas, 1896, a Brass Font Ewer was placed in the Church by Mr. Grassett, as a memorial to two deceased children.

On January 31st, 1899, the Junior branch of the Women's Auxiliary was organized, with Miss Helen Rogers as President. The enlarged Vestry was completed in January, 1900. The Young Women's Guild furnished it. Miss Godfray, in October, 1900, presented the Church with a silk chalice-veil and white silk markers for the Bible and Prayer Books. In February, 1901, Rev. Herbert

REV. E. A. LANGFELDT, M.A.
Fourth and Present Rector, 1901—

Symonds, M.A., was honoured by the Senate of Queen's University, Kingston, with the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

REV. MR. SYMONDS RESIGNS.

In April, 1901, the Rector received an intimation from the Governing Body of Trinity College School that he was chosen to become the Headmaster of that School. After accepting the appointment, he placed his resignation in the hands of the Church Wardens. On May 26th, the ladies of St. Luke's of St. Luke's congregation presented Rev. Dr. Symonds with an M.A. Trinity University Hood. Before leaving St. Luke's, Ashburnham, the Rev. Mr. Symonds was made the recipient of a Doctor of Divinity Gown, a China Dinner Set, and a Set of Silver Fruit Knives from St. Luke's, and an Arm Chair and Dressing Case from St. Mark's.

REV. E. A. LANGFELDT BECOMES RECTOR.

A congregational meeting which was attended by a large number, was held on July 4th, 1901, when the committee to secure a successor to Dr. Symonds reported favourably on the name of Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Rector of Omemee. The congregation unanimously decided to extend a call to Rev. E. A. Langfeldt and instructed the Wardens and Delegates to wait upon His Lordship the Bishop to secure his consent. The Wardens and Lay Delegates waited upon the Bishop of Toronto and received from him the announcement that he was pleased to appoint Rev. E. A. Langfeldt Rector of St. Luke's, to take effect September 15th, 1901. The Rectory underwent extensive repairs in July, 1901. Electric light was put in, and the building thoroughly papered and painted at an expense of about $200.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., the newly appointed Rector, entered upon his duties on Sunday, September 22nd, 1901.

The success of the anniversary occasion, is the cumulative results of the good work of previous rectors and members of the congregation, combining with the energy and zeal of the present rector, whose deep interest in the welfare and work of St. Luke's is ably seconded by the loyal support and harmonious co-operation of the congregation.

WELCOMED TO BOWMANVILLE.

Cordial Reception of Rev. D. O. Crossley by His New Congregation.

Rev. D. O. Crossley, late pastor of the Charlotte street church, has received a most cordial welcome from the Methodist people of Bowmanville.

At a strawberry festival on Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Crossley were formally introduced to the church, and were greeted with a Chautauqua Salute. Mr. Crossley replied to their greeting in a felicitous manner, after which a programme of music, readings and songs was rendered.

Concerning the Sunday services the Statesman has the following:

"Rev. D. O. Crossley, Bowmanville Methodists' new pastor, preached twice Sunday to large congregations. His morning sermon from the words 'Take courage, etc.,' was very suitable as an introductory discourse. His sermon to the young people in the evening on 'Heavenly Visions,' was a splendid address, containing much wholesome advice and encouragement to everyone present. The people were delighted. We believe a very happy and successful relationship has commenced between pastor and people. The choir rendered capital music."

GATHERED FROM DESIRABLE STOCK.

Ends of yard materials and odd pieces or sizes from different ranges nearing an end. Each piece has price marked in plain figures, and also shows the length. You can pick through them quietly yourself if you prefer to do so. But let us advise you to pick quick—a week is all we can afford to waste in table room to sell these ends.

The principal reinbursement we get is space and the riddance of so much stock that takes much handling. The profit is always on your side. Many, yes a great many of these ends are changing hands these days, but there is excellent picking yet. Better see them—don't procrastinate.

A PRESENTATION

To Miss Agnes Judd, of the Canadian General Company.

Miss Agnes Judd, who has severed her connection with the Porcelain Department of the Canadian General Electric Company, was the recipient of the following address and presentation by her fellow employees:

Peterborough, July 8th, 1902.

Miss Agnes Judd:

As you are about to sever your connection with the C. G. E. Porcelain Works, and intend taking your departure from Peterborough in the near future, we take this opportunity of expressing to you our deep and sincere regret.

During the time that we have had the pleasure of your acquaintance, our associations have been of the most pleasant and agreeable character, and we all feel that we are sustaining a great loss, but trusting our loss will be your gain. We also desire that you should carry away with you the assurance that we earnestly wish you every joy and happiness in your next undertaking. We trust that you will accept the accompaning purse and ladies' companion as a slight token of our appreciation and esteem, and an expression of our good will towards you, and that it will cause your thoughts to wander back to us as fellow-workers with you of the C.G.E. Porcelain Works, Peterborough.

Signed on behalf of her fellow-workers,

MR. J. A. BROWN,
MISS ADDIE THOMPSON.

Miss Judd feelingly responded, and in leaving she carries away with her the best wishes of her fellow-workers for every success in the future. Miss Gladys Henderson made the presentation while Miss Annie Hall read the address.

MANUAL TRAINING IN OUR SCHOOLS.

The Success of the System in Canada—Pictou, N. S. Leads With the Banner School.

"The success of the manual training school system in Canada has been very marked and gratifying."

Prof. Robertson, Canadian Dairy Commissioner, while in Montreal, thus spoke of the work of the new system.

"It is almost impossible to conceive of the vast amount of good which these schools are now accomplishing throughout the country. Everywhere the manual schools are working to the satisfaction of all concerned. A long-felt want in our educational system is supplied by these schools, which teach the pupils to use their hands; which trains the eye and which gives a practical training, a development to the pupil, which could never be obtained under the old order of things.

"Well, as to the degree of efficiency noticeable in the various schools throughout the Dominion; I might might say that nowhere are such satisfactory results being obtained as in the manual training school at Pictou, Nova Scotia. Here the quality of the work being turned out is extraordinarily good. There are four experts busily engaged in imparting instruction to the children at this point, and it is the opinion of those who have examined the work turned out at Pictou that it is unexcelled even on the Continent, and that its output proclaims it the banner manual training school of the Dominion."

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. James Fair of Cavan Township.

After an illness of some five weeks there passed away on Thursday last another of the old residents of Cavan, the beloved wife of Mr. Jas. Fair of the first concession. Deceased was born in Cavan township seventy seven years ago, being a daughter of the late John Stewart of the 4th line. At the age of twenty she became the wife of him who now mourns her loss and for over half a century they toiled together, cleared the forest from the soil, raised a family most highly respected, and as neighbour, friend, wife and mother, she who has passed away, has been much beloved. To look across the lovely landscape throughout all that neighbourhood from Centreville to Baillieboro and south and west, and see the rolling grain and meadow where the giant tree held away when Mrs. Fair was young, is to bring forcibly to the mind something of the toil and energy of our early settlers, and she who was laid to rest in St. Paul's cemetery on Saturday last was one of the makers of our Canada just as truly as was one of our political fathers. Two sons, George and Johnston, and four daughters, Mrs. Thomas McCamus, Mrs. J. McNeill, Mrs. Jos. Armstrong and Miss Mary Fair, at home, are left to mourn the absence of a mother's smile, while the aged partner has also to journey on through his remaining days alone. A very large gathering of friends followed the remains to their last resting place on Saturday last, the Ven. Archdeacon Allen, who has been her pastor for half a century, performing the last sad rites. —Millbrook Reporter.

THE HENLEY FINALS.

Cambridge Trinity, Argonauts' Conquerors, Beat Leander For Grand Challenge —Kelley Won Diamond Sculls.

Henley, July 11.—Unsettled weather somewhat marred the spectacular features of the closing day of the regatta, but in no way diminishing the attendance. A strong wind off Buck's shore made the water decidedly rough, and gave a full length of advantage to the crews fortunate enough to draw the station.

The racing opened with the final heat for the Grand Challenge Cup, in which, after a good race, Leander succumbed to the Cambridge-Trinity crew, which Wednesday defeated the Argonauts of Toronto. Third Trinity had all the advantage of the Berk's station. They got off first, and at Fawley Court, which was reached in 3 minutes 29 seconds, were two lengths ahead. At the mile post, reached in 5 minutes 25 seconds, the Leanders spurted splendidly; but, though they drew up a little, they could never overhaul their opponents, and lost the trophy, which they had held for the past four years. Yesterday's time—7.17 — was the worst in six years. It was a procession.

In the final heat for the Diamond Sculls, F. S. Kelley, Balliol College, Oxford, beat R. B. Etherington-Smith of the Leander Rowing Club. Kelley won by 2½ lengths. Time 8 minutes 50 seconds. Kelley repeated his surprise of yesterday by gaining an unexpected victory over R. B. Etherington-Smith, Leander. The latter had the favored station, and led for a whole mile, but the Oxonian gradually wore him down.

In the final for the Ladies' Challenge Plate (for college and school eights), University College, Oxford, beat Eton by half a length. Time 7 minutes 15 seconds. It was a magnificent race.

In the final heat of the Wyfold Challenge Cup (for fours), Burton Rowing Club beat Kingston Rowing Club by 2½ lengths. Burton jumped off at the start and was never threatened.

In the final heat for the Silver Goblets (for pairs), W. Dudley Ward and C. W. H. Taylor Third Trinity, Cambridge, beat the London Rowing Club easily. Time 8 minutes 36 seconds.

In the final heat of the Thames Challenge Cup (for eights), Trinity Hall, Cambridge, beat Royal School of Mines Boat Club by 2½ lengths. Time 7 minues 34 seconds.

In the race for the Visitors' Challenge Cup, Jesus College, Cambridge beat Balliol College, Oxford, by one-third of a length. Time 7 minutes, 59 seconds.

M'KAY'S MAJORITY INCREASED.

Result of the Cross Appeal in North Grey Before Mr. Justice Maclennan on Tuesday.

Toronto, July 11.—Before Mr. Justice Maclennan at Osgoode Hall yesterday the cross appeal against the North Grey recount was heard, and it resulted in the Liberal member-elect, Mr. McKay, gaining four votes. He was represented by George H. Watson, K. C., Grayson Smith and Mr. Wright of Owen Sound, while S. H. Blake, K.C., E. A. DuVernet and Eric Armour represented G. M. Boyd, the Conservative candidate.

Mr. Blake, before the appeal was taken up, objected to the notice of protest which was served on Mr. Boyd's agents, because it was not signed by Mr. McKay, personally, but by his solicitors. Mr. Blake held that this was not sufficient notice under the law.

Mr. Watson maintained that it was not necessary for the petitioner to sign the notice personally. It was provided in the act that candidates could officiate through their agents and solicitors.

The judge agreed with this view. The signature of the solicitor he considered sufficient.

Mr. Blake then objected to going on with the cross appeal on the ground that it was useless, because it would not alter the result. Mr. Watson, however, argued that the size of the majority might effect Mr. McKay in an election trial where one or two acts of corruption might have to be considered by the trial judge as to the extent it should affect.

It was finally decided to go on with the appeal, and the recount was then proceeded with, the result being that Mr. McKay gained four votes as follows: No. 4, Owen Sound, 2; No. 6 Owen Sound, 1; No. 7, Owen Sound, 1.

Basutos Uneasy.

Pretoria, July 10.—There is some uneasiness here regarding the attitude of the Basutos. In consequence of supposed treachery during the war, Joel, one of their prominent chiefs, has been summoned to Maseru, capital of a military district of Basutoland, to stand trial on the charge of high treason. The paramount chief, Letherodi, is likely to support Joel in the event of the latter's refusal to obey the summons. Troops have been despatched to the frontier.

MAYOR HOWLAND AND MR. AMES

Mayor Howland, who seems, with his exaggerated self-respect, disinclined to concede much more than one able and influential man in Toronto has run foul of Mr. Ames, president of the Board of Trade, and practically denies the latter credit for his share in settling the street railway strike. The Mayor says that Mr. Ames and those associated with him in settling the strike acted as "a committee of the Street Railway Company." This imputation of motives comes with bad grace. Mr. Ames saw that a crisis had arisen in which the interests of the citizens were imperilled, the peace and good name of the city in danger, and, like a public-spirited citizen he used his official position and influence and his personal influence to bring about a settlement of the vexed question. Mr. Ames has risen rapidly since he left Peterborough. He has, by force of his abilities, industry, shrewdness and judgment advanced to a prominent place in the financial world, and his occupancy of the important position of president of the Board of Trade, shows that the best citizenship of Toronto, representing the largest material interests, has confidence in him. He has recently broadened out in many ways and has shown the abilities and qualities that fit him to serve Toronto in the most responsible capacity. He is mentioned as a candidate for Mayor for 1903. Whether or not Mr. Ames aspires to the position, he is justified in aspiring to that office, for he has, no doubt, the ability and public spirit to fill the position to the satisfaction and advantage of the citizens of Toronto. It is, perhaps, justifiable retaliation, since Mr. Howland has imputed motives to Mr. Ames, to suggest that Mr. Howland has a motive in trying to belittle Mr. Ames' services to Toronto at a time of grave crises in its history. It is said that Mayor Howland aims at a third term in the Mayor's chair. Mr. Ames would be so strong an opponent, that it is natural tactics on the part of the present Mayor to seek to minimize his prospective opponent's strength. It would be the surprise of surprises if Mr. Ames, if he became Mayor did not make as good a first magistrate of Toronto, as the present incumbent. In his past course Mr. Howland has by no means modelled his character for humility upon Mr. Uriah Heap. He, no doubt, considers his claim to a third term perfectly justifiable. But impartial observers from the outside who have followed the Mayor's course and Mr. Ames' course, cannot escape the conviction that if Mr. Ames should want the Mayoralty, the citizens by entrusting him with the responsibility would be honouring a worthy and capable citizen, of whom it is high praise to say that his merit equals his modesty, and who is capable, would be willing and, judging from his past, zealous to promote the best interests of the city.

PROFESSOR ROBERTSON ADVISES CHEESE DEALERS.

Cold Storage Transportation—Government's Cold Storage Investment a Good one—The Value of Cheese Enhanced.

Professor Robertson Canadian Dairy Commissioner, met the members of the butter and cheese trade at the Montreal Board of Trade at noon on Tuesday andwith them discussed various subjects pertaining to the betterment of the trade.

Mr. P. W. McLagan, who acted as chairman, stated at the opening of the meeting that the particular subject to be discussed would include the necessity of refrigerator cars upon the different railways for the conveyance of butter from the country districts to the city. In some cases the product had to be shipped in box cars to its great detriment. For instance, in one day no less than 13,000 pounds of butter had been carried from St. Jerome to Montreal in ordinary freight cars.

Prof. Robertson, in his opening remarks, stated that refrigerator cars had been provided for butter only, but in some cases cheese had been put into the cars. This was detrimental to the butter, in Prof. Robertson's opinion, as the warm cheese tended to bring up the temperature of the cars, and thus injure the butter. The Government had warned the railways against such practices.

The butter, he said, should be kept at as low a temperature as possible. It had been found that 50 degrees was the proper temperature for butter in transportation, and in many cases it had been loaded into cars at 64. When kept at the latter temperature, the butter would taste all right here, but when sent to Europe it was found to have an "off" flavour.

Taking up the subject of cheese, the professor stated that there were some improvements needed in the transportation of this article. One railway claimed that the Montreal cheese men did not wish refrigerator cars.

MISUNDERSTANDING IN MATTER.

Mr. Charles Alexander thought that there had been a misunderstanding in this matter. The Montreal cheese men did not desire that cheese be shipped in refrigerator cars without ice. If there was no ice then a car properly ventilated was infinitely better. The cheese men certainly wished iced refrigerator cars if they could be procured.

Prof. Robertson was of the opinion that they were badly needed. Over thirty per cent. of the cheese which came out of the ships on the other side of the water were greasy looking, mainly owing to the lack of over heating in cars. The professor had arranged for some forty refrigerator cars on the Canadian Pacific Railway system, and he wished the members of the butter and cheese trade to impress upon Mr. J. W. Loud, of the Grand Trunk Railway, the necessity for that line's following the lead of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He had also arranged for specially ventilated cars. Both the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Grand Trunk Railway are now building some.

CHARGES FOR COLD STORAGE.

The question of the extra ten shillings per ton which the steamships charge for the use of their cold storage occupied considerable time. Professor Robertson explained that he had been obliged to allow them to charge this as a maximum in order to persuade them to build cold storage plants. To his mind the 6d. per hundred-weight was fully repaid by the butter and cheese landing abroad in so much better condition.

The Diary Commissioner stated that the $200,000 which the Government had invested in cold storage facilities had repaid the country amply; indeed, it was probably the best investment the Government ever made.

Mr. Arthur Hodgson was of the opinion that ten shillings per ton extra freight was excessive, and that should five shillings be charged the refrigerator departments would be more generally utilized. As it is now the trade did not use them, except when driven to it by extreme heat. Mr. McKergow suggested that it be made five shillings, and that it be prohibited to ship cheese except in refrigerator compartments.

The stations which had been opened as object lessons for the curing of cheese were working most satisfactorily. Cheese cured in the low temperature Prof. Robertson felt sure would be worth more abroad. He was satisfied that the present reforms would accomplish as much in the next five years as the cold storage has in the five which have now closed.

The question of heating butter and cheese at the railway stations then came up for very general discussion. It was the decision of all those present that to-day this was the great danger which the trade was obliged to face. Butter was very often placed upon hot railway platforms and again in an oily smelling freight shed. It was the weak link in transportation. Professor Robertson, with his usual clearsightedness, was fully aware of what was needed, and he promised to make as much reform in the matter as lay in his power. In time it is expected that cold storage plants will be erected at some half dozen points on the railway lines, and these will in time be followed by others.

The next meeting was appointed to be held in Hastings on 3rd of September at 10 a.m.

STOCK MARKETS.

Some Generalities of Current Bull Market.

New York, July 10th, 1902.—Speculation seems to be spreading to more issues daily. New stocks come to the front becoming active with advancing prices. As we have persistently stated for the month past, the higher priced issues have proven to be the best purchases. We have daily directed your attention to some certain issues, which, if at the time were purchased, have proven immensley productive. All of these many issues, among which we again enumerate Ill. Cen., M.O.P., L.N., St. Paul, Pa., U.P., S.O. Ry., C.O., Norfolk, Atch., N.Y.C. and the Coalers are going higher. If you have not already purchased some of them, you should do so at once. It is a regrettable fact that the public make their heaviest purchases after the rise has nearly culminated, and not during its progress. The public have, as yet, not appeared in quantity in Brokers' officers, and stocks are consequently going higher. In considering St. Paul shares, keep in mind that the manager of that Company refused an eight per cent guarantee from the Morgan-Hill crowd, which caused them to turn their attention to the absorbing of C. B. & Q., whose shares are to-day worth 300 as a consequence, and the St. Paul directors, had they any doubt but what they could more than equal for their shareholders the offer made then, would have accepted it. St. Paul will ultimately sell at 300. Ill. Cen., L.N. and the Southern Railway have not yet risen to their proper market status, due to the deals pending, and the marvellous prosperity of the Southern. To buy them for investment will prove better than placing money in a savings bank. Great earnings continue. We are extremely bullish. Space permitting, we would have something to say also about the other issues mentioned in this letter. Penna. and B.O. and others will prove immensely good for buying. These stocks cannot stop in our opinion short of 175 in Penna. New York Central and Penna. were the stocks to record new high prices to-day, selling up to 161 and 154 3-4 respectively. Balance of railway list was inclined to be reactionary, though the downward movement was sluggish, and each eighth decline brought good buying orders. The bearish contingent centred their efforts upon Sugar, forcing it down to 124 1-8, but in the last hour a rapid advance of over 5 per cent. put them to it withdisastrous distress. Reaction continued in W.U. and I. C. E. They are going lower. We hear from credible sources that the capital of the I.C.E. Company has been so seriously impaired that it will compel reorganization and either an assemention or bonds placed ahead of the stock, or both. We advise holders to sell. W.U. steels were firm, despite suits for revenue. They can be safely purchased. All railay issues should be bought, especially upon any concessions. Money closed at 3 per cent. Total sales, 636,100.

MONTREAL WOMAN KILLED.

Miss Strathy's Skull Crushed by Falling Flagstaff in London, Eng.

London, July 11.—The high wind yesterday blew down the flagstaff from All Saints' Church, Langham place. In falling the pole struck a small pillar which became detached and brought it crumbling to the ground. Miss May Strathy, of Lachine, Montreal, and two others were passing at the time, and the falling stones struck all three. Miss Strathy's skull was fractured; she died almost instantly. The other two were seriously injured and may succumb.

Miss Strathy was sojourning with her aged grandmother, at Scott's Hotel, 13 Langham street. The old lady is so feeble that the people of the house are afraid to acquaint her with the fatality.

Daughter of Mr. Edward Strathy.

Toronto July 11.—Miss May Strathy was a grandniece of Mr. Henry S. Strathy, general manager of the Traders' Bank, and a relative of the other members of the Strathy family so well known in Toronto.

Miss Strathy was a daughter of Mr. Edward Strathy of Montreal, and granddaughter of the late J. B. Strathy of Kingston.

DIED IN DUTY'S PATH.

Toronto Mourns the Loss of Five Brave Fire Fighters.

WALLS OF BUILDING FELL OUT.

Buried the Firemen in Their Ruins of McIntosh's Grain and Storage Warehouse. Which Was Completely Destroyed by Fire—Great Conflagration in Wholesale Quarter —Story of the Tragedy.

Toronto, July 11.—Flags throughout the city yesterday flew at half-mast in honor of five brave men of the fire brigade who died at their posts early yesterday morning fighting a fire that threatened to sweep over a large part of the wholesale quarter. The loss of life is the heaviest in the history of the brigade.

The Dead.

Walter O. Collard, married, assistant foreman, Rose Avenue Hall.

Harry Clark, married, No. 5. Section, Lombard Street Hall.

Adam Kerr, No. 5 Section, Lombard Street Hall.

David See, No. 5 Section, Lombard Street Hall.

Frederick G. Russell, married, No. 3 Section, Yonge Street Hall.

The Injured.

Charles Toplis, 125 Maple Grove, spine injured by fall from reel.

Buildings Destroyed.

P. McIntosh & Sons, storage building, George, Front and Esplanade.

P. McIntosh & Sons, second storage building, Esplanade.

Ice house of the Knickerbocker Ice Co., waterfront, foot of George street,

Brown & Love's stonecutting establishment, waterfront, east of George street.

Gadsby & McCann's wholesale hay and straw establishment, east side of George street.

Mrs. Mitchell's boarding house, east side of George street.

Principal Losses.

P. McIntosh & Son—Machinery and stock, $70,000.

Toronto Railway Company—Buildings and coal bin, $30,000.

Gowans, Kent & Co.—Stock in storage, $20,000.

From fifty to seventy-five other firms, good in storage burned, unestimated.

The total loss is estimated at a little less than a quarter of a million dollars, and it is very nearly covered by insurance.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning the most disastrous fire, so far as loss of human life is concerned, which has occurred in many years in the city, broke out in the huge wholesale flour and storage establishment of P. McIntosh & Son, at the southwest corner of Front and George streets. The fire wiped out the three-story brick building very soon, leaped across the network of tracks five hundred feet to the great warehouse of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, and licked the big building up while billows of flames spread east and west devouring many buildings and defying the efforts of the entire department. Dozens of streams poured tons of water into the main buildings, and nozzles were turned on adjacent premises, but the great volume seemed but a drop in comparison with the vast sea of roaring fire.

Buried by Burning Bricks.

Then the tall walls of the old brick building burst outward with a crash, and struggling firemen on two sides were engulfed in a shower of red hot bricks and tons of burning timbers. The escaping fire fighters turned back to the frightful furnace and began tearing at the molten mass. The pyre of the brave men threw up columns of flames shrouded in clouds of vapor, but their companions worked on regardless of the fierce heat and their own agony. Tenderly the precious dead were dragged from beneath smoking beams and carried beyond the fire limit. Not a man flinched in the face of the appalling danger and the work of rescue was over in half an hour. Every man immersed in the fiery pit, however, had been mercifully killed instantly. Life was extinct probably before they experienced the excruciating tortures of the flames. Great gashes in the heads of the victims and crushed bodies indicated but too clearly that death had been sudden.

Some of the forms were stretched at full length when taken out, others lay in a crouching position, while one man still grasped the nozzle of his hose and his face was turned toward the point of danger. He had died without apparently an effort to escape, so sudden was the crashing walls brought down. There had been a note of warning sounded, yet this hero had not heard or had not heeded. His helmet was still on his head. His body had been saved from mutilation. His face was as in repose. He probably, like the others, had suffered no pain.

Fifteen minutes after the collapse, the men at work on the heap of bricks came upon the bodies of Clark and See. Clark was on the ground and See lay on top of him, and both were embedded in the smouldering mass. Half an hour later Kerr was found a few feet away. The three had enough individual injuries to cause death, apart from the heat and suffocating dust. The other bodies, those of Russell and Collard, were not recovered until about 9 o'clock. They had been likewise terribly injured, and their mangled bodies were taken to the morgue and placed beside those of their comrades.

That more members of the department were not caught in the death-trap is also a matter of congratulations. It was more a matter of good fortune, considered in the light of all the circumstances. Dozens of men escaped by the merest accident, and flying bricks struck several fleeing firemen as they were endeavoring to get beyond reach of the walls, which killed their companions. The building around which the shocking fatalities occurred was known to be dangerous. The firemen are agreed on this point. The walls were old and insecure. The cross sections were not there as security demanded that they should be. Just why the authorities failed to insist on the structure being strengthened is a matter likely to be determined before the coroner's investigation is concluded.

An Inquest Begun.

The coroner's jury was empanelled, but adjourned in the afternoon until an opportunity is offered for a full investigation. The jury viewed the blackened bodies at the morgue so that they could be removed to their late residences. This subject is likely to consume a great deal of attention. The investigation will be complete and will touch upon the question of the negligence of any official whose duty it was to inspect the old building and report its unsafe condition, providing it was unsafe. Crown Attorney Dewart says the coroner has full authority to go into these phases and, as in the case of The Globe fire, it will be done. Friends of the men who perished say there must be a full and complete investigation, and if there was any negligence they want to know who is responsible. The building had no supports running through it, either metal or brick, and it was so dangerous that it was notoriously known as a death trap.

The arrangements for the funerals are at present in the hands of the Mayor, Ald. Bell, Chief Thompson, and Acting Clerk Sanderson, who will report at a special meeting of the Fire and Light Committee this afternoon. The funeral will be a public one and will likely be on Sunday afternoon.

Awful Shock to Wife.

Mrs. Russell, who was at the Sanitarium as a consumptive patient, was notified by telegram to Gravenhurst that her husband had met with an accident and immediately prepared to return home. On the train at Barrie, she got hold of a Toronto evening paper and eagerly sought for news which she feared to read. Her eye was attracted by the pictures of the killed, and among them she saw that of her husband. It was the first intimation she had that he was dead and her grief was heartrending.

Resolutions of condolence were received from a number of city bodies and from outside fire departments by the firemen. The flag at the City Hall was lowered to half mast, as were the flags over the department buildings.

Big Fire in Hamilton.

Hamilton, July 11.—A most destructive fire broke out about noon yesterday in the T. H. Pratt Company's big store, North James street and within four or five hours the place was almost gutted. The blaze started in the basement, where an employe was occupied burning rubbish in the furnace. In some way the flames spread from the furnace to the packing cases lying around. The stock was fully insured. Mr. Pratt said yesterday afternoon the loss would be about $80,000. The loss on the building will be several thousands of dollars.

Fire Raging in Montreal.

Montreal, July 11.—(8 a.m.)—Henderson & Pott's big paint factory on Wellington street is on fire, and at this hour considerable loss is estimated.

Arbitration the Thing.

Toronto, July 11.—The convention of the Iron Moulders was largely devoted yesterday to routine matters touching the introduction of resolutions. These resolutions deal with a variety of subjects. The convention will have some discussion to-day on the question of arbitration as a means of settling disputes. The discussions will be rather informal, however. The Moulders' Union occupies a unique position on this proposition having been one of the first labor organizations to carry this idea to a practical test, as a means of avoiding labor troubles.

KING HAS NOT CANCER

Sinister Stories are Most Emphatically Denied.

CONSTITUTION THOROLY SOUND

No Trace of Malignant Disease Was Found by Physicians—His Majesty's Wound Though Still Deep, Is Granulating Well—Lancet Stigmatizes Sensational Stories Told as "Lies" —Thursday's Bulletin.

London, July 11.—An authoritative statement regarding the health of King Edward was published in yesterday's issue of The British Medical Journal. It says: "In view of the fact that sinister stories continue to be manufactured and printed, it may be again stated as emphatically as possible that during the operation no malignant disease was observed, that no suspicion of any kind has arisen since and that the medical attendants are quite satisfied that His Majesty's constitution is thoroughly sound."

The British Medical Journal adds: "The progress of the last week has been everything that could be desired. The wound, though still deep, is granulating well. During the last ten days the improvement in His Majesty's general health has been remarkably rapid. The King has regained his strength almost completely, and is able to take restricted diet with a good appetite."

The Lancet also stigmatizes as "lies" the sensational rumors circulated, and says: "There is not and never has been, the faintest shadow or the ghost of a suspicion of any malignant disease."

The Lancet emphatically asserts that the King is free from cancer.

The King's Condition.

London, July 11.—The bulletin on King Edward's condition posted at Buckingham Palace at 10 o'clock yesterday morning says:—

"The King's condition continues to be satisfactory. (Signed.) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Can Not Sit Up Yet.

London, July 11.—King Edward is not yet able to sit up, but every day he is removed to an adjustable couch, which gives a welcome change to his position and which enables him to read with some degree of comfort.

Coronation August 9.

London, July 11.—It is said on good authority, that subject to the approval of King Edward's physicians, the coronation will take place August 9.

Colonial Visitors Received.

London, July 11.—Eight hundred and fifty guests were at the Prince of Wales' reception to colonial visitors in London last night.

SALVATION ARMY.

Captain Lacey, an Earnest Worker in Hamilton, Ont., Endured Awful Pain—His Patience is Rewarded at Last.

The life of an officer in the Salvation Army is never a bed of roses.

No man or woman has a place in this wonderful organization who is not prepared for hard work.

There is no room in the Army for those who are afraid of hunger, exposure or of hard work seven days in the week.

It is quite natural then, that many of these devoted men and women find themselves very much run down, and the victims of many forms of disease. Captain Lacey, of Hamilton, than whom there is no more self-sacrificing officer in the service of the Salvation Army in Canada, was tortured for eight long years with Dyspepsia.

He exercised the greatest care possible in his diet and did everything in his power to correct the trouble, but to no purpose.

He used many medicines and treatments, some of which gave him a little temporary relief, but none gave him a permanent cure.

At last, by the advice of friends, he began a treatment of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the results in his case were simply marvellous. The first dose gave him positive and instant relief, and before the first box was completely used he was almost entirely cured.

He can now eat anything he cares to without the slightest unpleasant consequences, and his general health is very much improved.

It is not often that such a small quantity even of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will make a complete cure of a case of eight years' standing but Captain Lacey's careful living no doubt very much assisted and facilitated the treatment.

Captain Lacey's experience is only one of a great many, and it is conspicuous only on account of the exceptional severity of the case, and the remarkable rapidity of his recovery through the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Red Cross Boer Figures.

Pretoria, July 10.—According to an estimate of the Red Cross identity depot, which fulfilled the functions of a casualty bureau for the Boer forces, their total losses during the war were 37,000 killed or died of wounds and 32,000 made prisoners of war, of whom 700 died. The Boer forces in the field numbered about 75,000.

Didn't Know His Wife.

THE NEW RINK.

Meeting of the Shareholders Called for Tuesday Night.

Many people are no doubt wondering at what stage the proceedings regarding the erection of a new rink in Peterborough are, and it will be welcome news for them to learn that a meeting of the subscribers for stock in the new enterprise will be held on Tuesday night. The subscribers for stock are asked to meet in the town council chamber when the site for the new structure will be decided upon, and preliminary arrangements made for the erection of the building.

CATTLE ON THE STREETS.

A Bylaw Prohibits the Street being Used as a Pasturage.

There are some citizens living in the North End who are storing up trouble for themselves by violating the town bylaw which forbids horses or cattle being tied on the street for pasturage purposes. The police intend to enforce the bylaw to the letter, and have sounded a note of warning in order that unconscious violators of the law may not be taken unawares. A systematic watch will be kept on the outlying streets in this respect hereafter.

The Chief of Police points out that a number of fine young shade trees been spoiled through cattle being tied to or near them, and in many places where cows are tied near the paths or sidewalks, they wander across them and pedestrians are forced to take to the road to pass.

Murray Street Excursion.

The Picnic Committee of the Murray street Baptist Sunday School, after investigating the condition of Highland Park, and finding it in a most unsatisfactory condition to hold a picnic, have decided to run down to Jubilee Point. PETERBOROUGH MAN INJURED.

Son of Mr. John Gilman of Ashburnham.

A Toronto despatch says:

Toronto, July 11.—William Gilman, whose home is at Peterborough, met with a serious accident by falling 34 feet from the iron structure for the Canada Foundry Company. His injuries consist of fractures to the right wrist and right elbow, also dislocation of the left wrist. He was otherwise bruised and injured about the body.

There is evidently a mistake in the Christian name. There are three Gilmans in Toronto who came from Peterborough named, Richard, Robert and Henry. They are sons of Mr. John Gilman, of Ashburnham, and it is no doubt one of the three who has met with the accident.

A HELPLESS MAN

Named Evans Will be Looked After at Once.

A joint meeting of the Central Charity Board, and the Finance Committee of the Town Council, was held last night for the purpose of considering what arrangements could be made for the keeping of John Evans, a helpless paralytic. In the absence of the chairman, Mr. Robert Innes, Mr. J. J. McHain occupied the chair. There were also present Rev. Father McColl, and Messrs. Jos. Batten, Wm. Aldridge, Wm. Kemp, Wm. Stock, W. Yelland, Wm. Fowler, H. Bush, and F. W. Miller. It was decided to send Irwin to the House of Providence, and arrangements were accordingly made for his maintenance in that institution. The unfortunate man is suffering from paralysis.

NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

An Interesting Letter Urging Its Erection.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — I am glad to see that the School Board is considering how they can best meet the urgent demand for increased and better school accommodation.

The Menzies building was not built for a school and in many ways it is not suitable for the purpose.

The proposed Collegiate Institute would give more than double the number of rooms in the Menzies building, and better ventilated and fitted for school purposes. By taking the present Collegiate Institute building for public school purposes, it would be equal to two such schools as the Menzies building and the $500 a year paid for the rent of that building would be saved, and accommodation equal to another $500 a year procured to meet the increased demand for school accommodation.

Then as to the Institute, when the present building was erected the Board had in mind that it was a temporary arrangement. The fact was that the pressure on the public schools at that time forced the Board to build, and it was thought wise to erect a building suitable for public school purposes, use it for a few years, for an Institute, and when a suitable building for an Institute was provided take it back for public school purposes. This was done. The Institute was shoved out of the fine old building into the new one, and the vacant rooms at once filled up with public school pupils. Now the time has come to give the Institute another shove, and I think the board is wise in the intention to erect a new building wholly separate from the public schools.

The Institute pays the public schools for the present building occupied by them, $1,100 a year. That alone represents 4 per cent. on $28,000 a year. A little more added to $28,000 would give a much more suitable building, so that the increased cost of the High School would be very small.

Any new building erected should have in it a suitable gymnasium, and a suitable room where public lectures, debates, etc., might be held, as in Lindsay and in other progressive towns. The fact is at last recognized that we are behind the times in that one respect.

The people of the town have in their Institute so fine a staff of teachers, that they are not obliged to send their children out of town for their higher education. The rich and the poor are on a common footing and have equal advantages — the whole being a levelling, but it is levelling up, for the most part, as there all classes and all creeds are brought into familiar contact, and they gain most who most need.

If we are to have an Institute, let us have the best.

Your obedient servant,
D. W. DUMBLE.

The letter of Mr. Dumble is worthy of careful attention. He has long taken an active, practical and intelligent interest in educational matters, and the manner in which he presents the arguments for a new Collegiate Institute building, should encourage the Board to take action that, in the interests of education, and in the interests of the credit of the town, have been too long delayed.

TOMMY ATKINS ON PARADE.

The Annual Inspection of the Peterborough Rangers

BY LT.-COL. MONTIZAMBERT.

They Attacked Armour's Hill Which was Defended by the 14th Field Battery.

More than ordinary interest attended the annual inspection of the 57th Regiment, which took place last night, and the proceedings were watched by many townspeople. As a result of the night's operations, Armour's hill was captured, and the the Centre Section of the Durham Field Battery, which formed the defending party, were taken prisoners of war.

At half-past six o'clock the Centre Section of the Durham Field Battery, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel W. C. Ackerman, left the armouries, and marched over to Ashburnham. They had two guns with them and in a short time they had taken up a defensive position on the hill. At 7 o'clock the 57th Regiment, accompanied by both bands, marched down George street and across the Hunter street bridge. The regiment was about up to full strength, and presented a striking appearance. The men looked neat and appeared to have plenty of snap in them. Both sides of George street were lined with people as the soldier boys marched past, and now and then came an outburst of applause as one of the favourite companies paraded by. An unusual feature about the proceedings last night was that the officers carried rifles, a change in custom that was well liked, it is said, by all.

THE PARADE.

Lieut.-Colonel E. B. Edwards was in command of the regiment, with Major J. W. Miller and Major Arthur Stevenson, and Adjutant Captain Duncan Walker.

The company officers were as follows;

No. 1 Company — Capt. W. H. Cluxton, Lieut. R. E. Layfield.

No. 2 Company — Capt. E. B. Clegg, Lieut. C. H. Bradburn.

No. 3 Company — Capt. J. Mills, Lieut. R. F. McWilliams.

No. 4 Company — Capt. Hounsell, Lieuts. G. B. Cameron and Jim Hamilton.

No. 5 Company — Capt. G. W. Bennett, Lieuts. George Matthews and A. P. McLean.

Lieutenants Langford and Watt, the two Junior Subalterns of the Regiment, carried the colours.

Surgeon Major Halliday was also in attendance.

When the 57th reached Ashburnham No. 5 Company cut loose from the remainder of the regiment for the purpose of acting as scouts for the artillery. It was only a few minutes until they were outposted. The 57th then divided into three sections. Nos. 1 and 2 Companies, in command of Lieut.-Col. Edwards, led the attack from the south, having marched up to the very top of Elizabeth street.

Nos. 3 and 4 Companies, under Major Miller led the attack from the west, and No. 6 Company slipped around to the north in order to cut off the only possible retreat of the enemy, as the canal was supposed block them on the east. Soon the deafening roar of the cannon started, as the outfit came hurrying in, and the companies from the south pressed forward. The attack from the west was conducted rather openly, and the general opinion appears to be that this party was completely annihilated. However, the engagement only lasted half an hour, as the defending party ran out of ammunition, and the attacking forces swarmed the hill. No. 6 Company, which attacked from the north, did so with great strategy, and were highly commended for their work. Lieut.-Col. Montizambert, the inspecting officer, occupied a position on the hill close to the artillery guns. Many townspeople occupied points of vantage on the hill during the operations.

The regiment was lined up on the crest of the hill and marched back to town. There was a big turn out of visitors to see the boys come home after their brief engagement. In front of the Central Park the regiment was put through a few regimental movements, as well as the march past, after which muster parade was held, and the men were dismissed for the season.

Lt.-Colonel Montizambert expressed the opinion that he never saw the regiment look better or drill better, and his opinion was borne out by all who witnessed the proceedings.

Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers, late Commanding Officer of the 3rd Dragoons, Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, formerly Commanding Officer of the 57th Regt., and Surgeon Major Young, of the Dragoons, took in the proceedings from carriages.

THE OFFICERS' QUARTERS.

After the muster parade an informal luncheon was held in the officers' quarters at the drill shed. The chair was occupied by Surgeon-Major Halliday, chairman of the Mess, and amongst those present were, Lieut.-Col. C. E. Montizambert, D. O. C., Kingston, Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers, Lieut.Col. J. Z. Rogers, Lieut. Col. E. B. Edwards, Major J. W. Miller, Major Arthur Stevenson, Surgeon-Major Young, 3rd Dragoons, Captains W. H. Cluxton, E. B. Clegg, J. Mills, R. T. Hounsell, G. W. Bennett, L. M. Hayes, Capt. Walker, Adjutant, Capt. V. Eastwood, Quartermaster, Capt. J. W. Garvin, 3rd Dragoons; Lieutenants R. E. Layfield, C. H. Bradburn, G. B. Cameron, R. F. McWilliams, Jas. Hamilton, George Matthews, A. P. McLean, A. W. McPherson, W. Langford, R. P. Watt, and W. C. Ackerman 14th Field Battery, and Messrs. E. C. Complin, D. Hughes-Charles and Rev. J. C. Davidson, chaplain 57th Regiment.

The toast of the King was duly honoured after which Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards proposed the health of Lieut.-Col. Montizambert. In doing so he expressed the pleasure he felt in having Lieut.-Col. Montizambert visit Peterborough once more to inspect the Peterborough Rangers. The Rangers were always pleased to have him come to Peterborough and he hoped that his stay here had been a pleasant one.

In responding Lieut.-Col. Montizambert said that it was always a pleasure for him, indeed to visit Peterborough. He thanked them for the kind remarks the Colonel had made concerning him. It was now two years since he had visited Peterborough and he noticed marked improvement in the Regiment in that time. The Regiment was, in fact, in splendid form. He had never seen it better, and he congratulated the Commanding Officer on the excellent results of the inspection. He considered that an inspection of the kind that they had last night was productive of more good than the ordinary Regimental movements. He congratulated Lieut. Ackerman on the manner in which he handled his guns, and considered that in a real engagement the Infantry would have been wiped out. The D.O.C. again thanked the local regiment for their kindness towards him while in town and sat down amid much applause.

In responding to his toast Lieut. Ackerman took occasion to express to the D.O.C. the appreciation he felt of the many acts of kindness he had shown to him when he entered the service.

After a few old time songs the gathering dispersed.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH AND RECTORY.

HISTORY OF ST. LUKE'S PARISH.

Coincident with the celebration of the twenty-sixth anniversary of St. Luke the Evangelist, Ashburnham, the Examiner press has issued a handsomely printed and fittingly bound pamphlet, a history of the Church since its establishment in the village. It is compiled from authentic sources of information, and it is a complete, though compendious, record of the chief events in the life of the parish of St. Luke's. It is a brochure of 32 octavo pages printed on fine calendered paper. The matter represents a mass of valuable information which will be of interest to every member of the congregation. It is beautifully illustrated with half-tone reproductions of photographs of the church and rectory buildings, and of the several rectors of the church, and of some prominent lay friends and workers. One of these is of the late Rev. Mark Burnham, M.A., a former rector of St. John's, Peterborough, to whom the establishment of St. Luke's is largely due. The book is enclosed in a cover with title page of ecclesiastical designs in silver. The compilation and editing have been very efficiently done by the present esteemed rector, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, and altogether the little book is an interesting and valuable record of events connected with the past of the present flourishing parish of St. Luke's.

A SECOND CALAMITY.

Hundreds of Homes in Johnstown, Pa., Made Desolate.

EXPLOSION ENTOMBS 450 MEN.

It Is Believed That the List of the Dead in the Cambria Steel Company Rolling Mill Mine Will Reach Two Hundred—Foul Gas Drives Back the Rescue Parties—Victims in Mine Still.

Johnstown, Pa., July 11.—Johnstown has again been visited by an appalling disaster. It is only less frightful than the awful calamity of May 31, 1889, in cost of life, but it has brought sorrow to hundreds of homes, made desolate by a mine explosion which took place in the Cambria Steel Company Rolling Mill Mine, under Westmont Hill, at 11.20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

How many are dead it may take several days to determine, but that it is a long list is certain. It may reach 200 or more men.

It was nearly an hour after the explosion before any general knowledge of what happened got abroad. Men who came from the mines, escaping with their lives, told the news, and soon it spread all over the city. Hundreds rushed to the point and awaited news that did not come from the ill-fated mine.

At the opening across the river from the point the Cambria Iron Company police, with several assistants, stood guard, permitting no one to enter the mine from which noxious gases were coming. It was nearly 4 o'clock when all hope of sending rescue parties from the Westmont opening was abandoned. Two men who had escaped from the mine—Richard Bennett and John Meyers—went back two miles to see what assistance could be rendered, but the damp drove them back, and they fell prostrate, when, finally, after a desperate struggle, they reached the outside. Two doctors gave the men assistance, and, after working with them half an hour, restored them. Their story of the situation in the mine made it clear that the rescue work could not proceed from the Westmont opening, and the hasty preparations were made to begin that mission at the Mill Creek entrance.

Soon after the news of the explosion reached the Cambria officials, Mining Engineer Marshall G. Moore and one of his assistants, Al. G. Prosser, made an attempt to enter the mine. They were followed by Mine Superintendent George T. Robinson, but the deadly gases stopped their progress, and they were compelled to return to the surface. Mine Foreman Harry Rodgers, his assistant, William Blanch, and Firemen Bossew, John Whitney, John Retillik and John Thomas were overcome by gases, and it is feared they perished in an effort to rescue the miners. A son of Harry Rodgers then tried to reach his father, but he was quickly overcome by the deadly gas and was carried out unconscious.

William Stibitich spent hours at the Mill Creek opening. He said that he believed as many as 450 men were still in the mine. In his opinion, from all he could glean, not to exceed 150 men had gone out.

At midnight this morning President Powell Stackhouse was seen at the mouth of the mine and gave out the following statement: "The disaster is an awful one and came on us entirely unexpectedly. The mine had been inspected only three days ago and was pronounced in satisfactory condition. In the 30 years that the mine has been in operation no serious accident has occurred. The cause is yet indefinite, but I believe the explosion was caused by gas escaping from the fifth heading, which was closed and was not being worked because it contained gas.

"The number of casualties is now placed at 125. No list of the names of the dead miners can be given, for the majority of them are foreigners and were only known by check and not by name. The only way their names will be known if the bodies are not recovered in time for identification will be by their families sending their names to us."

Hurt at Toronto Junction.

Toronto, July 11.—William Gilman, whose home is at Peterboro, met with a serious accident by falling 34 feet from the iron structure for the Canada Foundry Company. His injuries consist of fractures to the right wrist and right elbow, also dislocation of the left wrist. He was otherwise bruised and injured about the body.

Both Thorough and Effective.

This is What the People of Canada Say About the Action of

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Hosts of people are in the habit of trying new-fangled medicines, which are offered to the public from time to time but when these fail they return to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, knowing that in this tried and tested remedy they have a treatment that will of a certainty cure them. Some way or other you can always depend on Dr. Chase's remedies.

Mrs. F. Henthorn, whose husband is of the firm of Mark & Henthorn, founders and machinists, and who lives at 266 Ann street, Belleville, states: "Some years ago I was taken with a pain across the small of my back, caused no doubt from deranged kidneys, and my system generally was very much run down. I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I must say I found relief from my trouble at once. They proved thorough and effective in action, and soon brought about a complete cure. We have also used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in our family and found them very helpful."

A HEARTLESS SWINDLER.

Sharp Game in Which Silas Toole Lost $5,000.

Toronto, July 10.—Silas Toole, who is said to be worth $50,000, lives on the Eaton farm three miles from Newmarket. Some days ago two men called on him and wanted to buy his farm. They said they were nephews of the Hon. Wm. Mulock, who was anxious to get control of the place. $10,000 was the price agreed upon, and when they left for the day, although they had not sold, they left a valise supposed to contain $10,000 done up and sealed in four packets of $2,500 each. Two days afterwards they returned and stated that they had been offered the farm of Joshua Wilson nearby for $5,000, and they asked Mr. Toole for a loan of the money on the strength of the security — the $10,000 in the valise—they had left with him. After quieting his suspicions, they got the money. The two days in which they were to return are long up, and on opening the valise the sealed packages were found to contain nothing of any value. Mr. Toole has been sick since.

NINHAM MURDER INQUEST.

Important Evidence Was Given by Hugh Sharkey, Senior

London, July 10.—The inquest into the death of Gus Ninham, the Indian who was murdered at Woodbank three weeks ago, was resumed last evening at the court house, before Coroner Ferguson. The witnesses were Mrs. Cox and her daughter, John Ross, Hugh Sharkey, sr., and John Abell. The most important witness was Hugh Sharkey, sr.

Mr. Sharkey had been around the hotel all evening and saw the prisoner, McArthur, several times, the last time at about 10.30, when he, Sharkey, while sitting in front of the hotel, saw McArthur come out and go up the road towards the east. A few minutes after a rig drove by. He saw it stop, and McArthur got in and drove towards the city.

The inquest was again adjourned until Friday night. The jury will visit the scene of the tragedy this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and it is expected the evidence will be completed Friday night.

The Gaynor-Green Case.

Washington, July 10.—The extradition of Messrs. Benjamin D. Green and John F. Gaynor, whose removal from Canada has been sought for some time by the United States, will take on a diplomatic phase in a few days, when Secretary Hay communicates to the British Government the view of the officials of our Department of Justice, that the Canadian authorities are pursuing an extraordinary and unwarranted course in the case.

Kincardine Light Destroyed.

Kincardine, July 10.—At 3 o'clock yesterday morning the harbor light, situated on the end of the north pier, was struck by lightning. A quantity of upwards of 100 gallons of coal oil was in the building, and the efforts of the firemen were unavailing. The steamer Pittsburg was unable to enter the harbor during the progress of the fire and landed her passengers by means of the yawl boat.

Half the Horses Sold.

Toronto, July 10.—There was increased activity at the Exhibition Grounds yesterday, on the continuation of the auction sale of British army remounts, and 100 horses were sold. This makes a total of 350 horses sold in two days, and there are now only 300 left. The average price obtained yesterday was $45. The highest figure obtained was $120 and the lowest $13.

Louis Coste For Deputy.

Montreal, July 10.—It is known here that Mr. Louis Coste, for some years chief engineer of the Public Works Department, will succeed Mr. A. Gobeil as Deputy Minister of that department. Mr. Gobeil has been admitted to the Quebec bar, and will practice law in this city. Mr. Coste resigned a few years ago, and went to the Yukon, where he was unsuccessful.

Six Deaths in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, July 10.—The mercury is still in the nineties, but thunderstorms and cooler weather are predicted for Thursday. Six deaths from the heat, and ten serious prostrations have been reported since yesterday. The mill workers are the greatest sufferers, and many have been obliged to stop work.

The Royal State Coach.

The royal English state coach in which King Edward and his Queen Consort will ride to the coronation is an extraordinary vehicle and was built in 1761. It was designed by Sir William Chambers and the paintings on it were executed by the famous Cipriani. Nothing like it in gorgeousness was ever constructed before or since.

THE LABOR DELEGATES.

Sir Alfred Jones' Men Are Now Beginning to Turn in Their Reports—What One Says of Canada.

Some little time ago Sir Alfred Jones sent at his own expense a number of influential British labor delegates to Canada and the United States to investigate for themselves conditions and methods of labor. These delegates were selected from thousands of applicants, and they have mostly returned now. No order of tour was observed. Each man went independently of the rest, visited those places most likely to be of use and interest to him with reference to his own particular work, and portioned out his time himself. The reports made by these ambassadors of toil are being collected, and will shortly be published in book form. Advance notices of the book have begun to appear.

One of the first to avail himself of Sir Alfred's generosity was Mr. Abraham, better known as "Mabon," whose influence with miners all over Britain is perhaps greater than that of any other individual. "Mabon's" references to Canada will interest readers.

"No ambitious youth need go elsewhere," is his verdict, says The London Express. "Canada, to enrich itself, wants thousands of sons of toil, with a little capital to enable them to hold out for a year or two, so as to allow time for the maturement of crop and stock. Then would that great country enrich the toilers in return.

"The Canadians are a nation of workers," he says. "Those of them who have acquired positions of wealth and leisure have done so through hard work. They have for their capital very good health, and they seemed to me also to be very happy and highly contented, having congenial homes and an exceedingly brilliant sky."

The coal prospects of Canada attracted him very much. "Sydney, Cape Breton, is one of the most favored regions in creation. . . Nature, both above and below ground, has been kinder and more propitious there than in any place I have been.

"It is more than probable that the exigencies of travel and trade will call into being a new route; that Canada, and possibly the United States, will make this Sydney their port of call and departure, and then it will become the real connecting link between the two worlds."

Man and His Skin.

Keep the pores of the skin open and in good condition by frequent bathing. Man sheds his skin just as thoroughly as some of the lower orders of creation, but he does it more slowly and imperceptibly. The cells which compose the lower strata of the epidermis are perpetually renewed and push upward, and the outer layer must be constantly removed. This process, which is termed desquamation, is absolutely requisite to the health and beauty of the skin. The more rapidly this process is carried on the more clear and transparent becomes the epidermis and the more roseate and velvety the skin tissues which are constantly forming below.

Copper In Cheese.

The green color of certain kinds of Italian cheese is due to the milk having been kept standing in copper vessels. During this period of repose the milk takes up considerable quantities of copper. Indeed it is customary to estimate the degree of acidity attained by the milk by noting the gradual disappearance of the brightness of the highly polished metallic surface. Dr. Mariani examined twenty-five samples of green parmesan cheese from various places and has found that to about every two pounds of cheese there is present from .3 to 3.3 grains of copper.

THE ONION FLY.

Telling Illustrations Showing Fly and Its Larvæ at Work.

A small, soft worm at the base of the bulb is the product of the onion fly, and at times is most injurious to the onion crop. The larvae burrows into and eats the bulb near the base, from a few to a few hundred in a bulb. The base of the leaf scales rot and the plants are easily pulled up, leaving the decaying bulb and maggots in the soil. The remedy is the application of soot or gypsum (land plaster) or gas-lime to the soil here affected; also soap suds and water from pig pens; but the best remedy is 2 ounces of paraffin oil to a gallon of water sprinkled on the plant. Prevention, however, is better than a cure in this case. For the safety of future crops, dig up and destroy all crops that show affection; also kill all larvae. If this is done early, most of the crop can be saved and future crops protected.

The Agonizing Pains of Rheumatism.

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Mushroom Growing in the Field.

Wet places in woods are not suitable for mushroom growing, as the spawn would be apt to rot before sprouting. Rich old pasture lands, not too dry and not too wet, are best. About the middle of June with a sharp spade make V shaped cuts in the sod, about four inches deep and raise one side enough to allow the insertion of a piece of spawn two or three inches square under it, so that it shall be about two inches below the surface; then stamp the sod down. Make these plantings three or four feet apart, and if the season is favorable a good crop should appear the following August and September.

Health for Women.

"Few things are more important to a community than the health of its women. If strong is the frame of a mother," says a proverb, "the sons will give laws to the people." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is especially woman's medicine. By its action on the blood and nerves it gives strength and vigour to the delicate feminine organs and ensures their regular and healthful functions. It gives colour to the pale, strength to the weak, and a rounded form to the thin and angular.

The Guest Turned.

A gentleman staying with a vulgarian, was much irritated by his host's habit of telling what this, that and the other thing cost.

The crisis came at luncheon, "This salmon," said the novus homo, laying the knife affectionately upon a lordly fish, "cost 8 and 6 a pound—8 to 6 a pound!"

"Did it?" answered the exasperated guest, and, holding out his plate, he added, "Just give me another 9 penn'orth."—London Globe.

THE FRUIT MARKS ACT.

Its Requirements as to the Proper Packing of Fruit.

Mr. Elmer Lick, Oshawa, the Dominion Inspector for Eastern Ontario under the Fruit Marks Act of 1901, gave the fruit dealers of Peterborough an official call yesterday. Mr. Lick found things in a satisfactory condition as regards general compliance with the requirements of the Act, and he found other things which shippers and packers are to blame for, and which can be remedied in their own interests as well as in the interests of the local dealers and general public. In the first place fruit is injured by being packed in close crates without proper provision for ventilation. Secondly, crates are used of a shape and size that do not hold the boxes firmly and the contents are spilled and crushed. Again crates are used of too large a size often without proper handles for lifting with the consequence that the fruit receives rough usage and damage in transport.

Among the requirements of the Act the following may be repeated for the benefit of those interested. Section 4 reads:—

4. Every person who, by himself or through the agency of another person, packs fruit in a closed package, intended for sale, shall cause the package to be marked in a plain and indelible manner, before it is taken from the premises where it is packed,—

(a) with the initials of his Christian names, and his full surname and address;

(b) with the name or the variety or varieties; and

(c) with a designation of the grade of fruit, which shall include one of the following six marks: for fruit of the first quality, No. 1, or XXX; for fruit of the second quality, No. 2, or XX; and for fruit of the third quality, No. 3, or X; but the said mark may be accompanied by any other designation of grade, provided that designation is not inconsistent with, or marked more conspicuously than, the one of the said six marks which is used on the said package.

7. No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in any package in which the faced or shown surface gives a false representation of the contents of such package; and it shall be considered a false representation when more than fifteen per cent. of such fruit is substantially smaller in size than, or inferior in grade to, or different in variety from, the faced or shown surface of such package.

The penalty for breach of these sections is a fine not exceeding one dollar, nor less than twenty-five cents, for each improperly or unlawfully packed parcel or box of fruit. The regulations adopted by Order-in-Council under the Act make the person who packs the fruit on his own behalf or any other person liable to the penalties.

With the law properly carried out, will make the small fruit at the bottom of the barrel or basket a thing of the past. Honest packers will get a good name at home and abroad. In regard to the British market, a fruit grower who fraudulently or improperly packs fruit for that market will help give all Canadian fruit as well as Canadian growers a bad name. So that it is to the interest of all growers to themselves observe the law and see that others do so as well.

The Day of Miracles

is past, but many who are cured of itching, bleeding or protruding piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, look upon their recovery as being the next thing to miraculous. It is not uncommon for persons who have undergone painful, risky and expensive operations in vain to be finally cured by this wonderful ointment. It is the standard the world over and the only guaranteed cure for piles.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

The majority of the Peterborough bowlers who were in attendance at the Dominion Bowling Tournament in Toronto have returned home. Although they met with poor success in the tournament yet they were thoroughly delighted with the pleasant three day's outing on Toronto Island. The city bowlers were most prodigal in their hospitality and could not have been more attentive to their visitors. Many valuable pointers in regard to the game were picked up by the Peterborough men, and it is understood that Mr. Kerr and Mr. Giroux are preparing lectures on the subject.

BASEBALL.

The next game in the Midland League series will be played to-morrow between the Auburns and the Oshawa nine. The game will take place on the Nicholls Oval commencing at 3 o'clock.

The Y.M.C.A. team defeated the Victorias in a five innings game by a score of 20 to 11 in the Triple Baseball League. The Rosedales will play the winners this evening at 5.30 on the Nicholls oval. If the Rosedales defeat the Y.M.C.A. team the triple league will be a tie all around.

LACROSSE.

The Murray street school grounds was, last evening, the scene of an exciting lacrosse match between the H. Y.M.C.A. and T.A.S. teams which resulted in a victory for the T.A.S. by three goals to one. Mr. Miles McDonough refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams, and the large number present witnessed an excellent exhibition of the game. The Y.M.C.A. team is composed of a promising lot of young players. There are also several speedy sprinters on their line-up, but last evening their home played a decidedly loose game, which baulked to a certain extent the splendid work of their field. The T.A.S. team has shown considerable improvement since the last match with their opponents. They placed a stalwart defence in the field last evening, and like the Y.M.C.A., with constant practice will develop into good stick handlers. It was anybody's game in the first half. The ball would travel up and down the field, and then there would be a struggle in close proximity to either flags, but no goals were scored. In the second half both teams went in to break the monotony, and three minutes after the face-off Billy O'Brien scored the first goal for the T.A.S. The next game lasted about ten minutes, and went to the T.A.S.; Jack Mulligan scoring. In the third game the Y.M.C.A. team got down to work, and in four minutes time Parker sent the ball into the nets, and the "Y." twelve had a goal to their credit. Both teams then entered the game with a determination to do or die, and it looked at times as if the "Y." would even the score, but two minutes before time was up Jack McNicholl scored the third game for the T.A.S. which was the last one notched before the referee's whistle blew. The best of good feeling existed between the teams, none of the players were injured, and only two players lined the fence for being too aggressive in their checking.

The following was the line-up:

T. A. S. ATHLETICS.

A special meeting of the Athletic Section of St. Peter's T.A.S., was held on Wednesday evening. The question of bringing Orillia here for a game was considered and the secretary was instructed to write that team and endeavour to arrange a game as soon as possible. A team from the T.A.S. will also visit Campbellford next month and play a friendly game with a Campbellford team at Rev. Father McCloskey's picnic. During the evening it was announced that the Y.M.C.A. team had very kindly forwarded a beautiful bouquet of flowers to Mr. John McDonough, who is at present in St. Joseph's Hospital. This action on the part of the "Y" team was very warmly applauded and a vote of thanks was carried unanimously. The secretary was instructed to convey the thanks of the team, and the recipient of the floral offering.

The members of the two teams are reminded of the practice on Friday evening.

The two draws in the Dominion field day of sports, between Messrs. Crowley, McNichol and Perdue, will be decided on the Murray street grounds on Friday evening.

Two of the charges were dismissed, the Magistrate holding that there was not sufficient evidence, another was heard but judgment was reserved, and the fourth, owing to an error in making out the papers was not dealt with. Mr. B. E. Wood acted for the defendant and Mr. E.B. Edwards acted for the prosecution.

CROSSLEY AND HUNTER.

They Have Conducted an Effective Season's Work.

The Canadian evangelists, Crossley and Hunter, closed the eighteenth year in evangelistic work last Tuesday night. During the year, since last September, they have conducted ten campaigns in Canada and Uncle Sam's domains — namely in Grand Valley, Hensall, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Wallaceburg, N.Y., Wheeling, Toronto, Belleville, Trenton and Aylmer. The year has been very successful in seeing thousands enlist in the "good warfare." Crossley and Hunter are not only wedded to their work but are manifestly united like David and Jonathan, by indissoluble ties of friendship, fellowship and faith. This is certainly one of the secrets of their continued success. There were inducements from across the sea to have them go to England this fall and winter, but they have decided to postpone their visit there for another year. They go this week to their Muskoka home for a few weeks' needed rest and recreation. Their post office while there will be Beaumaris, Ont.

A Close Call.

Omemee Mirror; Mr. Jas. Johnston had as close a call as anyone could have and not meet with a horrible accident on Wednesday last at the station. He went up to the station with Mrs. A. J. Johnston and children of Peterborough, who had been visiting them, and went into the coach to help them with their traps, when the train started. He hurried out, and in stepping off, slipped between the platform and the rapidly moving train. He had presence of mind enough to keep close in to the platform until the train passed out, but it is marvellous that an arm or leg was not taken off. As it was he received a severe bruise, and black eye, which bled very profusely, and a general shaking up. We are glad to congratulate Mr. Johnston on his narrow escape.

A Consultation Held.

Drs. McDade, Rush and Sims, three of the most eminent American doctors, in a series of articles, outlined a tonic treatment calculated to cure a vast number of diseases. Their suggestions were embodied in a formula which is dispensed by a Brantford druggist and called Merrill's System Tonic. It is a reliable and pleasant remedy for stomach, bowel and kidney diseases. Sold at 50c per bottle at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

BUILDING UNSTABLE.

Evidence at the Inquest on the McIntosh Fire at Toronto.

LEAMAN'S STRONG TESTIMONY.

Said the Bricks Were Loose and That They Would Crumble on Being Touched—A Public Funeral For the Dead Firemen on Sunday—Service at St. James' Cathedral at 3.30.

Toronto, July 12.—The tragic manner in which Toronto's five fire-fighters met their death under the walls of the McIntosh building Thursday morning was retold during the inquest last night, and while little light was cast on the mysterious phases of the disaster, much evidence developed that promises eventually to place the responsibility for the unsafe condition of the structure.

The most startling evidence of the session came from Daniel Leaman, warehouse foreman for the McIntosh building. He declared that the brick in the walls of the old building were in such insecure shape that they could be loosened with the hand or foot, and that they were so rotten that they crumbled to pieces when loosened. Further, he declared under oath that he had been informed that the man who supplied the brick originally for the structure had declared that they were then in such poor condition that he was almost afraid to unload them for fear they would fall to pieces.

The probabilities are that the contractor will be asked to furnish some information on this point before the investigation is concluded. There was a disposition to discredit this extraordinary phase of the case, as it seemed almost incredible.

Most of the testimony adduced was from employes of the McIntosh warehouse. All testified that there was no smoking around the building early in the morning before the fire broke out: that the point where the fire was first discovered had been passed by several persons but a few minutes before the smoke was seen, and that there was no explanation of the manner in which the fire could have originated. In fact, the evidence of the employes rather left the source of the conflagration more in doubt than before the investigation was started.

Testimony developed showing that a circus man had left a dog in the building, for which he was expected to call early Thursday morning. There was a disposition among the jurymen to investigate this phase closely, on the theory that perhaps this man carelessly handled a match or a cigar while looking after his dog, but the investigation proved fruitless.

A public funeral is being arranged by the Municipal authorities for the dead firemen. All of the families of the deceased have agreed to it and the service will be held in St. James' Cathedral at 3.30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Special services will be conducted at the several homes prior to the public service which will be conducted by the Cathedral rector, Rev. Canon Welch. All the bodies will be interred in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Sunday parades are not allowed in the cemetery, but the trustees have agreed to waive the rules on this occasion.

It has not yet been decided whether the coffins will be taken in hearses or carried on a fire wagon.

The City Council, the fire brigade, City officials, Orangemen and other societies and citizens generally will make up the procession which promises to be a very large one.

The fire halls are draped in black out of respect to the memory of the brave firemen who met so untimely a death.

The Provincial Government, as representing the Province at large, will voice the universal expression of sympathy felt by the people of Ontario with the friends of the deceased firemen by sending a handsome floral wreath.

Loss Will Be $150,000.

Toronto, July 12.— Some of the more prominent insurance men in the city stated yesterday that the loss in the McIntosh fire would very likely be in the neighborhood of $150,000. In the McIntosh building there were about thirty-five or forty tenants, all of whom carried more or less insurance.

Another $50,000 Fire.

Hamilton, July 12.—Fire broke out at the Brennan & Sons' planing mills, Nos. 82 to 100 King William street, about nine o'clock last night. The best the firemen could do was to confine the fire to the Brennan establishment. Eighteen streams played on the mill till nearly midnight, and then the fire was raging in the cellar, but was safely under control. The loss is roughly estimated at $50,000.

Canadian Schooner Damaged.

St. John's, Nfld., July 12.—The Canadian schooner Defender came in here yesterday from the Grand Banks badly damaged. She had been cut down by an unknown barque on the banks, and owing to injuries sustained, was barely able to make shore. Three other schooners that sustained damage and lost fishing gear in the course of the recent gale have also come into port. One of them brings reports that another vessel was wrecked by the gale and that all hands on board probably perished.

Toronto Man Drowned.

Burk's Falls, July 12.—James Roe, a negro porter on the Muskoka express, met death while bathing in the Magnetawan River, near the station here yesterday morning. He was a poor swimmer, and it is thought the current carried him down. The body has not yet been recovered. His home is at 14 Centre avenue, Toronto. Deceased was unmarried and lived with his father and mother.

Indolence of British Firms.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, July 12.—The British traders' Commission, who recently arrived here from England, admit that they are amazed at the amount of business in steel building material which is being offered, and then comment on the indolence of the British firms. They say that, so far as they are able to discover, only one firm, and that an American concern, has a capable representative in South Africa, and he has been securing immense orders in Cape Town and at Johannesburg, at his own prices, for huge buildings up to 14 storeys by being able to quote prices promptly and promise construction at American speed.

Plans For Canadians.

London, July 12.—Sir Alfred Jones of the Elder-Dempster Company has invited the Premiers and Canadian members of Parliament here with their families to visit Norway on the Lake Simcoe. David Campbell returns to Canada on July 12.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other Ministers will give a dinner at Hotel Cecil on July 15, in acknowledgement of the civilities they have received.

Sir Edmund Barton, the Australian Premier, is booked to sail for Canada about the middle of August, en route for Sydney from Vancouver.

I never saw a failure yet that wasn't worth more than it cost—if the fellow that failed made use of it.—"The Great White Way."

THE KING'S CORONATION.

Officially Announced to Take Place Between 9 and 12—Ceremony Will Be Much Curtailed.

London, July 12.—It is now considered practically certain, in view of the announcement made last night, that King Edward will be crowned Saturday, Aug. 9, since the holding of the coronation ceremony, Monday August 11, would involve another full bank holiday, with the attendant dislocation of general business, while Saturdays are almost universally observed as half holidays.

The fixing of such an early date for the coronation is regarded as an additional guarantee of the confidence of the King's physicians of a continuance of His Majesty's rapid recuperation.

The text of the official announcement concerning the coronation of King Edward, was issued from the Earl Marshal's office, and is as follows: "The King's medical advisers state that His Majesty's progress has been more speedy and less complicated than was at first anticipated His Majesty's excellent constitution has played a conspicuous part in bringing this about. If the present rate of progress is maintained, and if no more complication arises, the King's medical advisers are of the opinion that His Majesty would be able to undergo the fatigue of the coronation ceremony on a day between Aug. 8 and 12. The exact date will shortly be announced. The procession through London, which was to have taken place the day following the coronation is cancelled."

It is understood that the general outline of the program of the procession to Westminster Abbey, and the route to be followed, will not be changed, but the pageant will be shorn of some of its intended magnificence. The details of the program will be settled by the King himself, who will also decide to what extent the actual ceremony is to be curtailed so as to avoid fatigue. The King's physicians advise that the ceremony should not exceed one hour, and this could be managed by sacrificing the sermon, the litany, etc.

It is expected that Queen Alexandra and Sir Francis Laking, physicians in ordinary to the King, with His Majesty's nurses, will accompany the King on board the royal yachts The Victoria and Albert. It has not yet been decided whether His Majesty will go to Portsmouth by rail or whether His Majesty will be brought to Sheerness to shorten the railway journey. All the details of the moving of His Majesty will be kept secret.

The King Improves.

London, July 12.—At Buckingham Palace the following bulletin was posted at 10 o'clock yesterday morning:

"The King continues to sleep well and to improve in every respect." (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Last night's report of King Edward's condition says His Majesty continues to make good headway.

EMPIRE CORONATION BANQUET.

Six Hundred Persons Present and Earl of Onslow Presided.

London, July 12.—In the absence of Mr. Jos. Chamberlain, who has not recovered from his recent accident, the Earl of Onslow, Under Secretary for the Colonies, presided at the Empire coronation banquet, which was held in the Guild Hall last night. The brilliant company of over 600 persons included the colonial Premiers, the Indian princes and other distinguished visitors now in London.

The Earl of Onslow, congratulating the country upon King Edward's recovery and the prospect of the early coronation, referred to the colonial conference now being held in London as being more likely to confirm the principle of free trade than to tend in the direction of protection.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier, made a speech, in which he dwelt upon the development and prosperity of the Empire.

The Right Hon. E. Barton, Prime Minister of the Commonwealth of Australia, said to attempt to establish an Imperial zollverein based on the entire freedom of exchange in the products of each portion of the Empire was, at this stage, utterly impossible.

CONTINGENT SIGHTED.

Tunisian Passed Cape Magdalene on Friday Morning.

Ottawa, July 12.— The Tunisian, having on board the coronation contingent, passed Cape Magdalene at 8 a.m. yesterday morning. She is due at Quebec at 4 o'clock Saturday morning, and at Montreal at 4 o'clock the same afternoon.

Saved a Child's Life.

Hamilton, July 12.—A little son of Herb Kerr of St. Paul, who is visiting his father's people here, had a narrow escape from drowning at the Beach. The little fellow was in the water enjoying himself when he got over his depth and disappeared. Fortunately Miss Flora Kerr was near at hand, and, with pluck and presence of mind, went in after him and brought him out unconscious, but alive. The attention of the Humane Society will be called to the case.

New Lifeboat Station.

Windsor, July 12.—W. W. Stumbles, marine officer at Ottawa, is in the city and had an interview with M. K. Cowan, K.C., M.P., yesterday morning regarding the establishment of a lifeboat station at Point Pelee. The matter has been brought before the department as demanding urgent attention, as a number of disastrous wrecks have occurred at this point.

KNOWN DEAD NOW 143

Heroic Rescue of Fourteen Miners From the Pit Alive.

FRIDAY DAY OF HEROIC RESCUES

First Man Saved Alive Greeted His Rescuers With a Maniacal Laugh, Who Tried in His Frenzy to Beat Them Down—The Latest News From the Scene of the Johnstown, Pa., Disaster.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—(7.30 a. m.)—Two members of the relief party sent home for a rest said upon leaving the mine shortly after one o'clock this morning that 52 bodies were loaded on cars ready to be brought out the first thing after daylight. This will swell the dead list to 143.

DAY OF HEROIC RESCUES.

Thrilling Experiences of 40 Brave Men Who Saved 14 Miners.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—Yesterday was a day of heroic rescues at the Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel Company. Thrilling experiences attended the efforts of the 40 brave men who went down into the shaft with a faint hope that their attempt at rescue would be successful. The reward of their efforts was the saving of the lives of 14 of their fellow-workmen and bringing them to their families.

Dead and maimed bodies were located, but no effort was made to bring them out until all energy was put forward to see that no living soul might escape aid. That done the dead were attended to and put in tram cars, brought up and taken to the morgue.

In the early part of the afternoon cheering word came from the mine that life yet lingered in some of the bodies found. The rescuers made first for No. 4, left heading, which they had been unable to reach the night before. Falls of roof almost choked up the heading, but through and over the debris the rescuers pushed their way. In open space they were startled by the maniacal laugh that came from a blackened form that rushed at them out of the darkness. The man grasped firmly a pick handle, and tried in his frenzy to beat down his rescuers. He was overpowered and dragged back to the main heading to the cars. Thirteen other living men were found in the chamber, and physicians were quickly taken to the spot.

At 3 p.m. the train of mine cars came to the pit's mouth, where ambulances stood. Eight men were lifted over the sides of the cars and half alive, were placed in the ambulances. As the men were taken to the Cambria Hospital the train of coal cars with the physicians re-entered the mine. In another half hour they came out again, this time with six living, but almost dead miners. One man in his paroxysms had locked his jaws so that force had to be employed to pry them open for the insertion of stimulants. These were taken to the Cambria Hospital. One man died just as he reached daylight.

At that time three more headings, believed to be filled with the dead, were unsearched. Thirty-nine bodies were lying within reach in the main heading. Three were brought out at 4.35 p.m. Their bodies were placed in the coal cars and covered with canvas. The condition of the bodies showed that there had been slow death in each case. The only one who could be identified at the pit mouth was Mine Boss Joseph Tomlinson.

One of the volunteer rescuers said that fire was raging in parts of the mine that would take some time to quell. Most of those who were brought out alive yesterday afternoon had saved themselves by crawling into a chamber and turning a valve on the compressed air pipe which runs along the entry.

At 11 o'clock last night the number of known dead was 90, number of the injured in hospitals 18, number of injured who were able to go home, 4.

87 BODIES FOUND.

Explosion Victims Composed Almost Entirely of Foreigners.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—Eighty-seven bodies had been recovered from the Cambria mine up to 5 o'clock yesterday morning. While the heroic work of rescue had not penetrated nearly to the seat of the disaster, bodies lie piled in confusion aboard cars ready to be brought into the city.

Latest estimates placed the number of dead at about 200.

A Young Hero.

Frank Sabot, a boy, met death in an heroic endeavor to save his comrades. He had worked in the mine ever since the Klondike was opened up. After the explosion he hastened into the place of death to do what he could to close the traps and check the spread of the after damp. He was found lying near a partly closed door leading off to one of the left headings.

How to Keep the Peace.

Boston, July 12.—An agreement has been concluded between a committee representing 2,500 laborers of this city and vicinity and the Arbitration Committee of the Mason Builders' Association, which is expected will keep peace in the building trade for at least one year. Eight hours per day, with 28 cents an hour, are agreed upon.

The Horse Sale Is Over.

Toronto, July 12. —The quickest and most successful sale of horses which has ever taken place in Canada concluded shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 650 horses having been disposed of by auction for the British Government.

TIRED SALESWOMEN.

Employers Should be More Considerate. Mrs. Pinkham Asks Tired Women to Write Her for Advice.

In the vast retail establishments of large cities, many women are employed as saleswomen.

Men formerly held the positions that women now hold, and while women's organism is less strong than men's, they are expected to do the same work. Their duties compel them to be on their feet from morning to night, and many of them, in a short time, contract those distressing complaints called "female diseases."

Then occur irregularities, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, indigestion, leucorrhœa, general debility, and nervous prostration.

They are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness.

In such cases there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. The following letters prove this. They also prove the value of Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

"I Can Work Every Day in the Week Now."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write this letter for you to publish for the benefit of poor, suffering women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me a great deal of good. I have taken three bottles and feel like a new woman. When I began the use of your medicine I was hardly able to be up; could not do half a day's work. I ached from head to foot, was almost crazy, had those bearing-down pains, and stomach was out of order. Now all of these troubles have left me and I can work every day in the week and not feel tired."—MRS. JENNIE FREEMAN, 402 Pennsylvania Ave., Lima, Ohio.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have read with interest your advice to others so much that I thought I would write to you for I have been suffering for a long time. This I did some time ago.

"Now I can hardly find words to thank you for your wonderful Vegetable Compound and advice.

"I was in a terrible state, every part of my body ached, was very nervous, had hysterical spells. I think I would have become insane had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Your medicine has cured me and I cannot express my thanks."—MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasanna, N.J. (March 8, 1901.)

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

No other person can give such helping advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham, for none have had such a great experience—her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free—if you are sick write her—you are foolish if you don't.

$5000 REWARD Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who will show that the above testimonials are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

LAURIER IN LONDON.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is pronounced the colonial lion of the Coronation gathering. He is a much sought and honoured guest in the social, commercial and political gatherings of the metropolitan city of the world. The reason is not far to seek. His robust, yet intelligent and well-poised imperialism, and his practical loyalty to Great Britain, as evidenced by his gift of a tariff preference, untrammelled by self-seeking conditions, have warmly commended him to the national sympathies. To this add his genial and distinguished personal attributes, his oratorical ability, his charming presence, and we need not be surprised that the Premier of Canada looms up a prominent figure among the many other great men of the Empire and of the world, the Coronation festivities have assembled. He is distinguished in Canada as the man who stilled the waves of race prejudice, and welded the chief nationalities of our diverse population into one harmonious whole, leaving our enterprising population free to work out their great destiny under the improved political and commercial conditions, with a prosperity and advance national movement in all departments of Dominion life never known to the country till he assumed the responsibility of administering its affairs.

DISHONEST PACKING.

The following paragraphs appear in different Canadian newspapers;

"One of the fruit inspectors for Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, reporting to the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, states that after visiting nearly all the towns which are fruit distributing centres between Winnipeg and the Rocky Mountains, he finds everywhere great dissatisfaction from lessons attending the handling of Ontario apples.

"Most of the merchants said to him that they would handle no more of such fruit, packed as it had been in the past. They say they are disgusted with the dishonesty which leads packers to put small apples in the middle of the barrels, and to put unsound and damages fruit in packages which are represented to contain only sound fruit, of first-class quality."—Ottawa Journal.

"Complaint is made from Bristol that Canadian cheese is arriving there in an inferior condition, having evidently been shipped before it was properly cured. The greedy factoryman has been exposed and warned time and again, but he still remains the great enemy of a great industry."—Montreal Gazette.

This shows the great importance of careful and honest packing. No doubt the majority of fruit packers and cheese shippers desire to have their fruit packed and their cheese shipped in the best condition possible, but often the carelessness of subordinate employees defeats their intentions. The majority of both classes are honest, but there is a mischievous minority that cannot resist the effort to gain a present apparent advantage from crooked work, and we have as a result Canadian apples, as a class, discredited in our best markets by the dishonest methods they employ. Thus one dishonest packer out of a hundred may give the other ninety and nine honest packers a bad name, with its consequent great loss of prestige in markets where our produce finds its way. The Dominion Government is doing its best to remedy the evil and protect honest people from scamps. The Fruit Marks Act of 1901, is the means employed. But is largely rests with honest fruit growers to see that this law becomes effective. A small army of inspectors could not prevent it by "spotting" dishonest packers. It is to the interest of honest packers to see that their business competitors observe the law, and give honest weight and measure with as good fruit at the bottom, or middle, of a parcel as meets the eye at the top. Nothing can be more short-sighted than for any man to pack fruit so as to gain temporary advantage, with the certain prospect of being ultimately put to loss and subjected to disgraceful exposure, as well as injuriously affecting the industry with which he is associated.

MISGOVERNED TORONTO.

Toronto is a big but bumptious city, always setting itself up as a model of virtue, excellence, progress, enterprise, and all other good. It is certainly a fine city, a prosperous city, and a growing city. It is growing in population and wealth, but its debt and rate of taxation, and expenditure, are growing faster. It claims to be the centre of intelligence, but this intelligence does not rescue it from the effects of blindly choosing its civic rulers, with the necessarily undesirable consequences. The Toronto Star, speaking of the way Toronto has been governed, says;

Toronto has had two years of Mayor Howland, one of Mayor Macdonald, and two of Mayor Shaw. And see the muddle of those five years. The City Hall dragged along, and nobody knows yet what it cost, or whether the accounts are closed; the St. Lawrence market was mishandled, until its name has become a byword; the suit against the Gas Company was begun five years ago, and has been fiddled with ever since; the money was granted for new exhibition buildings, and they will not be ready for use this year, and nobody knows how great a bungle may occur before they are completed. The municipality has been without a sane head, without competent leadership, for five years. And perhaps the people have not even yet learned the importance of choosing a man for Mayor who has shown his ability by well managing a business of his own.

And they have not learned the folly of choosing a man for Mayor simply because he is ornamental and a Conservative. Toronto, it appears, has not gained much by following Sir Charles Tupper's advice to the Conservative managers, to capture the municipal elections as a stepping stone to power in the Dominion. The chairman at the mass meeting in Massey Hall to welcome Mr. Borden, shortly after his appointment to the Conservative leadership, made the point, which was wildly applauded, that Toronto was the centre of intelligence, and that accounted for the city being Conservative. The Star's recital of the inestimable muddle made in city affairs by five years of Conservative rule, shows that the ability and probability of that party, whether in civic or in the wider walks of politics, to give and, giving effective and economical administration, is in inverse ratio to the desire to gain office.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Whitney has had a one-derful escape from getting into office.

It is asserted that there was a good deal of money going about in the Liberal interests in the Kingston election. There was—in the form of Pense.

Look at that now. The Montreal Street Car Company has voluntarily increased the wages of its employees, involving an increased expenditure of $50,000 a year. The Toronto Street Railway Company could not reach the same result without a strike and a riot.

King Edward's physicians declare that his Majesty's constitution is thoroughly sound—as the Britist constitution, which is satisfactory all round. His Majesty has shown so far that his head is level and that he is sound at heart. These being joined to his sound constitution make up the desederata of a constitutional monarch.

The Montreal Star remarks:—"The Toronto Globe says very truly that were free trade conceded by Canada to Great Britain it would be no easy task to replace the $8,000,000 customs duties now levied on British goods in this country. It would, however, not only be the $8,000,000 that would be at stake, but the duties collected on United States and other foreign goods which duty-free British goods would replace as well. There is no possibility of such a proposition being entertained by any authorized representative of Canada."

Canada cannot compete with the leading countries of the world in population, but she is a pretty successful competitor so to speak, in natural resources. Canada has the largest known nickel deposits in the world and her other mineral resources are very important. In 1898 Canada's production of gold put her in the fifth place in the world's production, the amount being $21,049,000. In 1900 Canada advanced to third place in the production of gold with a total of $27,000,000. In 1901 Canada fell back to fourth place with a total of $24,462,000. Still she takes a creditable standing with other more developed and more populous countries.

MODERN COMMON SENSE.

In a libel suit in London against a paper which had maligned him, Father Vaughan, a Jesuit priest, said in answer to a query whether he approved of punishing heresy:

"I say with Cardinal Manning that since the unity of Christendom was broken up the persecution of those who hold religious opinions contrary to others would be a crime and a heresy."

Further on he replied to a question:

"It is very painful to me to be told I am disloyal to my King. For a thousand years my family have lived here, true to their King and country, and it is a painful thing that I should be brought into court to clear myself of these foul imputations. I reject them entirely."

The jury awarded Father Vaughan $1,500 damages. The Catholic priest and the Protestant jurors were a pretty strong combination in favour of modern common sense.

A DANGER OF WAR REMOVED.

At the same time that the news of the conclusion of peace in South Africa was made public, there was another item of news, which, although it had an important bearing on the future of the British Empire, was largely lost sight of in the rush. There had been a boundary dispute between the Soudan and Abyssinia of many years standing. During the time of the Mahdi's power the followers of the Dervish leader and those of Menelik were constantly raiding the disputed territory and cutting each other's throats.

This, to put it mildly, made life on the border hazardous and uncertain.

When the success of the Kitchener expedition smashed the Mahdi's power forever, and the responsibility for the government of the country devolved upon Britain, we inherited the old boundary dispute. There were not wanting those who tried to inflame the Abyssinian court against us. All sorts of misrepresentations were made such as would antagonize a people who certainly have no objections to a bit of a fight.

Fortunately Menelik is a wise as well as a brave ruler. He cast aside counsels from without, which represented Britain as trying to kick him out of his own territory. The kind of nonsense, for instance, which certain classes of papers in the United States talk as to the Alaskan boundary, had no effect on Menelik. He and the British got together and foreign intrigue was powerless to prevent the agreement fixing the boundary line permanently. The difficulties in settling a line in many places where there had never been anything resembling a definite boundary, were serious, but not insurmountable.

Thus, simultaneously with peace in South Africa, there was removed a very possible cause for another war in North Africa.

DEAFNESS CURED BY EXTERNAL APPLICATION.

The publication of 103 cases of deafness, and diseases of the ear, nose and throat, cured by the Drouet Institute during January, February, and March, and a further record of upwards of 35 cases cured during April and 36 during May, arouses a strong interest in the method by which such remarkable results are obtained. For the benefit of those interested in this subject, a brief account of this Method is extracted from the "Journal for the Deaf." The treatment is based upon the well-known absorbent properties of the skin, and consists of a specific which is used entirely in the form of an external application. A plastic preparation in the shape of a crescent is placed over the mastoid apophysis, the arched portion of the skull behind the ear, where it is in close relation to the internal parts of the organ of hearing. This plastic application contains the medicaments which are intended to act upon the middle and inner ear. Absorption of these remedial agents takes place through the skin and intervening tissues, and in this way they progressively penetrate to the structures essential to hearing. Here their curative properties are exerted, acting counter to congestion and inflammation, producing resolution in fibrous deposits, and thus restoring the sense of hearing.

This external application, then, is the basis of the Drouet Method, but the thoroughness with which deafness and ear diseases are treated by the Institute may be judged by the fact that every detail of each case receives attention, adjuvant treatment being prescribed where the ailment is complicated by an inflammation of the nose and throat, or by some special general condition, or where antiseptic precautions are necessitated by a discharge from the ears.

Those who are interested in the treatment of deafness, or of ear, nose, or throat ailments, will find a further description of the Drouet Method in the last number of the "Journal for the Deaf." A free copy of this publication, together with a "Supplement" containing a full report of the cases cured during the past month, can be obtained by addressing the Secretary, 72, Regent's Park-road, N. W., London England. Each "Journal" is accompanied by a Patient's Report Form, which enables applicants to receive full particulars for applying the treatment at home. Any advice by correspondence is absolutely free, as are also the consultations by means of the Report Form.

JOSHUA SANFORD

The Man Who was in the Well is Suffering a Great Deal.

The Brantford Courier says: Mr. Joshua Sanford is suffering from a relapse. The excitement and intense suffering while in the well are beginning to tell on his mind. His sleep is broken by delirious dreams when he imagines the horrors of the well all over again.

In addition an abscess threatens. A day or so ago a consultation of doctors took place, at which Dr. Stanley, of Brantford, was in attendance.

To-day when spoken to by a Courier man Dr. Stanley said Sanford's chances of recovery were exceedingly good. The only trouble at present to be feared was a threatened abscess which was deeply seated in his right shoulder. This might delay the patient's recovering a week or two. Otherwise his condition was favourable.

About Drainage

You know the deadly consequences if a house is badly drained. Only a madman or a criminal would himself incur the risk, or subject others to it, for one unnecessary minute.

Prospectus of
The Canadian Aluminum Works, Limited.

Capital, $100,000. In 1000 shares of $100 each.

Payable 10% on application, 25% in one month, 25% in three months, 25% in five months, and 15% in six months, with the option of paying balance in full at any time.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS:

S. T. WILLETT, Woolen and Shovel Manufacturer, Chambly
J. E. SHOEMAKER, Manager Aluminum Works, "
HENRY C. DODDS, Secretary-Treasurer, Montreal.
JOHN W. BLAIR, Solicitor, "

This Company is incorporated for the purpose of acquiring the business hitherto carried on by Messrs. Shoemaker & Dodds, as Manufacturers of Spun and Cast Aluminum goods.

The business was commenced a year ago, on a site acquired at Chambly Canton with cheap Electrical power, where factories have been erected and manufacturing commenced. The success which has attended their efforts has been so greatly beyond their expectations, that their only resource is to form a Joint-Stock Company, and increase the working Capital.

Aluminum Ingots are purchased and such articles as Cooking utensils, Spoons, House fittings, Coat hooks, Door and letter plates, Pew numbers, Letters and figures for Signs, made therefrom. Castings are also made to order for Machinists and Manufacturers, according to patterns supplied. These articles can be cast in Aluminum, Copper, Brass or Composition.

From Aluminum sheets a very large line of Cooking utensils, Funnels, Measures, Reflectors and Shades, Combs, Milk, Bread and Pool checks, Advertising novelties, Fancy goods, Notions, etc., are spun or stamped. The Company will be prepared to manufacture a large variety of Lamps, for use where there is no Gas or Electric Light, the patterns for these being now in stock.

The sales are increasing very fast, so that in May the amount more than doubled that of March, and it is this rapid extension of the business which necessitates the increase of the working capital.

The following considerations are submitted to prospective shareholders:

1. This is the only Company of the kind in Canada. It is needless to point out the advantage this gives it, for while at present it has the field to itself, it will in the future should other Manufacturers start business, always be the established house with which the trade is accustomed to deal.

2. A bonus of $20,000 was granted by the Town of Chambly Canton, which is repayable $2,000 on 1st. June 1904, and the same amount in each of the nine following years, without interest. This amounts to less than the rent such premises would bring in the City, so that by paying a small rental for ten years from 1904, the works wil be free of debt.

3. Electrical power and Taxes cost much less at Chambly than in the City of Montreal, while Railway freight is only a small item.

4. Articles made from Aluminum are entirely free from any tendency to rust or corrode, unless treated with strong Alkalis. There is therefor no danger of Verdigris, as in a Copper or Brass preserving Pan, or of the metal being eaten through by rust, as in Tin. The lightness of the metal makes it particularly easy to handle, and it can be alloyed so as to become as hard as Brass, and thus completely take the place, at a cheaper rate, of Nickelplated Brass.

5. The net profit for the month of May would have sufficed to pay a six per cent. dividend on the whole Capital of the Company for that month. As the net profit on the goods averages 20%, it is hardly boasting to say that the present principals have every confidence in their ability to pay a regular dividend at the rate of ten per cent. per annum.

6. It has been arranged that Messrs. Shoemaker and Dodds, who commenced and have built up the business, shall continue and devote their whole time to the service of the Company, as Manager and Secretary-Truasurer respectively.

7. The purchase money of the business has been fixed at $50,000 the whole of which will be taken in paid up stock.

8. The above price includes, Land, Buildings, Machinery, Stock manufactured and unmanufactured, Book debts, and Cash in Bank; the business being handed over as a going concern.

QUEEN'S SYMPATHY.

Refers in Feeling Terms to the Death of Miss Strathy.

London, July 12.—A coping stone on the Langham Hotel fell Thursday, crushing to death Mary Strathy, niece of the late Col. Strathy of Lachine, Montreal, while walking with Mme. Delacheral, who was injured. Queen Alexandra sent the following message of sympathy:

"The Queen is greatly shocked to hear of the sad accident, and wishes a report sent at once. Please convey Her Majesty's deep sympathy to the sufferers, and, if possible, express to the relatives of the lady killed. Her Majesty's distress and sorrow at the lamentable event."

Deceased will be buried at Birmingham, where her uncle was buried. It is said the deceased's mother dropped dead at Montreal station ten years ago.

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

Canadian Arch in London.

The Canadian coronation arch in Whitehall, London, will certainly be one of the novelties of the coronation. The structure of wood will be only a background for a representation of the cereal products of the colony. The leaves of the maple and other representative trees and flowers of Canada will figure on its surface, and beneath the archway under which the procession will pass will appear the motto "The Future Granary of the Empire."

TWO SUBSIDY PLANS.

Schemes Discussed by the Colonial Premiers in London.

A GENERAL UNDERSTANDING.

Informal Talk About Fast Freight and Fast Mail Services, But Conference Is Not Likely to Act Upon the Matter Just Now—What Will Likely Be Done in Time by Joint Action.

London, July 12.—There are two subsidy schemes which are favored by the official representatives of Australia, New Zealand and Canada. One is a fast mail service between England and Australia, via Nova Scotia, the Canadian Pacific, Vancouver, Fiji and Brisbane, with Sydney as a terminal port. The other is a fast freight service between Montreal, Cape Town, Auckland and Sydney.

There has been a good deal of informal talk among the colonial Premiers over the practicability of arranging these services, with subsidies for each scheme from the British Government and the colonies interested. There is now, however, a general understanding among the colonial representatives that the Imperial conference will not act upon the subsidy question, since Mr. Chamberlain prefers to have the colonies agree upon a general scheme before co-operation of the British Government is definitely pledged.

It is also reported that a colonial agreement has virtually been reached and will be reduced to definite form when Sir Edmund Barton and Sir R. J. Seddon pass through Ottawa in returning to Australia.

The proportions for mail subsidies of the first route are set down as four-twelfths for the United Kingdom, five-twelfths for Canada, two-twelfth for Australia and one twelfth for New Zealand.

Two fast lines of steamships will be required, and the Atlantic and Pacific mail services from London to Sydney is worked down to 26 days.

The other subsidy scheme would involve the co-operation of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Cape Colony and Natal, and would involve the construction of large cargo steamers, which could be converted into troopships in time of war. The colonial statesmen are thoroughly in earnest in these matters, and talk about settling everything among themselves before they ask the British Government to pay one-third of the entire subsidy.

THE ELECTION COUNTS.

Liberals Put Up the Deposit of $1,000 Against Dr. Jessop.

Toronto, July 12.—The appeal against the recount in Halton will be heard at 11 o'clock this morning at Osgoode Hall by Mr. Justice Osler. The appeal is taken by Dr. Nixon, the Conservative candidate, against Mr. John R. Barber, the Liberal member-elect.

As the recount left Mr. Barber with a majority of 18, and there are only some thirteen ballots in dispute, the result of the recount cannot affect the seat, but under the decision of Mr. Justice Maclennan in the North Gray cross-appeal it will have to be gone on with.

The protests against Miscampbell in Sault Ste. Marie and in Manitoulin against Gamey were filed at Osgoode Hall yesterday.

The necessary deposit of $1,000 has been put up by the Liberals, in their appeal against Dr. Jessop, the Conservative member-elect for Lincoln.

In East Hastings, South Perth, West Wellington, East Simcoe, the time for filing protests has expired.

SANFORD IS IMPROVING.

His Doctor Fairly Well Satisfied With His Condition.

Paris, July 12.—Joshua Sanford, the ex-entombed well digger, is making all reasonable progress towards recovery from the result of his terrible experience of four days underground. Five abscesses have developed within the last week, none of them of very serious proportions, but causing sufficient pain to prevent the man from securing the rest he needs to restore him to strength. Yesterday his temperature was 100, but his doctor is fairly well satisfied with his condition. He is, of course, still confined to his bed and only his nurse, members of his own family and particular friends are allowed to see him.

DEATH BY DYNAMITE.

Every Bone in Tony Florine's Body Broken at Niagara Falls—A Mob's Attempted Vengeance.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 12.—A fatal accident occurred about five o'clock yesterday afternoon on Section 8 of the Niagara Falls sewer system, which is being constructed on the Bender property river front by Barry & McMordie, contractors, for the town of Niagara Falls. It seems an Italian named Tony Florine, whose duty it was to connect the wires to the dynamite cartridges in the blast hole, went down into the ditch for that purpose, and, before he came out, he gave the "All right" signal to the man, Charley Frost, another Italian, who turned on the electric generator, discharging about two pounds of dynamite under Florine's feet, killing him instantly, breaking every bone in the man's body, tearing off part of his jaw, and making two holes in his neck.

The foreman of the work, Joe Dower, who was standing about 15 feet distant, was stunned from the effects of the explosion, and narrowly escaped death by a large piece of rock that whizzed by him.

As soon as the friends of Florine knew the cause of his death, they started in to kill Frost with rocks, one of their number knocking the man down. Mr. McMordie grabbed the assailant. This gave Frost an opportunity to get a start, and he took to his heels, and ran up the River road, with about a dozen of the Italians after him with picks, and throwing stones. Frost managed to reach the office of the upper steel arch bridge, where Ontario Police Officer Turner took charge of him, and drove the frenzied Italians away. Frost afterwards was taken to the lockup, and the body of the dead man to Butlers' undertaking rooms. It is supposed the discharge was unintentionally premature.

WILL NOT SIGN THE OATH.

A Difficulty Met With in the Orange Free State Colony.

Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony, July 12.—Difficulty has arisen regarding the oath of allegiance. Many of the Boer commandants, field cornets and officials of the late Free State Government refuse to sign the oath, though few of them object to singing the document called "the declaration" acknowledging King Edward as their sovereign. The oath of allegiance, however, is much more binding.

Lord Kitchener's Return.

Southampton, July 12.—Lord Kitchener, returning from South Africa, did not reach here yesterday as expected. The steamer bearing him will probably dock at 9 o'clock this morning.

Trooper Fred Clarke Ill.

Ottawa, Ont., July 12.—The following cable has been received from the Casualty Department at Cape Town: "Dangerously ill, July 7, 4th C.M.R., 287, Trooper Frederick Clarke, tubercule lung." His father is William F. Clarke, 380 Wilton avenue, Toronto. This soldier was a compositor and belonged to the 5th Royal Scots, Montreal, before enlistment for South Africa.

The Sight of it Whets the Appetite.

Malt Breakfast Food

Always a Welcome Dish at the Morning Meal.

Many use it Twice a Day in the Hot Weather.

Malt Breakfast Food is a blessing to thousands in the hot weather. Malt Breakfast Food whets the weary appetite. It is always a welcomed dish at the morning meal. Many with great advantage use it for breakfast and supper in the hot weather. Try it for a month and note your gain in strength. Your grocer recommends it.

Eyesight of Spiders and Scorpions.

Spiders have wonderful eyesight, but I am quite sure that the scorpion's vision, notwithstanding his six eyes, is far from being acute, says an English naturalist. It it very difficult to catch a spider with a pair of forceps, but a scorpion can easily be captured if no noise is made. Spiders see their prey before they are caught in the web, but the scorpion makes no movement whatever to seize flies or cockroaches until they indicate their whereabouts by movements. This being the case, it can readily be understood how easily the scorpion may be roused into motion by the vibrations of music.

If a tuning fork be sounded on the table on which I keep my caged scorpion, he at once becomes agitated and strikes out viciously with his sting. On touching him with the vibrating tuning fork he stings it and then coils himself up, as scorpions do when hedged in.

ADRESS AND PRESENTATION.

Steamer Owners Practically Remember Lockmaster Collins—Address and Purse Presented.

This morning the parlours of the Morgan House, were the scene of a pleasant gathering, in which several persons were made happy—some in doing a kind act, and one in being the object of it.

The owners of steamboats plying on the Otonabee River, Trent River and Rice Lake waters, met Mr. William Collins, lockmaster and secretary of the Farmers' Institute, at the Morgan House, and amiably cornering him, presented him with the following address, accompanied with a purse of gold;

William Collins, Esq.,
Secretary Farmers' Institute, and Lockmaster.

We, the undersigned owners of steamboats plying on the Otonabee and Trent Rivers, and Rice Lake, being aware of the indefatigable efforts put forth by you in order to make the Farmers' Institute picnic such a marked success this season at Jubilee Point, and also on account of the many acts of courtesy extended to the crews of the different steamboats in your official capacity of lockmaster, respectfully request your acceptance of the accompanying purse as a slight token of our appreciation of your valuable assistance in both the above capacities.

Wishing you many years of health, happiness and prosperity, that you may long enjoy your present position, with the same satisfaction in the future, as that we have experienced in the past, with like credit to yourself.

Signed on behalf of the steamboat owners.

H. CALCUTT, Steamers "City of Peterborough," and "Water-Lily."
THOMAS HARRIS, Steamer "Beaver."
F. BURNETT, Steamer "Rainbow."
W. C. HARRIS, Steamer "North Star."
DAN. FOLEY, Manager Jubilee Point Hotel.

Peterborough, July 17th, 1902.

The address was read by Mr. Jas. Drain, as representative of Calcutt's Line of Steamers, on behalf of the steamer owners, and the purse was presented by Captain Wilbart C. Harris, of the North Star.

Mr. Collins made a brief but eloquent reply. He said he was surprised, and never more pleasantly, by the address and accompanying gift, because in his capacity as lockmaster he considered that he had only done his duty, but on the other hand he was not surprised when he knew so much from experience of the steamboat owners and commanders and crews of their crafts, and of their kindness to himself, as well as consideration of the public interests—that was prima facie evidence of their ability to treat him in the handsome manner they had done this morning. While their kindness was, he felt, more than he deserved, he highly appreciated it nevertheless — it was only a continuation in a formal way of the uniform kindness with which they had treated him since he had entered upon his duties as lockmaster. As secretary of the Farmers' Institute, he had to acknowledge their kindness also. It had been a pleasure to him to do all in his power to contribute to the pleasure of the farmers of the country, and he acknowledged with pleasure the kind assistance he had received from the steamer owners. Yet his prime object was to try to promote the interests of the farmers by securing the establishment of a beet root sugar factory in Peterborough, which meant not only a new and profitable market for a new product for the farmers, but an immensely increased traffic to the steamers plying on the lakes and rivers. He had always heard that men connected with navigation had big hearts, but he had never before been brought to realize it so fully as by their kindness of this morning, which would always be a pleasant recollection in his thoughts.

THE LATE MR. THOS. MORROW.

His Death Occurred This Morning After a Lingering Illness.

The death occurred this morning at his late residence No. 170 Edinburgh street, of Thos. Morrow, Esq., who has been ailing for some months. In the demise of Mr. Morrow Peterborough loses an estimable citizen and one who enjoyed the respect and confidence of all with whom he came in contact. He was 64 years of age and was born in the Township of Cavan, he being a son of the late Wm. Morrow. He resided in Cavan until the year 1888, when he removed to Peterborough and has since resided here. He was a prominent member of the George street Methodist church and represented that church on the Nicholls Hospital Board for some years. Otherwise Mr. Morrow lived a quiet life. He leaves to mourn his demise a wife, and four daughters. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 3 p.m.

EFFECTS OF HIGH WATER.

Interferes Injuriously With Mr. Burnett's Contract at the Locks.

The exceedingly high water following the copious rains, made it necessary to raise the stop logs on the Trent Valley system north of Peterborough. This released a great volume of water, and in Little Lake the water is up to spring level. This sudden flow of water has interfered with the work on the contract of Mr. Burnett for the construction of the Lock's dam. The water swept away part of the coffer dam, and destroyed the work of about three weeks' preliminary preparation for concrete work which was to have begun on Monday. The foundations of a steam pump were unsettled and the pump fell into the excavation. Mr. Burnett has suffered considerable loss and deserves sympathy on account of his hard luck.

WEDDED IN CLEVELAND.

Mr. Albert E. Bogan, Formerly of Town, Secures an American Bride.

The Cleveland Plaindealer makes the following reference to the marriage of an old Peterborough boy in the person of Mr. Albert E. Bogan:

A wedding of unusual interest was solemnized in Immaculate Conception church on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, when Miss May T. Jones, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Jones, St. Clair street, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert E. Bogan. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white batiste, trimmed with batiste embroidery, and wore a white picture hat with trimmings of lace and lilies of the valley. She carried a handsome mother of pearl prayer book, the gift of the groom. She was attended by her friend, Miss Agnes Cushing, who was becomingly attired in white organdie, with ruffles of lace and wore a white picture hat, trimmed with lace and white ostrich plumes. She carried a large shower bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Charles A. Bogan, brother of the groom, performed the duties of best man. The marriage ceremony was performed by Mgr. Thorpe during the celebration of solemn nuptial mass. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the residence of the bride's parents, where a wedding dinner was partaken of by fifty guests. The bride and groom, who are well and favourably known in Catholic circles, were the recipients of many handsome and costly presents, consisting of many pieces of cut glass, silverware, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Bogan left in the evening for a honeymoon to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto, Can. On their return they will take up residence at No. 80 Dibble avenue, where they will be at home after August 1st.

THE CONTRACT IS LET

For the Construction of the Big Cereal Company Dam.

The contract for the building of the big concrete and steel dam, which the Cereal Company proposes to throw across the river, has been awarded to Mr. O'Toole of Ottawa, and the work begins next week, the contract calling for its completion by December 1903.

The structure will be a massive one, the piers being twenty-six feet in length and twenty-five feet high. It will be built in such a manner as to serve the purpose of a railway bridge for the company's convenience, as well as a dam. A new power house is also to be built. The excavating of the tail race will, it is expected, be a work which will involve a great deal of labour, as the rock blasting which will be necessary, will be very extensive.

Mr. O'Toole has had a large experience in handling big contracts, having been engaged on the Soulanges canal and other Government works of that character.

MATTERS MILITARY

BY SENTRY.

A pleasing feature of the annual inspection of the 57th Regiment, which took place on Thursday, was the presence of so many ladies, who watched the sham battle with great interest. A number climbed to the summit of the hill, many drove over to the scene of the engagement in cabs and carriages of various kinds, while others viewed the proceedings from points of vantage some distance away. But this is not the only occasion on which the ladies of the town have displayed a deep interest in the regiment. As a matter of fact, every Tuesday night parade of the Rangers has been awaited by the gentler sex of the town with great expectancy. In view of this manifestation of interest it would be quite reasonable to conclude that the ladies would lend all possible assistance towards promoting the welfare of the regiment. There is a grand opportunity at the present time for the ladies of Peterborough to exhibit a practical interest in their regiment. The opportunity, as a matter of fact, has been open for a number of years, but perhaps it may be that the ladies were not aware of the same. However, to those who are in close touch with the affairs of the regiment, it is a well-known fact that the Peterborough Rangers are sadly in need of a new stand of colours. The present colours have seen many a day, have waved in many a town on the annual trips of the regiment, and the texture has become so frail that a stiff breeze would tear it into shreds. They are at present in a dilapidated state and are fit only for souvenirs of bygone days. Time and again the Examiner has brought to the notice of the people of the town the necessity of supplying new colours for the Rangers, and ten or twelve years ago a fund for that purpose was started. There is to the credit of the fund a substantial amount, and with the present wave of military enthusiasm there should be very little difficulty in raising the required amount. Strange to say, this task of purchasing colours for a regiment has, as a rule, been undertaken by the ladies, who employ this means of displaying their interest in the corps of the town. The ceremony of trooping the colours is one of the prettiest that is performed by a regiment, and requires due training. The trooping of the colours cannot be performed, however, without new colours to present. There are many ladies in Peterborough, as before stated, who are military enthusiasts, but the committee of ladies who undertake the task of raising money for a new stand of colours for the 57th Regiment, will have their names handed down to posterity as having done a charitable act in a time of great need.

Major C. H. Rogers, Commander of "A" Squadron, 3rd Dragoons, Colborne, who went to South Africa with the Third Canadian Mounted Rifles, is one of the few officers who is remaining in South Africa. The despatch from South Africa, which gives the names of the officers who are remaining, does not state whether or not the officers remaining continue in the service, or are there on their own responsibility.

There could be no stronger proof that the Boers had grown weary of the war than the alacrity with which they have surrendered in accordance with the terms of the peace agreement at Pretoria. The surrender in the Transvaal is complete, numbering 11,225 men and 10,813 rifles; the same result has been accomplished in the Orange River Colony where 5,305 men have surrendered with 5,230 rifles, and while the returns from Cape Colony are as yet incomplete, it is known that very few men are still in arms. The liberal terms granted by Great Britain and their eager acceptance by the Boers, have brought the two races into fraternal relations which foreshadow an early restoration of prosperity in the conquered territories. An American, writing of the magnificent behaviour of the Boers since the surrender, says in a letter to the Vienna correspondent of the London Times: "Our own Southern States, emancipated by defeat in the war of the rebellion from the curse of slavery and all that it entailed, constitute a fair parallel. Their property and loyalty to-day foreshadow what may be expected in South Africa in less time than has elapsed since Lee surrendered to Grant." It is by no means improbable, indeed, that the Boers were somewhat reconciled to surrender by a study of the magnificent results which have been accomplished in America through the honest fulfillment of the mutual obligations undertaken at Appomatox. It is estimated that the total number of Boers in the field from first to last was 80,000.

The following changes have been adopted in British army regulations: Badge of Rank—His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to command that the rank of Second Lieutenant and Captains shall in future be denoted on all uniforms other than the service dress jacket by the following badges:— Second Lieutenant, one star; Lieutenant, two stars; Captain, three stars. The badges of other ranks will remain as at present. Dismounted officers, warrant officers and staff-sergeants of dismounted units, including departmental corps and military foot police, will not in future be armed with pistols. A carbine will form part of the ordinary equipment of company officers, warrant officers and staff-sergeants of infantry units, and will be carried at manoeuvres and on service, but on no other occasion, unless specially required. Other dismounted units will be supplied with carbine on mobilization.

From private letters received in Ottawa, it appears that the Canadians of the Coronation Contingent have not had anything extra in the way of a good time. They have been at variance with the war office authorities from beginning to end, and as usual, there seems to have been considerable red tape floating about. This is one of the things Canadians detest, and the fact that Sir Frederick Borden stayed with the men for the last few days before they sailed for home is significant that there was trouble brewing for some time.

General Hutton, with whom Colonel Sam Hughes had the disagreement, is now commanding officer of the Australian forces. Of him, a writer in the Regiment says:

Without in any way disparaging Major-General Sir Edward Hutton's qualities as a soldier, it is now becoming evident enough that he does not understand the management of the Australian soldier. Army regulations, we all know, must be observed, but when they are administered in large doses they are worse than useless. Any attempt to govern the Canadian soldier by the same means in vogue among our regular troops, must end in failure.

The Australian contingents are made up for the most part of men who, before volunteering for service, led a happy-go-lucky sort of existence in the backblocks of the various colonies—men who hardly ever knew the existence of such a word as discipline. Cannot it, therefore, be wondered when an attempt is made to govern these men by antiquated regulations, more calculated for the ruling of convicts than British soldiers, that snags are struck?

During the past six months several instances have been brought to my notice. From a correspondent in Sydney I now receive an account of the departure for the front, on April 2nd, of the Third Battalion of the Federal Contingent, which was marked by several sensational developments.

As soon as Major-General Sir Edward Hutton stepped on board the transport Manhattan, and looked at the troops as assembled on the upper deck, he showed anger. His wrath was directed at some of the men whose parade appearance did not please his critical eye. After the men had been called to attention, the general passed down among them.

Suddenly, shaking his cane at "C" Company, he cried out, "Stand still! Why the devil don't you stand still when you're told?" Then, moving on farther, he exclaimed loudly, "Look at those men twisting their heads about! D—n you, keep still! Don't look at me!"

After the parade it was announced that Lieutenant-Colonel Wallack, who was in command of the Contingent, had been relieved of his command. The same night, a number of the men dropped over the side of the transport, and swam ashore.

To the uninitiated rifle shooting appears a very tame sport, but to a man who has conquered a few of the many obstacles, the sport becomes a passion. This is the reason we see men shooting as long as their eyes can train the sights on the bullseye.

The first difficulty encountered is in the eyesight, for every man is right or left eyed, just as certain as he is right or left handed. You can prove this by a very simple experiment. Take a ring or a key in your right hand and hold it at arm's length, and looking square to the front, gaze steadily at some object twenty or thirty feet away, with both eyes open. Get the object into the middle of the ring, then close your left eye, and if the object still remains in the middle of the ring, you are right eyed; if the ring moves away, you are left eyed. As a man has two eyes, it is desirable and certainly to his advantage to use both of them, and thereby utilize his full power of sight. Such is the practice of some of our most successful shots. A man in shooting with both eyes open should shoot from the right shoulder. He should shoot from the same shoulder if right eyed, and from the left shoulder if left eyed. In taking aim for a moment, say from the right shoulder, close the left eye so that the image of the sights is impressed on the vetina of the right eye, and then open the left eye. This will serve to sharpen the image of the target, diminish the blurr, and generally makes the aim more clear and distinct than if only one eye is used. This habit can be acquired by practice. If the image of the foresight is lost, close the left eye for a moment, then reopen it. It has been said by a volunteer who learned this lesson in South Africa that a Boer would almost as soon think of closing both eyes as one, while taking aim. We have treated in to-day's issue of one of the greatest obstacles in successful shooting. In a series of additional articles we will endeavour to show up others, and some of the means which should be used to overcome them, such as jumps of the rifle, canting the rifle, the drift of the bullet, elevation and atmospheric conditions, such as wind, mirages, cloudy, moist, warm, hot, dry, bright and cold weather. All these tend to keep the recruit and the old shot continually on the outlook to get even and sometimes beat Nature.

STOCK MARKETS.

In Considering Penna. and N. Y. C.

New York, July 11th.—The re-commencement of advancing operations in Penna. stock, recalls the fact that it stands without a peer as to merit. The Company is now rich and prosperous, the property of the highest standard, daily increasing in earning power and efficiency. It is clearly out of proportion in selling price, compared with any of the following dividend paying stocks with whom should rank nearer the top than the bottom; D.L. & W., selling at about 7 per cent.; North-west, selling about 170, paying 7 per cent.; R.I., selling about 130, paying 5 per cent.; Manhattan, selling about 123, paying 4 per cent.; New York Central, selling about 160, paying 8 per cent.; Ills. Central, selling about 145, paying 6 per cent. None of the above companies can excel Penna. as to stability and permanency of value. All of these properties are new, and so in Penna. Some of them are putting large amounts of money into new properties and improvements. None more so than Penna. Some of them have expansion schemes in view, and giving "rights" from time to time. So does Penna. None of these roads are better or more progressively managed, none more up-to-date in every particular. None of them but Penna could pay their interest without drawing in current earnings. Penna, will sell at 160 shortly, and at 175 this year. The time is drawing near when it will sell above 200.

New York, July 11th.—An erratic, but wondrously strong market was in evidence to illustrate its peculiar vagaries. We call your attention to the fact that when M.O.P. was 111 3-4, St. Paul cropped 179. When M.O.P. was 112 5-8, St. Paul touched 179. The M.O.P. clique carried the favourite to a new high price, touching 113, which is equivalent to 115 1-2 dividend, on bearing out the opinion expressed in these letters, when M.O.P. was below par, that it was good for a 16 point rise. R.I. advanced nearly 10 points during the day. L.N., Penna., St. Paul., N.Y.C. and Ills. Cen. rested prior to fresh upward movement. U.P. conued to be gathered by inside interest. Cumulated buying orders were executed in Atch. Col. Southern advanced a point and a half. Sugar reacted a point and a half from last night's close. Dealings were of good volume and demand brisk. Copper and steels were firm. N.Y.C. still advancing and still bound to go up very much higher. Another stock which time must and will carry above 200. In speaking of this road in these letters we have exhaustively called attention to the value of its equities in other Vanderbilt lines. It is able to pay its current dividends without application of its own earnings. We here call your attention to another fact. N.Y.C. falling due in 1904 to $5,000,000 in 5 per cent. debentures and about the same amount in 1905. There will also mature next Jan. 1st over $15,000,000 of N.Y.C. 7 per cent. bonds, and nearly $6,000,000 of six per cent. bonds. They will all presumably be refunded in 3 1-2 per cent. bonds of the Company's authorizes issues of 1897. Consider what this will mean for the stock. Buy and hold N.Y.C. and Penna.

Sketch of the Normal-Born Ex-President of Princeton University.

The Rev. Francis Landey Patton, D.D., LL.D., has surprised his friends and Princeton University by retiring from the Presidency of that institution. He will not, however, resign entirely from connection with it, but will hold the chair in Biblical instruction, ethics and philosophy of religion. His reason for this step is that he wishes to carry out more extensively the literary plans which he has under way, and from which his duties as President withdrew too much of his time.

Canadian interest in Prof. Patton arises from the fact that he was trained at the University of Toronto and at Knox College. He was born in Bermuda in 1843. After his course in Canada Dr. Patton studied theology at Princeton and graduated there in 1865. He was ordained to the ministry by the Presbytery of New York in that year. He was then pastor successively of the Eighty-fourth Street Presbyterian Church, New York, for two years; the Presbyterian church at Nyack for three years, and the South Church of Brooklyn. In 1872 he became professor of didactic and polemical theology in the theological seminary in Chicago, now called McCormick Seminary. From 1873 to 1876 Dr. Patton edited The Interior, the Presbyterian denominational paper in Chicago. Out of this relation grew the famous "Swing case," the controversy between Dr. Patton and Prof. David Swing, resulting in Prof. Swing's trial for heresy, and, after active prosecution by Dr. Patton, his leaving the church.

Dr. Patton has written several books on religious subjects, besides contributing to the magazines. "A Treatise on the Inspiration of the Scriptures," "A Summary of Christian Doctrine" and "The Doctrine of Future Retribution" are titles of some of his works.

Dr. Patton continued at McCormick till 1887, and was during the latter part of his stay in Chicago, in addition to his other employments, pastor of the Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church. He was the representative from the United States to the Pan-Presbyterian Council at Edinburgh in 1878, and in the same year he was Moderator of the United States Presbyterian General Assembly which met at Saratoga. In 1879 Dr. Patton was offered a professorship in the Presbyterian Theological College of London, England, but declined. In 1881 he took a chair at Princeton Theological Seminary that was established and endowed specially for him. It is called the chair of the relations of philosophy and science to the Christian religion. In 1885 Dr. Patton was made professor of ethics in the university, and in 1888 he became President of Princeton.

SALVATION ARMY.

Captain Lacey, an Earnest Worker in Hamilton, Ont., Endured Awful Pain—His Patience is Rewarded at Last.

The life of an officer in the Salvation Army is never a bed of roses.

No man or woman has a place in this wonderful organization who is not prepared for hard work.

There is no room in the Army for those who are afraid of hunger, exposure or of hard work seven days in the week.

It is quite natural then, that many of these devoted men and women find themselves very much run down, and the victims of many forms of disease. Captain Lacey, of Hamilton, than whom there is no more self-sacrificing officer in the service of the Salvation Army in Canada, was tortured for eight long years with Dyspepsia.

He exercised the greatest care possible in his diet and did everything in his power to correct the trouble, but to no purpose.

He used many medicines and treatments some of which gave him a little temporary relief, but none gave him a permanent cure.

At last, by the advice of friends, he began a treatment of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the results in his case were simply marvellous. The first dose gave him positive and instant relief, and before the first box was completely used he was almost entirely cured.

He can now eat anything he cares to without the slightest unpleasant consequences, and his general health is very much improved.

It is not often that such a small quantity even of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will make a complete cure of a case of eight years' standing but Captain Lacey's careful living no doubt very much assisted and facilitated the treatment.

Captain Lacey's experience is only one of a great many, and it is conspicuous only on account of the exceptional severity of the case, and the remarkable rapidity of his recovery through the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

The Hudson's Bay Co.

After two hundred and thirty-four years of almost continuous strife, against the forces of nature, the French, the rival company and torn by jealous factions within itself, the Hudson's Bay Company still stands prosperous and flourishing, embracing more land and possessing more interests than any other corporation on the globe.

And yet while steamships by the thousand come up the wide St. Lawrence and we are accustomed to regard it as the gate of Canada, yet year after year sail silently through the tortuous Hudson's Straits the laden ships of the company to York Factory, to Albany, to Churchill, and all the stations along the bay as of old. And the grim ruins of Fort Prince of Wales, the northernmost fortification on the continent, scarcely inferior in strength to Quebec, look calmly down upon a peaceful scene. The ships ride at anchor discharging merchandise to be spread throughout the land from the frozen brine of the Arctic, where the lonely factor lives six months behind the world to the sunny prairies rolling to the "line" and westward all along the blue Pacific's shore, while many a solitary trader in the gloomy pastures of the Rockies gladly hails the tinkling dog sleigh bells or the paddle plash of the coming goods and mails.

And so the old company goes on, its huge department stores in all the Western cities; the veritable bankers of the West, while its policy which has stood the test of two centuries and a half, enforced by gun shot and at the point of sword, still holds for upright dealing. And the lonely trader silences the sneering stranger, and proudly says: "It is the Company, 'Pro Pelle Cutem.'"

IRISH CONSTABULARY.

Bitter Criticisms by Nationalist Members of House of Commons.

London, July 11.—The vote of the Irish estimates in the House of Commons yesterday, furnished the Nationalists with an opportunity for an attack on the British administration of Ireland and the operations of the Irish constabulary, which body of men John Dillon (Nationalist) declared were maintained not to prevent crime, but to create it. Mr. Dillon specified instances where, he alleged, force was instrumental in obtaining the conviction and imprisonment of innocent persons, and charged the Government with winking at these malpractices in order to obtain justification of its policy of coercion.

T. P. O'Connor declared that, politically speaking, the real criminal was the Attorney-General for Ireland, the Right Hon J. Atkinson, because he practicid jury packing.

Sir Robert T. Reid (Liberal) said he considered the action of the Irish police to be dastardly, adding that it has been admitted that they were a discredit to the Irish executive. He further asserted that matters would never be remedied until self-government for Ireland put an end to jury-packing.

This brought Attorney-General Atkinson to his feet with a hot retort that Sir Robert, who now professed such lofty and noble sentiments, had remained for three years a member of the administration and had indulged in jury-packing to an extent unknown to the present Government.

The Chief Secretary for Ireland, Geo. Wyndham, admitted that there was much truth in what Mr. Dillon had said in regard to specific cases, but the charges were not applicable to the whole police force.

After further debate Mr. Dillon's motion to reduce the estimates was defeated by 195 to 102 votes.

HAVOC AT NEWMARKET.

Furious Gale in the Alps—Bridges in Austria Swept Away.

London, July 11.—The storm of yesterday created great havoc at Newmarket and other places. It was general over the continent.

The railway station at Berne at Switzerland was set on fire by lightning and partly destroyed. A furious gale raged over the Alps all day long, and it is feared that several parties of mountaineers were caught in the storm.

In Austria, 15 bridges were swept away by rivers which had overflown their banks, and crops were greatly damaged.

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

Peter Clouse, a former resident of Simcoe, was drowned at Port Rowan Thursday afternoon, while out sailing on Long Point Bay.

The French Foreign Office has received the following from Pekin, dated July 9: "The surrender of the administration of Tien Tsin to the Chinese is expected very shortly."

A Paris telegram from Cherbourg states that Rear-Admiral Fournier was present at experiments in wireless telegraphy carried on by the submarine boat Triton. Messages were received with difficulty when under water.

Presence of Mind.

During a performance at one of the London theaters a man and his wife had to quarrel on the stage, the woman in a rage of jealousy, the man trying to persuade her that she was too suspicious and too passionate. Both were acting with great spirit when the wife moved her arm too near the candle, and her muslin dress was in flames in an instant. Both actors kept their heads, however. The husband extinguished the fire and, proceeding with his part, interpolated:

"You see, my dear, I was right. You are ready to flare up at the least thing."

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Saves The Life of a Manitoba Lady.

It Completely Banishes the Agonizing Troubles That Were Dragging Her to the Grave.

There never was a remedy so highly recommended as Paine's Celery Compound. There never was a remedy in such universal demand. It is popular and prized in tens of thousands of homes, because it makes sick people well.

Paine's Celery Compound has saved thousands from nervous prostration and collapse; it has effected wonderful cures in kidney and liver complaints; its victories over rheumatism and neuralgia have commanded the attention and admiration of our best physicians. It has cured disease when everything else has failed. The following voluntary testimonial from a Manitoba lady who owes her life and present good health to Paine's Celery Compound, will cheer the soul of many despondent sufferers. Mrs. Annie R. Cobb, of Saamo, Man., says:

"Before using your valuable Paine's Celery Compound I was so crippled with rheumatism that I had to crawl on hands and knees from one place to another. I also suffered from neuralgia and dreadful headaches, and could not get more than one or two hours sleep each night. I often thought it would be better to die than live and endure my terrible agony. I was happily advised to use Paine's Celery Compound, and after use of six bottles the rheumatism and neuralgia are banished, and I now eat, rest and sleep well. My present improved state of health is due entirely to the virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, which has done wonders for me. My husband is now using it for dyspepsia, and it is doing wonders for him."

HON. M. H. HERBERT.

Sketch of the Man Appointed to Succeed Lord Pauncefote.

The Hon. Michael Henry Herbert, who has been promoted from the post of First Secretary of the British Embassy in Paris to succeed Lord Pauncefote as British Ambassador at Washington is in his forty-fifth year, having been born on June 25, 1857. He was the fourth son of the Right Hon. Sydney Herbert and of Lady Herbert of Lea, who is the author of a number of works of travels and biography. His brother Sidney is the fourteenth Earl of Pembroke and the eleventh Earl of Montgomery and a Lord Steward of his Majesty's Household. An elder brother was the thirteenth Earl of Pembroke. The Hon. Michael Henry Herbert entered the diplomatic service in June, 1877, and went to Paris two years later as an attache. In 1883 he was made second secretary at Paris, and was transferred to Washington in 1888, where he acted as Charge d'Affaires for four months following the withdrawal of Lord Sackville. He was promoted to be Secretary of Legation in 1892, when the Venezuelan dispute was in progress, and was British agent for the commission which settled the boundary. The succeeding year he was transferred to Constantinople, and was Charge d'Affaires in the absence of Sir Philip Currie at the time of the Armenian massacres. For the skill he displayed in this emergency, he was made a Knight Commander of the Bath. In 1897 he was made Secretary to the Embassy at Rome, and was transferred to Paris in August, 1898, when he was appointed a Minister plenipotentiary in the diplomatic service. In 1888 Mr. Herbert was married to Miss Lelia Wilson, a daughter of R. T. Wilson, of New York, and a sister to Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr.

Wise Distribution of Time.

Once when dining quite by chance with Dr. Creighton, the late bishop of London, at a certain club Lord Rosebery remarked: "Ah, my lord bishop, what a nuisance this dining is! Two things I absolutely dread—a long dinner and long sermon. I think that a sermon and a dinner, however good either may be, ought never to last more than a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes at the most."

"Well, well," said Dr. Creighton musingly, "could we not arrange matters this way, my lord? Knock, say, ten minutes off the sermon and put it on to the dinner."—"Men of the Moment."

An Army Almanac.

Some years ago during one of its Egyptian campaigns the British army was suddenly startled by a total eclipse of the sun, for which the troops were not prepared. To prevent the possibility of another such surprise, which might have had grave consequences, the British war office decided to have an almanac regularly produced for the army's guidance. Such an almanac has been published regularly since that time.

Skylark Journeyings.

The English skylark has inspired several of the most beautiful poems in our language, and its migrations are of a character which, it would seem, might appeal to English poets only less effectively than its song does. In violation of the general rule that birds move southward in the autumn immense numbers of skylarks which have summered in central Europe arrive in England in September and October to pass the winter in the British isles. In October an entirely distinct immigration of skylarks enters Great Britain from Scandinavia, while all through the autumn British bred skylarks emigrate southward, many of them going to the continent for the winter. Yet others remain in England all the year round.

A Costume of Ratskins.

A thrifty Welshman at one time exhibited himself publicly in England attired in a costume composed from top to toe of ratskins, which he had spent three years and a half in collecting. The dress was made entirely by himself. It consisted of hat, neckerchief, coat, waistcoat, trousers, tippet, gaiters and shoes. The number of rats required to complete the suit was 570. Most curious of the garments was the tippet, composed entirely of rats' tails.

HIS FIRST ADDRESS.

Late Prof. Halliday Douglas' Response to Canadian Welcome.

When the late Prof. Halliday Douglas of Knox College came to Canada about a year ago, he was welcomed by the great leaders of Presbyterianism here. Those who heard his reply were at once impressed with a thorough appreciation of his ability as a speaker, and his thoughtful, earnest and intellectual face was very generally commented on. He expressed his gratification at the kindness of his welcome and at the opportunity of personally professing his allegiance to the church in Canada, and to Knox College. He had known before leaving the old land that Canada was a great country, and that he would find the church of his fathers taking a full share in the religious and moral life of the Dominion, but it was another thing to come into the churches and observe the earnestness, the variety and magnitude of Christian activity which he had witnessed. Owing to the conditions which existed, the Presbyterian Church might, perhaps, have been excused had there been a lowering of the standard of ministerial training. Yet he found they had not sent men to their life work unprepared. He spoke of the necessity of trained and educated men as preachers, teachers, shepherds and guides of souls, and appealed to the Presbyterian people to send from their homes to the colleges men inspired by faith, love and zeal for the work of the ministry.

Some Results of Impure Blood.

A blotched, pimply, disfigured face, feeling of exhaustion, wrecked nerves, headache and a dull brain. The proper cure is one Ferrozone Tablet after each meal. Ferrozone clears and beautifies the complexion by making rich, pure blood. It restores the enfeebled brain and unstrung nerves to a healthy vigorous condition. It invigorates all the physical and mental powers, and brings strength and ambition to the depressed. Refuse a substitute for Ferrozone—it's the best tonic, rebuilder and invigorator known. Price 50c., at Ormond & Walsh's.

Canada's Forest Wealth.

From a point on the Atlantic seaboard some two hundred miles north of the boundary line, reaching upward to the Arctic circle, and stretching across the continent to the waters of the Pacific, a vast forest, which contains a large variety of the most valuable trees of commerce, covers the land. The elm, ash, hickory, oak, beech, butternut, and hard maple of New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, give place as the forest swings west and north, to the immense pine woods of the Ottawa and its tributaries. Then from Nipissing to the Lake of the Woods, the hummocky soil is covered with a thousand miles of ragged spruce and fir, which gradually merges into the white poplar and silver birch of northern Manitoba. Farther west, where the warm Chinook winds temper the winter's cold, a mightier growth clothes the Pacific shores—the snow-capped peaks of the Rockies uprear from amidst the giant trees of British Columbia.—Ainslee's Magazine.

SUMMER BABIES.

Summer babies should be brought up on health-giving Lactated Food, which is strongly recommended by our best physicians. Lactated Food is the only safe and pure food for the little ones in the hot weather. It is a preventive of cholera infantum, dysentery and diarrhoea. Makes puny and weak babies strong and happy. Ask your druggist for Lactated Food; take no other.

The Growth of Canada.

To-day the splendid results of Canada's commercial enterprise are apparent even to the most casual student of affairs. Her foreign trade increases month by month and year by year; the population of Nebraska, the Dakotas and other Western States is being drawn up into her Northwest, and almost every day she advances the boundaries of her civilization towards the north. The results are apparent to all; the processes whereby they have been obtained are understood by few in this country.—London. Eng., Morning Post.

Didn't Know His Wife.

When T. Coleman, a Brantford traveller, left on a three weeks' trip his wife was a yellow faced fagged out looking woman. When he returned he didn't know her. Her eyes were bright and her skin clear and she walked differently. Merrill's System Tonic did it. 50 cents for 50 doses.

Sore Feet

Chafed, Blistered, Burning, Swollen Feet Soothed, Healed and Cured by

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You may know of the exceptional merit of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and still not think of using it for sore feet. It is remarkably effective for this trouble, which is so annoying to many people during the warm weather.

Mrs. J. Brunston, Allandale, Ont., states:—"I can recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a sure cure for sore feet. I stand a great deal on my feet, and have been troubled for some time with chafing and blisters. My toes were often raw and very painful.

"I had tried nearly everything recommended for sore feet, but Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only remedy that did me any real good. It soothed the burning and stinging, and thoroughly healed and cured the sores."

THREE OUTSIDE SEATS

By Elizabeth R. Cutter

Copyright, 1901, by Elizabeth R. Cutter

When I took the omnibus for St. Germain des Pres at the Place Clichy and mounted to the imperiale, there were already seated there two priests, a bareheaded working woman with a filet of marketing in her hands, two schoolboys carrying the usual black portfolios under their arms and an old gentleman who was reading the Petit Journal. Next to the latter I found a place.

A moment later the omnibus stopped again, and I heard the voice of one of my country women exclaiming nervously, "I never can climb up that ladder, never!"

Then a girl spoke. "Oh, do try, Aunt Martha! They say the outside seats are so pleasant."

"Is it—do you think it's perfectly safe, Mr. Henley?" asked the anxious voice.

"Perfectly safe," came a reassuring masculine echo, and there was a half second's pause, in which, I suppose, Aunt Martha tried to ascend and failed, for the conductor broke in impatiently: "En voiture! En voiture! Une place en bas! Neuf places en haut!"

"Take the seat inside, Miss Percy, do," urged the man's voice. "Your niece and I can go on top."

The omnibus started forward, and two Americans came up outside, a very pretty girl, elegantly dressed, followed by a tall, athletic looking man. They seated themselves directly behind me, and she exclaimed:

"How delightful it is up here! And what a shame that we've been in Paris two weeks without ever taking the bus! Isn't it too bad that Aunt Martha stayed down below?"

"On the contrary," he replied, "I find it extremely agreeable to be alone with you for once. I've been trying for days to have a word with you by yourself, but your aunt is a perfect wonder at keeping the party in strict triangular shape whenever I go out with you. Today I purposely urged her going inside so that I could talk with you in peace up here on top."

"Now I understand what is meant by 'wickedness in high places,'" retorted the girl playfully.

"Don't try to put me off, Miss Ware, for it's no use. You know perfectly well that I love you and"—

"Sh-sh! What are you thinking of, Mr. Henley? You certainly aren't going to make love to me here, on the top of an omnibus, right before all these people?"

"Why not?" he persisted. "They don't any of them understand English. Look at that femme de menage and those boys and the priest. They're all French. We are as safe here as if we were in the parlor at home."

"But that girl behind us"—she lowered her voice as she spoke—"do you think she looks French?"

"A Parisian unmistakably," he answered. "She doesn't understand a word we say."

I a Parisienne—I, who had been away from New England only six months and who thought my nationality as plain as if it were stamped upon me in red, white and blue! It was a shock certainly, but the blow was softened somewhat by the compliment to my clothes. Aren't the Parisiennes considered the best dressed women in the world?

But the mistake had touched my Puritan conscience as well as my feminine pride. I was listening to a conversation manifestly not intended for my ears. Ought I to get down from the omnibus? That would be quixotic surely. I could not afford to be late to my appointment for the sake of two perfect strangers who would never know of my delicate kindness to them. Ought I to speak out frankly and say, "I beg your pardon, but I understand everything you are saying?" That would be embarrassing for us all and really cruel to Mr. Henley, who had been trying for so long to propose. When a man is in such straits that he has to make love on the top of an omnibus, he ought not to be wantonly interrupted. It was plainly my duty to keep quiet.

"But young French girls don't go out without a chaperon," objected Miss Ware. "She is all alone."

"Not at all," he answered. "There's her father right beside her reading the newspaper."

I trembled with fear. It seemed as if my neighbor must have understood that, but a glance showed him to be happily ignorant of the American daughter so suddenly thrust upon him. He was reading a serial story in the Petit Journal perfectly unconscious of the romance going on behind his back.

"Well, haven't you anything to say to me?" asked the young man.

"What can I say? I don't think you've known me long enough to ask such a question."

"Not long enough!" he repeated. "I've known you all summer."

"Nine days on the steamer," she counted deliberately, "two weeks in London and two weeks here. It's easy to see that you didn't study arithmetic in your youth."

"You are trifling with me," he exclaimed. "It doesn't take ten years to find out that you're in love when you meet the right person."

"Yes, but what is it to be in love?" she asked. "And how are you to be sure that you've met the right person? In the old fairy story one knew the true prince by the halo around his head, but I don't see any halo about you. I see a young man in a straw hat sitting on the top of a bus. It's not romantic in the least."

"Well, never mind if it isn't romantic," he retorted. "Who cares about love being romantic if it's real? Love doesn't need to be announced by a band of music and brought in on a silver platter. It's much bigger and more serviceable than that. It's for all times and occasions, and it means just as much on the top of an omnibus as anywhere else." She made no answer, and after a moment of silence he spoke again, "Is there any rule about when and where a man should propose?"

She was silent. We were passing the opera house at this moment, and the busy line of the boulevards came in sight. The omnibus stopped in front of Cook's office on the corner, and the two priests got down, but no one else came up to take their places. More than half the broad Avenue de l'Opera was behind us before the young man asked once more:

"You know I could make you happy, don't you?"

Still she did not answer.

"Don't you?"

"There's the Rue de l'Echelle!" she exclaimed quickly. "We must get down here for the Hotel Normandie."

"Don't stir," he said peremptorily. "Your aunt won't get out without us, and you and I are going to the head of the line. We must settle this question once for all."

I was delighted at this decision. The head of the line was my destination also, and now I knew that I would hear the end of the story. I no longer questioned whether I ought to announce myself or get down from the bus. All my scruples had vanished in the absorbing interest of the situation. What woman ever left a novel in the middle of a proposal?

The omnibus drew up slowly at the corner of the Theatre Francais, and a crowd of waiting people came out into the street from the station under the trees. We could hear the conductor calling off the numbers "Un, deux, trois, en voiture! Quatre, cinq, six, en voiture!" as the vehicle filled up with passengers. "Complet!" was called at last, and the controller screamed to the outside seats, "Correspondences sur l'imperiale?" There were no transfers, and the horses started toward the Rue de Rohan.

"Well, Miss Ware, is it 'Yes' or 'No?'" asked Mr. Henley as we moved on.

"I don't know," she answered hesitatingly. "I like you very much, but I'm in doubt, and when people are in love they don't doubt. Therefore I can't be in love."

"How very disagreeable logical women are!" he retorted.

"I can't decide my whole life in a minute," she went on. "I must have time to reflect."

"You may reflect," he replied, "all the way from here to St. Germain des Pres. I'll keep still so that you can think better." The omnibus was jolting across the court of the Louvre as he spoke.

"But I can't think at all when you sit there devouring me with your big eyes," she complained.

"Then I'll look the other way," he said.

"I don't know why it is, but whenever any one makes love to me"—She broke off as if abashed at the implication of her words.

"Go on," he said. "I'm not such a fool as to think that I'm the only man who ever made love to you."

"Well, then, there's a mocking little evil spirit inside of me that always rises up and makes fun of love. I thought when the right man came he would silence that voice, but I hear it speaking now."

"Don't listen to it," he answered promptly. "You say yourself it's an evil spirit."

Neither spoke for a moment, and then she remarked as if thinking aloud:

"I shouldn't make at all a good wife. I hate sewing and fussing about a house."

"Is it a question of a housekeeper?"

"I can't even cook oatmeal!"

"Have I asked you to cook for me?"

"And I have a great many faults."

"I hope so. I detest angels."

There was another pause. Then as we rounded the corner on to the Boulevard St. Germain she asked, half laughing. "Tell me just one thing, please—what will you do if I say 'No?'"

"Oh, don't worry! I shan't kill myself. I shall make love to Aunt Martha."

I couldn't help admiring the young man's spirit. After an acquaintance of only one-half hour I was almost ready to say "Yes" to him myself. Unfortunately he had chosen Miss Helen. We rode up under the big chestnut trees of the boulevard in silence. It seemed a long way to me, but at last the old spire of St. Germain des Pres came in sight. We had reached the head of the line.

"Helen, is it 'Yes' or 'No?'"

I listened, breathless, for her answer. Now, at the very last, was she going to disappoint him—and me? People were starting to get down from the imperiale and stumbled over me as they went, but I was only dimly conscious of their feet and their apologies. In trembling suspense I waited Miss Helen's word.

"It is 'Yes,' Edward," she said. "It was 'Yes' all the time. Men are so stupid!"

"But women are so cruel, dear!"

I descended in front of the fiances, but I had scarcely put my foot on the ground when I heard an exclamation of horror behind me.

"Edward, look at that young French girl! She has on a short skirt! She's an American!"

A Rattled Bridegroom.

A young couple were married in Fenelon Falls, and a number of their friends and relatives assembled at the railway station to see them off on their honeymoon. Old slippers and rice were showered on the happy pair as they boarded the train. When they got comfortably seated in the car, the groom noticed a boot in the aisle, and, thinking it was one that had been thrown into the car by some of his jovial friends, threw the boot out of the window as the train was moving. It happened that the boot belonged to a well known Toronto commercial traveler who had removed his boots to ease his weary feet. On the arrival of the train at Lindsay the bridegroom was compelled to purchase a new pair of boots for the drummer.—Toronto Globe.

Health for Women.

"Few things are more important to a community than the health of its women. If strong is the frame of a mother," says a proverb, "the sons will give laws to the people." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is especially woman's medicine. By its action on the blood and nerves it gives strength and vigour to the delicate feminine organs and ensures their regular and healthful functions. It gives colour to the pale, strength to the weak, and a rounded form to the thin and angular.

A Pointed Suggestion.

A young married lady is often criticised by her friends because of the freedom with which she accepts little attentions from friends of the other sex.

At a recent gathering which she attended she drew from her pocket her lace handkerchief, in which a knot had been tied in order to call to her mind some trivial duty.

"Dear me," said the popular young married lady to several gallants about her, "why is that knot in my handkerchief? I tied it there to remind me of something. What could it be?"

"My child," said an old lady who overheard her and who is noted for the acrid wittiness of her repartee, "it was probably tied in order to remind you that you are married."

MAMMOTH PRIZE COMPETITION

TO BE HELD IN CONNECTION WITH

GOLD SOAP $2,500.00 IN PRIZES.

In order to get thousands of people in all parts of the country to see how pure and economical GOLD SOAP is for all manner of washing and cleaning, the manufacturers have decided to hold a Mammoth Prize Competition, to run May 15th, 1902, and end November 15th, 1902. The prizes will be awarded to the persons sending in the greatest number of Gold Soap Wrappers before November 15th, 1902. A full list of prizes will be found below, and all those who do not win a prize will receive a regular Gold Soap premium in return for their wrappers—varying in value according to the number of wrappers sent in. The manufacturers of Gold Soap could not afford to offer such an astounding inducement to the public, were it not for the fact that they feel sure that once Gold Soap is tried it will be used constantly, as no good housekeeper would think of going back to one of the common, impure soaps, after using the soap that is "worth its weight in gold." GOLD Soap is the purest, handiest, and most economical soap that it is possible to make, and if used constantly will keep down expense, make the washing more quickly and easily done, and will bring the clothes out beautifully white. In the following list

THERE ARE 5,213 PRIZES.

If you start now to save your Gold Soap wrappers, you will have quite a lot by November, and you will then share in the big Gold Soap competition. Do not be afraid to send in your wrappers, no matter how many you may have, because you are certain to receive a prize or a regular Gold Soap premium.

Please note that you are not asked to send any money or do any work of any kind—simply use the best Soap in the world, save the wrappers, and we send you a prize or a premium. This is the greatest offer ever made to the public, and will make GOLD SOAP known from ocean to ocean—and wherever it is known it is liked and recommended.

Of course, if you prefer to have one of the regular Gold Soap premiums that are described on the backs of the wrappers, you may send in your Gold Soap wrappers at any time, with a note telling which premium you wish. All Gold Soap premiums are guaranteed, so you don't take the slightest risk.

DIRECTIONS—Save your Gold Soap Wrappers and send them into Gold Soap, Toronto, marked, "Competition," before November 15th, 1902, with your own name and address enclosed. The prizes will be sent out on November 24th, with a full list of the winners. You may send your wrappers in at any time, so long as your name and address come along with each lot. Do not send in the whole wrapper, but just the centre part, with the words "Gold Soap, Good as Gold."

Ask your dealer for "Corticelli" and politely but firmly refuse all substitutes, which some clerk may say are "just as good." You may be sure they all lack the many qualities of the genuine Corticelli Silk. If your dealer does not keep Corticelli Silk, it is probably because he makes a little more money selling you some other brand. As Corticelli costs YOU no more than poor silk, why don't you try it? Ask for Corticelli—the Dressmakers' Favourite Spool Silk.

ILL-TREATING FOREIGNERS.

Not in Accord With British Fair Play.

(Toronto Star.)

The averaeg man read with satisfaction the item of news yesterday telling how a Chinaman in this city on being struck and otherwise insulted on the street by a young man wheeled around and gave his assailant as good as he got. The best part of it was the fact that eye-witnesses made it clearly understood that their sympathies were entirely with the Chinaman, who defended himself, and not with the rowdy who molested him.

Not long ago a man went into one of the Chinese laundries with the intention of tying in a bow knot the soft-eyed Celestial who kept the place, but a couple of minutes later the intruder was thrown with great violence into the street. These are useful lessons that some of our rowdies are getting.

But it should not be necessary for foreigners to procure immunity from assault by giving exhibitions of their physical prowess. In all corners of the world Anglo-Saxons have had to deal with native rowdies, as that Chinaman did last night with the Canadian hoodlum. At this very moment in Asia, Africa, South America, and the isles of the sea the Anglo-Saxon is walking the streets of cities peopled with black men, Yellow men, or brown men, everywhere asserting the right of foreigners to pass freely without molestation or insult. They boast that among us foreigners are as safe as citizens. Is this boast justified? What do the Toronto Chinamen think about it? The law here protects them when invoked, but they are often jeered at on the streets teased in their places of business, and, occasionally, have their windows broken, for no other reason than because they are Chinaman. The hoodlums are to blame; the people have no sympathy with such acts; but that is not enough. The man in the street with a stout arm in his sleeve should maintain the right of a foreigner to walk unmolested in Toronto, just as he would do if he were in Cairo or Alexandria.

Agricultural Notes.

Muskmelon blight has became troublesome in some localities.

For late strawberry crops a northern exposure, clay soil and late varieties are recommended by the New Jersey station.

In cultivating onions care should be taken not to work the soil to the bulbs or to hill them.

Canadian Spruce Forests.

It is estimated by Mr. J. C. Langeller, Superintendent of Forest Rangers of Quebec, that the Canadian spruce forests will supply the world's demand for pulpwood alone for 840 years, on the basis of 1,500,000 tons annually of manufactured pulp. The latter amount, according to The Engineering News, is equal to about the present total annual production of the United States. The extent of the spruce forests remaining untouched in the four provinces is given as follows: Ontario: 52,818,420 acres; Quebec, 144,863,454; New Brunswick, 11,224,540, and Nova Scotia, 10,853,544 acres. Out of over five billion feet board measure spruce timber consumed for all purposes in 1900, 130,400,000 feet board measure represented pulpwood and of this thirty per cent. was exported to the United States.

The Caddie Scored.

It is told of a learned professor, who is better at Greek than golf, that after a round on the links, in which he had foozled most of his shots, he turned to his caddie for advice as to improving his play.

The reply of the ruthless caddie was, "Ye see, sir, it's easy to teach laddies Latin and Greek, but it needs a head for gowf."

ON THE OTHER SIDE

A HOME WOMAN HAS SOMETHING TO SAY FOR WOMEN DOCTORS.

Dr. Stowe-Gullen's Rebuff. Her Prophecy and Its Realization—No Wider Sphere Does Not Render Women Less Tender, Less Feminine—Toronto Woman Doctors Acquit Themselves Well—Work and Womanliness.

There was a time, not so long ago, when the woman doctor had not been heard of, nor dreamed of, in our fair land. There are those with strong enough prejudice to wish she had never been heard of, nor dreamed of, to this day. But she is here, and, to judge from the way she is progressing, she is here to stay.

It is a good thing for the home woman to come in touch with her sisters of a wider, though not a higher, sphere. It teaches her lessons, helps to do away with her prejudices, and quickens her sympathy. Until I was a guest at the annual banquest of the Woman's Medical College of late, I had really no knowledge of what the pioneer in this profession was called on to pass through, or how man had impeded her way.

The woman doctor has had no royal road of learning. One easily gathered this from the experiences told. When Dr. Stowe-Gullen, whose strong individuality makes itself felt by all, made the first attempt to enter Toronto University, she met with a rebuff which staggered, but did not discourage, her. What! a woman enter the halls of learning so long held sacred to the male persuasion! Not only would the whole system of education be upset, but the very foundation of social life jeopardized. It would never do, never do!

"Then," said the girl, "those people who sit in darkness are not so far astray when they destroy all she girl babies. The custom might as well prevail in this land of boasted civilization, for if we are not allowed to grow to our full stature intellectually we have no business being alive. And, remember this, the day is approaching when you will have to open your doors." Good, was it not? And prophetic as well. For exactly seven years later the doors of Toronto University opened to admit women.

It is to the honor of women doctors that they have acquitted themselves so well. At this annual banquet we who were among them, but not of them, could not but note that they were a body of workers, at once sincere, earnest and intelligent. These women, with strength and knowledge on their side, and the best of life before them, are bound to wield a potent influence. They are in love with their profession, not afraid of work, and there is no reason why they should be one whit behind the men doctors. They have come through the arduous years of preparation, the tax on brain and body, just as their big brothers in the profession have come, and with more to their credit, since their big brothers never had confronting them, barring their way and hindering their progress, the accumulated prejudices of centuries.

The woman doctor has had her own time. Things are easier for her now, though there are still a large number who think medicine an immodest, if not an immoral, profession for women. The Adam of the medical world evidently had no longing for Eve to enter his Eden. He kept her out as long as he could. But in the end she entered, and very soon was making herself quite at home there. She has a way of getting things. We hear the expression at times, "Women have no staying powers." Let this be as it may. There are no limitations to their getting powers. Once let them feel that they have the right to a certain place, or privilege, and 'tis a strong hand will hold them back from attaining it.

But the very unwillingness of men to have women enter certain professions is perhaps the best compliment that could be paid, for it shows they are esteemed formidable rivals, and feared as such. This fear is rarely owned to. Men cloak it under various pretexts, some of which are very chivalrous. Not long ago an eminent man said to a woman worker of whom Canadian women are proud, "Woman's place is not in the rush and strife—we do not want her for a comrade and co-worker, we want her to cheer us, and to be an inspiration to us." The answer he received was significant. "Sir," she said, "the time when the chief end of woman was to inspire man is past. An inspiration she is, and always will be, but this is not all. She has found her worth. She has her own life work to do, and if she be a true woman her aim is to do it thoroughly and well."

He did not look convinced. Our prejudices die hard. Education, culture, travel, these do not put an end to them; nothing does but experience, and then the process is a lengthy one.

A good woman is about the best thing this old world holds, and it seems to me she ought to be allowed to be as wise as she wishes, and as useful as she can be in any walk of life. Men should have enough confidence in her to give her the right hand of fellowship and the advantages due to a brother. It is all she asks. No fear of her being less tender, less feminine, because of her calling. Work never filched an atom of womanliness from anyone. It is the one who knows the most, and does the most, who is womanly to her finger-tips. She has learned the worth of a soul and realizes that humanity and divinity are near akin. When goodness and truth are hers they are hers for any walk of life. So, when objections are raised to our woman doctirs let it be on some other ground than the old worn one of the work unsexing them. They have not lost either feminine virtues—or feminine failings—by the years of preparation and of practice. And let it be on some other ground than the old worn one of the work being to hard for them, for a healthier, cheerier lot of women than the women doctors of Toronto it would be hard to find. They maintain that there is pressing need of a woman's hospital, and are most anxious to secure one. Many of the leading women of the city are taking a warm interest in the matter, and a few years hence Toronto will likely boast of a well-equipped and well-managed woman's hospital.

The doctors practising in our midst are:—Dr. Skinner, President of the association; Dr. Lelia Davis, President-elect; Dr. Stowe-Gullen, Dr. Bertha Dymond, Secretary College Hospital Board; Dr. Ida Lynd, Dr. Gray, Dr. Borden, Dr. McCallum, Dr. Julia Thomas; Dr. Greenway, Dr. Hume and Dr. Jean Wilson. A clever lady, Dr. Helen MacMurchy, is at present taking a post-graduate course at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. Many of the graduates of the Woman's Medical College hold important positions in the States and in other countries. Among the guests of the evening was Miss Clara Brett Martin, whose bright response to a toast was listened to with great attention. She enjoys the distinction of being the one woman lawyer, and one easily gathered from her remarks that she had had to meet and overcome difficulties innumerable.

Success to you, pioneers in the different professions! The world is God's big workshop and we are all his workmen, and must make the most of life. We home women cannot smooth out the difficulties for you, but we can surely give you a full measure of the sympathy, encouragement and confidence you so well deserve.—Jean Blewett, in Toronto Globe.

REV. DR. E. H. DEWART.

Well Known Methodist Clergyman Recently Celebrated His 50th Anniversary.

Recently Rev. Dr. Edward Hartley Dewart preached his jubilee sermon in the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, in commemoration of the fact that he was received on probation for the ministry at the Wesleyan Methodist Conference held at Kingston fifty years ago. For twenty-five years of this time, from 1869 to 1894, Dr. Dewart was editor of The Christian Guardian, the principal organ of the Methodist Church in Canada.

Born in the County Cavan, Ireland, 1828, Mr. Dewart was brought to Canada six years later by his parents, who settled in Peterboro' County. Educated at the local schools and the Provincial Normal School, for a time Mr Dewart taught, and on his admission as a probationer, was appointed on the St. Thomas circuit as a junior. Fully accepted in 1855, his first charge was at Dundas, and in the fourteen years before his appointment to The Guardian, Dr. Dewet held charges at St. Andrew's, Montreal; St. John, N.B.; Collingwood and Ingersoll. In 1873, with Rev. Dr. Nelles, he went to England to arrange the terms of settlement arising from the union. Again he visited London in 1881 to attend the Ecumenical Conference, and was also at that held at Washington ten years later. Dr. Dewart had a large share in the work of compiling a hymn book, to which his own poetical tastes gave especial value. In 1897 he received the degree of D.D. from Victoria University. He is a prohibitionist, and President of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance in 1880, President of the Toronto Conference in 1882, and President of the Canadian Press Association in 1889. The wisdom of his work in promoting the union of Toronto and Victoria Universities is justified by its fruits. At different periods Dr. Dewart has published volumes, pamphlets and even original verse. Among the first was an essay against the use of tobacco by Christians. Although superannuated by his church in 1894, he conducted a vigorous campaign as Liberal candidate in North Toronto in 1898, but was defeated.

A Toronto Man's Story.

A Toronto gentleman, who has been traveling in Italy, returns with a story illustrating the average Britisher's contempt for every country but his own. The Toronto man is quite sure that imperialism will never go in this country if all Englishmen are like the one he met on the Bay of Naples. It was aboard one of the pleasure steamers, and the Englishman and the Canadian happened to be leaning over the taffrail together. The bay was sparkling in the sunshine; the finest brand of fleckless, blue Italian sky was overhead; Naples shimmered in the golden haze like a dream city; in the background was an almost riotous verdure shouldering its way up Vesuvius; the fierce old mountain itself was doing a little smoking to entertain the tourists.

"Isn't this beautiful?" asked the Canadian, rapturously.

"My dear fellow," replied the Britisher, screwing his monocle in a little tighter, "nothing is beautiful in the blawsted country where you cawn't get a mutton chop."

Chancellor Burgwash.

With reference to the Chancellor Burgwash in English history, of whom an interesting ghost story was told recently, it has come to the knowledge of The Globe that this interesting ecclesiastical dignitary of the 13th century was a progenitor of our own Chancellor Burwash of Victoria University, whose election to the Royal Society of Canada was effected at the present meeting. The name in those days varied between Burghirsh, Burgwash and Burwash. There are interesting references in Froissart to Sir Bartholomew Burwash, probably a brother of the Bishop of whom the legend was told.

MODERN GRAND PRE.

A Visit to the Scene of Longfellow's Great Poem.

Close to the ancient and historic willows a threshing-machine crew had just finished bagging up the oats from one of the dyked farms, and were lying about in various attitudes of repose, writes S. T. Wood, in The Globe. An inquiry as to the oats crop brought forth the information that I was the first man along that week who hadn't asked about Evangeline.

"Well, how about Evangeline?" I asked.

"There are lots of Evangelines around here; some of 'em pretty nice too."

I explained that my interest in Evangeline was in the main historical, and if at all poetic, it was strictly in a literary sense. A bag of oats is comfortable and inviting after a long walk, and I was freely initiated into the mysteries of modern Grand Pre. The high land about two miles away on the shore of an arm of Minas Basin, was at one time an island, when the broad area of newly-mown stubble was brown slippery mud and salt grass, covered by the water at high tide. The industrious Acadians built dykes from the two ends of the island, continuing its crescent form around to the mainland, and thus enclosing 2,300 acres of alluvial mud, which they converted into farms and gardens. The present owners maintained these barricades against the water, and have recently built a new one, that rescued about 500 acres more from the tides of the basin. The dams are still called abattoires, the Acadian name surviving with the monumental product of Acadian industry. Owners of land within the dyke, pay, in addition to ordinary municipal rates a dyke tax levied by the Dyke Commissioners. Those who live close to the dykes generally make their contributions by labor, the commissioners may call them out to work at any time if the tide threatens to break the barricades. A close watch is kept for every sign of weakening or washing out, and the water is scarcely ever allowed to gain any headway. It is over thirty years since a really destructive break occurred. Sometimes a gap is opened to flood the land for fertilizing purposes, and it is done in such a way that it can be repaired when the tide recedes. These barricades against the enemy have a fanciful resemblance to a fortification, for in many places the outside moat still remains, from which the mud was taken to build the wall. Some of the walls are faced with boards, some are strengthened and stiffened by layers of branches and small trunks of trees, while others are merely ridges of solid earth, overgrown with grass and weeds, and as free from traces of modern workmanship as pre-historic mounds. The salt grass on the flats outside the dykes is gathered between tides and makes good fodder, though not equal to the hay of the reclaimed meadows.

As we reclined on the oat bags pilgrims were constantly arriving in carriages from Wolfville, the recognized Evangeline centre. They would climb the stile, walk to the well, sit a few minutes on the bench under the willow and return to their carriages.

"Is that Evangeline's well?" asked two ladies with one voice, as I carefully climbed a substantial post in the barbed wire fence.

"Yes, that's the well."

"Where was the forge of Basil, the blacksmith?"

"Right here where we are standing." At each positive assurance they quickly exchanged knowing and incredulous glances.

"Where was the church?"

"Over there where the cows are looking at us."

"Where was the long street?"

"Right beside this barbed wire fence."

"Where did Father Felician live?"

"On the far side of that post."

"How do you know all these places?" asked one after part first had been exhausted.

"I guess at them."

"Do you live here?"

"Temporarily."

"Oh! it's a fine day." And they started for their carriage, while I struck across the fields and meadows toward the high ridge that was once an island. The distance was deceiving, but the view from the rounding hill, where an abandoned farm-house with diminutive panes of glass, suggests an earlier epoch, was abundant reward. The rich brown of the polished mud flats, with their winding lines of grey water and bright green patches of salt grass, stretched out to meet the rising tide on the arms of Minas Basin. The "look-off" of Blomidon premontory seemed strangely near, while a curtain of fog was slowly rising from the mountain ridge, its swaying fringe obscuring the meeting line of forest and sky. And landward on either side, the long, tortuous ridges of the dykes showed where the Acadian peasants had commanded the rising tide to come no farther.

Lightning and Thunderclouds.

In a lecture on "Rainclouds and Lightning" a scientist explained the extreme blackness and grotesque shape of thunderclouds as being caused by electrification and said that occasionally lightning goes upward from ground to cloud. Lightning continues until the thundercloud has risen too high above the subjacent ground for the tension requisite. As the cloud lifts the lightning's path becomes more vertical. Thunderheads may be seen 200 miles.

Window glass has been broken by heavy thunder. The cumuli rise to a height of some six miles, then slop over and form a base (thunder base). Lightning will fall vertically from the extreme limit of the haze cloud sometimes, though no rain is falling. Lightning causes the clouds to partially fall to the earth in showers, and so itself causes rain.

The Invention of the Steamboat.

Robert Fulton's Clermont, the first steamboat of any practical value, was launched into the East river. It is not known who first conceived the idea of propelling boats by steam; probably Salomon de Caus, in 1615. Many persons experimented with steam propulsion between 1763, when William Henry of Pennsylvania placed a small boat on the Conestoga river, and 1807, when the Clermont made its trip to Albany. Among them were the Marquis de Jonffroy, James Rumsey and John Fitch. These men produced models which were worthy of the name steamboat, but the Clermont was the first steam vessel produced which actually carried passengers and freight, and Robert Fulton is fairly entitled to the credit of inventing the steamboat.

DR. PITCHER HELPS AN OLD MAN.

The Kidney Weakness, Irritability, and Frequent Rising at Night, all Cured by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

People advanced in years are so prone to kidney trouble. The filtering of the body become clogged up and out of order after years of incessant work keeping the blood pure.

There is too frequent urination, disturbing the rest at night, pain or scalding, weakness of the bladder, non-retention of the urine, and severe pain in the back, making stooping or rising a painful operation.

For these conditions there is no remedy so effective as Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

They make old people rejoice in renewed strength and vigour of the whole urinary system, take the pain and stiffness out of the back, and permit undisturbed rest at night.

Mr. Joseph Eppon, 503 Dundas street, Woodstock, Ont., who has been in the book and and stationary business for over thirty-five years, says:

"With people reaching my age, sixty-seven years, more or less backache and kidney trouble is not uncommon. For over a year I have had more or less trouble and irritation in that direction, which I lay to the long hours on my feet of years past. Wishing to put an end to a trouble that was growing progressively worse, I procured a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and am pleased to say they are satisfactory in every respect. I did not quite finish the one bottle I got, yet all pain and irritation are completely gone. I am pleased to recommend them to others."

Superstition Hard to Kill.

For more than a millennium England has been a Christian nation, yet in the museum at Oxford we see images bristling with rusty nails and needles, which demonstrate the late survival of a belief in sympathetic magic, in the rural communities whence these objects came. Within the university itself I secured a desiccated specimen of a familiar vegetable which an officer of one of the colleges had carried for years as a preventive of rheumatism! Neither centuries of enlightenment nor the revolutionary changes of this progressive age have exterminated such beliefs. They even adapt themselves to the new conditions, as in the case of the lady living within the shadow of the walls of Harvard university, who maintains that carbons from arc lamps are a sure preventive of neuralgia!—Journal of American Folklore.

A Story of Cecil Rhodes

Once at a big dinner which Cecil Rhodes gave at Groote Schuur, where all the servants were men, a charming woman came down in a tea gown which was a "dream," but which was cut high up to the wearer's diamond clasped throat. Cecil Rhodes, who was orthodox in his notions of dress, looked at the tea gown, but said nothing. Next morning, however, he sent his secretary to the woman of the high necked gown with this message: "I like my guests to dine in evening dress and not in compromise, however charming."

A Consultation Held.

Drs. McDade, Rush and Sims, three of the most eminent American doctors, in a series of articles, outlined a tonic treatment calculated to cure a vast number of diseases. Their suggestions were embodied in a formula which is dispensed by a Brantford druggist and called Merrill's System Tonic. It is a reliable and pleasant remedy for stomach, bowel and kidney diseases. Sold at 50c per bottle at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

GREAT DEAL IN JULY CORN.

Controlled by Strongest and Richest Group of Speculators.

Chicago, July 14.—Corn is worth more than wheat. For ten days it has maintained a price so high it sets all Board of Trade ideas topsy turvey. Such a relation has only twice occurred in many years, and neither time did it last longer than a few minutes. The situation is one of the wonders of the modern commercial world.

The reason for it is even more striking than the fact. Corn has been rushed to its high price by means of the manipulations of the strongest and richest ring of speculators who ever joined hands to bull markets and drive bears to destruction.

It is a purely speculative deal, a straight-away battle between a set of men who have cornered the market on the one side, and on the other elevator men and grain dealers who systematically hedge their holdings by selling short with a few speculators who picked the wrong side.

Never before have operations been carried on with such complete security and confidence. Compared with the present deal, that of Joseph Leiter in wheat was retail trade. In the past 40 days corn has gone up 30 cents.

KITCHENER HONORED.

King Edward VII. Personally Compliments the Hero.

IS ACCLAIMED BY VAST CROWDS

Southampton and London Give Him the Greatest Welcome of Many Remarkable South African War Welcomes—How He Received the Homage of Prince and Peasant—His Genial Modesty.

London, July 14,—Lord Kitchener, on arrival at Buckingham Palace, Saturday, was speedily conducted to the King's sick chamber, and His Majesty, from his couch, extended a warm welcome to him and personally expressed his thanks for the termination of hostilities. The King then presented Lord Kitchener with the decoration of the New Order of Merit. The General next saw the Queen, after which he drove to Lord Roberts' residence, in Portland Place. Lord Kitchener will visit Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, today.

Tolerance in His Smile.

There never was a more unassuming hero than Londoners enthusiastically welcomed Saturday when they opened their arms to Lord Kitchener.

He reciprocated the welcome with the grim satisfaction characteristic of the man. He accepted the addresses and the compliments of royalties and the wild applause of the crowds with a suspicion of tolerance in his smile. He went about the hard day's work as if he were performing an act of duty and with good-humored determination.

The reception accorded him by the people had that touch of spontaneity without which popular acclamation lacks the ring of genuineness, but it left this strong, still man almost unmoved.

At Southampton he bore with the tedious orations of self-important corporations not without symptoms of impatience, and he replied to their long-winded panegyrics in two sentences.

Every time he spoke publicly he displayed unmistakable signs of nervousness, but his powerful self-control never deserted him.

His manner to every one from the Prince of Wales and Earl Roberts to the enthusiastic railroad porter who held out his hand for a shake (that was cordially given), was the same.

General Staff Looked Vulgar.

He wore a neat unornamented khaki uniform. As he stepped out of the train at Paddington Station he towered above everybody, and his smart, business-like dress made the brilliant scarlet uniforms of the general staff look vulgar and artificial.

The Prince of Wales greeted him with unaccustomed animation, grasping his right hand warmly, and at the same time laying the other hand upon Lord Kitchener's arm.

Lord Kitchener saluted him with the same tolerate smile he bestowed on everybody else. There was no effusiveness, still less any air of superiority but a genial modesty of demeanor infinitely attractive.

His speaking voice is rich, full and indeed melodious. His speeches brief, almost curt in form, still tingle with honest feeling.

He has grown stouter than the gaunt shadow he was when he returned from the Soudan, but he still retains a spare, soldiery figure and the precision of movement of a man whose every act is guided by system and method.

The Long and the Short of It.

Lord Robert's head reached only about three buttons above Lord Kitchener's belt. They presented a striking contrast as Lord Kitchener, with his right hand raised against his peaked cap in formal salute, advanced to meet his chief, who had both hands outstretched in welcome.

As Lord Kitchener drove through the cheerings throngs to St. James' Palace, he glanced around half-amusedly as he bowed.

His attitude throughout, in the face of demonstrations of admiration calculated to turn the head of any man, was suggestive of agreeable but subdued surprise.

Before he visited the King and the Queen, Lord Kitchener had changed his uniform and undergone a drastic process of fumigation, lest he might carry smallpox—which appeared on the steamship which brought him from Cape Town to Southampton—to the already afflicted royal palace.

But he bore everything with cheerful resignation and spoke everywhere in the fewest words possible.

ARRIVAL AT SOUTHAMPTON.

South African Hero Accorded a Magnificent Welcome.

Southampton, July 14.—The Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Orotava, which left Cape Town June 28, with Lord Kitchener and staff on board, arrived here at half-past eight o'clock Saturday morning. Owing to the fact that Major Gordon, who also was a passenger on the steamer, had been stricken with smallpox, Lord Kitchener and his staff only were allowed to land. The Orotava has been placed in quarantine.

Lord Kitchener, from South Africa, landed at 9.15 a.m. He was accorded a magnificent welcome from a huge throng of people. After a brief official reception at the docks, the General was driven through the decorated streets to Hartley Hall where he received an address from the Chamber of Commerce.

In reply, Lord Kitchener declared that whatever success had been achieved was due to the rank and file of the army. He thanked those who had looked after the friends and relatives of those left behind in South Africa.

Lord Kitchener reached London at 12.48 p.m. His progress through the metropolis after three years' absence at the Boer war was one of the most memorable of the many remarkable of the past three years.

The platform at Paddington station was crowded with distinguished personages, including Indian princes in full uniform and many ladies in beautiful summer dresses. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge, who is now very infirm, Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief; Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Secretary; Mr. Brodrick, the War Secretary; the Duchess of Somerset, Lady Roberts, Lady French, Major-General Sir Francis R. Wingate, who succeeded Kitchener as Sirdar of the Egyptian army and Governor-General of the Soudan; and Major-General Slatin Pasha, British Inspector-General of the Soudan, were among those who assembled to meet the general.

When Lord Kitchener's train arrived, punctual to the minute, a tremendous cheer greeted the latest hero as he emerged from his car and shook hands with the Prince of Wales. He stood head and shoulders above nearly every one on the platform, and his workmanlike khaki uniform, with the large brown sun helmet made familiar by his pictures was in striking contrast to the glittering uniforms and rows of medals and orders worn by most of those in waiting. The reception lasted ten or fifteen minutes, when the Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal Family drove off.

Shortly before the arrival of the procession at Buckingham Palace, Queen Alexandra and the Princesses appeared on a balcony and remained there until the victor of South Africa had passed on his triumphal journey to the St. James' Palace, which he entered amidst a final hurricane of cheers.

Kitchener and the generals who accompanied him were entertained at luncheon in the great banqueting hall, where covers were laid for 50 persons. The Prince of Wales occupied the central seat with Lord Kitchener on the right and Lord Roberts opposite. Among the guests were the Premier, Lord Salisbury, Lord Lansdowne, Mr. Brodrick and Lord Raglan, the Under Secretary for War. The hall was hung with pictures representing war scenes.

The luncheon occupied an hour and a half. The Prince of Wales toasted King Edward, and then proposed a toast to Lord Kitchener. The Prince expressed the pleasure which it gave him to extend to the general on behalf of the King the heartiest congratulations on the successful manner in which he terminated a long and arduous compaign. His Royal Highness also expressed confidence that the Sovereign's sentiments in this matter were shared by the Empire, which watched with admiration the general's tenacity, skill and patience, qualifications in which his army followed his example. Lord Kitchener made a brief reply, and soon afterward proceeded to Buckingham Palace to see the King and Queen.

Gen. French also comes in for many encomiums.

"BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE"

In an article in its issue of Saturday, the Globe founds upon the above title, a timely article touching upon the treatment too often accorded to public men in relation to important services they have rendered the community, and as the spirit of the article has some local significance, a little reference to it is suggested. The Globe points out that Mr. A. E. Ames, President of the Toronto Board of Trade, was subjected by Mayor Howland to imputations of unworthy motives in connection with his services to the city in settling the street car strike. The people of the city heartily recognized Mr. Ames' services, but it remained for Mayor Howland to minimize them by insinuating that he and those connected with him, including Mr. J. W. Flavelle, were acting as "a committee of the Railway Company," and were therefore prompted by selfish motives, and not by considerations of the public interest. It is unnecessary to say that this sneer is undeserved. The Examiner has no brief to defend Mr. Ames, but all the circumstances show that he deserves no end of credit for the course he pursued, and the action he took, which, as the Globe points out, saved the city from "an industrial conflict of no common magnitude." That his motives should be misconstrued, and that he should be subjected to such a slander, the suggestion, doubtless of envy, if not malice, is, unfortunately, what might have been expected, for illustrations are common enough to indicate how prevalent is the spirit of envy which success engenders in some natures. Mr. Ames, when he was in Peterborough, was a young man who filled his place in the community with becoming modesty. He removed to Toronto; opportunity presented; he used the opportunity, and what was in the man came out. By the exercise of his business ability, by industry, hard work and intelligent devotion to his duties he has risen to a prominent, if not foremost position, in the financial world, and has had the honour, no mean one, either, to be esteemed worthy of occupying the position of President of the Board of Trade of the second largest and most important commercial city of the Dominion. That he has thus risen, is greatly to Mr. Ames' credit; and when he uses the influences which the position he has acquired, confers, and gives the time, which means much to so busy a man, to perform a signal service to the community, it is unfortunate, to put it most mildly, that his motives should be questioned and distorted, even in the face of services whose importance and value cannot be ignored, and which the community generally, apart from a few envious soreheads, heartily appreciated. But the spirit behind this attitude is not confined to Toronto. We have had in Peterborough examples of it. Persons who have by the exercise of industry and business ability, made a success of life, and risen to positions of influence and prominence, have used their influence, without any motives of personal profit, to benefit the community and advance the interests of the town. While the services rendered could not be ignored by the envious, the latter by dark hints and unworthy insinuations have sought to belittle the value of such services by imputing motives of self-seeking and aggrandizement, which did not exist. One has only to recall, as an example, the circumstances of the controversy which accompanied the efforts to establish the Otonabee Power Company, which made possible the establishment and operation of the Canadian Cordage Company's Works, which are to-day, even in the first incomplete stages of operation, employing seventy-five hands with a weekly pay-roll of $500, as an instalment of 200 hands and a pay-roll of $1,400 a week, when the concern is in full operation as it will be this autumn. The spirit of detraction and envy of success is further illustrated by this fact. A stranger dropped into a shop and inquired of the proprietor where the Cordage Works were situated and what they were doing. This public-spirited merchant told the stranger that they were doing nothing at all—that the Works bought the twine which they pretended to make. Had the stranger believed his informant he might have left the town with a bad impression of Peterborough and the morality and enterprise of its citizens. He told the merchant that he had just come from the works and that machinery was running and twine being made. He saw it through the windows. He did not know how to get admission and was at that moment looking for the President to get permission to visit the Works. Here was a citizen of the town directly benefitted by the increased patronage, the operation of the Works brought him, unable to subordinate his spirit of envy at success. He is a type of a class of which Mayor Howland is a shining example. Public benefactors, if they heeded the slanders of men like these, would be discouraged, but they have too sincere and earnest a desire to use their efforts and influence in the interests of the communities they are citizens of to be affected or deterred by the imputations of the envious, who are generally represented by a class of citizens who are of no earthly use to the country, but rather a drag on the wheels of progress—who have the most to say and do the least.

LAURIER COMPLIMENTS GREAT BRITAIN.

Sir Wilfred Laurier, says the Insurance and Financial Chronicle, is one of the great orators of the day, probably the greatest in the Empire, which, though rich in statesmen of distinction, has very few orators, in the proper sense of that much misused word. At the dinner given recently by the Constitutional Club, of London, the Premier of Canada carried off the honours. He rebuked those who have been declaring that Britain had been on the crest of a wave of Jingoism, and was continuing under its power. Sir Wilfred said that Great Britain stands alone in Europe as the one great power which can never be wholly swayed by militarism. The compliment is as deserved as it is flattering. England has never had the military fever; its wars have never been inspired by military ambition; some have been most unwise, ill-judged, quixotic, but the most censurable have been carried on for defensive or strategic purposes, or to carry out diplomatic engagements with foreign allies, or punish foes who threaten her commerce or honour. No nation has so splendidly rewarded military genius, but for mere "glory" Britain has never struck a blow or fired a shot. Sir Wilfrid is right; he showed genius in interpreting the spirit of the old land when he declared that England will never be carried away by the spirit of militarism.

A Consultation Held.

Drs. McDade, Rush and Sims, three of the most eminent American doctors, in a series of articles, outlined a tonic treatment calculated to cure a vast number of diseases. Their suggestions were embodied in a formula which is dispensed by a Brantford druggist and called Merrill's System Tonic. It is a reliable and pleasant remedy for stomach, bowel and kidney diseases. Sold at 50c per bottle at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

The oldest royal dynasty in the world is that of Japan, which goes back unbroken for 2600 years.

THE EMPIRE'S GRANARY.

The Name Applied to Canada is no Unmeaning Term.

An extract was given in day or two ago from the report of the Agricultural Department of the North West Territory, for the year 1901. Further examination shows that the future production of grain and other produce of that wonderful bountry cannot be estimated if the increase seen between 1900 and 1901 in the development is likely to continue in proportion. And there is no reason for doubting that as immigration grows and traffic facilities are increased the development will be even more rapid and extraordinary than at present. The triumphal Canadian Coronation arch in London, bore the inscription, "Canada, the Granary of the Empire." The report of the Government of the North-west Territories, shows that the title was more than justified. It shows that in the following named crops, the yield in four years was successively;

	Wheat.	Oats.	Barley.
1898	5,542,478	3,040,307	449,512
1899	4,028,294	4,226,152	363,216
1900	4,028,294	4,226,152	353,216
1901	12,803,417	9,716,132	795,100

It will be seen that last year's crop shows an enormous leap in quantity. The average yield per acre in wheat, 25.37 bushels, in oats 42.88, and in barley 32.18 as compared with 9.76, 24,08 and 32.18 respectively in 1900. The acreage under crop last year was 755,967, compared with 605,247 in 1900. But it is not in grain alone that the Territories are going to excel. The government is making every effort to increase the quality and consequent value of her stock of all kinds. As it is the Territories have largely established their claim to be the cattle depot of Britain and the report shows that the total exports of cattle for the year 1900 constituted something over 48,000 head, out of the 115,000 exported from all Canada. Thus 42 per cent. of the totall Canadian cattle export emanates from the Territories. The Department of Agriculture is doing its best, not only to hold what it has, but to increase it. It is alive to the fact that it rules over an agricultural country and is acting accordingly. Thirty-eight pure-bred bulls were brought into the Territories last year from Ontario and Manitoba points under the usual departmental arrangement, and the Department, in conjunction with the Territorial Pure-Bred Cattle Breeders' Association, is sparing no pains to foster the local production of pure bred cattle, the conditions being now favourable. To assist local breeders of pure-bred stock, the department has entered into an arrangement similar to that already made for bulls, by which pure-bred cown and heifers may be brought in free of transportation charges to the consignees on the payment of a nominal fee to the department. Statistics of the dairy industry in the Territories are given. The figures show continued and marked progress. Farmers' Institutes and Agricultural Societies have been established and progress is seen on all sides. But the government is not confining its efforts to agriculture. It projects hospitals, sanitaria for consumptives, the magnificent air of the locality making it equally suitable for such institutions. This "great North-west" is at present not very widely known, save in name. It is evidently going to become in a very few years one of the richest, most productive and improtant sections of the Dominion.

FIRST POSTPONEMENT OF CORONATION.

No Precedent Event in the Records of Royalty.

The postponement of a coronation has never happened before in the history of the world. A search through the records of the British Museum, and enquiries made of eminent historians, are unable to bring to light a single instance of such an untoward occurrence.

All the Kings and Queens of England have been crowned, with the exception of Edward V., the young Prince, who, with his brother, was murdered in the tower within six weeks of ascending the throne.

This unparalleled event makes it impossible to predict what procedure will be followed on the present occasion.

COMPLEXION AND FOOD.

Many Grain Foods Have a Tendency to Disfigure the Face.

Malt Breakfast Food

Promotes Healthy Circulation, Perfect Digestion and a Clear Complexion.

Complexion—a good complexion—very largely depends upon the character of food used from day to day. Some grain foods used at the morning meal produce roughness and redness of the skin, as well as unsightly eruptions. Some foods act upon the blood in such a way that sallowness becomes very pronounced, and the eyes lose luster and brightness.

The use of Malt Breakfast Food guarantees a clear, clean and healthful complexion, with sparkling eyes, perfect digestion and circulation. Thousands have given up the use of blood-heating oatmeal, and by using Malt Breakfast Food, have secured pure, life-giving blood and a good complexion. Prove it for yourself. Grocers everywhere.

TORONTO'S TRIBUTE.

Impressive Funeral Services of the Five Brave Firemen.

Toronto, July 14.—A great throng of citizens began to throng the streets around St. James' Cathedral hours before the time arranged for the funeral ceremonies of the five brave firemen who lost their lives in the McIntosh fire last week.

Following brief services at the residences of the victims their bodies were escorted to St. James' Cathedral, where the civic funeral was held, when a procession of civic societies was formed which accompanied the caskets to the cemetery.

Every detail of the ceremonies was marked with impressiveness, but the most extraordinary feature was the gathering of almost all of the city's population along the route of the funeral cortege to pay their last respects.

The formation of the cortege was rapidly completed in spite of the vast number ready to march to the cemetery. The massed bands of the city rendered dirges en route and a muffled drum corps contributed to the sad strains.

The procession from the cathedral was an imposing spectacle, and was over a mile in length. The various organizations taking part were marshalled on King and Yonge streets, where they awaited the formation of the parade.

Mount Pleasant's emerald carpet was tramped to pieces by the enormous number present. Garlands were strewn along the path of the pallbearers, and the yellow earth at the grave-side was buried beneath banks of white and gold.

The Orangemen had charge of the services at the graves. So closely packed were the mourners that it was with difficulty that the members of the order carried out the solemn ritual. At the conclusion of the reading the brethren marched in a circle around the opening in which the caskets lay ready for the earth. The ritual is impressive, and tears were flowing freely among the thousands surrounding the scene.

Turning Down the Doctors.

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

Killed by a Train.

Belleville, July 14.—Henry Sharpe, an old man, aged 83, living at Glen Miller, near here, was walking on the G.T.R. to visit his son, living about two miles this side of Trenton, when he was struck by the express leaving Belleville at 11.30 yesterday. Both legs were broken and his shoulder was dislocated, and he only lived about thirty minutes. Two sons, Frank and Gordon Sharpe, survive, both living in this city.

Didn't Know His Wife.

When T. Coleman, a Brantford traveller, left on a three weeks' trip his wife was a yellow faced fagged out looking woman. When he returned he didn't know her. Her eyes were bright and her skin clear and she walked differently. Merrill's System Tonic did it. 50 cents for 50 doses.

BALFOUR IS PREMIER

Government Leader in Commons Consults Chamberlain.

LORD SALISBURY RESIGNS.

The New Premier's Relations With the Colonial Secretary Are Said to Be of the Most Cordial Character—The Personnel of the New Cabinet Is Causing Much Speculation —Sketch of Their Career.

London, July 14.—The Marquis of Salisbury has resigned the Premiership of Great Britain, and Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the First Lord of the Treasury and Government leader in the House of Commons, has been appointed to succeed him. The marquis' resignation was tendered at an audience which he had with King Edward last Friday. Saturday Mr. Balfour visited the King, and accepted the premiership.

The fact of the resignation of the premiership of Great Britain by Lord Salisbury was officially given out last evening.

The liveliest speculation is rife as to the personnel of the new cabinet. The most discussed feature of the impending changes is the position of Mr. Chamberlain (the Colonial Secretary), who in many quarters, has been regarded as the most promising candidate for the premiership.

Prior to the acceptance of his new office, Mr. Balfour had an interview with Mr. Chamberlain, and then consulted with his other cabinet associates. This is regarded as assurance that the future relative positions of Messrs. Balfour and Chamberlain will be satisfactory to both.

What the Times Says.

London, July 14.—The Times states that Lord Salisbury's resignation was not caused by any political differences with his colleagues in the cabinet, and says: "We understand that the King was very anxious to mark in some special manner his high sense of the great service Lord Salisbury has rendered to the State, and expressed a desire to bestow upon the retiring minister some conspicuous promotion or decoration; but Lord Salisbury begged to be allowed to decline the proposed honor. There is reason to believe that the King sought Lord Salisbury's advice as to his successor, and that the retiring Prime Minister suggested Mr. Balfour. A message was thereupon sent from the Palace to Mr. Balfour at the House of Commons. The feeling that it was impossible to respond to the King's wishes with success, without having secured the concurrence and support of Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Balfour immediately drove to the Colonial Secretary's house and saw him in his sick room. We are in a position to state that he was met in the most cordial manner, and that Mr. Chamberlain realized that Mr. Balfour was the natural successor to the Premiership, and assured him of his entire support."

RT. HON. A. J. BALFOUR.

KING VICTOR IN RUSSIA.

Will Consult Czar re Reduction of Armament.

St. Petersburg, July 14.—Emperor Nicholas II., the Czarowitch, the Russian Grand Dukesh, Count Lamsdorff, the Minister of Foreign Affairs; the other Cabinet Ministers, and a number of officers greeted King Victor Emmanuel of Italy upon his arrival here yesterday.

Rome, July 14.—One of the principal questions of discussion between King Victor Emmanuel and the Czar will be the reduction of armaments.

He Was Sorry.

"A man just called, doctor, an ugly fellow, who asked if you were in and said he wanted to give you a horsewhipping."

"Well, and what did you tell him?"

"I said I was extremely sorry, but you were not at home!"

KILLED TORONTO MAN.

Robert Coburn Found Guilty of Manslaughter on Saturday.

Chicago, July 14.—Robert Coburn, a magistrate and wealthy farmer at Stickney, near here, was found guilty of manslaughter Saturday. He shot and killed Charles Miller and wounded his brother John last fall. The boys were tramping from Toronto, Ont. John said they were resting quietly near their camp fire when, without provocation, Coburn opened fire on them with a rifle. Coburn alleged they were trying to break into his stable.

THE SLATER
There are as many shapes of "Slater Shoes" as there are forms of feet — this means that no matter what shape, size or width your foot may be, a "Slater Shoe" can be had to fit it comfortably.
"Slater Shoes" are modelled from the living 20th century foot—with all its distortions and peculiarities.
No other shoe is made with so much regard for feet as the "Slater Shoe."
With its foot-fitting qualities you get wear, appearance and Goodyear welt comfort—that goes almost without saying when it is branded in a slate frame with name and price, $3.50 and $5.00.

CLOTHING SACRIFICES

Our Mid-summer Greatest Sale on Earth is in full action. There has never been a more reckless slashing of prices and total disregard of values.

If you are melting, run in here. Everything to dress you cool and give you a neat appearance.

We handle more merchandise than any other store at this season of the year, because we can relieve makers of entire stocks, while otherwise they would have to "job" them ont. And so, with impunity, we quote sales of manufacturers' stocks at such bargain prices that no other store can meet.

Every advantage we gain in this sale we turn over to you. Our bargain getting is for your profit.

This week will see great crowds at our Greatest Sale on Earth.

PARK ST. S. S. PICNIC

to Jubilee Point on July 17th. City of Peterborough leaves wharf at 8.15 a.m. sharp. Races and prizes. Adults 35c, children 15c.

An Opportunity.

Mr. E. Phelan has instructed Mr. Haggart, auctioneer, to sell by public auction on the premises, corner of Park and Gilmour streets, on Thursday, 17th of July next, that desirable residence, formerly occupied by Mr. T. F. Matthews. The lot is 90 x 45 (two fronts) and the house is a solid brick structure, complete with all modern improvements, and recently repainted and papered throughout. Terms easy. For particulars see either Mr. Phelan or Mr. Haggart, auctioneer. 4d2aw

Murray Street Excursion.

The Picnic Committee of the Murray street Baptist Sunday School, after investigating the condition of Highland Park, and finding it in a most unsatisfactory condition to hold a picnic, have decided to run down to Jubilee Point. The boat will leave the town wharf at 8.30 sharp on Tuesday, July 15th, arriving at the Point at 11 o'clock, and leaving for home at 5 o'clock sharp, arriving at 8 o'clock. This arrangement is more satisfactory, giving plenty of time to run off sports, etc. Tickets have been fixed at 35c for adults, children between 12 and 17 years 20c., and all under 12 years free.

For the accommodation of Ashburnham citizens the boat will call at the Ashburnham wharf.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Another Case of "Didn't Know it was Loaded"—Eyesight Gone.

Mr. Louis Craig, who resides on George street, over W. H. Wrighton's store, met with an accident on Sunday, by which he will likely lose the sight of his left eye. Mr. Craig has had a revolver lying in the house containing one or more blank cartridges. On Sunday, Miss Paterson, a sister-in-law of Mr. Craig's, picked up the revolver, and jokingly remarked that she was going to shoot him, at the same time pulling the trigger. The cartridge was only a blank one, but the pistol was held so close to Mr. Craig's face that it caused severe injury to his left eye. Dr. McCullough, who is attending the patient, holds out very little hope for the saving of the eyesight.

This is only another instance of the foolishness of playing with firearms, whether loaded or unloaded.

FROM RICE LAKE.

Summer Traffic Rather Brisk Down the River.

Gore's Landing, Rice Lake, presents a very lively appearance at present, and the three summer houses, Rice Lake House, the White House, and Lilac Lodge, are doing a brisk business. Many Cobourg and Port Hope people spent Sunday at the Landing.

Mrs. Borraidale and family, of town, are spending the summer at Gore's Landing.

The daily trips of the Steamer North Star are being well patronized, as are also those of the City of Peterborough.

The "City" went down this afternoon, taking the business men's excursion to Jubilee Point.

The Water Lily, which came up from Rice Lake this morning, left at once for Idyl Wild.

The steamer Beaver was up to Peterborough to-day.

MOULDERS' DEMONSTRATION IN TORONTO.

A Deputation From Town in Attendance.

The annual convention of the Iron Moulders of North America, which has been in session in Toronto all last week, took a holiday off on Saturday. A grand tournament of sports and games was held at Hanlan's Island, at which short speeches were delivered by prominent officers of the Union. A large number of visiting moulders from different parts of Canada and the United States were in attendance. Peterborough sent a deputation, among whom were Messrs. Hugh Robertson, president of the local Union, Jos. Crowe, Arthur Elliott, Albert Thorndyke, J. Cunningham, W. G. Menzies, George Wood, W. Robertson and others.

Mr. J. Robertson, the accredited delegate from the local Union, has been in regular attendance during the whole period of the convention, which is still in session.

A JULY HAILSTORM.

Great Damage Must Have Been Done to the Growing Crops.

The Heavy Rain Occasioned the Flooding of Numerous Cellars Along the Business Portion of George Street.

The rainstorm which visited us this afternoon at about 2.30 o'clock, accompanied by a downpour of hail, brought the usual amount of desolation in its wake. George street became a river of dirty water and small pieces of wood, small boxes and even bundles of lath were carried from where they might have been placed for some distance down the street. The pavement at the Bank of Toronto corner and from that down to China Hall, was submerged, and a great amount of water flowed into the cellars along the route.

The west side of George street, too, suffered severely, and it kept the clerks quite busy sweeping the water from the doors as it threatened to flood the stores.

An extraordinary feature of the storm was the size of the hail stones, many of which were the size of marbles. The storm was over in about 20 minutes time.

The crops throughout the country must have suffered to a considerable extent as the hail and rain came down with great violence.

COUNCIL MEETING.

A Very Brief Session Held on Saturday Evening—Town Can't Handle Dam No. 4.

A special meeting of the Peterborough Town Council was held on Saturday evening. There were present His Worship, Mayor Donne, and Aldermen Corkery, Rogar, Morrison, McGregor, Batten, Clinkscale, Best and Rush.

The Committee of the Whole Council reported as follows;

Your Committee of the Whole Council, beg leave to report and recommend as follows;

1. That the path across Central Park, from the north-east corner to the south west corner, be graded with cinders and put in proper condition.

2. That a grant of $100 be made to the Free Consumption Sanitarium on condition that the town have the privilege of having it applied on account of any patients sent from Peterborough on the recommendation of the Central Charity Board.

3. That the Clerk be instructed to write to the Minister of Railways and Canals and state that as the town has just taken over the waterworks at a cost of $230,000, it is not at present in a position to undertake the large expenditure necessary to develop the power at Dam No. 4, on the Peterborough Lakefield section of the Trent Canal, and therefore the town waives its claim as a prior applicant to the surplus water at the dam in favour of any applicant, who will develop the power and transmit it to Peterborough.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman.

The report was adopted as read and the council then adjourned.

"To the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co., Limited, of Peterborough, Ont.,

"For some time there has been a feeling that something should be done to mutually assist those amongst us who are in distress, either by accident or sickness. Charity is repugnant to us all, and in forming a benefit society the benefits are given as a right an dnot as charity.

"Through the kindness of Mr. Nicholls, on behalf of the company, we have been presented with $1,000.00 as a nucleus of a fund on condition that 60 per cent. of the employees agree to organise themselves together for this purpose.

"The foremen on your behalf, have held several meetings and have drawn up for your approval a set of rules and bylaws to govern the operations of the proposed society. Through the kindness of the Department of Labour, Ottawa, and the officials of the undermentioned societies, a great deal of information has been collected and by appointing good officers amongst yourselves, the society should maintain itself in good financial condition. STONY LAKE NEWS.

Regular Sunday Services Have Begun at the Pavilion—High Water in the Lakes.

The recent heavy rains have raised the water until it is even above the spring freshet high-water mark. The cottagers as well as the steamboat men find it a great inconvenience. A great many of the wharves have been put into very bad shape by the unexpected raise.

The Sunday services were begun at the pavilion yesterday and were conducted by Mr. Archibald, Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at Warren, Pa. Mr. Warren is in charge of twenty of the Y.M.C.A. boys. They are camped on Mr. Harry Stock's island and assisted very materially in the musical portion of the services. Miss Dennistoun presided at the piano. At the close of the evening service the Y.M.C.A. party went down to Mr. C. B. McAllister's place where a big bonfire lit up the whole point. The boys were in fine singing form and several hours were spent most enjoyably, concluding with a marshmallow toast.

The people at "Viamede" were given some excitement on Friday through the capture on the premises of a skunk, by means of a trap. "Jimmy" put fifteen shots into it with a revolver, Charlie, the Chinaman, assisting with a fusilade of stones, before the animal was killed. The steamboat men were very cautious about attempting a landing until assured by megaphone that all was safe and the skunk dead.

Mr. C. B. McAllister has had his cow brought up to his cottage. The animal was placed in a crate on a new wharf which was built at the Point for Mr. McAllister and was then towed by the Majestic to the cottage. When the animal was unloaded some rare sport was afforded those who were lucky enough to be present and see Mr. Mac's wild-west exhibition over the rocks. It was difficult at times to make out whether he was chasing the cow or whether the cow was after him. There was another exhibition at 6 o'clock this morning when milking time came around and the performance it is expected will be repeated this evening, rain or shine.
